DODSON

Last Tuesday morning the sad news reached here of the death of Edward J. Adams, which occurred at Keyser the evening before.

Mr. Adams had been employed here by the Garrett County Coal and Mining Company for the past two years and during the week-end he usually visited his family at Cumberland. Last Saturday evening as usual he went to Cumberland and on Monday while on his return to Dodson he stopped off at Keyser to visit his two brothers.

It seems that Mr. Adams had two bottles in his grip, one of which contained carbolic acid and the other whiskey, both being exactly alike and wrapped in the same kind of paper. He left his grip at the recruiting office while he visited his relatives and returning soon afterward he went to his handbag and opening it took therefrom one of the bottles and took a drink from it. He immediately discovered what he had done and turning to the officer in charge said: "I have made a mistake; get a doctor."

Dr. Hoffman was at once called and everything was done for the man that possibly could be, but he died in a few moments.

Mr. Adams was held in high esteem by all who knew him and stood as a leader in this and other communities among his fellowmen. He was a member of the American Legion at Cumberland, the Loyal Order of Moose at Kitzmiller, and also a member of the United Mine Workers at Dodson.

He is survived by his wife and one son, one sister and five brothers. Interment was made in the old home burying ground at Frankfort, W. Va.

Mr. L. R. Dellinger and family are spending this week at the old home of the former in Winchester, Va. They left here last Saturday morning in a car and arrived at Winchester the same day. By reports they are enjoying their stay in Winchester very much.

The contractors have started to make the necessary improvements on the county road from here to Kitzmiller. For some time this road has been almost impossible and very dangerous to travel upon, but we now have hopes of having a passable road in the very near future.

This week we are entertaining the J. L. Cronin Carnival shows. Large

The Finished Mystery

In magazine form June 1st. Every Christian and order loving person should read it. Explains the cause of the distress of nations, and foretells the blessings of the people in the near future. For the publication of this book during the war, many Christians suffered great persecution, being beaten, tarred and feathered, imprisoned and killed. Mark 13:9. The following is from the Golden Age, June 9th, 1920.

Accused Bible Students Exonerated.

"The officers of the International Bible Students Association, formerly known as Russellites, were indicted in May, 1918, tried before a court and jury and sentenced to 30 years imprisonment for the alleged violation of the Espionage law. They applied for bail on appeal, but bail was denied and they were incarcerated in the penitentiary. At the end of nine months they were released on bail and two months later the United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the judgment because 'they did not have a fair trial.' They were the only men in the country arrested under this act who were denied bail. The reversal of this judgment was equivalent to saying that these men were illegally and unjustly convicted and sentenced and illegally imprisoned. On May 5th 1920, on motion of the United States District Attorney, the cases were dismissed, thus completely removing the charge and vindicating each one of them."

The Finished Mystery explains fully the prophecies of Revelations and Ezekiel, also "The Bridal Anthem," Solomon's Songs.

This book is no longer under the ban and all may now have it. Price in magazine form, 20 c. per copy, post paid.

DAVIS BROTHERS BOTH DEAD

Young Men Who Once Conducted Liquor Business Here Die.

Word has been received here of the deaths of Edgar and Robert A. Davis, brothers, who several years ago conducted a mail order liquor house at the corner of Second and Alder sts. They were natives of Harrisonburg, Va. These brothers conducted a liquor business in Clarksburg, W. Va., until prohibition prevailed in that state. Then they located in Oakland until Garrett county went dry, leaving here and going to Cumberland.

They were seemingly prosperous, and when they came here Edgar Davis was said to have been worth $200,000. At Cumberland the venture in business proved unsuccessful, the brothers losing $10,000. Then Edgar Davis purchased a restaurant business in Pittsburg to find that the court would not grant a liquor license. He is said to have lost $40,000 in this venture. This, followed by other losses, caused mental collapse. He died in Cincinnati in June and the death of his brother, Robert, occurred late in July at Niagara Falls, where he was engaged in the restaurant business. Both were married and were in their early forties.

Knight of Pythias Notes of Interest. The rank of Page was conferred on a class of four last Friday night at the meeting of Garrett Lodge No. 115. The ranks of Esquire and of Knight will be conferred on classes of four each next Friday evening, when lodge will open promptly at 7:30 o'clock in order to adjourn as soon as possible.

We want to impress upon the membership the importance of being present at this meeting. The picnic committee reports that they are in need of assistance from the members generally as the time approaches for the holding of the gathering. Work is increasing and instead of a small affair the picnic is going to be real man's sized job. In order to take care of the visitors who are expected upon the occasion we shall need the help of each individual member of the lodge.

All members of Garrett Lodge who expect to join the Dokeys should make application to Dr. Webb Ravenscroft at as early a date as possible so that the necessary arrangements may be made. The Pythian Sisters will serve a banquet the night of the coronation to all Dokeys and candidates for the degree.

HOW EDITORS GET RICH. While we are pointing out the avenues in various industries that lead to prosperity and while attempting to lend words of encouragement here and there to those who milk, make hay, cut and manufacture timber into a marketable product, mine coal, work nt day's labor in various fields of industry, we are not unappreciative of encouraging words for ourselves or suggestions that may lead us to prosperity also.

The other day, while reading the Rotary Reminder, we ran across a paragraph under the caption, "How An Editor Got Rich," which was, indeed, encouraging, for surely it pointed out one way that any editor who is sufficiently fortunate can get rich.

The story, briefly told, is as follows: "An editor who started poor 20 years ago has retired with the comfortable fortune of $30,000. This money was acquired through industry, economy, conscientious effort to give full value, indomitable perseverance and the sudden death of an uncle, who left the editor $40,000.50."

We do not blame anyone for being envious of editors.

ACTIVITIES IN SCHOOL CIRCLES.

Appointments of Teachers are Announced and Other Public Business of Interest.

The Board of Education of Garrett County met in regular advertised session at its office in Oakland last Friday and transacted considerable business of public interest, all members of the Board being present, as follows: Messrs. Thomas J. Johnson, John O. Thayer and W. A. Gonder.

Bids for the abandoned school lot near Gorman, for which sealed bids had been advertised, were received as follows: J. H. Williams, Gorman, W. Va., $50.00, E. K. Cropp, Gorman, W. Va., $50.50. The lot was accordingly sold to Mr. Cropp.

Delegations were heard in reference to appointment of a trustee at Bethlehem school.

Messrs. J. N. White, C. M. Calhoun, R. C. Wilson and George Brennenman appeared before the Board and asked for a new building and a new school to be established on the Gorman road about one and one-half miles south of Loch Lynn.

The following order in the form of a motion was passed as designated therein:

"Mr. W. A. Gonder moved to make E. A. Browning principal of the Oakland Grammar school, transferring Mr. Browning from the principalship of the Grantsville schools, the same to prevail during the school year of 1920-1921. Mr. John O. Thayer duly seconded the motion. The motion was carried unanimously. The county superintendent did not make the recommendation for the above transfer nor acquiesce therein, but advised against the same.

(Signed) "THOMAS J. JOHNSON, President."

The Board discussed the plan of a county wide committee to further the interests of the proposed bond issue of $200,000 for new school buildings, etc., to be passed upon by the voters of the county at the next general election to be held in November.

The written approval of Mr. A. S. Cook, State Superintendent of Schools, of Mr. Harland L. Jones, Assistant Cashier of the Garrett National Bank, and Mr. Walter W. Dawson, Assistant Cashier of the First National Bank, as auditors of the financial records of the Board, was presented.

Permission was given the teachers and pupils to attend the County Fair to be held in Oakland, on Friday, October 1, 1920, and to participate in the exercises of that day.

county were nominated by the county superintendent of schools and appointed by the Board or transferred by the County Superintendent of Schools for the school year 1920-1921, as follows:

With the appointment and transfers of these teachers, practically all of the schools of the county have been supplied, excepting a few higher positions. Moreover, letters have been written by the County Superintendent of Schools to all trustees, giving the names and addresses of all teachers for their schools, and trustees are urged therein to make every effort possible to prevail upon each teacher appointed not to neglect to take up the work of the school to which he or she has been appointed. This plan alone will fill up all our schools with teachers.

These appointments of teachers, united with all the others that have been made, fill completely the 115 one-room available schools of the county with teachers. This is the first time this has been accomplished for several years.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

The third session of the School of Missions closed August 7th with the best record for registration in its history. One hundred and fifty-six adults and young people registered for the classes and studied our text books with increasing enthusiasm and diligent note books and pencils throughout the whole time.

The school was opened Sunday at 11 a. m., by Bishop W. F. McDowell, Washington, D. C., with a great message, which sounded the keynote for the school. At 3 p. m. there was a platform meeting of missionaries, both home and foreign, at which we had the unique privilege of having Benconess Cox, of St. Matthew's Protestant Episcopal church, Wheeling, W. Va., and others equally interesting.

At 8 p. m., a sermon was preached by the Rev. B. Hevall Chambers, of Millwood, Va., Episcopal church. The bible work was given by Rev. John William Smith, Roanoke, Va., M. E. church, South, who taught in a methodical and impressive manner the origin, growth, construction, use of and duty of making known the Book of books, a course study greatly needed by the rank and file of the church. "The Church and Community" was taught by Mrs. W. H. Farmer, Woman's Board, Baptist church, in her own thorough, impressive and fascinating way.

"The Bible and Missions" was presented by Miss Nora E. Siler, Christian Board of Missions. Miss Siler had been a missionary in Porto Rico and brought that island possession of ours very near by her vivid description of native life and the transforming power of the bible working in the people.

"The Near East" was delightfully and forcefully taught by Miss Ruth McComb, Presbyterian Board, to enthusiastic classes every afternoon at four o'clock in Bashford Hall. This engrossing subject gripped our thought in a way that cannot be shaken off and will produce future results for the Gospel of our Lord in that land demanding the attention of our country.

"Methods" were taught by the different members of the faculty, assisted by Mrs. Charles H. Evans, specially gifted in poster and publicity work. She was also our musical director and an invaluable help in the camp.

The evenings were filled with helpful lectures and moving pictures. Our girls camp, in the roomy annex of the Thompson Rest Home, was in charge of Miss Minnie Thomas, Philadelphia Board of W. H. M. S., assisted by Mrs. Elsie Clark Krug, former missionary to China, who had bible study; Mrs. W. H. Farmer, who taught "Serving the Neighborhood"; Miss Susan C. Lodge, who taught the Bible and Missions; and Miss Sara Noy, of Wheeling, W. Va., director of recreation.

The girls combined work with play and had great times with hikes, rides, afternoon stunts and a bonfire. From our family of splendid girls this year, two go into active missionary work this fall. Mrs. Nellie D. Hancock, who volunteered for life service last year, goes to India as a teacher in the Allahabad school. Miss Sara Noy, of Wheeling, W. Va., who volunteered for life service two years ago in our camp, goes to Dickinson Industrial Home for White Girls, Nathiston, Miss., as superintendent of the Home. Two others have volunteered this year and will go into special training as soon as they finish high school. Next year there will be a service flag on which a gold star will be placed for each one as she enters her field of labor. As Miss Sara Noy was the first volunteer entering active service, her's will be the first star on our Camp Girls' service flag. The second star will be that of Mrs. Nellie D. Hancock. We will hope to see our flag filled with the stars of our fine young women who will devote their lives to service for the King.

The Park is in excellent condition: buildings in fine repair, good electric light and water service, and everything prospering under the administration of Rev. W. B. Slutz, who is admirably fitted for his position. Mr. Lake Park is sure of a great future if God's people will stand by the present administration and get the vision of the great possibilities of this place as a center of education for efficiency in God's service. MRS. S. W. DAVIS.

Rev. H. M. Nichols, a student of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary will preach his farewell sermon Sunday evening at the Loch Lynn Baptist church. His subject will be, "The Second Coming of Jesus Christ." Mr. Nichols will leave the first of September to resume his studies at the seminary. All wish him success in his year's work.

The season at the Park officially closes on this Friday night, which will also witness the close of the cafeteria which has been so successfully operated during the months that are past by Mr. Hamilton, whose sole aim was to give entire satisfaction to the patrons and their money's worth in good, wholesome, substantial food. The service, too, was all that could be desired. Mr. Hamilton during his stay in the Park has made many friends both at the Park and in Oakland, a large number of whose residents were daily patrons of the cafeteria. It is sincerely hoped that he will again be in charge of the Inn during the season next year.

With the closing of the season at the Park it does not necessarily follow that the town will become a deserted village overnight, for there are hundreds who will remain for the lovely fall and early winter months, the most delightful of all the months of the year in this mountain region.

Tonight at the Amphitheatre there will be a homelike show in which many of the talented people of the Park will take part. To this entertainment there will be no admission charge.

Tomorrow (Friday) evening, Dr. Maurice Egan, former Ambassador to one of the European countries will deliver his celebrated address on "Diplomacy." Dr. Egan has been a resident of the Park for the past several years and his companionship is sought after by many of our visitors, they will be a homelike show in which many of the talented people of the Park will take part. To this entertainment there will be no admission charge.

members of his family will likely remain at the Park until very late in the fall when they will possibly go to Baltimore to spend the winter. Dr. Slutz, however, will be a frequent visitor here during the cold months, especially during the ice harvest.

The much advertised Democratic meeting was held in the Amphitheatre on Friday afternoon, when Mr. Gilmore S. Hamill, of the Oakland bar, introduced the speaker, Mr. Harry L. Gandy, of South Dakota, to an audience of less than two hundred men, women and children, who had gathered to hear him. The meeting was perfectly harmless from a Republican standpoint; no new thought was brot out by the speaker and it is a question that has been debated since the meeting was held that the cause of Democracy has suffered by some of the explanations and weak arguments presented.

In the tennis tournament held here during the past week many players of more than ordinary ability appeared upon the courts, among whom were several from Oakland and other nearby points.

In the finals of the men's doubles played on Saturday last, S. Jarvis Adams, Jr., of Pittsburgh, and Robert Slizer, of Oakland, defeated W. L. Davidson, of Baltimore, and James Gaines, of Pittsburgh, by the score of 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3.

Adams and Slizer won the semi-finals a few minutes before the finals from Brown and Wright, of Connellsville, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4. Although they had just finished the semi-finals, the playing of Adams and Slizer was sensational in the singles. Slizer, who is quite young, won rounds of applause on his placing, lobbying, net playing, service and forehand lawfords. He is one of the best players seen this year on the local courts.

Sam Garrison, of Pittsburgh, defeated in the final round of the singles to John Brown, of Connellsville. Brown, who was a newcomer this year, was a whirlwind on the courts. Besides capturing the singles cup for the championship of Western Maryland, his victory gave him the first leg on the three year challenge cup.

On Tuesday evening, August 22, Mr. Joseph Friend was very agreeably surprised when many of his friends in Loch Lynn called to pay their respects, the occasion marking Mr. Friend's 62nd anniversary. About forty guests were present and had a very enjoyable evening. Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Whorton, of Oakland, and Miss Flora Van Sickle, of Friendsville, were those present from out of town. Refreshments were served about 10:30 after which the guests departed expressing the wish that could meet again upon a like occasion next year.

MCHENRY

Owing to the lack of news items from this town in the columns of The Republican it would be natural for our readers to come to the conclusion that we have been drowned owing to the extreme wet weather we have been having for the past several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Roy, of Akron, Ohio, are spending some time with relatives at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Raley and family, Samuel Teats and Roy Ferguson spent Sunday at the home of George Gloflety.

Earle Gloflety has traded his Ford touring car for a runabout.

J. E. Kitzmiller is wearing a smile as broad as a barn door all on account of the fact that recently his home was visited by the long billed bird which left in his keeping a boy.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Gloflety spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Arch Gloflety.

Mrs. Emma Specht and Mrs. John A. Bolander, of Oakland, spent last Wednesday at the home of Mr. Mahlon Gloflety in this section.

We learn with regret that our hustling merchant, Lev Winters, has sold his store here and intends to leave for a point in Florida about November 1st.

Mrs. Esther Gloflety, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Butler, at Jennings, has returned to her home here.

Edward Deal has gone to Somersfield, Pa., where he has secured employment.

Mrs. Lou Lowdermilk, of Uniontown, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. David Kaiser and daughter, of New Jersey, who have been visiting at the home of George Gloflety, have returned to their respective places of abode.

BITTINGER

The incessant rains of the past week have greatly hindered all manner of work on the farms. There is yet a considerable quantity of hay to make, some of which is now overripe on the stalk and some is lying in the meadows in shock losing much of its value as a food from the frequent wettings. Oats, which are ripening, are also suffering, and potatoes in some places are becoming blighted.

Mr. Frye and family, of Braddock, Pa., are spending some time in this community as guests in the Jonas Bittinger and Charles Sechler homes.

Clever Brenneman and family, of Akron, Ohio, are spending their vacation with relatives here.

Mrs. Mahlon G. Baker, of Bridgeville, Del., with her children, are visiting Mrs. Baker's mother, Mrs. C. J. Brenneman, at this writing.

A closely contested game of baseball was played between the Meadow Mountain and Bittinger teams on last Saturday afternoon which resulted in a score of 7 to 8 in favor of the Bittinger lands.

Mrs. C. C. Bittinger is entertaining a number of guests from Pittsburgh at her pleasant home on the banks of the Caseelman River.

Messrs. C. E. Ellithorp and A. J. Orendorf were business visitors to Oakland last Saturday afternoon.

The annual church picnic held at Meadow Mountain last Saturday was attended by a number of folks from this side of the mountain.

Joseph Ash, the veteran road builder, is doing some very good work on the road between this village and the town of Grantsville, and it is hoped that he may continue until the road is completed.

Mrs. Myrtle Walburn took her little son Benton to Cumberland last week where it was found necessary to remove the child's tonsils and at this time Master Benton is doing very well.

Joseph Buckle, who underwent an operation at the Western Maryland Hospital in Cumberland, a few days ago, is reported to be recovering and it is hoped that he may soon be able to return to his home here.

"Overalls where I work get about as big a test as you can give an overall."

(Signed) Adam Diehl

"As big a test as you can give an overall"

UP where a man must balance on iron girders, climb swaying beams, where a single false move means a helpless body dropping to the pavement 800 feet below—that's where Adam Diehl works.

"Believe me," says Adam Diehl, "it means a lot when I tell you I put on Blue Buckle Overalls every time I work on a high building. The overalls I wear have got to fit easy. I can't afford to have them pull or bind—and they've got to stand up strong under the toughest kind of wear.

"Overalls where I work get about as big a test as you can give an overall."

Like millions of workers on big jobs—on farms, in factories, on railroads—everywhere, Adam Diehl has found that of all the overalls he's worn Blue Buckles give the fullest value—last the longest.

Long wear is woven into the tough, thick denim cloth. Every pair is always big and roomy—always comfortable. The wide, double-stitched seams will not rip. The heavy brass buttons and buckles don't rust or break. Every detail has the same sturdy, first-class workmanship, the same careful attention. Big, convenient pockets—extra wide suspenders, and free swing raglan sleeves on all the coats.

Wear, comfort, looks, you'll find Blue Buckles have them all. Ask your dealer for a pair today—Men's, Youths' and Children's sizes.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 29.

The beginning of Solomon's Reign. I Kings 1:1-8:15. Read II Chron. 1.

The fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; And to depart from evil is understanding. Job 28:18.

BUILDING AN EMPIRE.

Solomon was the greatest builder Israel ever knew. In a measure he found Jerusalem mud and left it marble. Palace and temple bore evidence of his interest and all over the land were monuments to this same passion. He may be counted success or failure but building enterprises thrived during his rule.

David's choice. The good old days of democracy were gone for David had been called to power by the people's will and took oath to follow a "manant agreement between the two. Imperial ideas had wiped David's brain of an idea of allowing the people voice their preference. Ruling thru army with its paid body-guard of soldiers for the Philistines and Hebrews were not Hebrews, the king had drifted toward absolutism instead of its opposite. His experiences, Absalom had helped also, the king had no numerously voiced their voice for the rebel. Palace intrigues have entered to some extent. Heba was shrewd enough and un-ious enough to take every ad-ge of David's love and remorse. ab was the eldest remaining son m custom and acceptance among ations the normal successor to ty. The old leaders like Joba bathar who had shared David's the days of his cotlawry and held his crown steady thru the years turned him naturally in the cloudy close of his father's reign. Evidently David had made no mention of any other thought to even his intimates and the action held in it nothing of the disloyalty that Absalom's had possessed. It was taken in the interest of a stable state and only a regency was aimed at for these long-time friends would not have harmed their loved King. But the action roused the flagging energies of David to decision and Solomon was lifted suddenly into power. With the death of his father he set himself quietly to watch the group that held possible disaffection within it and when he decided that there was danger he struck swiftly and death and banishment followed the stroke. His name might be "peaceful" but he was no puppet princeling with whom others could play. He began his long dependence upon diplomacy rather than force by an alliance with the strong neighbor, Egypt which was sealed by orange blossoms and welcomed by wedding bells. Small wonder that the record reads: "The kingdom was established in the hand of Solomon."

BUILDING A DREAM.

The dream is coming back into its heritage of honor. It held a large place in the thinking of Solomon's day and when a great institution like Johns Hopkins sets itself to study the dream of life of patients as an aid in diagnosis and a guide to treatment the stuff dreams are made of becomes not such flimsy material as perhaps we think.

Whether day-dreams or night dreams there is material for study in them all for they are builded out of the life of the dreamer. That Handel should dream of his own greatness or authority but only praise as he recalls what his Father is a perfectly normal thing because so much a part of the person's life. The soul's passion must find expression. But it is the person who determines the dream and not the reverse. So soon as Solomon had stabilized the elements of his kingdom he went to Gibeon. What was Gibeon? It was a holy city linked with the earliest history of the conquest when it leagued itself with Joshua. In the days of reconstruction it was assigned to the Levites and according to the Chronicler (13) the old Tabernacle from the wilderness journeyings became its possession. The placing of the Ark in Jerusalem must not yet be given the place in our thinking that it held in Judah's later days for while it grew into the very heart of Israel David held it in the King's Chapel rather than in the Church of all the Nation. In the estimate of all the tribes Gibeon may have at this time been more the place of worship than the Capital. At any rate Solomon turned to it as the open witness of his loyalty to his father's God and carried his eager soul into its precincts when he was settling the beginning of his reign. Nor was it enough that he should enter its gates, he must worship Jehovah there and his whole journey was an endeavor to meet that Deity beloved of David. In a holy place, in the shadow of an historic Presence, with soul aglow from worship was it any wonder that he should dream of Jehovah? Nor is it strange if we dream business or pleasure instead of God if we carry nothing else into slumber with us.

BUILDING A LIFE.

There is nothing but attractiveness in the picture of this young ruler unveiled in his dream. There is no sense of his own greatness or authority but only praise as he recalls what his Father had done, how Jehovah had blessed him. His conduct in the political crisis thru which he had passed had been masterful enough but in the face of all the perplexities of the kingdom he seemed to himself but a little child. Even the people over whom he was to rule were not "his" but "Thy" people. Their need rather than his own was in the front of his thinking as he begs for a heart that understands and a brain that discerns. He wishes to administer justice and is listening to the call of the only vision that is big enough to thrill a king, throne a servant and thrall the heart of the Son of God. No wonder God was pleased. He could go into partnership with a heart like that and could promise in addition to its fulfillment material evidence of its presence in the life. Jesus voiced the same thing when He said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom and all these things shall be added unto you." But whether gold and greatness come the soul that sets itself to serve others so great that there is no need for them for the man himself has become a king. Whatever failure we may credit to Solomon is due to the dimming of his early vision and not to its increasing light. He is a most fascinating figure as he chooses the fundamental thing in every fine life, to become the partner of Jehovah in seeing that to serve people is also God's service.

FOR SALE:—I offer for sale twenty-eight acres of the Bradley farm, upon which is located the Bradley residence, piped for gas and water; bath; cellar; property in good condition; land lies well and is in a good state of cultivation. If interested, call upon or address, GEORGE GIESSEMAN, Oakland, Md.—Advertisement 25 17.

WOMEN WELCOMED TO G. O. P.
RANKS BY CHAIRMAN TAIT.

The statement of Galen L. Tait,
Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, given to the of the State on the ratification of the Woman's Suffrage by the Tennessee Legislature, is as follows:

"The Republican party of Maryland heartily welcomes the women of the State to political equality, fully endowed with the right to vote. Our party has consistently led in this great movement, now so triumphantly successful. Representing Maryland Republicanism, as Senator Jackson's proxy at the recent Columbus meeting of the National Republican Committee, I had the pleasure of voting for the committee's resolution calling upon the Republican members of the Tennessee Legislature to ratify the suffrage amendment. The Democratic State machine of Maryland has standily contested this advance in human rights. The platform of the last Democratic State convention bitterly rejected equal suffrage, and the Maryland delegates of the Democratic National Convention at San Francisco strongly opposed the principles of extending to women the right to vote.
But in vain. The hand that rocks the cradle will help to rule both State and Nation.

"We invite the women of Maryland to enroll themselves in the ranks of the Republican party—the party which for sixty years has advocated human rights and promoted progress and prosperity in our land."

K. of P. Notes of Interest.
The rank of Esquire and also that of Knight were conferred on classes of four each on last Friday evening at the regular session of Garrett Lodge
No. 113.

The applications of ten good citizens of Garrett county were received for action by the members of this lodge at the last regular meeting. We continue to grow.

On Wednesday evening there will be a special meeting for the purpose of conferring the rank of Esquire on three of our members. The meeting will begin promptly at the hour of 8.
There is still room for more candidates for the Dukes. If you are a member of the Knights of Pythias and expect to join this branch of the organization, you should take advantage of the opportunity to do so at this time in view of the fact that the institution fee over and above the expenses will go to pay for our home.
Make your application to Dr. Webb Ravenscroft.

A great deal of help will be needed from all members of Garrett Lodge to assist in the preparation for the picnic to be held on September 6th.
If you are most earnestly requested to see Bro. J. W. Whorton who will tell you what you may do toward making the affair the success that it should and will be if you lend your help.

Prospects are that we will have one of the greatest gatherings of people that Oakland ever witnessed on September 6. A recent visitor who travels between Oakland and Grafton, said that we would have a great many people from the territory he covers and that we should make arrangements to care for them. From reports received from other sources, the indications are that we will have a large crowd from nearly every section of the country, hence to keep our good name as a hospitable it is incumbent upon us that we give our guests to-be the hospitality due them.

On next Friday evening the rank of Esquire will be conferred on a class of ten Pages.

PEA CANNERY PERMANENT

Garrett County Farmers May Have It
If They Want It.

The farmers and pea growers of Garrett county may have established permanently either at Oakland or in Loch Lynn Heights a cannery that will take care of their product for years to come if they so desire, is the information coming to The Republican from the office of County Agent Jas.
A. Towler in the communication from that office which was received by The Republican Monday morning.

Mr. Towler's letter follows:
"At a meeting of the pea growers at the office of the County Agent on Saturday, August 14th, at which time Mr. Fooks, of the cannery concern which operated at Loch Lynn Heights during the past few weeks, was also present and paid the growers for the peas delivered this year.

"Mr. Fooks told the growers that, after going the peas a trial, if they desired to continue growing peas for canning and would grow acreage sufficiently large enough to justify, he would establish a permanent plant either at Oakland or at Loch Lynn Heights. He said an acreage of two hundred acres would justify this, and if they would grow 200 acres or more he would establish the permanent cannery in Garrett county.

"At the meeting about thirty growers were present and these signed up contracts to grow 108 acres. One farmer contracted to grow 25 acres.
Now, 108 acres is only about half of the acreage necessary to make the cannery a permanent and paying institution, hence if there are others who are interested in this proposition and will grow peas, get in touch with the County Agent and tell him how many acres you are willing to put out. Mr.
Fooks must know within the next few weeks what the farmers want to do in this respect. He is satisfied from this year's experience that peas can be grown here and grown at a profit to the producer, but he is not willing to can the peas under the handicap that he was subjected to this year, and to justify him in putting up a building and installing the proper machinery he wants not less than 200 acres to start with. He has offered a premium of $5.00 a ton on the Horford garden pea for another year, and will furnish the seed for the same that he did this year, at 7 cents per pound.
Those who desired and planted this year are apparently well satisfied with the results, as practically everyone has agreed to increase their acreage another year.

"It is now up to the farmers entirely if they will agree to grow the required acreage, the cannery is an assured thing; otherwise, it is not.
Those who are interested in this proposition and interest others and have them report to the County Agent at once."
J. A. TOWLER, County Agent.

THE ASHBY REUNION

Fourth Annual Gathering of the Family Was Held On the 14th Inst.

On Saturday, August 14th, the Ashby clan held their fourth annual reunion in Frank Ashby's picnic grove, near Crellin, a few miles west of Oakland, when more than two hundred relatives and friends attended, and enjoyed the good dinner prepared for the occasion by the housewives of the clan and the splendid addresses delivered by the Revs. McComie, Fellers and Blake.

Mr. N. U. Bond, of Bond, Ky., was also present and gave a very interesting talk relative to the early settlers in the Ashby family of this section of the country.

Many who were present at the reunion came from distant points, among whom were Arthur Ashby and his daughter and son-in-law and their children, of St. Louis, Mo.; Thomas W. Ashby, wife and son, of Cumberland; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ashby and daughter, of Parkersburg, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. William O. Ashby and son, of Fairmont, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Ashby, of Washington, D. C., and others.

After the dinner had been served,
the Ashby choir rendered several excellent selections which were interspersed with short talks by members of the family.

The reunions are held annually on the second Saturday of August and the attendance grows larger each succeeding year.

We are Proud of Our Farmer Friends

We are especially proud that we have so many farmer customers. Agriculture is particularly interesting to us, as indeed it should be to everyone, and we like to have the farmers drop in and talk over their problems with us.

When we can give advice or render service of any kind, we are always glad to do so.

We know that the growth and development of this community depend to a large extent upon its farming interests, and we aim to do our part toward helping the farmers succeed.

We invite farmers to bank with us.

A LETTER WITH A MESSAGE

Written By State Superintendent Cook to a Garrett County Teacher. Following in this column of The Republican will be found a copy of a letter from Mr. A. S. Cook, State Superintendent of Schools, to Mr. E. A. Browning, of Friendsville, to which the attention of the readers of this paper is directed.

This letter has a ring and a snap to it that can come only from a man like Mr. Cook, who stands upon the simple platform, as his friends assure us, which is built upon the four corners of "law and order, decency and righteousness."

With many similar letters sent throughout this State, there will soon percolate into our State school system a stream of great force that will make cowards of all who are not urged on to action through the spirit of righteousness and of wholly warranted principles.

This letter from the State Superintendent is a striking lesson to our people in exercising care in signing all sorts of papers presented and will have a sobering effect in halting many of them from signing petitions and protests against things about which they know nothing and are not willing to learn the real facts concerning any rumor or mere gossip under discussion before attempting to discredit those in authority and who are sworn officers.

We congratulate the State Superintendent of Schools upon the vigor of his stand as shown in his letter printed below, and we venture the prophecy that with the continuance of such a professional and firm policy of school administration in the schools of Maryland, our State will soon emerge from among the "tail enders" in the list of States educationally as recently announced by the Russell Sage Foundation of New York City and take a position that no true Marylander need be ashamed of.

Mr. Cook's letter to Mr. Browning follows:

"STATE OF MARYLAND.

"210 West Madison Street, Baltimore.

"August 23, 1920.

"Mr. E. A. Browning,

"Friendsville, Maryland.

"My dear Mr. Browning:

"A petition was received at our office on August 19, 1920, dated Oakland, June 20, 1920, which contains your name as one of the signers, and I am writing to you because I know you personally.

"I have before me at this writing the report of the Board of Education of Garrett county for the year ending July 31, 1919, as well as the report of the State Board of Education (not the Garrett County Board) for the same year. The amount of $3,553.45 which you complain about was deducted from both the receipts and disbursements by the auditors in our office, and enters into the report in that effect. The reason for this deduction was that this $3,553.45 was returned to the Board of County Commissioners as the balance of the county general funds on hand July 31, 1918, and was not spent for school expenses that year. I am reliably informed that this information has been given to the Board of Education of Garrett county and that the County Board of Education evidently published its report before notice of the correction made in our office had been received by them.

"I am very much surprised, indeed, to find your name attached to a petition on a matter of this sort. In the first place, the books of the County Board of Education were carefully audited by two responsible and well-known bank officials in Garrett county; and in the second place, were again audited in the office of the State Board of Education. A letter written here by any citizen of Garrett county asking for information would have brought forth the reply that I am giving you now, just as I understood the explanation was made by the Garrett County Board of Education. I therefore wish to say that I am surprised that you should have taken this course.

"The ladies of the county, have signed a petition which attempts to discredit your County Board of Education and your County Superintendent without first ascertaining the real facts in the case, if you did not already know them.

"I am sending a copy of this letter to the County Board of Education at Oakland.

"Very truly yours,

(Signed) "ALBERT S. COOK," "ASC-GES State Superintendent."

FOR SALE—In Oakland, house of eight rooms and bath; newly painted; large basement; gas and water; lot 36x120 feet. Terms upon application to S. A. NETTLEN, Oakland.—Advertisement 26-6t

Mrs. Lulu White, of near Chicago, who was the guest for several days recently of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. White at their home in Oakland, left for her home in Chicago for a point in Florida where she will visit relatives before returning to her western home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Collins, of Martinsburg, West Va., arrived in Oakland Sunday evening where Mr. Collins will be engaged for several weeks supervising the installation of the electrical equipment in the new knitting mills here, which will be ready for operation in a short time.

Congressman J. Charles Linthicum, representing one of the Baltimore City Congressional Districts, has requested The Republican to state that he has "a large number of 1919 Agricultural Year Books on hand and will be glad to send one to any party who would be interested in the book. Address him House of Representatives, Washington, D. C."

Mr. Charles C. Speicher, of Meyersdale, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Speicher, of Wray, Colorado, were visitors to Oakland Monday of this week when the Messrs. Speicher visited The Republican. Thirty-two years have elapsed since Mr. F. E. Speicher made a visit to his old home in the Accident section of Garrett county, and the present visit is the first for Mrs. Speicher to points in the east. The lady is very much interested in the appearance of our forests, they being her wonderful revelation as to timber of any consequence grows in the country where she has resided all her life. They expect to remain in the east another week and then leave for their home in the west.

ROAD WORK RESUMED

Completion of First Section of Hutton Road May Be Accomplished this Fall. With the arrival here today or two ago of materials with which to build the first section of two miles of the Oakland-Hutton road, which was begun last year and work resumed again this spring only to be discontinued on account of the contractors being unable to secure sand and cement, was resumed this morning with a full force of men on the ground.

With the receipt of the necessary materials and a dry fall the contractors declare that it will be possible to complete the two miles under contract yet this year.

At the point on the improved highway system in this county where the Keyser Ridge road debouches into the National Road four automobiles were wrecked on Sunday, caused by the intense fog which hung over that section of the country almost the entire day and well along in the night. At the junction point of the roads a car was entering from the south when a much larger car came west on the Keyser Ridge road and struck it. The car struck it amidships and almost completely wrecked both machines. One bore a Pennsylvania license tag while the other was from this State. At the same point and within a few minutes of each other two cars failed to negotiate the turn from the lateral road into the National road and both piled up against the fence bordering the north side of the Pike. Fortunately no one was seriously injured in any of the mishaps, although all had very narrow escapes.

There is a motor truck in Oakland, at present employed in hauling cinder from the railroad yards to points on the roadways leading out of Oakland bearing the Maryland license tag numbered 13-526. It is not unusual, in any way, for a truck to carry a license, for all of them must be so equipped, but the figures upon it are the peculiarity. Take 13 for instance. It is so claimed by many to be unlucky. If this is true then look out for accidents a-plenty happening to truck 13-526. 13, the initial figures divide 52, the third and fourth figures of the combination four times it also divides 26, the fourth and fifth figures of the combination, twice, while the total number of the third, fourth and fifth figures of the tag is likewise 13. The Republican has gone no further with what may be worked with the figures appearing upon the tag. The total number of letters comprising the driver's name, Abraham Lawton, is 13. We advise all to give truck 13-526 a wide berth. We shall not get in its way.

DEER PARK

Deer Park was promised a new school building this year, but a force of men are engaged in repairing the old one, so it is presumed that we will not get a new one for some years to come.

Rev. Phillips, of Philippi, W. Va.; C. G. Travis, of Fairmont, and Miss Florence Connolly, of Mannington, are guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Frantz in Deer Park.

Miss Sara McCamie, of Corinth, spent Tuesday in town with friends.

Mrs. Parley Diehl and children, of Keyser, were in town on Thursday.

Mr. Frank Hiss, of Washington, D. C., who is spending the summer here, was stricken with apoplexy on last Friday and is in a serious condition as a result.

Mrs. Jennie Freeland was an Oakland visitor on Tuesday.

Mrs. Maude Medeser and son Herbert, of Scottsdale, Pa., spent several days of last week in Deer Park.

Mr. E. Ray Jones, of Oakland, spent Sunday in Deer Park with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Jones.

Mrs. William Lewis and Misses Margaret West and Elsie Lewis spent Tuesday with friends in Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hott, of Petersburg, W. Va., who have been in Deer Park for several days, were guests of relatives, left on Friday for a visit to Keyser relatives.

Miss Minnie Foster and Miss Emma Palmer, of Buckhannon, West Va., were visiting Mrs. A. C. George the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Albert Droege, of New York City, are visiting at Fairview cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rohmer and Mr. Fred Wieprecht, who have been visiting their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Riss, for the past two weeks, returned to their homes in Baltimore Saturday.

Miss Lola Shaffer, of Clarksburg, is visiting Mrs. A. C. George.

Mrs. Howard Nesbitt and children are visiting in Rowlesburg at this time.

Mrs. H. V. Fisher, of Altamont, was in town on Saturday.

Miss Marie Maroney, of Oakland, is here for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Garrett.

Our genial friend, Mr. David Walter, of Oakland, was in Deer Park on Saturday.

Miss Cecelia Griffith, of Oakland, is here on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Porter DeWitt.

Mr. Harry Thrasher, who underwent a surgical operation at Cumberland recently, has returned to his home.

We have it from pretty good authority that a party of New York people are camping on the mountain about three miles east of Deer Park and that in the near future a scope of the country in the vicinity of the camp is to be cleared of underbrush and a permanent summer camp established by a larger party of New Yorkers.

Two coaches of K. of C. girls from Chicago, who were on an excursion trip through the United States, stopped off at Deer Park on Friday. From here they went to St. Louis.

The people of this place regret that Rev. H. M. Nichols, of Mountain Lake Park, is soon to take his departure to resume his studies at the Southern Baptist Seminary.

The neighbors are repairing the road known as King's lane, which will be a great improvement. ELECTRIC

HUTTON

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Brien and Miss Julia Sarfield, of Piedmont, W. Va., were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Feeney at Edgewood on Sunday.

Mr. C. R. Hecker, was an Oakland visitor one evening last week.

A community dance was held in Pendergast's Hall on the evening of Tuesday last. The following were among those who were present: Mrs. John Sweeney, Misses Agnes and Veronica Rasche and Premia Bolden, Messrs. John Sweeney, William Browning and Percy Prantz, the entire party motoring from Oakland to this place.

The Oakland people stated at the close of the evening that they will return to Hutton in the very near future, having had such an enjoyable time on this occasion. We wish they will.

Miss Delia Hughes, of Pittsburgh, Pa., arrived in Hutton on Saturday evening last and expects to spend a two weeks vacation in and near Hutton with relatives and friends. Miss Hughes was formerly of this place.

Messrs. Charles R. Hecker and Jerry J. Pendergast were visitors at Corinth, W. Va., on Friday evening.

Mr. J. T. Pendergast, of Akron, O., is here on a visit to his people at this place.

Mr. Neil Simmons spent Sunday with his family in Parsons, West Va., returning to Hutton Monday.

On the afternoon of Saturday last the Death Angel claimed for its own two little infant children of this community, namely that of Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Nethkin and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kinner, the former being but a babe of six days while the latter was a little girl of seventeen months. The funerals occurred Sunday afternoon, interment being made in the Oakland and Terra Alta cemeteries.

County Boys Have Great Time in Camp.

Boys returning from camping on the South Branch report having had a great time, and all are looking forward to going to the same place another year.

State Club Leader Jenkins visited the camp during the early part of the week and delighted the boys with his camp fire stories. Prof. Pierson of the State College told stories of travel in the Philippines, Rockies and Panama of an evening around the camp fire. Dr. Norton of the State College took the boys out on several hikes and pointed out every tree, shrub and plant on the way and later conducted contests among the boys in identifying the plants seen. Dr. Timanus of the Public Athletic League of Maryland visited the camp on Wednesday and Thursday and gave the aquatic test, which consisted of swimming twenty-five yards in twenty-three seconds, diving and swimming for form.

Out of the twenty-five boys attending the camp, the following passed the test and won the bronze badge: Harvey Stanton, Paul Stanton, Raymond Bender and Roy Beachy, all of Grantsville, and Batty Ridder, of near Oakland.

On Friday afternoon the whole camp hiked to the peach orchards of the Patomac Fruit Company, Springfield, W. Va., and helped themselves to peaches. Mr. Webb, the superintendent of the orchard, explained to the boys how the peaches were picked, graded and packed. All of the above was in addition to the daily program, which consisted of reveille at 7 a. m., setting up exercises at 7:15, dip in the river at 7:30, breakfast at 8:00, swim at 11:00, dinner at 12:30, swim at 4, supper at 6, taps at 9:45, and lights out at 10:00. All the spare time was spent in boxing, pitching quoits, playing ball, dodge ball, and various other games.

Batty Ridder won the 50 yard swim with Paul Stanton, Grantsville, second, and Allegany boys third and fourth. Paul Custer, Grantsville, won the second dash, with Dickens, of Allegany county, second, and Edgar Stanton, Grantsville, third.

The Garrett county boys beat the Allegany boys in the dodge ball contest by 8 to 1. Allegany won the quoit pitching contest, although Custer and Edgar, of Garrett, made them go the limit to do it.

Wickfield, of Allegany county, won the standing broad jump in the senior class, with Raymond Bender, of Grantsville, a close second. In the Junior class, Robert Hoffman, of Oakland, came first, with Harding of Allegany, second. Custer, of Garrett, won the hop-skip-and-jump in the Senior class. Gillum, of Allegany, won in the Junior class.

Gillum and Drake, of Allegany county, won in the plant identification contest, each naming thirty-three specimens out of a possible fifty. Custer, of Garrett, came third, naming twenty-nine.

All of the boys won camp monograms.

LEGISLATURE TO CONVENE

Governor Ritchie To Call Extra Session for September 20th.

Governor Ritchie announced late yesterday that he will call a special session of the Legislature on September 20 to provide means for the adequate registration of women for the November elections.

The Governor's statement says "there is no doubt that the present time for registration is so short that even on the most conservative basis thousands of Maryland women would be disfranchised, and no relief is possible except through an extra session of the Legislature."

The only two objections to the special session that have been urged are the cost and the possibility that matters not pertinent to the call might be forced upon the Legislature, says the statement. The Governor says he assumes the people will cheerfully bear the cost in view of the circumstances. He adds that the session should not last more than a few days.

The statement further says that political expediency should not be allowed to overbalance what is inherently right, and he expresses confidence that the Legislature will not allow matters "not pertinent to the call" to be forced upon it. This refers, it is taken, to the fear expressed in some quarters that there will be a drive for ratification of the suffrage amendment.

The Governor's statement goes into details on the number of days now available in both Baltimore city and the counties for registration, and, working on the assumption that as many women will register as there are men now registered, he concludes that 69,521 women would be disfranchised in the counties and "thousands of men and women would be disfranchised in Baltimore City" for lack of sufficient time to register.

Even if only 50 per cent. of the women should apply for registration, says the statement, there would be 34,760 left unregistered for lack of time, assuming there would be absolutely no delay.

Even the registration could be accomplished, the statement concludes, there is the gravest doubt if the total vote could be cast within the present hours on election day.

ADMIT HE ROBBED KITZMILLER BANK WITH TWO OTHERS

Luther Frye, of Shanandorah County, Va., Now In Oakland Jail For Trial.

Luther Frye, of Shanandorah county, Va., arrested about a week ago on a charge of violating a Virginia statute and placed in jail at Woodstock, Va., confessed to the officials of that state that he and two others, Paul and Dave Neff, held up and robbed the bank at Kitzmiller, this county, in May, 1917, when they secured $10,000 in cash and made their escape, going to points in the middle west where they spent the money in riotous living and then wandered back to their Virginia homes.

Upon receipt of the news of the confession made by Frye, Marshall Manning, of the Fidelity Company which carried the insurance against burglary of the Kitzmiller bank, came to Oakland where he was met on last Saturday by President R. A. Smith of the Kitzmiller bank who swore out a warrant for Frye's arrest upon the charge which was placed in the hands of Sheriff Roy O. Winters, who in company with Dr. Webb Ravenscroft, went to Woodstock on Sunday morning where the prisoner was turned over to them and with whom they arrived in Oakland Monday. Frye is now in the Oakland jail and will be given a hearing before Justice West on the charge this afternoon.

In a statement to the local authorities Frye stated that he was induced by the Neff brothers to join them in the hold-up; that he is tired of dodging the officers of the law and desires to be tried and begin his term of imprisonment at the earliest possible moment.

The warrant for the arrest of Frye, upon the charge also alleged the participation in the crime by the Neffs. Both of these men are now in the Virginia penitentiary at Richmond where they are serving terms for crimes committed in that state and upon the termination of their sentences they will be arrested for the part they took in the Kitzmiller robbery and brought to Oakland for trial.

INJURED IN WRECK ON PIKE

Infant and Grandmother Suffer From Injuries Received Sunday.

On Sunday last as Mr. Floyd Wensel, of near town, accompanied by Mrs. Wensel, their infant child and Mrs. R. J. Nicholson, mother of Mrs. Wensel, were motoring over the Pike, their destination being Morgantown, the car was wrecked on Summit Hill, near Uniontown, Pa., by reason of the slippery condition of the road and the extremely steep grade, which caused the car to skid and run into another automobile which had been wrecked from the same cause just a few minutes before. Baby Wensel was cut about the face and head by flying particles of glass, while Mrs. Nicholson was painfully injured and is suffering severely. The party returned to Oakland by train on Tuesday from Morgantown.

THE DEATH RECORD

MRS. MARTHA F. WEST.

After months of illness due to advancing years and an injury which she sustained about a year ago when she fell and dislocated her hip, Mrs. Martha Fairall West, widow of the late Richard Johnson West, died at her home on Third street in Oakland last Monday morning at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. West was born at Selbyport, Garrett county, July 29, 1834, and was aged 86 years, one month and one day. She was married in 1854 and in 1873 she with her family came to Oakland where she continued to reside until her death. She is survived by the following children, all of whom reside here: Edward I. West, Truman West, Mrs. Henry W. McComus, and Mr. R. Harry West, besides a number of grandchildren and several great-grandchildren. Mrs. West was the daughter of the late Richard and Sarah Taggart Fairall, who were among the oldest and first settlers of this section of Maryland. Her funeral took place yesterday afternoon from her late home, the services being conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. C. Ely, pastor of the Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. West was a member for many years.

MARTIN'S HONEYMOON WAS OF THE $100,000 VARIETY

"Bob" Receives Handsome Offer From Promoters While Visiting New York A $100,000 honeymoon!

Bob Martin's was one of that kind. Bob did not spend that much while mooning around in little old New York with his newly acquired wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Byrd, of Point Pleasant, before marriage.

The genial Mr. Martin is too wise for that but nevertheless when Bob married Miss Byrd, Jimmy Bronson, his manager, told him he had better take a couple of weeks honeymoon in New York. This Bob and Mrs. Martin did.

While in New York offers totaling more than $100,000 were made Bronson who informed promoters that this was one instance where pleasure preceded business.

One exceedingly fine offer was made the fox manager of the West Virginia giant to have the latter appear in a series of bouts which would have netted about $75,000. Mr. Bronson did not sniff at this offer but informed those that offered that Bob was not trained to engage in a ring battle at once. This offer is still in the possession of Jimmy Bronson and assures Mr. and Mrs. Martin that they have quite a bit of prosperity ahead of them.

After the honeymoon was over and Mr. Martin returned to the home of his childhood, Terra Alta, accompanied by his bride the town folks welcomed him as a conquering hero. Fresh from the string of decisive victories, among which was the capturing of a beautiful wife, the residents of the little mountain town idolized him and were anxious and eager to hear him tell the incidents of the "inside of the ring."

This Bob did to the great delight of not only the men of the community but also the women, because all have come to look upon boxing as being a perfectly respectable amusement.

When Martin left Friday for New York where he will meet Frank Moran on September 8 at Madison Square Garden, his wife did not accompany him. She said she would rather go to her home at Point Pleasant because she did not want to watch the battle.

When the New York battle is over Bob will return to Point Pleasant where he will spend several days with his wife and they will then return to Terra Alta to await news from Jimmy Bronson as to the next bout. Victory over Moran will place Bob several rungs up the heavyweight championship ladder. Defeat will not be fatal because Bob is still a youngster and few of the champions ever acquired the belt without having it thrown in their faces at some time or other in their career by some sport writer that a "meal ticket" miller had whipped him once.

At any rate Bob said he was sure that he was going to be on top the world whether he ever acquired the belt or not because he has already won the first victory in his search for happiness, the acquisition of a little farm and home in Terra Alta.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Frank Declaration Of a Citizen Opposed to Wilsonism.

Why is it, may I ask, that so much space is accorded to a discussion of the so-called "slush fund" for the political campaign when there is such a scarcity of news print paper.

It is deplorable that any money is ever spent for political purposes, but who shall be the righteous judge of whether it is legitimate to spend $1,000,000 or $15,000,000 to accomplish the election of a President?

Were I the fortunate possessor of $15,000,000 I would be glad to part with the $15,000,000 if the money would place in power a President and Congress who would restore our country to normal, sane conditions.

It is impossible for the human mind to conceive of a mere ridiculous state of affairs than that brought about by the two Wilson administrations; economic mistakes have been bizarre; legislation opposed to all natural laws has been enacted and accomplished the inevitable result—chaos in business and labor conditions. Indulgences in diplomatic excesses have created a lurid pall over what would now otherwise be a tired but peaceful world.

Trickery under the guise of "war emergency" has been perpetrated upon the rank and file of our good, law abiding citizens until they are tired and disgusted.

I believe that if Governor Cox is allowed to pursue the methods and tactics which he has so far adopted, at the end of another month it will not be necessary to raise a "slush fund" of any kind.—Chas. T. Ellis, in the New York Sun.

Knights of Pythias Notes of Interest.

On last Wednesday evening a special session of Garrett Lodge No. 113 was held at which a class of fourteen candidates were initiated.

On Friday evening, at the regular session of the lodge, the rank of Esquire was conferred on a class of 12 pages.

On Friday night of this week the rank of Knight will be conferred on a class of 12 Esquires by the degree team of the lodge.

Everything is now set for the largest picnic in the history of Oakland. The committees having the affair in hand have done exceptionally well. All arrangements are completed, and now everything depends upon the state of weather that will be prevailing on Monday. Many people from all parts of Maryland, and from sections of Pennsylvania and West Virginia will be present. The Dokies will have their ceremonial in the evening of Monday. There will be present hundreds of the members of this branch of Pythianism and there will probably be a half hundred or more candidates to tread the hot sands of the desert that night.

Make your arrangements to be in Oakland on Monday. Bring a friend or two with you and stay all day. It will be worth your while.

The Economy of Using Goodyear Small Car Tires

So-called bargain tires, made up for sensational sales and offered at ridiculously low prices, do not attract careful buyers.

They are far more concerned with what they get than with what they pay because they know that in the end it is performance and not price that delivers actual tire economy.

The popularity of Goodyear Tires, of the 30 x 3-, 30 x 3½- and 31 x 4-inch sizes, is based on the fact that they deliver exceptional mileage at exceedingly low cost.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car taking these sizes, go to your nearest Service Station for Goodyear Tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes.

30 x 3¼ Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread..... $23.50

30 x 3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread..... $21.50

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost no more than the price you are asked to pay for tubes of less merit—why risk costly casings when such sure protection is available? 30 x 3¼ size in waterproof bag..... $4.00

Stop Buying So Much Gas!

The Overland Sedan

*Costs by the Month, Saves by the Mile!
Eats Up Distance, Saves Dollars!*

On a railroad, it is the trip and not the ticket that completes the transaction; and it is so with an automobile. No institution can build up goodwill on good-byes.

The Willys-Overland Organization is just as interested in Overland owners after they have bought as before they are sold.

Saving you money on up-keep is just as important as saving you money on the price of the car. And when gasoline began to go up four years ago, word went out to our designers that Overland-owners must be protected, and the price of gasoline must be brought down—but not at the price of comfort!—get that, for that was the crux of the problem.

Hypothetically, it was impossible, and yet—

Under stimulus of a great public need, and spurred on by the pride of a great reputation, the designers of the Overland have Done the Thing that Couldn't be Done!

they have unraveled still another insoluble secret of mechanics, by creating that marvel of mechanism, the new Suspension Triplex Spring, permitting the use of light alloy steels for economy, and acting as a pneumatic buffer between the Road and You!

What the new Overland car and its remarkable improvements cost to create we shall never know. But we do know that it cost $6,000,000 to get ready to incorporate them into the new Overland car, and that the Overland car was a great car before these improvements were initiated and adopted.

So it seems a fair conclusion: That an institution that will voluntarily upset the ramifications of one of the greatest automobile manufacturing plants in the world, in order to reduce the gasoline bills of Overland owners, justifies the past, the future, and the immediate confidence of the American people.

Ninety-seven cities recently reported ninety-seven Overland Sedans as averaging 25.2 miles per gallon of gas Season for Squirrels Nov. 10 to Jan. 1. Prior to the session of the General Assembly of Maryland for 1920, the open season for squirrels in seven counties of the state was November 10. This caused a sentiment to change the season to November 10, state-wide, as 16 counties had heretofore open season November 10 until December 24. Complaints of numerous mother and young squirrels being killed brought this legislation about, and the General Assembly passed a law which applies to all counties, opening the season on squirrels Nov. 10 (and in fact all other upland game and closing January 1, which extends the season on this species of game seven days.

State Game Warden LeCoyte says: "I sincerely trust the sportsmen of this state will comply with this new law, and not embarrass this department in prosecuting them, otherwise we will be compelled to issue orders to arrest and prosecute all persons who do not comply with this law.

"We have endeavored since the department has been under our supervision to increase the game and fish supply, and from reports received almost daily our efforts have not been in vain. However, to further increase and continue the same, we must have the hearty co-operation of the public, so be a good sport and help to build up the game supply for the future generations, instead of tearing down the foundation which we have established."

HARDING GLAD AMERICANS ARE A FREE PEOPLE

In Speech to Indiana Delegation Republican Nominee Declares for Security at Home.

EUROPE HAS EVEN NOW QUIT WILSON'S LEAGUE

Yet Democratic Party Leaders Would Have Us Bound by Original Pact With No American Safeguard.

"STEADY AMERICA!"

"Mindful of our splendid example and renewing every obligation of association in war, I want America to be the rock of security at home, resolute in righteousness and unalterable in security and supremacy of the law."

"Let us be done with wiggling and wobbling. 'Steady America! Let us assure good fortune to all.'"

—Senator Warren G. Harding in address before the Indiana delegation at Marion.

Marion, O. (Special).—Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, in a speech delivered to a delegation from Indiana which called on him here to pledge the support of Indiana Republicans, declared that twice President Wilson had an opportunity to obtain ratification of the League of Nations covenant and that he put ratification aside because he would not accept reservations designed solely to safeguard American rights. Senator Harding said:

"I greet you in a spirit of rejoicing; not a rejoicing in the personal or partisan sense, not in the gratifying prospects of party triumph; not in the contemplation of abundance in the harvest fields and ripening corn fields and maturing orchards; not in the reassuring approach of stability after a period of wiggling and wobbling which magnified our uncertainty—though all of these are ample for our wide rejoicing—but I rejoice that America is still free and independent and in a position of self-reliance and holds to the right of self-determination, which are priceless possessions in the present turbulence of the world."

"Let us suppose the senate had ratified the peace treaty containing the league covenant as submitted to it by the president in July of last year, what would be the situation confronting our common country today? To my mind there is but one answer. Before this day we would have been called upon to fulfill the obligations which we had assumed under Article 10 of the league covenant, to preserve the territorial integrity of Poland 'as against external aggression.'"

Sympathy for Poland.

"I shall not now attempt to measure the boundless sympathy for the just aspirations and restored independence of Poland. Our present concern is the international situation which Poland has brought to our attention."

"The council of the League of Nations would have reasoned, and reasoned correctly, that the United States could furnish the munitions and, if necessary, the men to withstand the hordes advancing from Russia far more easily than could the exhausted nations of Europe. Moreover, inasmuch as this would be the first test of the scheme of world government which was formulated and demanded by the President, speaking for the United States, the fact of a special responsibility, resting upon our shoulders, manifestly would have been undeniable. Undoubtedly the league council, in 'advising upon the means' by which the obligations to Poland should be fulfilled, as provided in the covenant, would have so held, and probably the conscience of America, certainly the opinion of the world, would have sustained that judgment."

"The conclusion that our country might now be confronted by such a situation, if the senate had ratified the league covenant, requires no stretch of the imagination. None can deny that it is possible. To many candid minds, as to my own, such a distressing situation will seem highly probable. Let us assume that the ratification had taken place. Let us assume, further, that the performance of the allied task required the waging of war upon the Russian people, as, of course, it would, what would result? What would of necessity have to result? Nothing necessarily, we are gladly informed, since only the Congress can declare war, and the Congress might reject the appeal of the executive. But would the Congress do that? Could the Congress do that without staining indelibly the honor of the nation?"

Answer is "No."

"I answer 'No,' and I say it not on my own authority alone. Back of my judgment stands the President of the United States. Upon that point there is first-hand information. In the course of the discussion which took place at the meeting of the President and the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations I raised the question by stating a hypothetical case precisely analogous to that which I have depicted, and then inquired whether we might not rightfully be regarded as a perfidious people if we should fail to contribute an armed force, if called upon to do so. The President first replied, as I thought somewhat evasively, that we 'would be our own judges as to whether we were obliged in those circumstances to act in that way or not. Pressed further, however, in response to a query incorporating the assumption that 'the case provided for and prescribed had arisen' and that 'the extraneous attack did exist precisely as it does exist today in Poland,' the President admitted specifically that 'we would be untrue if we did not keep our word.'"

"Replying further to a question which perhaps I ought not to have considered necessary, the President pronounced a moral obligation 'of course, superior to a legal obligation' and of a 'greater binding force.'"

"What, then, becomes of the argument that Congress, not the President, in this instance at any rate, might keep us out of war? Technically, of course, it could do so. Morally, with equal certainty, it could not do so nor would it ever do so. The American people would never permit a repudiation of a debt of honor."

"Am I not right, my countrymen, in saying that we needed only the outbreak of war between Poland and Russia to make us realize at least one of the things which, in the words of Secretary Lansing, we would have been 'let in for,' but for the restraining hand of the senate, and to fetch home to us the danger of committing our country in advance to causes that we know not of?"

Not Our Purpose.

"One can have no quarrel with those who have convinced themselves that our underlying purpose in entering the great conflict was to create a league of nations. The fact remains, however, that no such intent was officially proclaimed, no allusion, nor even a suggestion to that effect appeared in the joint resolution of Congress which declared the existence of a state of war between this country and Germany. For myself I left no room for doubt of the motives which led me to cast my vote in favor of that resolution. It so happened that I made the concluding speech upon the war resolution, from my place in the senate, on the night of April 4, 1917. These were my own words at that time:

"I want it known to the people of my state and to the nation that I am voting for war tonight for the maintenance of just American rights, which is the first and essential to the preservation of the soul of this republic."

"I vote for this joint resolution to make war, not a war thrust upon us, if I could choose the language of the resolution, but a 'war declared in response to affronts; a war that will at least put a soul into our American life; a war not for the cause of the allies of Europe; a war not for France, beautiful as the sentiment may be in revolving at least our gratitude to the French people; not precisely a war for civilization, worthy and inspiring that would be; but a war that speaks for the majesty of a people properly governed, who finally are brought to the crucial test where they are resolved to get together and wage a conflict for the maintenance of their rights and the preservation of the covenant inherited from their fathers."

"We have given to the world the spectacle of a great nation that could make war without selfish intent. We unsheathed the sword some eighteen years ago for the first time in the history of the world, in the name of humanity, and we gave proof to the world at that time of an unselfish nation. Now, whether it is the fate, or fortune, or travail of destiny, it has come to us to unsheath the sword again, not alone for humanity's sake, though that splendid inspiration will be involved—but to unsheath the sword against a great power in the maintenance of the rights of the republic. In the maintenance which will give to us a new guarantee of nationality. That's the great thing, and I want it known, Mr. President and senators, that this is the compelling thought with me for one, when I cast my vote."

For Same Guaranty Today.

"It is for that same 'guaranty of nationality' that I stand today, and shall continue to stand inflexibly, so long as I shall be permitted to live. The independence of our great republic is to me a priceless and sacred inheritance. Time was when an American did not hesitate to proclaim himself a patriot. To do so now, I am well aware, is sometimes to invite the sneers of cynicism. But why should any true American not be free to say: 'I am a patriot, wholly devoted to my country, which I hold to be God's best inspiration to man for higher attainment and the promotion of the world's best civilization?'"

"But I have a special reason for making this reference today. I challenge the statement that the patriotism which holds America first comprehends either narrowness or selfishness, or as implying inbred suspicion and jealousy of other peoples."

"To assert, as some have asserted heedlessly, that those of us who honestly believe that America can best serve all mankind as America, free and untrammeled, rather than as one in a pitiable minority among many states in merged world government, lack consciousness of the rightful demands of humanity, is to utter a gross and unpardonable libel. To attribute meanness to those of us who, in the performance of our public duty, refused to participate in what we sincerely regarded as a betrayal of our own country in the interest of others, is to discredit the intelligence and discrimination of the great mass of American people who directly, by their votes, put us in our positions of trust. For myself, I yield to no man in willingness, eye, in eagerness, to render the greatest conceivable assistance to the stricken peoples of Europe. I include all of them and speak with a genuinely sympathetic heart, whether it is to mention devastated France, or solely-tried Italy, or nobly-struggling Poland, or distracted and misadventured Russia, or gallant little Belgium, or pitifully deceived Austria, or the ruthless invader, Germany, which came to the supreme tragedy through a leadership which brought disaster to her misguided people."

"It was with that feeling of sympathy and desire to serve, that most reluctantly and with grave misgivings, as I announced at the time, I with reservations designed to preserve our essential liberty of action. The record is made, and under the same conditions, confronted by the same alternative, I should vote now as I voted then."

Conditions Have Changed.

"But the conditions have changed. Experience has brought enlightenment. We know now that the league constituted at Versailles is utterly impotent as a preventive of wars. It is so obviously impotent that it has not even been tried. The original league, mistakenly conceived and unreasonably insisted upon, has undoubtedly passed beyond the possibility of restoration. The mature judgment of the world will be that it deserved to pass for the very simple reason that, contrary to all of the tendencies developed by the civilizing processes of the world, it rested upon the power of might, not of right."

"The assertion is made frequently that through the surrender of our nationality we might have saved the life of the world. That is to say, that, although twenty-eight nations could not make it function, one added to the twenty-eight would have achieved a glowing success, provided, always, that the one was America."

"This pays to America the tribute of exceptional influence, but I suggest that if the world is dependent upon our action to bring about the supreme realization, then we ought to have the say about our own freedom in participating therein. But let us consider what is meant by this reliance upon America. What can it signify if not that it is to the United States, and to the United States alone, that the other twenty-eight nations look for the bone and sinew, the money, the munitions and the men to sustain the entire oration of the European policy of peace, but as an armed force?"

A Telling Admission.

"A few days ago a delegation of an organization which calls itself a Society for the Prevention of War appeared to the premier of Great Britain to unite and use the powers of the world in defense of Poland, Armenia and the Danubians. The British premier replied, according to his remarks quoted by the newspapers, to the effect that, while the formation of an 'international army' would be an 'ideal solution,' it could not be accomplished because the European nations could not furnish the troops and the United States had 'withdrawn from co-operation'—a polite and diplomatic phrase and more exactly meaning, of course, that the senate of the United States had not completed the partial obligation assumed by the President to do that very thing—that is, to 'furnish the troops.' Could a clearer indication of what would have been expected of this country as a member of the league be desired? Hardly. Some, too, think, or say they think, that this extraordinary service should be rendered. I do not agree with them, but, assuming that they are right, I venture to note that nothing stands in the way of performance. The President has only to call upon Congress to declare war, and to confer upon him specific authority to raise armies for the protection of the powers which, though recently associated with, are still forever to our own republic."

"It is reasonably safe to assume, however, that the President will not pursue this course. Fortunately, he is under no 'compelling moral obligation' under the league to do so. His recent unhappy experience, moreover, in asking Congress to send American boys to police America would hardly encourage repetition of a request already courteously but quite firmly declined by the Congress. What then, in like circumstances, would be the answer of the British premier himself? In his own words, addressing a meeting of the Coalition Liberals on August 12 last, according to the press reports, he said:

"When the terrible question of peace or war has to be decided, our first duty as a government is to the people, who trust us not to commit their treasure to any unjustifiable adventure. Nothing but the most imperative call of national honor, national safety and national freedom can justify war. Before this country is committed to it, even in the most limited form, we must be satisfied that these are in peril."

"I quote these telling words, my countrymen, with the utmost satisfaction, because with one amendment they express to a nicety my own position. I take for granted that the prime minister meant to include in 'treasure' the greatest treasure of all, but, for myself, I should leave nothing to be inferred. Foremost and above all else to be safeguarded by those of us who hold the trust of the people, it goes without saying, but cannot be too often repeated, is the mankind of the nation."

Will Not Misuse Power.

"Now, it may appear to you that I have been speaking chiefly in the negative. I make the admission. What is more, I might continue to do so almost indefinitely without disadvantage to our cause. So many things have been done by the present expiring administration that no power on earth could induce me to do, that I cannot even attempt to recount them. I may remark casually, however, that if I should be, as I fully expect to be, elected President of this just and honorable republic, I will not empower an assistant secretary of the navy to draft a constitution for helpless neighbors in the West Indies and Jam it down their throats at the point of bayonets borne by United States marines. We have a higher service for our gallant marines than that. Nor will I misuse the power of the executive to cover with a veil of secrecy repeated acts of unwarranted interference in domestic affairs of the little republics of the western hemisphere, such as in the past few years have not only made enemies of those who should be our friends, but have rightfully discredited our country as their trusted neighbor."

Will Submit to No Wrong.

"On the other hand, I will not or shall not, as you prefer, submit to any wrong against any American citizen, with respect to either his life or his property, by any government. This statement is made in all solemnity, with enmity for none and friendship for all. If it particularly applies to Mexico, the application has been directed by the robbery and murder of hundreds of our own people in that unhappy country who were lawfully there and were entitled to protection. One must admit that these outrages upon Americans are largely the consequences of the wiggling and wobbling, the supine waiting of our own government, though the admission neither helps the hurt, nor gives the hope of security for the future while the present administration remains in power, or when one in 'complete accord' succeeds it."

"This admonition is not directed exclusively toward our next door neighbor to whom we would gladly hold forth a helping hand, and whom we would bring certainly in preference to for our people in Europe, Asia and Africa. It is our manifest duty to serve with a whole heart and generous tolerance. It is intended for a plain notice to every government on the face of the earth that the entire resources of this nation are pledged to maintain the sacredness of American lives and the just protection of American properties."

Line of Demarcation Plain.

"The line of demarcation between our attitude and that of our political opponents is perfectly plain. The president has made his position clear by his acts no less than by his words. Twice there came to him an opportunity to obtain ratification at the hands of the senate and twice he put the opportunity aside, because he would not accept reservations designed solely to safeguard American rights. He still holds Article 10 to be the heart of the covenant. So does the Democratic nominee. So does the non-League world. The reservations rejected by the President and denounced by the party platform is to impugn his integrity. To insinuate, as those who in proclaiming themselves for the Democratic candidate and the league with reservations are insinuating that he would pursue such a course in seeking ratification is not to pay him a compliment, but rather to challenge his sincerity."

"For myself I do not question for a moment the truth of what the Democratic nominee says on this subject. He has flatly said he is 'in favor of going in' on the basis announced by the President. I am not. That is the whole difference between us, but it is a most vital one, because it involves the disparity between a world association for conference, on the one hand, and the council of the league, on the other."

The Difference.

"The difference between a court of international justice and the council created by the league covenant is simple but profound. The one is a judicial tribunal to be governed by fixed and definite principles of law administered without passion or prejudice. The other is an association of diplomats and politicians whose determinations are sure to be influenced by considerations of expediency and national selfishness."

"I do not mean to say, nor do I mean to permit any such construction, that I would decline to co-operate with other nations in an honest endeavor to prevent wars. Nobody would take that position. The only question is one of method or of principle, which is within the bounds prescribed by fundamental principles."

"There are distinctly two types of international relationship. One is an offensive and defensive alliance of great powers, like that created at Versailles, to impose their will upon the helpless peoples of the world. Frankly, I am opposed to such a scheme as that, and I speak knowingly when I say that the associated powers, with whom we fought the war, were reluctant to accept such a proposition."

"I am opposed to the very thought of our republic becoming a party to so great an outrage upon other peoples, who have as good a right to seek their political freedom as we had in 1776 and who have the same right to develop eminence under the inspiration of nationality as we held for ourselves."

The Other Type.

"The other type is a society of free nations, or an association of free nations, or a league of free nations, animated by considerations of right and justice, instead of might and self-interest, and not merely proclaimed an agency in pursuit of peace, but so organized and so participated in as to make the actual attainment of peace a reasonable possibility. Such an association I favor with all my heart, and I would make no fine distinction as to whom credit is due."

"This is proposing no new thing. This country is already a member of such a society—The Hague tribunal, which, unlike the league of Versailles, is still functioning, and within a few weeks will resume its committee sessions under the chairmanship of an American representative."

"In that body we have the framework of a really effective instrumentality of achieving peace. The fact that the tribunal did not prevent the great war is, of course, manifest, but the cause of the failure is no less apparent. Germany, already secretly determined upon a ruthless invasion, was able to prevent the adoption of measures which might have proved effectual. The condition now is wholly different. Not only Germany, but the entire world has profited to the extent of an awful object lesson, the impression of which cannot be erased from the human mind for generations to come. The horrors of war and the eagerness for peace have become universal. What once seemed at The Hague to be a mere academic discussion has become a positive, outstanding need of facing terrifying actualities. This makes vastly easier the task of so strengthening The Hague tribunal as to render its just decrees either acceptable or enforceable. It is not uncommon for the advocates of the league of Versailles to contrast unfavorably The Hague tribunal upon the ground that the tribunal 'lacks teeth.'"

Let's Install the Teeth.

"Very well, then, let's put teeth in it. If, in the failed league of Versailles, there can be found machinery which the tribunal can use properly and advantageously, by all means let it be appropriated. I would even go further. I would take and combine all that is good and excise all that is bad from both organizations. This statement is broad enough to include the suggestion that if the league, which has heretofore riveted our considerations and apprehensions, has been so entwined and interwoven into the peace of Europe, that its good must be preserved in order to stabilize the peace of that continent, then it can be amended or revised so that we may still have a remnant of world aspirations in 1918 rebuilt into the world's highest conception of helpful co-operation in the ultimate realization."

"I believe humanity would welcome the creation of an international association for conference and a world court whose verdicts upon justiciable questions, this country in common with all nations would be both willing and able to uphold. The decision of such a court or the recommendations of such a conference could be accepted without sacrificing on our part or asking any other power to sacrifice one iota of its nationality."

"The Democratic nominee has spoken about America abandoning her associates in war and deserting the allied nations in establishing the league of Versailles. I do not think it longer necessary to challenge that statement or pass further opinion upon the matter, for the league has already been abandoned by Europe, which had gone so far as to accept it by formal agreement in treaty. On this subject, we are fully informed at first hand. Only the other day the British premier said, unequivocally, that the essential co-operation of America might involve 'some change, at any rate, in the form of the covenant,' and he added, with characteristic outspokenness, 'It is quite possible it might be a change for the better.'"

On Our Own Terms.

"As long," said Viscount Grey, hardly a month ago, "as long as the richest, most powerful, the greatest, both for population and territory, of the civilized countries of the world stands outside the league, the league will be unable to fulfill its destiny. To put it in quite plain terms, the Americans must be told that if they will only join the league they can practically name their own terms." Undoubtedly that is the fact. I ask: Is there any good reason why we should not avail ourselves of this privilege? I do not mean in any arrogant or selfish way, but simply as a matter of fairness and right to our own people. Surely it is becoming, and a duty as well, to safeguard our own people, since it is we who are the main contributors, while asking nothing for ourselves except to participate in a contribution to the promotion of world peace."

A Valued Suggestion.

"Viscount Grey continues: 'The Americans should be entrusted with the task of drafting a reconstruction scheme.' Then he suggests further that 'a committee of the senate—its must never forget the senate's rights and duties in regard to foreign affairs being re-enforced by the members of the house of representatives, and also by nominees of the President, and Supreme Court—could draw up suggestions for the reconstruction of the league, which would be consonant with the feeling not of one, but of all parties in America.'"

"Frankly, I value that suggestion very highly, because it is proffered obviously in a helpful and friendly spirit and reveals an important Old World opinion on the necessity of amendment, revision or reconstruction. It comprehends substantially what I would propose to do if elected president. I do not mean precisely that. It would be clearly unwise to undertake specific suggestions or to attempt to pass upon suggestions now. What is in my mind is the wisdom of calling into real conference the absent and most experienced minds of this country, from whatever walks of life they

STRIKING PHRASES FROM HARDING'S PEACE LEAGUE ADDRESS.

"I rejoice that America is still free and independent and in a position of self-reliance and holds to the right of self-determination."

"Time was when an American did not hesitate to proclaim himself a patriot. To do so now, I am well aware, is sometimes to invite the sneers of cynicism."

"We needed only the outbreak of the war between Poland and Russia to make us realize at least one of the things which, in the words of Secretary Lansing, we would have been 'let in for,' but for the restraining hand of the senate."

"We know now that the league constituted at Versailles is utterly impotent as a preventive of wars. It is so obviously impotent that it has not even been tried. It could not survive a single test. The original league, mistakenly conceived and unreasonably insisted upon, has undoubtedly passed beyond the possibility of restoration. The mature judgment of the world will be that it deserved to pass."

may be derived and without regard to party affiliation, to formulate a definite, practical plan along the lines already indicated for the consideration of the controlling foreign powers."

"The objection, strongly uttered in some quarters, that this course would involve the reconvening of the entire convention may be regarded as a very slight one. The acceptance of our proposals by the few principal nations of the principal allied and associated powers, insofar as I could do so, without disregarding the proprieties, I should give very earnest and practically undivided attention to this very vital subject from the day of my election and I should ask others to do likewise as a matter of public and patriotic duty. Indeed, I should hope to have behind me, after the decision on the national referendum we are soon to have, a country wholly united in earnest endeavor to achieve a true solution of this problem upon which the future civilization so largely depends."

Already Announced.

"I have already announced that I shall urge prompt passage of the resolution, voted by the president, declaring at an end the preposterous condition of technical war when we are actually at peace. Simultaneously, I shall naturally advise the resumption by the Congress of its exceptional powers, which have been vested by war legislation in the executive. I have no expectation whatever of finding it necessary or advisable to negotiate a separate peace with Germany."

"In view of the simple fact that the allied powers with whom we were associated in the war have already formally concluded their peace, the passage of the peace resolution by congress would merely give formal recognition to an obvious fact."

Our Unselfishness Emphasized.

"Let us take stock for a moment of America in the world, eye, and of America at home. The end of the war found our unselfishness compared to all mankind, and the garlands of world leadership were bestowed from every direction. We had only to follow the path of America, rejoicing in the inheritance which led to our eminence, to rival the gaze of all peoples upon our standards of national righteousness and our conception of international justice. Moreover, the world was ready to give us its confidence. It was the beckoning opportunity of the centuries, not for the glorification of the new world republic, but for America to hold every outpost of advancing civilization and invite all nations to join the further advance to heights dreamed of, but never approached before. But force of example was flung aside for force of armed alliance. We neglected our readjustments and readjustings at home, and the cruel sacrifice of millions of lives and billions of treasure left us and the world groping in uncertainty and anxiety instead of revealing us in the sunlight of a new day, with lines formed, ready for the onward march of peace and all its triumphs."

Let's Resume Our Place.

"Mindful of our splendid example and renewing every obligation of association in war, I want America to be the rock of security at home, resolute in righteousness and unalterable in security and supremacy of the law. Let us be done with wiggling and wobbling. Steady, America! Let us assure good fortune to all. We may maintain our eminence as a great people at home and resume our high place in the estimate of the world. Our moral leadership was lost when 'Ambition' sought to superimpose a reactionary theory of discredited authority upon the progressive principle of living, glowing democracy. My chief aspiration, my countrymen, if clothed with power, will be to regain that lost leadership not for myself, not even for my party, though honoring and trusting it as I do, but for my country, the country that I love from the bottom of my heart and with every fiber of my being above all else in the world."

The Building of the Temple. 1 Kings 5:1-8:66.

My house shall be called the house of prayer for all peoples. Isaiah 56:7.

WOODROW WILSON SOLOMON.

Political drift is always toward the center or toward the circumference.

There is no question about the direction during these last years in America when we have seen the White House instead of State House at the center of our movements of our national life. Nor can there be much difference of opinion as to what was going on in Jerusalem 1000 B. C. for the pieces of level justice may have determined some of the boundaries. Gerrymandering may not have had its first appearance in Massachusetts. But old tribal leaders were again somewhat of their power and made more dependent upon Jerusalem.

Internationalism was another of his policies seen in the close alliances made with the surrounding people, Hiram of Tyre being one of the closest during all his rule. Jerusalem that kept them out of war felt the prestige of the relationship that guaranteed the peoples' peace. The creation of an aristocracy whose right it was to control absolutely the destinies of the rest built the Capital but utilized forced labor in every erection even the Temple. The throne no longer voiced the peoples' will but directed the peoples' work. Absolutism was flourishing under the policy of the son of the democratic David. There is no question about his religious passion. Solomon was very religious always and Jehovah was always his God. And the Temple marked his attitude but even here he made it serve the same centralizing purpose that he followed for it overshadowed other shrines and made Jerusalem still more the heart of the empire. It was the King's Chapel and not the peoples' Church. The King built it from the inherited wealth of David and at the expense of his own purse for the gifts credited to the princes were made to the wish of a strong ruler as much as to their own passion. But the rank and file had no place except in the labor, the sacrifices were the King's own contribution and not until the days of Josiah were the Temple expenses met from any other source. That Temple lifted Solomon all the time that it honored his God.

THE TEMPLE OF JERUSALEM.

For twenty years the top of old Moriah was crowded with workmen and jammed with unfinished structures. Solomon arranged it all about a common plan that was surrounded by a great walled court containing the Temple, the palace and harem within the "outer court" (7:3) and the political buildings of the Throne Hall, the Hall of Pillars and the House of the Forest of Lebanon. The Temple dominated all the rest and was probably the finest House of Deity in the world. For it was not a meeting place but God's private dwelling within which in the very heart of it under the wings of cherubim famed the Shekinah. In that place of unworldly darkness Jehovah had his throne that was to be approached only by the High priest once a year. It was not for the common worshipper who could only look from a distance at the priest performing the varied functions of his office. It was to hold the place of Mecca to the Moslem or the Ganges to the Hindu. But it did not belong to the people but only to a part of them and it was long before it ministered to the last Israelite as God meant it to do.

THE GREAT DEDICATION.

There had probably never been in all the history of the Hebrew such a gathering as crowded Jerusalem for the dedication of the Temple. Every little village through the realm was called upon to send its elders to share in the feast of joy. Procession, song, sacrifice and prayer bound the mass into a body of worshippers feeling a new thrill of pride as guests of both the King and Jehovah. Solomon bowed the knee before the God of the Hebrews and prayed with words full of praise for kept promises that had brought this great day to them all. Humbly he asked Jehovah to accept the building as His special earth dwelling from which to judge the oath-taker, care for the people in the hour of defeat or drought, affliction or pestilence; listen to the plea of the stranger who had been attracted by His worth; give victory in war or sustain them in captivity. All thru it runs the sense of sin that would be the cause of their defeat and the earnest plea for forgiveness that should set them in the way of worthy national life. Fine phrasing and fine sentiment make it a state paper worthy of the ruler of any people.

THE CHURCH AND THE NATION.

Solomon understood the vital place religion occupies in the making of a nation but he failed to perceive that the people must carry it and not receive something built and paid for by another. That which costs nothing has small value in the life. They were proud of the Temple but went to worship at other hills hallowed by the memories and rudely adorned by altars they had fashioned. America's glory is in her free privilege of shared worship that depends upon the sacrificial offering of the people. Her hope of tomorrow lies in the imparting to the children that same spirit of devoutness, reverence and sacrifice that has filled Mother's face with tenderness and Father's with strength. The spirit of democratic worship is the heart of democracy. Whatever weakens it is a disruptive force in our nation's life and is to be combated with all the vigor possible. The church can belong to no class and be Christian for its roof must cover all. It can honor no successful dishonest anywhere whether it be in leisure or working folk, rich or poor, employing or employed, black or white, learned or ignorant, conservative or radical without making its sermons into the funeral discourses of its power. But it has never been so potent as today nor so ready to sacrifice and serve that Christ may rule all the life of all His world.

You can hear it in our store

—the phonograph that is featured in Vaudeville's strangest act

Perhaps you've seen it—Signor Friscoe's "Magic" Xylophone Act.

It's the hit of vaudeville's "Big-Time."

Signor Friscoe's "magic" is an Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison. We have one exactly like it.

Signor Friscoe's instrument is an exact duplicate of the original Official Laboratory Model, which cost Mr. Edison three million dollars to perfect. Our instrument is also an exact duplicate of this famous three million dollar original. We guarantee it to be able to give the same marvelous RE-CREATIONS of music, which Signor Friscoe's Official Laboratory Model gives in vaudeville.

Come in and test the astonishing realism of this instrument for yourself—in Mr. Edison's Realism Test.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

You've read how the New Edison has proved its perfect realism. Four thousand tests have been given, in which more than 50 different artists compared their art with its RE-CREATION by the New Edison. Leading newspapers conceded that there was no difference between the two.

Has any one suggested to you that these comparison tests are "faked"—that the artist imitates the New Edison?

Signor Friscoe's performance makes such an assertion positively ridiculous. Every week, 20,000 people see his hammers ripple over the xylophone keys. Suddenly he holds them aloft—still.

The rippling music continues.

Slowly, the gorgeous curtains of the back-drop part. The audience gasps. The New Edison stands revealed. It has taken up Signor Friscoe's performance, and is now RE-CREATING it alone. The effect of this extraordinary magic can rest upon only one fact: No one can distinguish any difference between Signor Friscoe's performance and its RE-CREATION by the New Edison. Signor Friscoe could not possibly imitate the New Edison, because the xylophone can not be made to imitate any other instrument, so as to deceive its hearers.

Signor Friscoe's act is not an Edison enterprise. He has simply been clever enough to use the New Edison for what it is worth. Why don't you?

PRICES

The price of the New Edison has increased less than 15% since 1914. This includes the War Tax.

Mr. Edison has staved off price advances by personally absorbing more than half of the increased cost of manufacture.

Because of the exceptionally high quality of materials and workmanship demanded by the Edison Laboratories, and the continued scarcity of both, it may be necessary to advance prices. But rest assured that this will not occur, unless Mr. Edison is forced to it.

Our Budget Plan—the thrift way of spending—will help you buy now. Let us tell you about it.

STATE AUTHORITIES FINDS OIL SEEPAGES IN GARRETT COUNTY

Geologist Bibbins Makes Encouraging Report To Academy of Sciences.

That conditions are very favorable in certain parts of Garrett county for oil development was the encouraging news announced by State Geologist Arthur B. Bibbins, who has just completed a survey of investigation concerning rumors of seepages that have recently been brought to the attention of the Academy of Sciences from Western Maryland, Northern Virginia and Southeastern Pennsylvania.

Mr. Bibbins, who is president of the Academy, reported his findings at the meeting of the petroleum section of the Academy on last Friday night. Mr. Bibbins stated that there was no doubt about the actual seepage of oil and gas in several of the western counties of Maryland and one in northern Virginia. Two of gas, he said, occur in Garrett county, where a group of prominent Pittsburgh oil men have leased 30,000 acres and will shortly drill there. Mr. Bibbins examined very carefully the geologic structure of this section and found it very favorable in certain sections of Garrett county for oil development. The fact that oil has been struck in Southern Pennsylvania nearly as far east as Maryland he also considers a very encouraging feature. Another actual seepage of oil and gas was found in Allegany county, and the gas proved to be inflammable. A well-marked oil and gas seepage has also been located in Southeastern Pennsylvania, and the oil is being tested in the chemical laboratory of the Academy by E. Phillips Early. The presence of several hitherto-unknown antimonials in Southern Pennsylvania, which apparently extend to Maryland, was reported by Mr. Bibbins, who declared this to be a very significant development, especially as inflammable gas has been found at one point and tested.

Harvey Reunion.

All relatives of the Harvey family are invited to attend the family reunion which is to be held at the Shook Shop school house in Election District No. 8 on September 18th, instead of the 25th inst. as erroneously stated in The Republican last Thursday. The family and its connections is probably the largest clan in Garrett county, and in consequence, should the weather be favorable an immense throng of people is expected to be present. An interesting program has been arranged for the occasion covering the hours from 11 o'clock a. m. until 2:30 p. m.

Train Derailment Near Deer Park

A cylinder cock on the engine of Baltimore and Ohio passenger train No. 54 was broken off Sunday afternoon at 3:25 o'clock when the train ran into some coal that had been thrown over the tracks by a freight derailment at a point just west of the Deer Park Hotel station. Both trains were going east at the time and a coal car on the freight jumped the track just in front of the passenger train. Traffic was delayed for several minutes on account of the accident.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS PICNIC WAS A WONDERFUL SUCCESS

The Largest Crowd of People In Attendance Ever Gathered in Oakland

In years gone by Oakland has had some tremendous crowd within her gates, but on Monday, the occasion of the widely-advertised picnic under the auspices of the local lodge Knights of Pythias, all former records were outdone. It has been estimated by those who are considered good judges that more than seven thousand people were here, most of whom gathered at the picnic grounds at the intersection of the State road and the Deer Park road, which had been specially prepared by the erection of refreshment and lunch stands, a dancing pavilion and other attractions for the accommodation of the people.

Early in the summer this method of securing money with which to wipe out an indebtedness of several thousand dollars resting upon the Knights of Pythias building in Oakland, was conceived and a committee composed of three live wires in the persons of J. W. Whorton, James Bell and Harry Stemple was appointed to have the matter in hand. With good team work on the part of this committee, assisted by almost every individual member of the local lodge, success far beyond the anticipation, of even the most sanguine Knights, was achieved, with the result that in the one day nearly or quite sufficient cash was taken in to discharge the debt.

Sunday evening, with lowering clouds and an occasional spatter of rain, made everyone who had hoped for a fair day Monday, feel quite blue, nor was this feeling dispelled until late Monday morning, when the skies and sun gave promise of a fair and pleasant day, for old Sol shone intermittently throughout the late morning and during the afternoon hours, and went to sleep in a blaze of glory. At seven o'clock, however, a slight shower came to dampen the spirits of those who had gone to the picnic grounds to engage in dancing, but this soon passed over and a delightful evening was had by all. The dance music was furnished by the famous Browning brothers stringed orchestra.

The festivities of the day were opened with a parade through the main streets of town, led by Dr. Henry W. McComas, chief marshal. In the parade was the Arion band of Frostburg, the crack musical organization of all Western Maryland, followed by members of the committee, Messrs Whorton, Bell and Stemple, the Knights of Pythias lodge of Oakland with Grand Chancellor Julius C. Renninger leading, the Pythian Sisters and other organizations, including about a hundred members of the Dokies in their picturesque uniforms and regalia.

The second division of the parade was led by Mr. Wade H. Hinebaugh, who was followed by the Oakland City Band and a number of floats showing various business and trades carried on in Oakland. The parade throughout was very well arranged and covered most of the town.

At the picnic grounds chicken dinners were served by the thousand; entertainment in the form of dancing, a merry go round and ferris wheel brought here especially for the day, was afforded the visitors, and they all enjoyed themselves.

At 2:30 o'clock Past Chancellor Commander of Oakland Lodge, Mr. E. R. Jones, introduced Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman, of Cumberland, who addressed the crowd upon the various public questions before the people, the keynote of his remarks being "Americanism." Congressman Zihlman eschewed politics entirely, taking occasion in the course of his talk, which lasted half an hour, to felicitate the women upon their recently acquired right to vote, and in this he was met with hearty handclapping.

The Frostburg band is to be congratulated for the high class music that organization furnished throughout the day. They played without ceasing except for dinner, the entire morning and afternoon, and as a consequence they have created an excellent and lasting impression upon all who had the pleasure of hearing them.

The Oakland band also gave concerts during the morning and afternoon hours to delighted audiences. The rendition of difficult selections by this young but progressive organization was quite a revelation to many who had never before heard them in concert work.

Taken all in all the picnic was more of a success than it was thought possible to make it and all are convinced that it was a day well spent.

During the day, by an actual count and tally made by a representative of the Maryland Good Roads Commission 1746 automobiles passed over the state road leading into Oakland from the North. This number does not include

FORMAL CALL ISSUED FOR THE SPECIAL SESSION

Governor Sets 8:30 P. M. Sept. 20 as Time For Legislators to Assemble

Governor Ritchie yesterday issued the formal call for the extra session of the Legislature, which is to meet on Monday, September 20, to provide additional machinery for the coming registration and election, made necessary by the ratification of the Suffrage Amendment. The call sets 8:30 P. M. as the hour for convening the session.

After stating the proclamation of the Nineteenth Amendment by the Secretary of State, and the consequent fact that women may vote, the Governor's proclamation reads as follows:

Whereas it is manifest that the existing registration and election laws of Maryland do not provide adequate facilities for the registration and voting of the female population of the State, particularly in view of the limited number of registration days fixed by law for the months of September and October, in the year 1920, and of the election to be held in the month of November, and for the foregoing reasons an occasion exists which requires a special or extraordinary session of the General Assembly of Maryland.

Now, therefore, I, Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland, by virtue of the authority conferred and duly imposed upon me by the Constitution, do hereby call a special or extraordinary session of the General Assembly of Maryland to consider and act upon measures necessary to afford the female population of the State opportunity to register and vote in all elections held hereafter under the laws of the State, said session to begin at 8:30 P. M. on the 20th day of September, in the year of our Lord 1920 in the city of Annapolis.

It is understood that President William I. Norris, of the Senate, and Speaker Millard F. Tydings, of the House, will be continued in their offices without the formality of an election. There is some question among lawyers as to whether the presiding officers in regular sessions hold over in extra sessions, but no disposition to raise an issue is apparent.

In the extra session of 1917 the late Peter J. Campbell remained in the chair of the Senate without question. On the House side the Speaker in the preceding regular session, the late Philip D. Laird, had resigned from the House to become a member of the Public Service Commission, and David G. McIntosh was selected in his stead.

Such of the other officials and clerks of the regular session as will be needed will be employed, it is probable, without contests.

The fighting that will occur will be over legislation, and if the Democrats follow the judgment of some of their leaders and support repeal of the Declaration of Intention and the Affidavit of Removal acts there may be little of that fighting.

Attorney General Armstrong yesterday prepared his opinion as to whether these acts apply to the women voters. Governor Ritchie asked him for the opinion last week. Mr. Armstrong mailed the opinion to the Governor last night, but declined to make it public until it was in the Governor's hands.

Among lawyers there is a strong belief that he will hold that the laws do not apply to the women voters, notwithstanding his informal view some time ago that they do. Lawyers have said lately that the off-hand view of any lawyer would be that the laws apply. The reasoning, they say, would be that the laws apply to voters, and that if women become voters they come within the scope of the acts. But careful study, it has been said, is very likely to cause changes of opinion.

If, however, the Attorney General's opinion, based upon careful examination of the law, is the same as the off-hand view he expressed informally some time ago, the Democrats are certain to offer a bill in the extra session to exempt women from the application of these laws this year. If they go no further than this they will collide with the Republicans, for the latter want these laws wiped out entirely.

This section certainly owes a lot to the automobile

LOOK at it just from the business standpoint, compared with, say, ten years ago—or even five.

Everything speeded up—made easier. Nearly every business man depending on the automobile to transport himself and his products.

That is one reason, perhaps, why more attention is being paid to tires—why tire costs are being figured closer and people are beginning to look for better tires.

We believe that people are entitled to better tires—the best they can get.

Not only the man with the big car, but the man with the small car, and the medium sized car.

III

We represent U.S. Tires for that reason—because their policy is the same as ours—every tire as good as you can get it, regardless of the size of the car it is to go on.

It was that policy which led to the introduction of the straight side automobile tire, the pneumatic truck tire.

And you can't beat it.

IV

U. S. Tires are guaranteed for life, with no limitation of mileage.

It will pay you to talk to us about tires, if you are looking at them from a business standpoint.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

The season just closing here has been a real success in spite of the unusually cold, wet summer months. During the season one hundred and seventy-eight families occupied cottages within the limits of the Park and in addition there have been thousands of guests at the hotels and boarding houses and other guests of cottagers. The people expressed their delight with their surroundings while guests within the gates and all are desirous of returning again next year.

A very compact program is already booked for the season of 1921—July and August—while other gatherings are under consideration for June and September. Extensive improvements are being thought out for next year which will be acted upon in the official board meeting to be held this month. Increased educational facilities for ministers and missionaries will have special attention next year.

The board is placing reasonable prices on the hundreds of splendid building sites yet unsold so that persons wishing to erect a home in the Park may have the lot upon which to do so. The cottage owners have made many improvements during the summer and it is hoped that the good work will go right on increasing each succeeding year and there are reasonable causes for expressing this hope and its ultimate fulfillment.

An increased amount of money is being provided for the betterment of the streets and sidewalks within the Park limits and these contemplated improvements will soon be taken up and pushed through so that the walks and streets will soon be in better condition than ever before. A camping party composed of the families of Postmaster Joseph Rathbun, County Commissioners' Clerk W. G. Mevers, George and John Hipsley and Albert T. White, left here Tuesday morning for an outing of a week or more which will be spent at a point on the Youghiogheny River between Sang Run and Friendsville. The party is a merry one and their friends trust that the outing will be both pleasant and profitable.

Mr. Lee N. Hayden, who is engaged in business at Roanoke, Va., is here for a visit to his parents, Capt. and Mrs. James A. Hayden. Lee looks extremely well and has a prosperous business in his adopted city, all of which his friends will be pleased to learn. Mr. Floyd White, who has been a resident of Loch Lynn Heights since infancy, in fact the site of the town having been owned by his father, was stricken with paralysis on Sunday afternoon as he was returning in his taxi with a passenger from Deer Park. Floyd's entire right side is involved, but fortunately he can speak and thus make his wants known. When he was overcome at the wheel of his machine the passenger with him noticed that something unusual had occurred and took the control of the car over, bringing it into the Park and a physician was summoned at once. The patient is doing as well as can be expected and it is possible that he may regain the use of the affected limbs. For many years he has been one of the most faithful drivers in the Park and his absence from the streets will be noted and regretted by all. Prof. and Mrs. R. G. Richardson and their daughter Miss Frances, who have been occupying the Richardson house during the past two or three months, returned to their home in Piedmont on Saturday last. Sign Language for Motorists. Communication between moving motor cars is difficult. An ingenious motorist has devised a simple sign language whereby the fingers of one hand enable passing drivers to communicate with each other. If a code of this sort could be brought into general use, it would undoubtedly prove helpful. The code meanings are indicated by the following finger positions: Index finger up—You have a flat shoe. Index and second fingers—Stop and inspect your car. Index, second and third—Am I on the best road to the next town? Whole hand, palm upward—S. O. S., please stop. —In Motor for September.

A CAMPAIGN CONTRAST.

To the extent that Candidate Cox can divert public attention from the things that Candidate Cox stands for and typifies—Wilsonism and the like—Candidate Cox scores.

He scored momentarily when he made the brazen, preposterous charge that the Republican party had set out to raise a slush fund of $30,000,000 to buy the Presidency.

Big newspapers gave him scarse headlines and those favoring his candidacy made the most of the mountain-bank performance.

But the sensation was too empty to endure.

Confronted by cold facts, the utter falsity of the outcry was quickly established, and Candidate Cox, revealing in his cheap guise as a monger of untruths, simultaneously stood exposed as "a pronounced wet." This is he depicted and characterized by the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' Association in an appeal for funds to help elect Cox President.

Scoring as he did, temporarily—shielding himself, for the moment, from the blight of Wilsonism, while Boss Murphy chuckled and Boss Brennan grinned and Boss Taggart winked the other eye—Candidate Cox, in the end, has only succeeded in awakening and stimulating interest in the campaign. And this awakened and stimulated interest will assuredly make the Republican victory in November all the more overwhelming and complete.

What a contrast is presented as to candidates!

Warren G. Harding, in the becoming and dignified manner of a candidate for President of the greatest Republic on earth—not in the tawdry guise of a barnstorming aspirant for a seat in a town council or on a board of aldermen—is devoting his time to real problems of the day, domestic and international, and, with notable speeches of a constructive character, commanding the respectful attention of his countrymen and the world as well.

Verily, the contrast is striking indeed and, moreover, resounds to the credit and glory of the party of Lincoln, McKinley and Roosevelt—the G.
O. P.

A GOOD TIME TO REPEAL IT.

Whether Attorney General Am-strong holds that the "declaration of intention" act applies to women voters or not, the sensible thing for the Democratic party to do at the special session of the Legislature is to wipe it off the books. If further proof is needed that its main purpose is a delivment, a survival of the old Democratic State organization's propensity to play tricks with the election laws, it is furnished by the difference of opinion that exists now among the party leaders as to whether it helps or hurts the party. The News has always believed that it deprived as many Democrats as Republicans of votes. It has wished to see the State rid of it because it puts in the way of newcomers here an unnecessary obstacle to registration, one with which they are unfamiliar, disgusts many of them with our politics, serves no good purpose and is retained chiefly through perversity.

Shrewd politicians are often anything but shrewd. A great many new voters are now going on the polling lists. Good politics should prompt the majority party in Maryland to put its best foot foremost, to discard its bad habits, one of them an incurable disposition to seek unfair advantage through manipulation of the election laws. This is a good time to begin that reform, and repeal of the "declaration of intention" act would be a welcome sign of regeneration.—

$2,700,000,000 WASTE IN WAR EX-PENDITURES.

Total Cost of Finding It by Republican House Not More Than $100,000

Efforts of Governor Cox to divert attention from Democratic waste of $2,700,000,000 in war expenditures under the Wilson Administration by per-verting the facts in regard to his $15-000,000 Republican campaign fund is not proving successful.

This stupendous sum of waste and extravagance is the total of the many evidences of Democratic incompetency during the war period. Taken together with the $2,400,000,000 saved by the subsequent Republican Congress in one year, they represent the difference between Democratic and Republican rule.

Democratic members of Congress have been sneering at the work of the War Department Expenditures Committee of fifteen which did the great work of unearthing waste, but so far they have not attempted to explain the figures themselves. The committee itself, however, has taken the view that political parties are nothing if not a check upon each other so that the facts may be brought out for the guidance of the voters, and that the total of Democratic extravagance is sufficient cause for repudiation at the polls in November.

The committee's report itself throws considerable light on the subject. It says: "Members of Congress give their commission direct from the people, and in any painstaking Congressional investigation of public expenditures the facts are sought and given to those who ultimately pay the bills. Critics who question the expense of investigations are often influenced by motives other than public money expenditures, but they are reminded that directions to incur such expense came from a unanimous vote of the House. All the condemnation of the facts and the expenditure will not be $400,000. The subcommittee on aviation offers the record as an evidence of how little was realized by the government from $1,000,000,000 ostensibly expended for aircraft.

"Experience in prior investigations has disclosed whitewashed reports and efforts to smother or discredit anything reflecting upon the War Department. In an effort to distract public attention from the finding of fact reached by Justice Hughes and the Thomas committee, apologists from indefensible inefficiency and extravagance may seek to mislead public opinion and endeavor to confuse the situation by reflections upon the committee which was unanimously selected by the House to get the facts. Such methods strikingly illustrate a course of procedure adopted in responsible quarters of trying to minimize anything affecting the Air Service, War Department, or Administration.
No honest or reputable member of Congress can afford to take such a position and the committee presents the hearings, testimony and report as conclusive evidence in support of the findings submitted."

Helpful suggestions regarding pitfalls in future aviation construction are made in the report by the committee, which says:
"Adequate appropriations, wisely expended, are necessary to put America to the front where she belongs.
The imperative necessity for this polity must be apparent to all who have studied the constantly increasing scope of aeronautics. Co-operation with and encouragement to inventors and manufacturers and a broad, intelligent policy is demanded. Practically all other countries have adopted this course and ours must not fail at this crucial period to do so.
"The future of aviation is beyond our present dreams or understanding, and our government must do her full part in leading in its development."

We are Proud of Our Farmer Friends

We are especially proud that we have so many farmer customers. Agriculture is particularly interesting to us, as indeed it should be to everyone, and we like to have the farmers drop in and talk over their problems with us.

When we can give advice or render service of any kind, we are always glad to do so.

We know that the growth and development of this community depend to a large extent upon its farming interests, and we aim to do our part toward helping the farmers succeed.

We invite farmers to bank with us.

A GARRETT COUNTY MINER CLAIMS COMPENSATION

Loses Partial Sight of One Eye Years After He Had Been Blinded in Other

The claim of Samuel McConnell, of Vindex, Garrett county, against the Cluff Coal Company, was taken up before the State Industrial Accident Commission at the Court House in Oakland on last Saturday morning. Messrs. E. R. Jones and Thomas S. Hamill, Sr., attorneys, of Oakland, represented respectively McConnell and the coal company.

On March 20th last, McConnell while digging coal was struck in the right eye by a sharp piece of coal which necessitated an operation by Dr. E. L. Jones of Cumberland, and treatment in the Western Maryland Hospital for four weeks and the loss of the permanent partial use of the eye, which is the basis of the claim.

The case presents a rather unusual situation in that about twenty years ago McConnell while working in the mines of this district was struck in the left eye through a similar accident and this eye was totally destroyed. Nevertheless, he has continued since that time digging coal and a number of miners testified he was a first-class miner and that his work averaged well with the other miners, although he had but one eye. He is now about sixty-three years of age and has been actively engaged in coal mining for a period of over forty years, having entered the mines when he was twelve years of age.

The compensation law provides that in the loss of the fractional part of the vision of either one or both eyes the injured employee shall be compensated in like proportion to the compensation for total loss of vision. One of the questions now arising in the case is whether compensation should be based proportionately simply on the loss or injury to the eye injured last March or whether it should be based on the loss of vision to both eyes.

Commissioner George Louis Eppler, of Cumberland, conducted the hearing.

Held for the Grand Jury.

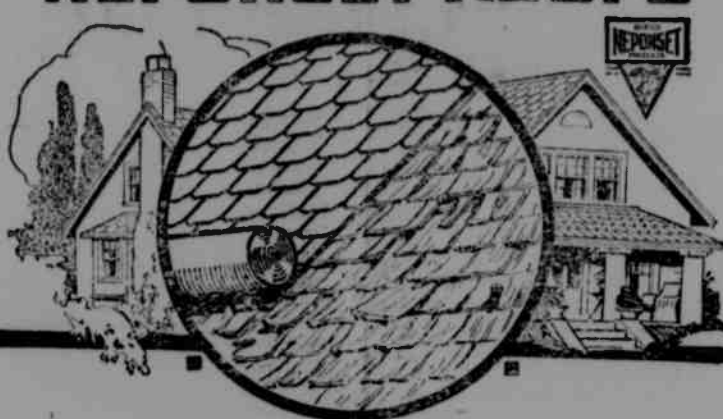

Before Justice James D. Hamill yesterday morning three negroes were given a hearing upon the charge of carrying concealed weapons, who sent them to jail for a later hearing upon the charge. In the meanwhile the contractors on the state road leading from Oakland to Cretlin discovered that the shacks of their employees had been entered and robbed of wearing apparel, amounting in value to about $175, and warrants for the arrest of the three men charging them with the crime were sworn out before Justice West, who gave them a hearing at his office last night and who held them in the sum of $500 each for their appearance to answer the charge at the December term of the Circuit Court. In default of bail they were sent to jail. One of the colored men, Bolden by name, served nine years in the Maryland House of Correction, having been recently discharged from the institution.

The wife who always insists that her husband wear rubbers when the weather looks the least bit stormy and who showers upon him thousands of other little attentions "for his own good" comes in for her share of the laces in the latest Cecil B. DeMille picture, "Why Change Your Wife?" which is to be the attraction at the Empire Theatre for two nights, Friday and Saturday, September 10 and 11. The production is described as a satire on married life done on an elaborate scale and also with the idea of telling the newly wedded and the about-to-be-wedded something for their own good. Thomas Meighan and Gloria Swanson head the excellent cast which also includes Hebe Daniels, Theodore Kosloff, Sylvia Ashton, Clarence Geldart, and others.—Advertisement.

A Handsome Roof at Little Cost

Art Craft is the wonderfully popular roll roofing that comes in tile design—natural slate-rox and slate-green.

At little cost Art Craft adds beauty to residence, bungalow, cottage, garage, or barn. It has a heavy felt base. It won't catch fire from falling sparks. Costs about one-half as much as a wooden shingle roof.

If desired, can be laid right over old wooden shingles.

If you want an extra good-looking roof at as little cost as it is safe to pay, you won't go wrong in buying Art Craft.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 12
The Glory of Solomon. Hebrew, 1 Kings 10:1-9; 23-25. Read entire chapter and 11 Chron. 9.

Blessed is everyone that feareth Jehovah.

That walketh in his ways. Psalm 128:1

THE QUEEN.

Out of this arid region two great prophets have come. Moses whose revealing genius reached its highest in its full fruitage in Christianity and Mohammed whose passion swept formalism before it like chaff. Just now it holds a new interest in the war-wrought kingdom of Hades covering the same territory. Religion seems an instinct of the region for new markets within a devotee before she was a ruler. Sitting at the gateway of trade between the Red Sea and the wider waters, watching the ships sail past or unload at the quays, taking toll from the long lines of camels that trekked thru her roads with their varied loads, she heard the constant hum of commerce dining her ears. The clink of coin was in the air from dawn till dusk and the stir of business was all about her yet thru all she discerned that which many are deaf, the message of the spirit. Solomon's venture with Hiram carried a new flag into her vision and brought new markets within her reach but it was the "Name of Jehovah" that sounded louder than all others in her ears. Strange note to pick out of all the din of a busy port and only one whose soul was listening for it could have heard it. In the modern world with its smoking stacks, its whirling spindles, its bustling engines, its thudding hammers, its screaming saws, its rattling crescendo of riveting and the confusion of myriad tones may hear the speech of Him who said, "My father worketh hitherto and I work."

Industry and commerce are God's modern angles to carry His messages to the ends of the earth. When they bear God's word only of cooperation, service and good-will, all of which they do bear today in some proportion, then will be fulfilled the vision of the seers and the promise of the Christ. Those who strain their energies to increase these tones in all the work-a-day world are comrades of this splendid Queen who found God in the commerce of her own day.

THE QUEST.

Great desire must have moved this Queen to undertake so great a journey. One can get the globe in less time than she occupied in either boat or camel carriage to get from her capital to Jerusalem. There was gain in the increased trade between Jew and Sabean, there was probable alliance between the two, there may have been the beckoning of orange-blossoms in her dream but for a woman of her type to spend five or six months away from her own empire in the face of the feeling of the East that forbids large movement on the part of womankind and in the peril of both trip and throne open to merand force demands a passion that swept past all barriers. Her whole soul must have been roused before undertaking such an adventure. She is allied with the woman's movement just brought to successful conclusion in our granted suffrage, with the W. C. T. U. whose white ribbon has been pinned to the flag, with Woman's Home and Woman's Foreign Missionary societies whose devotion is expressed on every continent and with all who are seeking to enthrone Christ at the heart of the world. And it is the same hunger that underlies the swift changes in the affairs of all people today. The report of God's plan for each and all expressed in varying phrase from race and servative across nations and men in movements as different as the League of Nations and Bolshevism. Never has there been such need for clear thinking and clean living and close study of God's Word.

THE CONQUEST.

It was a great day in Jerusalem when that wonderful queen entered the Damascus gate and trailed her company thru the streets to the palace. The best that the city offered was hers. Under the roof of that spacious building she found a splendor unknown to the simple life of democratic Arabia. The table amazed her with its variety and service. The throng of attendants in their court liveries seemed to have no limit. The passage that led to the Temple court and sentiment of all the symbolic worship centered there stirred her own devoutness to new depths. Solomon must have been at his best and allowed nothing to be lacking that might impress this woman with the firmness of the Hebrew civilization. Son of David the winsome and of Bathsheba the politics the King himself topped everything else and left her with no more spirit save admiration that expressed itself in royal gifts and in the gracious acceptance of Solomon's bounty. What her heart felt there is no word in the record that assures one of it. May not her imperfect teaching at the court of Solomon lie back of the garbled faith of Mohammed born beneath the shadow of her descendants?

THE QUACKERY.

Half truths were all she received in Jerusalem. Jehovah was a local deity and not a world God and there was no bearing back earth for an altar such as Naaman carried with him. She saw the luxury of the court but not the oppression of forced labor, exacting taxation, and the working out of the idea that the people were the property of the throne. All the glitter that could be gathered was used to gather her eyes but the unrest beneath it was a closed book. Solomon could make gold as abundant as paving stones but somebody starved that it might be true. Caring not for the democratic ideals of the prophets, indeed they were pitifully absent from his day-seeking to promote prosperity without piety, commerce without conscience, and planning shallow show instead of the largest good of all his empire fell to pieces as soon as death emptied the palace and the successful work of David vanished from the map. Failing to promote every day religion and equal justice among the common man, exploiting instead of serving his people, leveling Jehovah with the deity of a woman he might chance to fancy, he lost all the splendid promise of those early days when he really desired to serve God and the people.

RAILROAD FAVORS COMMUNITY

Crew of C. & O. Branch Train Is One That Does Things to Accommodate.

In this day one seldom hears much about railroads except knocks against the service given the public, the uncouthness and thorough unreliability of the crews manning the trains and the dirt and grime everywhere present in and out of the coaches which the travellers must forsooth make them selves comfortable or uncomfortable, as the mind of the traveler wills. Those who travel are convinced there are grounds for criticism, but there is one little "road" all by itself which gives its patrons complete satisfaction. This is the Confluence and Oakland branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, running from Confluence, Pa., up the Youghiogheny River to Kendall, this county.

The train is known as a combination outfit. It consists of two passenger cars hitched behind a string of freight and coal cars. The slow but sure locomotive hauls the load up and down the valley once a day, each way. The crew is congenial and when the conductor comes in his smile immediately makes an uncomfortable passenger forget the screeching of the wheels against the rails beneath him. The conductor is a bureau of information. He knows all the doings of the valley folks and can give one pointers on the growth of the crops to the state of fishing in the river, and why should he not, for has he not been on this particular run for nearly 30 years?

The asking of a favor by a patron means its granting. When the train is a little late on the upward trip it offers inconveniences persons making trips to Friendsville to buy green and dairy products who also return on it, cutting down the time allowance in the town. In one instance last week, where a patron had to go a little farther than others to get some goods, the conductor was good enough to wait a few minutes overtime to give this person an opportunity to make his purchase.

A woman who had to walk back down the track a distance and could not return to the station in time to board the train before it started, was picked up when the cars reached her. Other such little acts have gone a long way toward making this train crew one of the most popular on the entire system, if not in the entire country.

Often if the wife of some farmer desires a small article which cannot be secured near home, one of the crew of this train will buy it for her in Confluence and take it up the valley the following day. It is seldom one hears complaints of inattention or of the train service on the Confluence and Oakland branch of the Baltimore and Ohio.

"PLAYING TEACHER" IS A REAL JOB THIS DAY AND GENERATION

Pupils, 13 to 15 Years Old, Substitute During Instructor Shortage.

This interesting story of the teacher shortage which is general throughout the country, comes from a recent edition of the New York Evening Sun: "Playing Teacher"—that ancient game of all generations—is being put into practical use in New York City schools on account of the shortage of instructors. Instead of "playing" they are bona fide teacher substitutes.

They range in age from 13 to 15 years and are making good at their new work. Winifred McAllish, 13 years old, one of the high school pupils who have been helping out in Public School No. 2, at One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street and Third avenue, will never be a teacher when she grows up, she has decided, whereas Mollie Cheer, also a high school pupil of No. 2, will either be a teacher or a doctor. She had decided on being a doctor until she tried teaching and found it so pleasant and easy.

"The first day I taught B class," said Winifred, "I came back in the afternoon and found four boys of the class fighting. I told them to get in line, but they did not mind me. There was a teacher going by the door and they heeded her. The next thing they did was to play tickets. They got the tickets on the street and match them up to see who can get the most. This they did instead of their arithmetic lesson. I took the tickets away and told them they could have them at 3 o'clock. They liked this better than the teacher's system, because the teacher tears them up."

So Winifred has decided on book-keeping or stenography as her future vocation. Mollie Cheer has proved a splendid disciplinarian. "I promised the first class I had that if they would be good I would bring them a picture book I had when I was 8," said Mollie. "Although the 1B children are only 6½ and 7 years old and had never spelled before, I had them spell dog and cat. Rosalind and Aaron spelled so well and said their tables so well that I think they could skip and go in the 3B class. I taught them for a week and then Mrs. Haas said there was a substitute, and I kissed them all good-bye and left them."

"I had an older class after that and they were lovely, too. When I taught them reading, reading and they said they would rather be read to, I read to them out of the story book. Dorothy, a very little girl, ran up and down, and some of the little children in the first class I had jumped up and down a little, but they were so lovely I could not report them. I had a little trouble, too, with a boy who whistled, but I asked him if he didn't want his class to get a praise card and he became good."

Mollie was born in this country, but both her parents came from Russia. "But my mother goes a long time to the evening school," she assured the interviewer anxiously. Other little girls who help out Mrs. Elizabeth Haas, the principal, when Public School No. 2 is short of teachers, are Gussie Steinberg, Josephine Hurd, Bertha Hafmeyer, Sarah Lansberg, Sophie Abel, Josephine Blanco, Minnie Katz, Rose Goodman, Fannie Askinasi and Rose Pullman.

CAN YOU BEAT IT?
Where can a man buy a cap for his knee?
Or a key for a lock of his hair?
Can your eyes be called an academy?
Because there are pupils there?
In the crown of your head what jewels are found?
Who travels the bridge of your nose?
Can you use in shingling the roof of your mouth?
The nails on the end of your toes?
Could the crook in your elbow be sent to jail?
If so, what did he do?
How can you sharpen your shoulder blades?
I'll be darned if I know, do you?
Could you sit in the shade of the palm of your hand?
Or beat on the drum of your ear?
Does the calf of your leg eat the corn on your toe?
Then why not grow corn on the ear?

Street Fair Financial Success
The street fair recently held at Bloomington by the Civic Club of that town, proved very successful from a financial standpoint. The gross receipts were $105.43 and the net receipts $88.05. Of this $500 will be contributed to the fund of the Tri-Towns fund for the purchase of adequate fire fighting apparatus and then in case of need the same will also be used at Bloomington.

HARVEY FAMILY REUNION

First Gathering of the Clan Was Held Saturday With 600 Present

The first annual reunion of the Harvey family in Garrett county was held at Shook Shop school house in District No. 8, Garrett county, on last Saturday, the 18th inst. The occasion proved to be a very delightful and pleasant one for all present. The condition of the weather was ideal, the place for holding the reunion beautiful and of easy access to those from any point of the compass. The crowd was large, it being estimated that at least 600 Harveys and their family connections were in attendance, while at least a number totalling two hundred came to the place of meeting as sightseers. Dinners for 600 was prepared and served. Members of the family from all parts of the country were present, their object being first to attend the reunion where they had an opportunity of renewing old acquaintanceships and forming new ones, which is not a hard matter to do with the members of this great family, for they are all extremely friendly and make one feel at home, wherever the meeting with old or new friends may occur.

In the morning the program was one of interest, for during those hours the past history of the family was reviewed by the older members of the clan, while the younger members filled the intermissions with music and song.

In a speech of short duration, Mr. J. D. Harvey welcomed the people to the meeting, and during his remarks gave a history, briefly, of the family, dating back as far as 1744. Mr. Harvey, from information thought to be reliable, stated that the forebears of the Harvey family in the United States first settled in Virginia, coming from England to that settlement, and moving to the Garrett county region some seventy years ago.

Capt. James W. White, an old Union veteran, now more than eighty-one years of age, gave an account of the family and its doings since the settlement of the forefathers was made in this county. Capt. White having resided in Garrett county his entire lifetime. In his remarks he related many incidents in connection with the life of the early settlers in the county, a majority of them being in connection with the Harveys. His voice was extremely clear and his remarks were greeted with repeated handclappings. Capt. White closed his remarks by suggesting that as the hour had become late and that many of those present had partaken of an early breakfast that dinner would be in order before anything else.

The dinner was spread and the great family of Harveys gathered to partake of the many and abundance of good things prepared by the ladies of the clan, following which the program of the afternoon was taken up and in which the younger generations of the family participated. There were several special selections of music, as well as renderer selections by the choir.

The day closed with feelings of good cheer on the part of every individual present, all agreeing to meet again next year, and feeling that the day had been well spent.

BOTH HOUSES OBEY RITCHIE

AND LEGISLATURE ADMITS DEFEAT

Expected By Republican Members

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 22.—The Senate and House of Delegates in extra session, adjourned sine die tonight after having accomplished what it was called to do—the amendment of the registration and election laws by which larger facilities will be given for the registration of women and of other new voters this year only and for counting ballots on election day.

That the session did not go beyond the Governor's call is looked upon as a triumph by the Ritchie administration.

The Republican made a heroic but unsuccessful effort to secure fair play by repeal of the declaration of intention and affidavit of removal laws and by the enactment of a law to simplify the ballot. Not for many moons have the Republicans stood more solidly together than during the brief special session.

At no time were they willing to interfere with any legislation which was laid down in Governor Ritchie's call. They recognize the need of ample opportunity for registration by women and the counting of the thousands of additional ballots to be cast by women. They would not tolerate in caucus or elsewhere a suggestion to delay the enactment of the legislation required by the woman's suffrage amendment.

The new law adds three additional days in October for registration, the power on the part of the Boards of Supervisors in the several counties to provide for two polling places in each district where the registration exceeds eight hundred voters; for the transcribing of the registration books when this contingency arises; the raising of election officials' salaries with the consent of the various boards of county commissioners, and other lesser matters of detail in order to carry out the purpose and intention of the new law.

By a vote of 51 to 43 the House tonight defeated the joint resolution introduced by Mr. Coburn, of Harford, to ratify the woman's suffrage amendment. The Senate had previously decided to take no action on the proposition.

While no party lines were drawn, Republicans predominated in the vote for ratification.

The vote was on a motion to substitute the bill for an unfavorable report made by the committee.

THREE KILLED; TWO INJURED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTOMOBILE

Girls Lose Lives, Brothers Hurt, When Struck By B. & O. Passenger Train Near Oakland.

Probably the most terrible accident it has been the community's misfortune to learn of was that which took place last Sunday afternoon at a few minutes past three o'clock when the east-bound accommodation train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad struck an automobile at the Weber crossing a mile east of town, killing three young women and injuring two young men.

The dead are:
Miss Hazel Ridder, 20 years old.
Miss Emma Fulk, 22 years old.
Miss Ruth Nicholson, 23 years old.

The injured are:
Harry Nicholson, brother of Miss Ruth Nicholson, fractured ribs and other injuries.

Clarence Fulk, deep lacerations of the scalp and bruises about his body his condition being such that it is considered inadvisable by his physician, Dr. Broadwater, to remove him to his home from the emergency room of the physician's office in Oakland to which place he was taken following the accident.

So far as can be learned there was but one eye-witness to the occurrence, he being a young man named Morgan, who has stated that he was standing but a short distance from the railroad track when the car in which the young people were riding drifted onto the hill and across the bridge onto the tracks, when it became evident that the driver, Mr. Fulk, had lost the ignition spark, with the train fast approaching the crossing. In his efforts to start the machine it was evident that instead of using the forward gear he reversed the motor and it backed on the track directly in front of the train, then but a few yards distant, the pilot of the locomotive striking the automobile just back of the driver's seat and sent it and its occupants hurling through the air, the automobile landing crosswise of the west bound track, while the young women were thrown forward in front of the train.

Miss Ridder and Miss Fulk were dead when picked up by passengers and the trainmen, while the body of Miss Nicholson, with a spark of life remaining was placed on the train and taken to Cumberland. She died, however, before that city was reached. The two men were brought to Oakland where Nicholson's wounds were dressed and he was taken to his home the same evening.

The young people had left their homes early in the afternoon for a motor trip to Oakland and points beyond, after having met the same morning at the Red House church where they attended service and participated in raising a fund with which to pay off a slight indebtedness for improvements recently completed.

The bodies of Miss Fulk and Miss Ridder were prepared for burial at the Bolden undertaking rooms in Oakland, and that of Miss Nicholson was brought from Cumberland and also encoined, later all three being taken to the homes of their respective parents south of town. All resided on farms which adjoin and within half a mile of one another.

Miss Ridder was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar S. Ridder, a prominent farmer. Miss Fulk was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fulk, who is also engaged in agricultural pursuits, and Miss Nicholson was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Nicholson, whose farm adjoins that of Mr. Fulk on the south.

The funeral of the victims took place yesterday morning from St. John's Lutheran church at Red House, being conducted at the same hour by the pastor, Rev. Dr. S. S. Adams.

At the funeral three motor hearses were used to take the bodies from the grief-stricken homes to the church. The edifice seats about six hundred persons, which was crowded to its capacity with more than a thousand who could not gain admission standing on the outside.

munity Sing," led by Mr. Thomas L. Gibson, State Supervisor of Music. "You mustn't miss the Fair: all your friends will be there."

In Their Place— What Would You Have Done?

This was the situation:

The Overland had no serious competition at its price, and at its price it had no competition as to quality.

Overland plants were working to capacity, 600,000 Overlands had been sold, and a continent was clamoring for more.

Then the Overland organization became concerned about the price of gasoline.

Now, gasoline is not Overland business, but it becomes Overland business when the welfare of Overland owners is at stake.

The sale of an Overland is the beginning and not the end of Overland interest in the man or woman who buys it.

So Overland designers were told:

"Gasoline is continually going up. Every cent advance increases the upkeep of the Overland. Go back to your draughting boards and bring it down!"

Months and months of experiment!

Millions and millions of expense!

And then, up and out of the Valley of Dilemma, leaping into the road like a thing possessed—

A GREATER OVERLAND, built of light alloy steels, mounted on the famous Suspension Triplex Spring, and giving unheard-of mileage out of every gallon of gas in her tank!

Overland designers said: "We don't know what it cost to create, but we do know it will cost six millions to get ready to use it!"

The answer was: "The public has stood by the Overland, the Overland must stand by the public. Go ahead and equip your plants to produce it."

$6,000,000 for an ideal!

In the Overland Company's place, what would you have done?

Some organizations would have said: "The present Overland is good enough. Why quarrel with success?"

But the Overland theory is, that nothing is good enough that can conceivably be better, and that the great family of Overland owners have placed upon the Overland Company an obligation, not only to produce, but to progress!

In that spirit, the Overland was created.

In that spirit, the Overland is presented.

And now, in that spirit, let us get together!

GRANTSVILLE

The fourth member of the Ward Beachy family stricken with typhoid fever. Mrs. Beachy and two young children were taken to the Miners' Hospital at Frostburg, several weeks ago. Mrs. Beachy succumbed to the disease soon after admission to the hospital. The children are convalescing, but the bereaved husband and father has now contracted the disease and was taken to the hospital last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Warnick entertained in honor of their son Dalton's seventeenth birthday on Friday night, the following guests being present: Frank and William Getty, Lee Broadwater, Elsworth and Irvin Beachy, Harold Miller, Oliver, Harry and Raymond Bender, Emmons Warnick, Burley Stephens, James Stanton and Paul Ambell. Misses Mabel and Myra Custer, Ruth Miller, Stella Durst, Anna Bowser, Althea and Martha Engle, Alverta and Mary Miller, Grace Hersberger, Irma Swauger, Althea Jenkins and Elizabeth Yost. The evening passed pleasantly with music and games, after which refreshments were served. Young Mr. Warnick received some very handsome and practical gifts in honor of the occasion.

Master Clyde Bender entertained a few friends in honor of his cousins on Monday afternoon. The little guests included his cousins, Rachael Reinheimer from Pittsburgh and Alzine, Marion Goshorn from Piedmont, and Jane, Ella, Frank and Ralph Bowen. After a few hours spent on the Bender playground, a delicious "party dinner" was served in the dining room by the mother of the small host.

A corn roast was held at the Pavilion on Thursday night of last week by the members of the Lutheran Missionary Society and their husbands. Corn, chicken, sandwiches and coffee were in abundance and everyone enjoyed the feast immensely.

Rev. Archibald Moore, of Oakland, conducted services at the M. E. church on Sunday morning, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper being administered. Rev. Swan was also present. A business meeting was held at the church on Saturday evening.

C. E. Services were conducted by Harold M. Miller Sunday night, with addresses by M. T. Kinsinger and J. H. Miller, the topic being "The Great Miracle." A delightfully rendered solo was given by Miss Edith Swan.

Miss Angela Getty returned Sunday from Oakland where she attended the teachers' institute during the week.

Roy Patterson, of Frostburg, spent the week-end with his wife at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Yonkin.

Mrs. Rudolph Reinheimer and daughter Rachael spent several days with friends in Cumberland and Frostburg, where they planted white pine trees and planted burg. Miss Marie Conner returned Sunday after spending the past week in Keyser and Oakland.

Miss Hazel Yonkin is attending the winter term of school at the Frostburg State Normal.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Yost spent Friday afternoon with Miss Gertie Hone. L. G. Bittinger returned last week from attending a Harley-Davidson motor convention held at Marion, Ind. Mrs. John B. Whitaker, of Cumberland, and Mrs. J. C. Beale and daughter Mary, of Washington, returned to their respective homes after several weeks' visit to Mr. and Mrs. Noah Warnick.

Miss Grace Hersberger has entered the Beall High School, Frostburg, for the winter term.

Harold Miller left Monday for Gettysburg College, where he will take up the winter course of study.

Miss Helen Stanton is taking a business course of study in Catherman's College, Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Dill and children, of Jerome, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Dill, of Johnstown, Pa., were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Warnick at their home here.

Allen Bender, as a member of the American Legion, attended the state convention held in Cumberland two days of last week.

Mr. J. O. Getty, cashier of the State Bank at this place, suffered a nervous breakdown one day recently and on Sunday he was taken to Cumberland for treatment. In addition to the prime cause of his illness Mr. Getty is also suffering with complications which involve the kidneys. His many friends in this section of the county hope for his speedy recovery and return home.

Mr. U. Blocher, who has been cashier of the First National Bank at this place since its institution some years ago, has resigned the position, the same having become effective on the 1st inst. Hereafter Mr. Blocher will devote his entire time to his mining interests.

Sunday last parties from three or four states gathered at Casselman park, just east of town, where they had dinner. This is an ideal spot for motorists and they are making excellent use of it. Mr. U. M. Stanton owns the property and all visitors feel that they are welcome when Mr. Stanton circulates among the people dispensing good cheer with a hearty handshake and a pleasant smile to all.

Located near this park is one of the few remaining large white pine trees to be found in Garrett county. This tree is a mighty monarch, reaching into the blue for probably a hundred feet, while around its trunk at the height of one's waist it measures 18 feet. It is admired by all who visit the park and is prized very highly by Mr. Stanton, who as a lover of nature has secured from the State Agricultural Department a large number of them at various spots upon his holdings.

A number of men have been employed during the past week making necessary repairs to the Stanton mill dam on the Casselman. In the many years since this dam was put up by master builders but slight repairs and those at long intervals have been found necessary. Someone has said that the dam was originally built nearly three-quarters of a century ago, during all of which time the waters of the Casselman conserved by it have been sluiced through the mill race to the Stanton mill which depends largely upon it for power for driving the various machines stored therein.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Jennie Dumire, Plaintiff, vs. George Dumire, Defendant.

No. 2323 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii from the defendant by the plaintiff.

The bill states that on the 10th of June, 1915, the plaintiff was married to the defendant, with whom she resided in Garrett County and elsewhere until September 3rd, 1917.

That on or about the date aforesaid the defendant without any just cause, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff and that such abandonment has continued uninterrupted for at least three years, and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond a reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

That no children were born as a result of said marriage.

That the said defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland and does not reside therein.

The bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii and for other relief.

It is thereupon, this 6th day of September, 1920, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, in equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Garrett county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 9th day of October, 1920, give notice to the said defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 25th day of October, next, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

"HE WEARS, HIS WORKS ABIDE"

The address made last Saturday by Governor Coolidge to the State convention of the Massachusetts Republicans was in the main a review of the nearly eight years of Democratic national rule and its evil consequences.
While that era is not one which most Americans remember with pleasure, it has to be recalled lest the dread of its unhappy return should abide. Calvin Coolidge drew the picture of the years of mistake with as much compassion at truth would permit.

This speech of the Republican candidate for Vice-President cannot but provoke a comparison of Mr. Coolidge, with his clear method of presents undeniable political truth, and his Democratic opponent, Franklin D. Roosevelt. In the Coolidge address we find no wild charges, no flubdub. The address of the Bay State Governor to his own people breathes the very nature of a strong, intellectual and dignified public servant.

On an occasion like Saturday it was unnecessary for Mr. Coolidge to devise more words than he did to democratic candidate for President.
His suggestion that, since James M.
Cox began his speaking tour, the referendum has become to Mr. Wilson more and more solemn was enough.
But at the close of Governor Cool-idge's remarks on Senator Harding he said something which we believe will find an echo in the hearts of all who have been watching the head of the Republican ticket:

"He has about him something deep and good. He wears. His works abide."

A very good, broad picture of what Warren G. Harding is and what his opponent isn't.

BIG SHORTAGE OF TEACHERS
The teacher shortage remains a menace to the public schools, according to preliminary reports made public a few days ago by the National Education Association. Replies to questionnaires sent out by the association have come from all sections of the United States. These reports show that in places where teachers' salaries have been increased 100 per cent, or more the situation is nearly always satisfactory. But such places are comparatively few, and in localities where salaries have been increased 50 per cent, or less the teacher shortage is commonly greater than a year ago. Rural communities are hardest hit. Signe reports from superintendents of many counties indicate that a third of their rural schools cannot open for want of teachers. Tens of thousands of schools will be in charge of teachers who have had no professional preparation and whose academic training barely exceeds that of the children they teach.

Relief from this serious situation, which imperils the stability of American rural life, will be sought from the next session of Congress. Renewed efforts will be made to obtain the passage of the Smith-Towner bill, which creates a department of education with a secretary in the President's Cabinet, and provides Federal aid of $100,000,000 for education.

Monday and Tuesday in this county making a survey of school conditions as they at present exist. The gentlemen, in company with Superintendent Rathbun, left Oakland yesterday morning for Frostburg, visiting various county schools enroute, stopping at Accident and Grantsville. Before leaving Oakland, The Republican had a very interesting half hour's chat with both Mr. Cook and Mr. Reavis, in which the state's officers expressed their complete satisfaction with the school conditions in Garrett county as administered by County Superintendent Rathbun. During their stay in the county the Superintendents met a number of people with whom they discussed school policies and other matters pertaining to the school affairs of many communities.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN MEET

Large Numbers of Nearly New Voters

Assembled Monday Evening Here.

The first all-women political meeting held in the history of Garrett county was that at the Maryland Theatre in Oakland when a large number of the gentler sex assembled to hear the political questions confronting the nation today discussed by Mrs. Clarkson, of New York, sent here by the Republican National Committee to address the ladies especially upon these question of national interest and to influence them to register and vote at the coming election.

Mrs. E. Z. Tower, at the request of the county committee, presided at the Monday evening's meeting, but no permanent organization was formed at that time, the intention of the women being to form such after the registration of the voters during this and next month.

Mrs. Clarkson brought a message to the women that was appealing. In her remarks the speaker referred to the responsibilities of the women in their home life and likened the political obligations thereto when it comes to deciding by their ballots matters directing the affecting the home and those sheltered there. Her remarks were well received by her hearers, all of whom were enthusiastic in their expressions pertaining to the Republican National ticket.

During the meeting Mrs. Benj. H.
Sinclair read the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

"We, the Republican women of Garrett county, in meeting assembled, endorse the National Republican platform as adopted at the National Republican convention in Chicago in June, 1920, and promise to support the candidates, Warren G. Harding for President, and Calvin Coolidge for Vice-President.

"We assume the obligations of citizens and promise to register, to vote and help others vote."

The following named ladies were appointed to help interest the women of their districts in registering and voting:

cell, Mrs. B. F. Schoch, Miss Margaret Sollars.

THE REPUBLIC'S PILLARS

The third pillar of the Republic is the Church, represented by the altar.

The Church must prove its right to exist by its fruits. It must be evangelical, and it will be if it draws its inspiration from the Word of God and not from theological systems.

This does not mean that there shall be no, or even less, doctrine. Doctrine is essential, but let it be the pure doctrine of the Word. Men come to church to get an incentive to right living, and to this end religion must be presented as real and practical—something that will lay hold on every-day life. The Church must hold up Christ.
She must be a living force, elevating and purifying society. She must be in sympathy with suffering and sorrow, and also evangelic in her spirit and methods. The Church for the times must not only be evangelistic, but missionary. She must heed the call from out of the way places of the earth.
She must go into the ends of the earth with the gospel of Christ. She is expected to cope with the movies and pleasure centres of the world. She is also expected to take the place of the home in the training of children, because the lack of home training has increased her responsibility. All the greater is this responsibility because of the secularization of the public schools. The school is not an adjunct of the church any longer. The Sabbath school must do the work formerly done in the home and church. She must train men to hold their possessions as administrators of God, to use them to His praise and the well being of men. She is in the end of the earth living this, as evidenced by the large gifts to philanthropic objects, to reforms; for bettering the condition of the poor and needy by carrying on the work of missions at home and abroad.

The great mission of the Church is to preach the gospel and live it.

The influence of the gospel will make better citizens, a stronger country, a more substantial government, a purer and nobler society and will perpetuate the republic. These great principles, the noblest of the well, or honest labor, and the altar of the Church, made Scotland great. They will make any country great. They have been the bulwarks of our Republic, and they must be maintained.

The Church is the mightiest bulwark of any country.

It is because God has been so generally left out of consideration in our treaties, in our political activities, in our professional and business lives, that we find ourselves in the present world unrest. We are passing through the most important reconstruction period the world has ever known, and either we are coming out of it as a family of nations in which the rich and poor alike will have been chastened, in which each citizen will accord to his fellow man the same rights and privileges that he wants for himself, or the reconstruction period will expire by giving birth to a world communist international, in which our civilization and religion will be totally destroyed.

The destruction of all that is left of civilization and professing Christendom is a fearful possibility. It is the lengthening shadow of the coming great tribulations. The Church must be characterized by its works of benevolence, by its unselfish and divine activities, by its ceaseless and increasing prayer life. Prayer is her vital breath. She can't live without it; she only lives as she prays.

One of the characteristics of the age is that women do not recoil from the impiety and irreverence of skepticism. Infidelity among women is quite common nowadays. Young missionaries who have read far more novels than bible, pride themselves on sentiments that ought to bring from their mothers severe rebuke, but they work their brains in stirring up hatred for the bible. They read a few magazine articles and think it is an evidence of special learning to show contempt for the christian faith.

One prominent woman said to her pastor: "Oh, you can't imagine what a comfort it is to be an evolutionist," and she said it with as much enthusiasm as she would exhibit over her poodle dog. "Comfort," replied the pastor. "What comfort can a woman find in believing that she is descending from a monkey and that she is turning into an ass?"

Do you not see that the woman was only trying to get rid of the thought of God's law? The purpose seems to be to list in to dull and ordered x sermons, but rather give loose reins to conduct and so dismiss the thought of eternity. Paul calls them "silly women laden with sin." It is well to note the reason given to women amidst the cells of the last day and in hastening the crash of the present age.

A last conscience makes shipwreck of faith, and when they lose conscience and faith they surpass men in the indulgence of groveling appetites as well as in the atrocities of dress. Good women are better and bad women are worse than men. Their influence on children and society is fearful when faith in God is cast aside as an unwelcome restraint upon the passions.

No wonder there are families in which unhappiness and unfaithfulness to the marriage vows and wicked and disgraceful means to prevent child bearing, which in God's sight is child murder. When divorce are given through the madness of silly women laden with sin who can fail to see that they are serving the devil?

In the book of Kings and Chronicles of the Bible, the words, "His mother's name," occurs thirty times and mostly where the mother's name is preserved by the Holy Spirit. The monarchs were wicked and their influence seems to be to brand, with eternal infamy, the women who did not exert their influence in the right direction in train-

Their influence on the contentment of God's word and brought ruin upon themselves and those dearest to them.
When mothers shall meet their children among the lost the keenest pang of tortures will be experienced.

Infidel, worldly, pleasure-seeking women have an awful account to give when brought face to face with victims of their own sin. What is going to remedy the world's evil?
What will be the solution of the problem that confronts us? Shall the world go on at the present pace? No!
There will come an end to it all.
Better things are in store for us. A better form of government awaits the

In a report of the finding of oil seepage in this county which was published in The Republican of a few weeks ago it was erroneously stated that the findings of this seepage was a mile and reported by a state geologist in the person of Dr. A. D. Bibbins whereas Mr. Bibbins is not connected in any manner with the state department but is a specialist in gas and oil and was in this community as the guest of private parties. The state geologist some years ago claimed that no oil could be found in Garrett county and published his paper upon the subject in the report made that year to the State authorities at Annapolis.

This issue of The Republican contains much new advertising to which the attention of our readers is directed, especially the announcements of the Allen automobile, for which Mr. F. E. Gonder, is the local agent; the advertisement of the Oakland Motor Car Co., for which Messrs. W. E. Spoerlein, of Oakland, and F. E. Spoerlein at Accident, are local representatives, and the tried and true Martin Garage, which uses more than a quarter page of space advertising the advantages of the Overland car, for which Mr. Martin is the agent and has thus far this season disposed of many cars of this make to satisfied customers. Take a look at all these cars before you purchase.

Civic Club Notes.

At the request of the Fair Association the club agreed to take charge of the decorations for the third floor of the building. Tag day for the benefit of the club will be held on Thursday, October 1st.

Cemetery Note.

Just a few have responded to our appeal of last week. Please do not delay this work, as there will be many out of town friends here next week and we would not wish them to see the neglected condition of our cemetery. SHALL OAKLAND BE IN DARK-NESS AFTER NOVEMBER 1?

Serious Condition Confronts Business Men and Householders Alike.

Unless something is done and that right early Oakland bids fair to be in darkness after November 1st unless the Northern Natural Gas Company, which furnishes gas with which to operate the power driving the machinery which produces the light to illuminate the town, rescinds its order issued a few days ago notifying all gas engine owners to provide other fuel than gas to drive their devices.

Since the order of the gas company was issued those who depend upon gas as a fuel for power purposes are confronted with a serious proposition. The order affects every user of a gas engine and as the local electric company uses gas exclusively and has no other means of producing power, the obstacle in meeting the requirements of the gas company by November 1st looms up as one not easily overcome.

This condition, however, can be met but how soon is problematical.

Since the report of the citizens' committee, published in this column, has been submitted to the Mayor and Town Council that body has grasped the seriousness of the situation and will use the authority conferred upon them by an act passed at the January session of the General Assembly by submitting to a vote of the people the question of whether or not bonds shall be issued to build, equip and maintain an electric light plant for furnishing light for the streets and dwellings as well as business places of the town.

The Council arrived at this conclusion after deliberating upon the report of the committee referred to above, but as yet the date for the election has not been announced.

At the special meeting of the Mayor and Council held on Tuesday evening the advisory citizens' committee which had been selected by the town officials at a meeting held some time ago, submitted the following report, which covers the question of lighting the town under the present franchise and the possibility of securing electric current by means of a municipally-owned station under the law as interpreted by members of the local bar:

The report of the committee is as follows:

"The committee, after considerable inquiry into the financial condition of the town find the present bonded indebtedness of the municipality to be about $50,000, and other indebtedness to be about $5,000, making a total indebtedness of $55,000.

"To provide for this indebtedness: Interest.....$2,300 00 Retiring two bonds each.....2,000 00

Present contract for electric light for lighting streets.....2,200 00 Salaries of police, mayor and city council, about.....1,200 00

Total.....$7,700 00 Total amount of receipts from taxation, at 75c. on one hundred dollars assessed valuation, about.....7,000 00

"It may be readily seen that the present revenue does not provide for the above absolutely necessary payments, and which do not allow for one dollar for street repair or any other necessary expenditure.

"The best information we can get places the cost of an adequate and modern plant that would furnish light for the town at about $50,000. To provide for carrying this additional bonded debt and other necessary expenses not now provided for would require our present tax rate to be about doubled, or $1.50 on the one hundred dollars. Our present county and State tax being $2.02½, and to add to this a municipal tax of $1.50, making a total annual tax of $3.52½ on the hundred dollars of assessed value of property within our town would in our judgment be so excessive that many of the citizens would be unable to pay.

"The other proposition to buy the present electric light company at the price offered, viz.: $11,000, and make necessary changes so that the same may be operated by steam power, entailing an additional cost of about $9,000, or a total of $20,000 in all would in our judgment be equally bad, because of the cost each year in furnishing repairs on old plant as well as the very great additional cost of operation caused by increased cost of coal and additional labor to operate the same.

"As to the legal right of the city authorities to purchase the present electric light plant from the Oakland Electric Company, the committee is in entire accord with the written opinion submitted to the Mayor and Council by J. C. Renninger, Esq., in which he holds that the right to purchase said plant is within the power of the Mayor and Council, but that there is no provision of law which provides a way for the payment for said property.

"The committee has also examined into the question as to whether the Mayor and Town Council, under present legal authority, would have the right to sell electricity to the citizens of the town for domestic purposes, and we find that no such authority exists. "The committee is of the opinion that it is the duty of the Mayor and Town Council to lay the entire facts of this situation before the Public Service Commission and have the latter to pass upon the question as to whether or not the present electric light company is not required to furnish the town with electric light under its franchise.

Wiley-Gloftelty-At the close of the evening service in the Lutheran church in this village on last Sunday, Mr. B. Harrison Wiley, son of Mrs. Thomas B. Wiley, a most estimable young man, well known throughout the county, and Miss Lucy Gloftelty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Flavius J. Gloftelty, a most charming, accomplished and lovable young lady, were united in the bonds of holy wedlock and immediately thereafter left by automobile amid a shower of congratulations and good wishes for the nearest railroad station, from whence they departed either east or west on a bridal tour, whitherover the glowing beams of their honeymoon shall beckon them. Very many friends of the young couple will allow their minds to follow them in the hope and with the earnest prayer that thru all sunshine, thru all showers and over all the rugged places that lie in life before them the sweetest peace may attend them and prosperity await upon them in all things worthy of pure lives.

Mrs. J. L. Marvin spent last week in Chicago attending a convention of workers in the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society cause. Lester Hetrick and family, of Lumberton, West Va., came to this village last Sunday evening and will spend some time with relatives here. Mrs. William Weyrick and children, of Wheeling, West Va., are the guests of Mrs. Weyrick's parents Mr. and Mrs. James Speicher, near this village. Lewis Haachman, of Grantsville, was a Sunday visitor to this community. Dennis Brennenman purchased a new Ford touring car a few days ago and now he is frequently seen treating his family to the comforts and pleasures of motoring.

Oscar Hetrick, who has been employed on his uncle's farm on Keyser's Ridge during the past summer, is now at home with his parents for a time. It is reported that Ernest Bittinger has sold his farm located near this village and will shortly remove with his family to Lonaconing, Md., where he purposes entering the coal mining business.

Mrs. Newland and two daughters, of near Pittsburgh, Pa., spent part of last week with relatives here. On last Sunday afternoon the Jennings baseball team came to this place to cross bats with the Bittinger boys, and in a game of seven innings the Bittinger team won with a score of six to eight. Just as the game was concluded several cars loaded with ball players from Meadow Mountain and North Glade arrived upon the scene and took the game on to the hands of the Jennings team, and they and the Bittinger team took up the struggle anew. At the close of the sixth inning the Bittinger lads had it on the mountain boys with a score of eight to twenty-nine when the game was called off on account of the approach of nightfall.

Dewey R. Wiley, of Grantsville, spent Sunday at his home here. Mrs. David Miller and son Irvin, of Mountain Lake Park, visited relatives in this section last week. Threshing machines are frequently heard steaming from one farm to another in this section and the grain bins are rapidly filling but not so rapidly as had been hoped as the report shows a very light yield of buckwheat and a much less yield of oats than had been anticipated, with wheat doing very well on an average.

John T. Miller, of New Germany, was a business visitor in this village last week. Austin Bittinger and Clark Brennenman indulged in a car swap a few days ago and both seem to be highly pleased with their respective "bargains."

Mr. Michaels, of Westernport, came to this place last Sunday in search of young men to work for him on his farm located near that town. News reached here on Friday of last week announcing the death of Cortez H. Jennings, at his home in Towanda,

Pa. Mr. Jennings was for many years a large lumber operator in this section of Garrett County and founded the town of Jennings. Several weeks ago, while on a visit to Jennings he suffered a stroke of paralysis and for a time seemed to promise recovery. After he had gained some strength he was taken to his home in Towanda from Jennings. He was immensely wealthy and is survived by his wife and a son and daughter.

GORTNER

Deep gloom was cast over our community Sunday by the terrible accident at the Weber crossing a few miles from Gortner which cost the lives of Misses Hazel Ridder, Emma Fulk and Ruth Nicholson, and the serious injury to Messrs. Clarence Fulk and Harry Nicholson, of Silver Knob. The hearts of everyone in the community goes out to the surviving relatives and friends of those young people.

On Monday afternoon while Mr. W. H. Smouse was inflating a tire on his car the tire exploded, disengaging the rim which had been improperly fastened to the wheel, the rim striking him on the head and cutting a deep gash and otherwise very painfully injuring him. Mr. Smouse was immediately taken to his home by Mr. J. L. Echard, of Mountain Lake Park, who happened along a few minutes after Mr. Smouse was hurt. Arriving at the Smouse home medical aid was summoned and Mr. Smouse's injuries were dressed. His injuries are very painful and he is getting along very nicely at the time this correspondence was written. The accident occurred at a point near Table Rock on the mountain east of Gortner while Mr. Smouse was on his way to the home of Mr. John Hamble on business, being accompanied at the time by Mrs. Smouse.

REAL ROOSEVELT ABHORRED WILSON AND HIS WORKS

Yet Democratic Candidate for Vice Presidency Slanders Great Leader's Memory.

MAKING FUTILE ATTEMPT TO WIN ON OLD ISSUES

Fifth Cousin Removed Roosevelt Not Able to Convince Followers of T. R. by Specious Arguments.

By SCOTT C. BONE.

Touring the country as a candidate for Vice President, Franklin D. Roosevelt is vainly endeavoring to invoke the progressive spirit of 1912 in support of Wilsonism and the election of the Democratic ticket in November.

What would the real Roosevelt—Theodore Roosevelt—the Immortal T. R.—say to his followers were he alive today?

Gone, he left burning words which tell too plainly what his attitude would be at this time.

He abhorred Wilsonism, just as he abhorred Danielism, with both of which Franklin D. Roosevelt has been identified as an under Secretary.

Condemned Wilsonism. Theodore Roosevelt condemned Wilsonism and the whole Wilson administration in unsparring terms.

Read anew what he said at Cooper Union on November 3, 1910:

"I have been assailed because I have criticised Mr. Wilson. I have not said one thing of him that was not absolutely accurate and truthful.

"I have not said one thing of him which I did not deem it necessary to say because of the vital interests of this republic.

"I have criticised him because I believe he has dragged in the dust what was most sacred in our past and has jeopardized the most vital hopes of our future.

"I criticise him now because he has adroitly and cleverly and with sinister ability appealed to all that is weakest and most unworthy in the American character; and also because he has adroitly and cleverly and with sinister ability sought to mislead many men and women who are neither weak nor unworthy, but who have been misled by a shadow dance of words.

"He has made our statesmanship a thing of empty elocution.

"He has covered his fear of standing for the right behind a veil of rhetorical phrases.

"He has wrapped the true heart of the nation in a spangled shroud of rhetoric.

"He has kept the eyes of the people dazzled so that they know not what is real and what is false. So that they turn, bewildered, unable to discern the difference between the glitter that veneers evil and the stark realities of courage and honesty, of truth and strength.

"In the face of the world he has covered this nation's face with shame as with a garment."

So much for Theodore Roosevelt's opinion of Wilson and Wilsonism in support of which Franklin D. Roosevelt, lifelong Democrat, would now invoke the progressive spirit of 1912!

Abhorred Danielism.

And what did Theodore Roosevelt think of Daniel's administration of the Navy Department of which the Democrat, Franklin D. Roosevelt, has been a more or less conspicuous factor and part?

In a speech on "Americanism and National Defense" at Chicago, October 20, 1910, Theodore Roosevelt said:

"More harm has been done to the navy by the politicians in power during the last three years than in the preceding thirty. Whatever good has been accomplished in the navy during the last three years has been done by naval officers, who, in most cases, have been snubbed and punished for their proposals as long as it was safe to do so; whereas Mr. Daniels now turns and claims credit for what was thus forced upon him.

"In short, throughout President Wilson's term there has been neglect or positive maladministration in connection with departmental organization in navy yards, aeronautics, mines and torpedoes, and in all other matters affecting the efficiency of the fleet and the enthusiasm of its officers and men."

The activity and energy of the Navy Department under President Wilson has been primarily concentrated upon schemes aimed at vote-getting or advertising."

This, then, is what Theodore Roosevelt thought of the administration of the Department from which Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat and exponent of Wilsonism, vainly would reach the Vice Presidency and its progressive of 1912, followers of the real Roosevelt, help to keep the Democratic party in power and make Wilsonism endure!

It is inconceivable that any true follower of Theodore Roosevelt will hearken to such a preposterous appeal.

WITH WILSON IN THE FIGHT
REPUBLICANS ARE ELATED

Look Upon It As Last Desperate Attempt to Avert Landing to Harding and Coolidge.

Republicans in Congress are elated over the prospect, as announced by Democratic leaders, of injecting President Wilson into the campaign in the hope that he may stem the swiftly-rising tide of Democratic defeat.

Both the president and his pet league of nations covenant have become so unpopular, as evidenced by the vote against them in Georgia, that his active participation in the fight for a pact which he has declared will do more than anything else could do to keep us out of war will complete the impending overthrow of his own party.

Hannis Taylor, former minister to Spain, and one of the leading authorities on the Constitution, says:

"The leaders at San Francisco who fancied they had finally disposed of Mr. Wilson's ambitions and intrigues for a third term, now perceive that they entirely underestimated his resources. In Bulwer's play of 'Richieu' the crafty old Cardinal at a critical moment, when he was about to be swept out of place and power, turned to Joseph and said that the time had arrived when 'we must piece out the lion's skin with the fox's.' At just such a moment Mr. Wilson, with consummate boldness and craft, has baffled his adversaries in the same way by seizing upon the ostensible nominee and making of him his abject vassal and mouthpiece. The iron-bound terms of the oath of fealty were reduced to writing, registered and proclaimed to the people on that fatal Sunday morning before the guardians of Governor Cox could save him from the 'shirt of Nessus' now firmly fixed upon him. Cold must be the heart that has witnessed without pity his desperate effort to escape from such a situation through the ludicrous outcry just made in his speech of acceptance—I thank God I take up the stand Democracy a free man, unfettered by promise.

"If that be true, then, as a free man, he has solemnly pledged himself to drag us, as soon as he possibly can, into the whirlpool of European wars by a ratification of the unholy and anti-American Wilson Covenant which will force perpetual bond issues from the treasury, furnished already to the breaking point, and perpetual conscription of American youths to die upon foreign battlefields in causes not their own. The time has arrived when all American patriots regardless of party—men and women, father and mother—must stand together for the protection of their firesides against such a deadly menace designed by Mr. Wilson and now promoted by Mr. Cox."

Taylor continues:
"Worn out by the excesses and illegalities of the political dictatorship, constructed upon the ruins of the Presidency through a complicated network of war statutes entirely applicable to a state of emergency, the American people now demand the immediate repeal of the same. They perfectly understand that the real motive for the absurd prolongation of a technical state of war, for years after it has ceased to exist in fact, is to enable the Executive Power to perform many abnormal acts, under the cover of war statutes, manifestly illegal in time of peace. They resent the grave and scandalous assaults upon the sacred writ of habeas corpus made by the Executive Power; the harsh enforcement of un-American sedition laws generally regarded by all calm and non-partisan jurists as unconstitutional; the many violent and indefensible encroachments that have been made upon our system of representative government, and upon the right of freedom of speech. By such unbearable conditions, which are rapidly undermining our entire fabric of 'constitutional morality,' we are demoralized that the time has arrived for us to advance by falling back. Let us return to the faith of our fathers; let us re-establish the constitution as they made it."

American Red Cross Announces Budget of $48,200,000
For Current Year.

NEW DISASTER RELIEF PLAN

Continuance of Heavy Work Abroad Deemed Necessary to Protect United States—$21,000,000
Less Than Last Year.

A program of relief and service toward which appropriations of $48,200,000 have been made has been outlined for the American Red Cross for the fiscal year, July 1, 1920, to July 1, 1921, according to official announcement by national headquarters of the organization at Washington. The figures for 1920-21 are $21,000,000 below those of 1919-20, in which $69,400,000 was spent.

Important among the items of the budget for the present year is the appropriation of $31,500,000 for relief in foreign lands, which includes $11,000,000 in purchased supplies on hand and not distributed.

Must Protect United States.

This will enable the American Red Cross to continue its humanitarian effort to aid stricken peoples to re-establish themselves, to fight the disease epidemics which threaten many countries and to efface largely the remaining traces of the blight left by the World War. It is regarded as social as well as physical sanitation on a large scale that will have a direct bearing on future conditions in America.

Central Europe, the chief sufferer from the conflict, today is facing another winter of famine, pestilence and ruin. Typhus decreased much during the summer months where last winter it had its greatest stronghold, but physicians who investigated the situation at the behest of the League of Red Cross Societies have given their unqualified opinion that this coming winter will see a recurrence on an unprecedented scale. The Red Cross feels it must continue preventive measures abroad to keep this and other deadly maladies from the United States.

Millions for Work at Home.

When the disaster was sweeping Central Europe last winter the American Red Cross, with the aid of the governments of afflicted nations, undertook the fight against it. Hospitals were established wherever possible and food and clothing were distributed to the undernourished populations, who by reason of their undernourishment were easy prey to the epidemics. Where disorganization contributed last year to the great inroads made by the disease, by virtue of its knowledge of the disease and the presence of well established hospital centers, the American Red Cross this year will undertake the work with a new confidence.

Including the total of $11,000,000 in supplies left from the last fiscal year, the $31,500,000 is $20,000,000 less than the expenditures for 1919-20.

Appropriations for domestic activities total $10,700,000.

The largest item of this "home" budget is $7,500,000 for civilian relief work. This includes service and assistance for families of soldiers, sailors and marines, and work incidental to disaster. Of the total appropriation for civilian relief, $5,000,000 is held in reserve for the carrying out of actual disaster relief.

Reduced Overhead Expenses.

The Red Cross invariably is the first thought of a community visited by calamity. With this in mind, it was determined by the Executive Committee in preparing the budget of 1919-20 to have a fixed reserve fund from which to draw in these instances.

For assistance to soldiers, sailors and marines in hospitals and in camps this year $1,800,000 has been set aside. Four million two hundred thousand dollars has been appropriated for improvement of health and prevention of disease throughout the United States during the current twelve months. The Red Cross is co-operating fully with the United States Health Service in this work and through its Junior Red Cross is doing much to spread among children the principles of sanitation. An appropriation of $1,000,000 has been made for developing the peace time program of the Red Cross by service to its chapters in all regions.

The appropriation of $48,200,000 is exclusive of the local expenditures at the $3,000 or more chapters. Administration expenses this year will be $1,800,000. Last year they were $2,300,000.

REGISTRATION HOURS 9 TO 9

October 9 and 12 Added Days. With Revision Day the 19th of October

The official announcement of the Board of Supervisors of Elections for Garrett county pertaining to the registration of voters which began on Tuesday of this week, appears elsewhere in today's Republican. This notice is of unusual importance because, by an act of the special session of the Legislature which closed on Wednesday night of last week, two more days for registration have been added—October 9th and 12th. "Revision Day" will be October 19th instead of October 12th, as previously announced by the Supervisors.

The hours of registration under the recent act have also been changed and will be as follows: From 9 o'clock A. M. until 9 o'clock P. M. Under the original act the hours were from 8 A. M. until 6 P. M. This change of hours of registration will prove of greatest convenience to many voters, affording them an opportunity to register after the evening meal.

In some sections of the county the impression prevails that only upon certain of the days set for registration can the women enroll. This impression is wholly erroneous. Women as well as men may register upon any of the four days set forth in the notice issued by the supervisors, these days being Tuesday, Sept. 28th; Tuesday, Oct. 5th; Saturday, October 9th, and Tuesday, October 12th.

Another matter upon which the women seem to be at sea is that should they affiliate upon registering with either of the great parties, then they are morally bound to support the candidates of their party affiliation at the regular elections which are to follow. In order to participate in any primary election voters must be registered as belonging to the party in whose primaries they offer to vote, and unless they are recorded as members of that particular party then and in that case they are prohibited from doing so, but they should upon appearing before the Boards of Registry affiliate with either one or the other of the great parties, which, however, does not bind them to support the candidates of the party with which they are affiliated.

Adams and children, Mrs. Will Shaffer and children, of Rowlesburg; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Price and children, of Amblersburg; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sowers and children, of Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Zimmerman and children, of Deer Park, all being members of the Shaffer family, while a large number of others, not family connections, were also present.

GARRETT COUNTY FAIR WILL CONTINUE OPEN SATURDAY

Attractions Held Up By Railroads and Did Not Arrive Until Last Night

By reason of the fact that the attractions of the Garrett County Fair were held up on account of congestion of freight on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and did not arrive in Oakland until late last evening, the management of the Fair Association has decided to continue the exhibit one day longer than the original intention, hence the Fair with added attractions, will be open today, Friday and Saturday.

H. W. McCOMAS, President.

The Garrett County Fair opened on schedule time Tuesday morning with a larger variety of exhibits than had been expected by the management in many of the departments. Especially is this true in the grain and women's department.

The opening of the Fair, however, was inauspicious, because there was no hurdy-rurdy, no ferris wheel, few barkers in front of the stands which go with all fairs on account of the fact that the carnival's tents, the ferris wheel, merry-go-round and other equipment had been delayed en route from Patterson, N. J., and did not arrive in Oakland until after six o'clock yesterday evening, although the three cars containing the carnival's outfit had been forwarded from the New Jersey city Sunday at noon.

President McComas, of the Fair Association, has announced in the above boxed-in statement that owing to this condition of affairs the exhibit will continue one day longer, so all those who have failed to visit the Fair up to this time will have an opportunity to see and enjoy everything Friday and Saturday.

The carnival people, as soon as their paraphernalia arrived in the local freight yards got busy and working all night unloading, hauling and erecting their tents and attractions and would have had nearly everything in readiness upon the opening of the gates this morning had the rain, which started falling about midnight, not interfered. With the brightening up of the skies at 6 o'clock this morning and the cessation of the rain, the work of erecting the carnival was resumed and everything will be good shape by evening.

Yesterday the automobile parade was held. Many handsomely decorated cars were in line which were judged and the awards made as follows:

First prize, Mrs. E. Z. T. Ford; 2nd, Miss Louise Harned; 3rd, Mr. C. F. Hammond; for most uniquely decorated car, Mr. George Wiley; best decorated Ford car, Mrs. T. W. Casteel. The music during the fair is being furnished by the Meyersdale band and the Oakland Municipal band. Both organizations are giving excellent satisfaction and are entertaining the crowds in attendance.

Grantsville Community Fair. The Republican has been disappointed in receiving a report of the awards and the exhibits made at the Grantsville Community Fair last Thursday and Friday. As soon as this report is received we shall publish the same.

The fair was a success viewed from every angle and those in attendance state that the exhibits were superior, especially the live stock, to fairs of larger proportions and greater pretensions.

LIQUOR SEIZED SUNDAY

Several Cases of Bonded Goods Taken In Charge by State's Officers.

Considerable excitement was occasioned Sunday afternoon when it became known by a number of Oakland people that the Sheriff was about to seize a number of cases of liquor at the barn of Jonas Harvey, located on his farm near Sand Flat, and as a result of such knowledge it is alleged that instead of the Sheriff obtaining possession of some twenty-five cases of whiskey he succeeded in getting but five cases, the balance having mysteriously disappeared before he or his deputy had arrived at the place where the liquor had been stored.

From information gained from a source that is deemed trustworthy, it is alleged that a truck bearing a Pennsylvania state license drove up to the barn of Harvey Sunday shortly after noon and without the knowledge of Harvey, so he states, unloaded the whiskey and came on into town to have some repairs made to his machine before starting back to his home State. In the meantime, however, the facts concerning the location of the illicit goods was communicated to the officers in Oakland.

W. D. Casteel, in the absence of Sheriff Winters, started, in company with several other parties for the Harvey barn about six o'clock. Sheriff Winters arrived at his office about the same hour and becoming acquainted with the status of affairs also started for the Harvey farm, arriving there very shortly after his deputy appeared upon the scene. But five cases of wet goods were found in the building when the officers made their search and these cases were loaded by the sheriff in a car and brought to Oakland and are still in the custody of that officer.

The driver of the truck placing the whiskey in the barn did not again appear and probably will not, as it is the general opinion of the public that the liquor had been purchased and the place of delivery agreed upon between the driver of the Pennsylvania machine and local bootleggers, which may also account for the discrepancy of the amount of liquor unloaded in the barn and the number of cases captured by the officers.

State's Attorney Offutt has declared that if the guilt of anyone connected in any way with the unlawful procedure can be found he will endeavor to invoke the full penalty of both the local and Federal statutes.

Since Sunday's fiasco the town is apparently as dry as Sahara, notwithstanding the fact that large crowds have been here since Tuesday attending the Garrett County Fair.

WOMEN FLOCK TO REGISTER

Tuesday Was Busy Day In The Various Registration Offices of County

Tuesday was the first day in the history of Maryland which, as a Colony and later a State, extends over a period of nearly three hundred years, when women had the same right as men to register as legal qualified voters in all elections hereafter to be held under the laws of the land, and they exercised that right to an extent that was surprising not only to themselves but also to those of the sterner sex who in many instances gave expression to their belief that not one in a dozen women would grasp the opportunity to become voters.

From nine o'clock on Tuesday morning, at which hour the registration offices were thrown open, until nine o'clock in the evening, the rooms were crowded with women, who, in many cases, were accompanied by their husbands or by their sons.

In District No. 7 the first woman to register was Mrs. Willey H. Friend, while in the Fourteenth District the first to register was Mrs. H. A. Lora-ditch, followed by Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell and Mrs. Leah H. Sincell, wife and mother, respectively, of the editor of The Republican.

In all other districts the registrars were kept pretty busy throughout the day and evening, so the report comes to Oakland, with the likelihood of more than two thousand additional voters will be added to the registration lists of the several districts, which will mean that in those districts where the total registration reaches over 800 additional voting places will have to be provided by the Board of Supervisors of Elections. The districts where these additional polling places will likely be established are in Nos. 2, 3, 7, 13 and 14. The registration books for these districts will be transcribed the surnames of voters beginning with the letter N and including those of the letter Z will be placed upon one book, while the present books for the other voters from A to M inclusive, will be used for this year's voting at least. The additional polling places in the districts where such have to be provided will be located as near the present polling place as possible so that the voters may be accommodated with as little trouble to them as possible.

Of the four districts in the county from which The Republican has received full returns of Tuesday's registration, these districts being Nos. 5, 7, 10 and 14, the Republicans have a large majority. The figures available being as follows:

	Dem.	Rep.	Rep. Dem.
No. 5	6	36	1
No. 7	56	116	4
No. 10	8	60	1
No. 14	50	107	2

In District No. 7 two women declined to state their party affiliation.

The next registration day will be on Tuesday of next week, followed by another on Saturday, October 9th, and the final day for enrolling will be on Tuesday, October 12th. Tuesday, the 10 of October, the registrars will have their final sitting, but upon this day no one may register, it being set apart as the day upon which the officers are supposed to revise their books.

SENATOR HARDING GUARANTEES FAIR DEAL FOR FARMER

Declares Definite National Agricultural Policy Is Vital to Country's Welfare.

WOULD PUT END TO PRICE FIXING OF FARM PRODUCTS

In Address Before Minnesota State Fair Republican Nominee Shows Profound Understanding of Farming and Its Problems.

Minneapolis, (Special).—"The time has come when, as a nation, we must determine upon a definite agricultural policy. We must decide whether we shall undertake to make of the United States a self-sustaining nation—which means that we shall grow within our own boundaries all of the staple food products needed to maintain the highest type of civilization—or whether we shall continue to exploit our agricultural resources for the benefit of our industrial and commercial life, and to leave to posterity the task of finding food enough, by strange and methods, if necessary, to support the coming generations of millions."

"I believe in the self-sustaining, independent, self-reliant nation, agriculturally, industrially and politically. We are then the guarantors of our own security and are equal to the task."

So declared Senator Harding in a masterly address before the Minnesota State Fair here, in which he revealed a most profound understanding of agriculture, its problems and its relation to the farmer and the consumer in the cities. This speech has been described as the greatest speech on agriculture which has ever been made by a Presidential candidate.

Among other things he said: "A good many years ago a Chinese philosopher uttered a profound truth when he said: 'The well-being of a people is like a tree; agriculture is its root, manufacture and commerce are its branches and its life; if the root is injured the leaves fall, the branches break and the tree dies.'"

Cause for Concern. "It may seem strange to many good people that at this particular time any one should quote this saying of a wise old Chinese. Never in all our history have prices of farm products ruled so high, measured in dollars, as during the past four years. Farm land in the great surplus-producing states has advanced to unheard of prices, with every indication that it would go still higher. Apparently the farmers of the land are enjoying unprecedented prosperity. Why, then, even by implication, suggest that something may be wrong with our agriculture, and that the trouble may be communicated to our manufactures and commerce? People in the cities are disposed to think that if there is anything wrong it is in the cities where food is selling at such high prices, and not in the country where the food is produced. But both farm and city students of national problems see in the present agricultural situation certain conditions which give cause for real concern to every lover of his country."

He then referred in a most interesting way to the development of the great central west and sketched briefly the settlement of the great central valleys, as follows:

"Through the homestead law the government gave a farm of the richest land in the world to every man who wanted one. Railroads were built, the prairies were plowed up, and the agricultural production of the United States increased by 50 per cent. Grains were produced and sold at the bare cost. The great central west was smothered by this flood of cheap grain. The only thing that could be done with this surplus abundance of food was to build cities out of it. And great cities we did build, not only in the United States, but across the world. The hard conditions which came upon the farmers of the central west as a result of their overproduction, and when of the gradual improvement which began about 1905, when the increased population in the cities began to catch up with farm production, and how this increased demand for food was accelerated by the great World War."

Speaking of the part played by the farmer during the war, he said:

Splendid Part of Farmer.

"The splendid part played by the farmers of the nation during the war probably never will be understood or fully appreciated by our people. More than 25 per cent of all our fighting men came from the farms, and after sending their sons to the camps, the fathers and mothers, with the help of the younger children, turned to and produced more food than was ever before produced in the history of the world in the same time and from the same area of land. Their working days were measured not by the clock, but by the number of daylight hours. They took to themselves the responsibility of feeding not only our own people, but also our allies across the sea. In more ways than one, our farmers made the war their war, and counted no sacrifice too great to help fight it through to a successful finish. The story of what they did, written by some one who understands it, will furnish one of the most glorious chapters in American history. One thing I may say—in every American conflict, from the revolution for independence to the world war for maintained rights, the farmer has been 100 per cent American and ready for every sacrifice."

He then pointed out some of the unfortunate results in agriculture, growing out of war conditions, especially the premium put on grain growing at the expense of livestock production. He referred to the heavy losses suffered by many livestock producers and feeders, and pointed out the urgent need of restoring the balance between livestock and grain production as quickly as possible. On this subject he said:

"For two outstanding reasons the maintenance of a normal balance between livestock and grain production is a matter of national concern. One is that we are a meat-eating people, and should have a fairly uniform supply at a reasonable price. Conditions which either greatly stimulate or greatly discourage livestock production result in prices altogether too high for the average consuming public or altogether too low for the producer. The other is that the over-stimulation of grain production depletes the fertility of our land, which is our greatest national asset, and results in a greater supply than can be consumed at a price profitable to the producer, and finally to widespread agricultural distress from which all of our people suffer."

Speaking of the trend of prices of farm products during the next two or three years, he said that no one could forecast them with any accuracy. That as a nation we are undergoing the same experience that the individual undergoes when recovering from a long and dangerous illness. And then he made this significant statement:

"It must be evident, however, to any one who has given the matter even superficial consideration, that we have now come to the end of the long period of agricultural exploitation in the United States. No longer are there great and easy and awailing areas of fertile land awaiting the land hungry. We have now under the plow practically all of our easily-tillable land, though idle areas await reclamation and development by that genius and determination which ever have made nature respond to human needs. Additions of consequence, which we may make to our farming area, from this time on, must come by putting water on the dry lands of the arid and semi-arid country, or by taking water out of the swamp lands, of which we have large areas in some sections, or by digging the stumps out of the cut-over timber lands of the north and south."

Other Alternative an Unhappy One.

"If we should unhappily choose the course of industrial and commercial promotion at the expense of agriculture, cities will continue to grow at the expense of the rural community, agriculture will inevitably break down and finally destroy the finest rural civilization, with the greatest possibilities the world has ever seen. Decreased farm production will make dear food and we shall be obliged to send our ships to far-away nations in search of cheap foodstuffs, the importation of which is sure to intensify agricultural discouragement and distress at home."

"If, on the other hand, we shall determine to build up here a self-sustaining nation—and what lover of his country can make a different choice?—then we must at once set about the development of a system of agriculture which will enable us to feed our people abundantly, with some spare for export in years of plenty, and at prices which will insure to the farmer and his family both financial rewards and educational, social and religious living conditions fairly comparable to those offered by the cities. The system of agriculture can not be maintained on any other basis. Anything short of a fair return upon invested capital will result in a steady loss of land which goes into the crops, and enough in addition to enable the farmer to maintain the fertility of his soil, and insure against natural hazards, will drive large numbers of farmers to the cities."

Senator Harding made it perfectly clear that this is a problem in which city people have just as much interest as the farmer. That unless we can work out a rational and fair agricultural policy, the drift to the city will continue and our trouble will grow constantly worse.

Speaking of farm organizations, he said that the farm organization of the present day is quite different from the organization of the past; that farmers have learned sound principles of organization; that they are studying their work the methods which business men and working men have found successful in furthering their own interests. He referred especially to the successful organizations established by the fruit growers of the west and by the grain growers of the northwest, and said that the farmers of the central states are also rapidly perfecting the most powerful organization of farmers ever known in the country. He pointed out that the very best thing that would come to the nation if the problems of the farmer were not frankly recognized, and if the farmer was not given absolutely fair treatment.

He said we have witnessed restriction of production of manufactures and of labor, but we have not yet experienced the intentionally restricted production of foodstuffs, and expressed the hope that we never may have that experience.

While frankly recognizing the need of a national agricultural policy, he disclaimed any intention of suggesting that the government should work out an elaborate system of agriculture and then try to impose it on the farmers of the country. He denounced such an effort as utterly repugnant to American ideals. He said that government paternalism, whether applied to agriculture or to any other of our great national industries, would stifle initiative, impair efficiency, lessen production and make us a nation of dependent incompetents. He said the farmer requires no special favors at the hands of the government. All he needs is a fair chance and such just consideration for agriculture as we ought to give to a basic industry, and ever seek to promote for our common good.

Senator Harding then spoke of the definite policies to which the Republican party is committed, and which he is a candidate, endorse.

Farm Representation.

First.—The need of farm representation in larger governmental affairs is recognized. During the past seven years the right of agriculture to a voice in governmental administration has been practically ignored, and at times the farmer has suffered grievously as a result. The farmer has a vital interest in our trade relations with other countries, in the administration of our financial policies and in many of the larger activities of the government.

Second.—The right of farmers to form co-operative associations for the marketing of their products must be granted. The parasite in distribution who preys on both producer and consumer must no longer sap the vitality of this fundamental life.

Scientific Study.

Third.—The Republican party pledges itself to a scientific study of agricultural prices and farm production costs, both at home and abroad, with a view to reducing the frequency of abnormal fluctuations here. Stabilization will contribute to everybody's confidence. Farmers have complained bitterly of the frequent and violent fluctuations in prices of farm products, and especially in prices of live stock. They do not find such fluctuations in the products of other industries. In a general way prices of farm products must go up or down, according to whether there is a plentiful crop or a short one. The farmer's raw materials are the fertility of the soil, the sunshine and the rain, and the size of his crops is measured by the supply of these raw materials and the skill with which he makes use of them. He cannot control his production and adjust it to the demand as can the manufacturer. But he can see no good reason why the prices of his products should fluctuate so violently from week to week and sometimes from day to day.

To Stop Price Fixing. Fourth.—We promise to put an end to unnecessary price fixing of farm products and to ill considered efforts arbitrarily to reduce farm product prices.

Government drives against food prices such as we have experienced during the past two years are vain and useless. The ostensible purpose of such drives is to reduce the price the consumer pays for food. The actual result is unjustly to depress for a time the price the farmer receives for his grain and live stock, but with no appreciable reduction in the price the consumer pays. Such drives simply give the speculator and the profiteer additional opportunities to add to their exactions.

Fifth.—We favor the administration of the farm loan act so as to help man who farm to secure farms of their own and to give to them long time credits, needed to practice the best methods of diversified farming.

We also favor the authorization of associations to provide the necessary machinery to furnish personal credit to the man, whether land owner or tenant, who is hampered for lack of working capital. Unfortunately, as land increases in value, many farmers are losing their farms.

An Increasing Evil.

This has been true throughout history. At the present time probably one-half of the high priced land in the corn belt states is farmed by men who, because of lack of capital, find it necessary to rent. This increase in tenancy brings with it evils which are a real menace to national welfare. The tenant who lacks sufficient working capital and who too often is working under a short time lease is forced to farm the land to the hilt and rob it of its fertility in order to pay the rent. Amid such conditions we have inefficient schools, broken down churches and a sadly limited social life. We should therefore concern ourselves not only in helping men to secure farms of their own and in helping the tenant secure the working capital he needs to carry on the best methods of diversified farming, but we should work out a system of land leasing which, while doing full justice to both landlord and tenant, will at the same time conserve the fertility of the soil.

Transportation Systems.

Sixth.—We do not longer recognize the right to speculative profit in the operation of our transportation systems, but we are pledged to regulate them to the highest state of efficiency as quickly as possible. Agriculture has suffered more severely than any other industry through the inefficient railroad service of the last two years. Many farmers have incurred disastrous losses through inability to market their grain and live stock. Such a condition must not be permitted to continue. We must bring about conditions which will give us prompt service at the lowest possible rates.

Seventh.—We are pledged to the revision of the tariff as soon as conditions shall make it necessary for the preservation of the home market for American labor, American agriculture and American industry. If we are to build up a self-sustaining agriculture here at home the farmer must be protected from unfair competition from those countries where agriculture is still being exploited and where the standards of living on the farm are much lower than here. We have asked for higher American standards; let us maintain them.

So, look an American can produce the foods we need I am in favor of buying from American first.

Fewer Land Hogs.

Under a sound system of agriculture, fostered and safeguarded by wise and fair administration of state and federal government, the farmers of the United States can feed our people for many centuries—perhaps indefinitely. Farming is not an auxiliary; it is the main plant, and geared with it, inseparably, is every wheel of transportation and industry. America could not go on with a dissatisfied farming people, and no nation is secure where land is not well farmed.

hops, with men and more fat hogs for him and bacon. We need less legislation in cultivating a quinquennial crop of votes and more intelligence for farming as our basic industry. We need less appeal to class consciousness and more resolute intelligence in promptly solving our problems. We need rest and recuperation for a soil which has been worked out in agricultural and commercial life. We need less in the inviting fields of mutual understanding. We need less of grief about the ills which we may charge to the neglect of our citizenship and confidence in just government, along with determination to make and hold it just.

Stop Buying Gas and Start Buying Mileage

Buying a car that thirsts more than it travels is like hiring a cook who eats more than she earns.

And there are far too many cooks and cars that answer to that description.

What you want is a car that doesn't have to stop at every gasoline tank for refreshment.

And that is the achievement of the Overland with its Suspension Triplex Spring and light alloy steels.

It has solved one of the most perplexing riddles of automobile design.

It has lengthened the mileage of a gallon of gas by burning up distance instead of burning up money.

It has reconciled light alloy steels with unalloyed comfort and set luxury and economy on the road together.

And yet, great as it is, the Suspension Triplex Spring is only one of many Overland advantages.

The world regards it as a new epoch in automobile construction, and it is.

But enthusiasm for this marvelous mechanism should not obscure the solid claims of Overland quality.

Light alloy steels and the Suspension Triplex Spring are the mainspring of Overland economy.

But quality still plays the role of Hamlet in the drama of Overland production.

Quality in the steels, selected at the source, checked in the rolling, and inspected at the plant.

Quality in the various parts, built by Overland themselves, and not billed to Overland by others!

Quality in every process of manufacture and assembling, done by Overland and not by proxy.

Quality animating the labors of the entire Overland organization and producing—

A LIGHT-WEIGHT, LOW-PRICED, EASY-RIDING, SLOW-BURNING, MILE-EATING PIECE OF MECHANISM, COSTING LITTLE TO BUY, AND MIGHTY LITTLE TO RUN!

In winning the Los Angeles-Yosemite Valley Test, the Overland Touring Car gave 35 miles per gallon—The Overland Sedan gave 27 miles per gallon.

EATS UP MILEAGE BUT HAS A POOR APPETITE FOR GAS!

WHY EVERY WOMAN SHOULD VOTE.

By Mary Fennimore Shepherd.

A woman should vote, first, because the great and sacred Nineteenth Amendment is a part of the Constitution of the United States, and it is the call of the country to duty.

Because the love of country is a most lofty virtue, and she must carry on promptly and faithfully that which is second only to religion in importance.

Because the character, morality and interest of her country, which is controlled by the use of the ballot, should be the noblest motive of every woman's life.

Because women in almost every country in the world are voting, and the women of the United States, who are recognized as the most intelligent women in the world, have now the opportunity of the most dignified way of influencing public affairs and compelling better laws and better enforcement of laws for the protection of the country and its inhabitants in all political movements for human advancement.

Because the United States is in need of an intelligent election, and equal suffrage will greatly increase the number of educated voters.

All schools graduate more girls than boys, and women form a minority of all criminal classes.

Because women with the ballot can demand protective legislation for children and the home.

Judge Lindsay says that Colorado would never have had its advanced laws for the care and protection of the home and children had it not been for the powerful influence of the women in the use of the ballot.

Now, it is the duty of every woman, as far as it is in her power, to acquaint herself with the political machinery of government and learn how her vote can bring about the most effective political reform.

Because her vote can help in the elimination of commercialized vice.

Because her vote can help bring better conditions for the millions of women engaged in industry in the United States that are controlled by legislation that does not consider their point of view and whose working hours range from nine to twelve hours a day; often have made for themselves in 20 States an eight-hour working day, but the only consideration accorded working women is in States where women vote.

Because her vote can help the more than 2,000,000 children under the age of 12 years who are working in the United States and who should be in the schoolrooms and playgrounds.

She can compel Congress to appropriate some of the millions that are spent on pigs and helterisks for decreasing the death rate of infants in the United States, which, during the war, exceeded the death rate of the American expatriation force in France—because the Government makes no provision for her poor.

Because her vote can help the 10,000,000 little children in her country who are not provided with schools and competent teachers.

Because her vote can help blot out for the next generation the fact that out of every 100 adults in the United States army 25 were too illiterate for intelligent reasoning. Our country would not be in such tumult were it not for this fact.

Education is the product of religion; religion is the product of civilization, and civilization is the basis of government.

Maryland needs the vote of her women.

The Educational Index Record, made public by the Russell Sage Foundation, reports that the greatest falling off in relative educational standing is in Maryland.

Maryland ranks 37 counts from the top, 9 counts below the Canal Zone and 12 counts below Hawaii.

No longer must the women of the Eastern States be classed as bounded on the north by her ailments, on the east by criticism, on the south by tradition and on the west by fear; and while many women did not do their share in bringing about great political reform, let her show appreciation by performing her duty, by casting her ballot, not all for party and nothing for people, not all for policy and nothing for principle, but help in making her country one that the world may always gaze upon with admiration.

MEUSE-ARGONNE

September 26—November 11, 1918

Gen. John J. Pershing, Commander of the A. E. F., contributed the following to the American Legion Weekly upon the second anniversary of the battle of the Argonne, in which so many Garretts County soldiers were engaged and where many paid the price in full:

Two years ago an American army was deployed in the devastated region near Verdun to initiate the decisive battle of the World War. The task and the ordeal confronting our soldiers exceeded all past experiences in our history. The fate of the world hung in the balance. Through forty-seven days they maintained the battle until the enemy was completely defeated. To the fortitude, gallantry and devoted patriotism of those men, we owe the victory. Our dead and broken would be discharged in full their duty to mankind and left a greater obligation to the living. Let us celebrate this anniversary with renewed resolution to do our whole part as citizens of our great country.

JOHN J. PERSHING.

INSULTING THE PEOPLE.

Mr. Cox asserts that he believes in the American people. Yet he continues to assert that the American people can be bought.

In a signed statement he declares that Senator Harding is a man whose character and record entitle him to high respect. Yet he affects to believe that Mr. Harding would consent to allow the Presidency of the United States to be purchased for him.

Mr. Cox's talk about buying the Presidency is obviously insincere. It cannot be sincere. He has long been a politician. As such he knows, as well as any man knows, that campaign funds are necessary. He knows that his own managers are frantically trying to raise a campaign fund in his behalf.

And his charge that the Republican campaign funds—merely because he is Republican and not Democratic—is intended as bribe money is not only a stupid perversion of the truth—it is an insult to the people of the United States.

Mr. Cox and his backers have been given the fullest opportunity to prove his assertion. Not only have they been unable to prove anything either wrongful or illegitimate about the Republican campaign fund, but they have utterly failed to show that the amount is to be $15,000,000 or anything like that amount.

What has been shown is that the Republican managers are giving all the people an opportunity to contribute to the campaign fund—in small amounts. Never in the history that it is in the interest of the people of this country has a method of raising money been employed that is so much in the spirit of democracy.

The man or woman who believes in getting rid of Wilsonism can subscribe. Nothing has been, is or will be done to coerce him to subscribe. No promises have been made. No threats have been uttered.

No corruption has been practiced. None will be tolerated.

SHE SHUNS "WAI" LEAGUE.

Recently the New York Evening Sun published the views of a mother—a mother of two boys who lost their lives in Europe—on the Wilson League of Nations. Her letter follows:

To the Editor of the Evening Sun:—

Sir: As a mother and a Christian all my life I have been against having this country of ours joining any League of Nations. Her letter follows:

Perplexed can never have known mother love or the warmth of bringing up children or she would not be in doubt.

I have already lost two boys of my family in this awful war, and, like the child that burns its hand, I do not want to try the fire again.

I say, keep out of the League of Nations. We have a glorious nation and now let us keep it and protect it. It is the only nation in the world to live in and will always be ready to take up any fight for humanity of which its people really approve.

MRS. G. WILLIAMS.

SPEAKING OF COX'S CAMPAIGN.

What has been the effect of such conduct? Two results have been observed: 1. Deep resentment among Republicans everywhere that will take them to the polls early in election day; 2. Marked decrease in friendliness for Cox in influential newspapers over the country that accepted his charges as true and now find themselves painfully embarrassed by lack of proof.

A tolerant people may be chagrined to find Governor Cox in a sense proud of a thinker or student of fundamental political principles; but it has another emotion when the character of American citizenship as a whole is slandered by the assumption that the Presidency of the Republic can be purchased.

FACTS OF HISTORY'S GREATEST WASTE.

The World War cost the United States $20,000,000,000. Besides the $10,000,000,000 loaned to the Allies. That is $20 plus $100 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

England mobilized 7,500,000 men to our 4,000,000; France, 7,500,000, and Italy, 5,500,000. Each of the three nations was in the war much longer than the United States.

Our average daily expenditure for each man under arms was four times that of England; six times that of France, and nearly ten times that of Italy. This, even though, through two years of watching, we knew of the Allies' mistakes.

One reason stands out in a lurid light. It is this: The production of war munitions was so mismanaged in the United States that supplies were not available for our troops. We were forced to buy equipment from our allies, thus duplicating the expense.

We tried to build, all told, 20,000 pieces of artillery and to provide for these munitions at a cost of $1,000,000,000. We produced nothing that got into the fight except a few 75-millimeter shells and 72 tanks, which appear to have been a part of pre-war production.

We ordered $21,000,000 worth of ambulance harness; and then found that all our ambulances were motorized.

We paid to construct army training camps, $1,200,000,000. Of this, there was easily wasted 40 per cent., or $480,000,000.

When in August, 1918, General Pershing gave the order to attack, our army had no tanks. On August 30, 1918, two battalions of French tanks came to help our army, but they were grossly inadequate. How many American graves in the Meuse-Argonne forest are there because the American army had no tanks to aid in the fight? Who knows?

If given complete, the record of democracy in the World War is staggered, the imagination is dumbfound the understanding. There is nothing like it in government since government began.

Yet, in the face of this record, the Democratic party has the embalmment impudence to call upon the nation to retain it in power and to enable it to continue the mere alias of "Cox and Roosevelt," to perpetuate, as far as it lies, the devastating policies and practices of Woodrow Wilson's administration.

Four years ago the Democratic leaders found a wealth of significance in the small September Republican plurality in Maine, but this year they pretend to believe that the unprecedented Republican landslide in the Pine Tree State is meaningless. It is fair to say, however, that they aren't really saying all they think.

When President Deschanel, of France, discovered that he was no longer physically or mentally fit to perform the duties of his great office, he resigned, showing an appreciation of the proprieties that is to be commended.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF OAKLAND ADDRESSES ITS CITIZEN

Statement of the Body Regarding the Electric Light Situation.

The following communication from the Mayor and Council of Oakland was handed The Republican yesterday morning by Councilman E. A. Shaffer, who requested its publication:

Oakland, Md., Sept. 29, 1920.

To the Citizens of the town of Oakland.

The Mayor and Town Council sometime ago, realizing the seriousness of the electric light situation, called a meeting of the citizens of the town to talk over the matter in order to secure their help in adjusting same.

The citizens of the above mentioned meeting appointed a committee to act with the Mayor and Town Council. At the suggestion of this committee, Messrs. Coll & Company, of Clarksburg, West Va., were employed to make estimates as follows:

Cost of installing and operating water power plant on Youghiogheny River about one mile north of Oakland:

Cost of installing and operating fuel oil plant:

Cost of installing and operating steam power plant:

Their estimates were as follows:

Water power, cost of installing, $81,000.00; operating cost per month, $300.00.

Fuel oil plant, cost of installing, $19,750.00; operating cost per month, $7,000.00.

Steam plant, cost of installing, $18,800.00; operating cost per month, $500.00.

The engineers stated that even at the above prices, it would be almost impossible to get delivery on necessary material within a reasonable time.

The engineers were also instructed to make a detailed estimate as to the value of the plant operated by the Oakland Electric Company. The total of this estimate, which was based on its sale value as second hand material did not include two steam engines, one gas engine, one generator and the lot and building, was $7,764.00. The above mentioned exceptions were not estimated on account of the fact that they could not be used in any of the proposed plants, except the lot and building, and they placed no estimate on their value on account of not being familiar with local property values.

It can be readily seen that the cost of either of the new plants makes them impracticable, not taking into consideration the delay that would be caused by not being able to secure material.

The final advice of the engineers was to buy the present equipment and secure a boiler and engine to run it with steam. They were asked to make an estimate of the cost of making the necessary changes, which was $5,100.

The final price agreed upon by the Oakland Electric Company for their total equipment, including the building, lot and other material not included by the engineers, is $11,000.00. The total amount required to take over the present system and put same into operating condition would therefore be $16,100.00. The estimated annual revenue of the plant, based on present rates, would be $10,000.00. The cost of operating, for the first year or two, will be about the same amount.

In regard to taking the matter of the present system running the plant up before the Public Service Commission, we have been advised by our attorney that this is impracticable, for the reason that it would very probably take considerable time, cost the town money, and in the meantime we would be without the lights. At the present time it is costing the town $200,000 per year to light the streets and approximately $600.00 to operate the pumps that supply the town with water. These amounts could be saved by the town owning its own plant, as electric motors could be induced to operate the pumps and the amount saved would more than pay the interest on the investment. It might be well to mention that while the Act authorizing the bond issue call for $50,000.00, it is not the intention of the Mayor and Town Council to use any more of this amount than is absolutely necessary to make such changes as will insure us light for the coming winter.

We have been notified by the Superintendent of the Northern Natural Gas Company that on and after November 1st they will be compelled to discontinue the furnishing of gas for commercial purposes. This will effect the closing down of our electric light plant, which makes it necessary that some action by the town authorities to insure lighting for the town after November 1st.

The Mayor and Town Council have thought it best to make the above tentative arrangements, subject to the decision of the qualified voters of the town of Oakland.

Very respectfully,
THOMAS A. GONTER, Mayor.
S. B. AROXHALT,
President of Council.

WALTER HARDESTY,
L. M. FRALEY,
H. P. SHUCK,
S. A. SHAFER,
LEE R. MASON,
Members Town Council.

The above communication from the Mayor and Council is published by The Republican without comment, except that in another column will be found a notice to the voters of Oakland that they will have the opportunity presented them on Monday, October 11th, to register at the polls their approval or disapproval of the proposition to either bond the town (amount unlimited up to $50,000) for the purpose of providing an adequate lighting system to be municipally owned and operated. We shall be glad to publish the views of all who desire to give publicity to their opinions upon this question which is a very vital one and concerns the future welfare and prosperity of the community.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

The people of the Park regret to lose Rev. C. E. Bissell as pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, which he has served very faithfully for the past two or three years, but at the same time they will welcome just as heartily the new pastor, who is expected within a few days.

Mr. C. E. Ammerman and family motored from Wilkinsburg, Pa., to the Park on Saturday where they were guests of relatives over Sunday.

Many of the cottagers have closed their summer homes here and returned to their winter places of residence in all parts of the country. While some are late going it is because they appreciate the fall season in the mountains which is the most beautiful of all the year.

Dr. Slutz has been away attending various conferences of the Methodist Episcopal church. Two weeks ago he was at the Ohio conference and last week he spent the days attending the sessions of the West Virginia conference at Moundsville.

the Baltimore and Ohio station by the erection of additional yardage to the platforms flanking the tracks of the company, will be appreciated by the traveling public, especially those who are compelled to alight from trains after nightfall, when they, as at the present time, must plod over the ends of cross-ties and loose ballast to reach the boardwalk.

Mrs. L. B. C. List and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth List, who reside in Washington, spent several days in the Park and at Oakland this week, when both of these ladies became legal voters of Maryland, by having their names enrolled upon the registration books of the county.

And this reminds one that almost without a single exception the voters of the Park have assumed their new duties as citizens of the state and are compelled to register so that at the November election they may be in position to help elect Harding for President, for his election is sure.

They will not forget Congressman Zihlman, either, for he has stood nobly for all things pertaining to the betterment of the human race during his years of service in the halls of Congress. He has been fair to those who opposed him in matters of legislation and at the same time has been honest with himself and those whom he represents. His candidacy appeals especially to the mothers of boys who were engaged in the late World War, for Mr. Zihlman by his every vote on war measures sought to provide the comforts of the boys thus engaged, and a mother, when the life and health of her boy is at stake, has a keen memory.

Contemplated improvements at the Park within the next year are various and will be upon an enlarged scale, provided things do not go awry next year as they did this. One of the great improvements under consideration is the erection of a swimming pool at the lakeside. This pool will be artificially heated and will provide excellent sport for all who have aquatic tendencies.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Murphy, who some time ago bought the late Major Burns' cottage at Mountain Lake Park, have named their house "Oak Rise." "White Oak," it seems had already been appropriated. Mrs. Elmer Murphy, who was born Patricia Egan, declares that of all the places she has visited both in Europe and the United States, she finds Mountain Lake Park the most delightful as a residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Fowler have named their house "Catherine Villa." Mr. Fowler is making several improvements, which will add much to the appearance of the part of the Park in which he lives.

The Mayor and Town Council Submits a Correction of the Statement Made by the Financial Obligations of the Town by the Advisory Committee on the Electric Light Situation Now Confronting the City.

To the Editor of The Republican. In pursuance of a request of the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland, I desire to correct the statement made by the committee in last week's issue of The Republican in so far as it relates to the financial condition of the town of Oakland.

The total amount of bonds outstanding and remaining unpaid is $3,800,000.00. Overdrafts $5,045.86.

Making a total indebtedness of $3,805,045.86.

The basis for real and personal property for the year 1920 is $1,114,270.00, at 75 cents on each one hundred dollars, makes $8,357.00; receipts from taxes on bank and corporation shares, intangible personal property, etc., for the year will be over $1,000; county levy for 1920, $1,000; licenses issued, delinquent water accounts, etc. (not including payments made by late collectors) collected for the year 1920 to date, $894.85; amount to be received from water for March, June and September quarters, 1920, $3,081.33; with an operating expense of about $1,800 for said three quarters; estimated receipts for the December quarter will be about $1,200.

This shows that the receipts will be greater than last year (see financial statement published March 1st, 1920), which was $18,474.41.

Respectfully submitted, A. G. ROSS, Clerk to the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland.

Knights of Pythias Notes of Interest. At the last regular meeting of Garrett Lodge held on Friday night, the rank of Esquire was conferred on a class of six.

There will be no work conferred at the next meeting of the lodge (tomorrow evening), but on Friday, October 8th, the rank of knight will be conferred on six Esquires. The work will be done in the amplified degree.

Last Friday evening Grand Chancellor J. C. Renninger paid a visit to Friendsville lodge, being accompanied by J. H. Loar, Walter Hardesty, High Pressure Stuck, Albert Kahl. A good time was had—the kind expected from good local Knights of Pythias, and that is the kind that linger about the town of Friendsville—noblemen, all.

It is proposed that on October 29th the rank of Page will be put on in Garrett Lodge No. 113 and all lodges in the county are expected to bring their candidates for this degree for initiation by the degree team of the local lodge. This promises to be an event in the history of Pythianism of Garrett county, as nothing like this has ever before been done in a Garrett county lodge or group of lodges. There will probably be seventy-five candidates at this meeting. Further particulars will be given at a later date.

We urge upon the brethren to attend lodge on October 8th as business of importance is to be transacted. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

A party of Knights of Pythias of Oakland visited the lodge at Friendsville last Friday evening where the Oakland members were entertained royally. Among those who went from here were Grand Chancellor Julius C. Renninger, H. P. Stuck, Walter Hardesty and several others whose names could not be learned.

Mr. Henry Lauer returned to his home in Oakland on Saturday night from Atlantic City where he had been a week attending the convention of master bakers of America. At this gathering several hundred men were present and problems confronting the employers in this branch of industry were discussed at length.

Oakland Junk Company will pay 50 cents cash for eggs, and 22 to 25 cents per pound for chicken.—Advertisement.

Tuesday morning the remains of Second Lieutenant Darwin Berry, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Berry, who died of pneumonia in France while the American forces were engaged in active warfare against the enemy, arrived at Terra Alta, his former home, where interment will be made this morning at eleven o'clock. The body was landed at Hokeok, N. Y., Monday and passed through Oakland on train No. 3 on Tuesday.

On Monday an automobile with a man and his family as occupants, going east on the pike, was wrecked just at the bottom of the hill Thores will beachy coal mine a mile or more from Grantsville. Fortunately none of the occupants were seriously injured, although it is stated that when the car left the road and turned over it was going at the rate of more than sixty miles an hour. The injured were taken to Grantsville, where their hurts were attended to and later they proceeded upon their journey eastward.

Senator Harvey J. Speicher of Accident, returned on Friday last from Annapolis, where he had been attending the special session of the General Assembly, coming on through to Oakland by motor and was accompanied by Senator Orlando Harrison, who took the train from this point to his home in the eastern portion of the State. This was Senator Harrison's first visit to Western Maryland and he expressed his delight with the trip overland and the great prosperity evident on all sides which is being enjoyed by the Garrett county people as a whole.

Rev. Dr. S. S. Adams, who was pastor for the past three years, preached his final sermon to that congregation last Sabbath morning and will immediately assume the pastorate of the Accident charge, which includes the churches at Accident, Friendsville and Cove. The charge at Red House is composed of three preaching points. Dr. Adams leaves the Red House congregation in splendid condition financially and otherwise. Recently half an acre of ground adjoining the church was secured upon which it is the intention of the church people to erect a modern parsonage.

Mr. W. T. Pope, of near Gorman, was in the city Tuesday on business.

TWO YEARS AGO

By Grantland Rice

Through the crowded streets where the arc lights burn, Or perhaps apart from the toiling lead, Once in a while old dreams return Of another life in another land; Old dreams of bugles and marching men Where a sergeant growls, "Fall in" again.

The world drifts by as I watch once more The doughboy slog through an old French town, With its shattered walls that are red with gore, Through its muddy streets as the rain beats down; Their grim young faces—rifle and pack— Hiking on to the next attack.

I see them now as the chow lines form Pal and buddy and fighting mate, Remains again for the next day's storm From the Hun barrage where the big guns wait; Where the muffled roar through the flaming night Has sent them word for the next day's fight.

Through St. Mihiel and the Argonne drifts, Waiting word for the next advance, As the mist rolls up and the gray fog lifts I can see them now in the woods of France, Knee-deep still in the muck and mire, Working their way through the tangled wire.

Ghosts in khaki—they linger still As each drifts by with the old platoon, Holding a dugout on some hill Where only machine gun bullets croon In the last big drive through the maw of hell.

That took Sedan as the curtain fell, There's a long trail that is winding back Through the battered towns with their mud and rain, Where the world has forgotten both man and pack.

In the older struggle for gold and gain; The world has forgotten—but now and then We dream that the bugle has blown again.

Is it only a dream when we hear once more The caissons rumble across the hills? When the howitzers bark with their ancient roar In the life that carried a thousand thrills?

Only a dream for the fallen mate Who sleeps where the wooden crosses wait.

Enough men to swing the Presidential election

No presidential candidate has ever beaten an opponent by a number of votes equal to the number of wearers of Blue Buckle Overalls—6,000,000 pairs worn a year

IT isn't brass bands or stump speaking that's made these millions of men think alike about overalls. It's the overalls themselves.

The first pair of Blue Buckle Overalls was made twelve years ago in an old deserted Virginia church.

Today, Blue Buckle Overalls are made in the largest, most up-to-date overall factory in the world. Millions of pairs are now turned out annually.

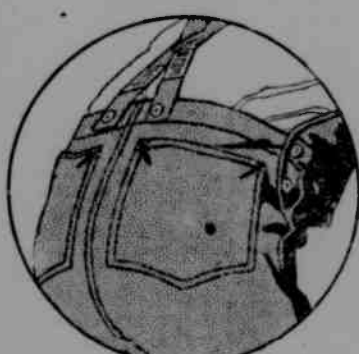

Every year more and more men have bought Blue Buckles for just one reason. And that reason is Blue Buckles. Men have come to know that every pair of Blue Buckles they buy always gives full value.

Long wear is woven into the tough, thick denim cloth. Every pair is always big and roomy—always comfortable. The wide, double-stitched seams never rip. The heavy brass buttons and buckles don't rust or break. Every detail has the same sturdy, first-class workmanship—the same careful attention. Big convenient pockets—extra-wide suspenders, a solid back-band, and free sway raglan sleeves on all the coats.

Wear, comfort, looks—you'll find them all in Blue Buckles.

Ask your dealer for a pair today—Men's, Youths' and Children's sizes.

Here is a sample of the sort of sturdy, careful work you get in Blue Buckles—a back-band that cannot rip—extra broad seams—heavy double stitching—big, convenient pockets reinforced where the strain comes Shoulder and sleeve all in one piece—this is a special Blue Buckle feature. This takes up the strain that normally comes on the shoulder and assures ease and comfort.

Here's where Blue Buckle Overalls are made. It's the largest overall factory in the world. Ideal conditions, special dormitories for workers, the best there is in scientific management, and real pride of workmanship make it certain that in every pair of Blue Buckle Overalls the same high standards are maintained.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 3.

The Birth and Childhood of Jesus. Matthew 2:1-12. Read Chapters 1, 2; Luke 1, 2.

Thou shalt call his name Jesus; for it is he that shall save his people from their sins. Matt. 1:21.

THE BOOK AND THE MAN.

This begins a six months study of the Great Gospel and there should be planning for its measurably complete mastery.

Each pupil should have a note book in which may be recorded the written work that will give a working understanding of the contents. Two markers are significant. Chapters 1-4 give His family, His birth, His baptism, His temptation and the imprisonment of John. "From that time," the first marker, "began Jesus to preach."

There follows the sermon on the mount and varying activities accompanying his preaching tours, the sending out of the Twelve, the parabolic form that His preaching took and running thru all of them is the effect seen in the growing hostility of the orthodox and the growing conviction in the minds of the Disciples that culminated in Peter's confession in 16:16. Beginning with John's message of the King and Kingdom which was Jewish and consequently universally popular He had antagonized the crowd and had changed the understanding of the Twelve from the military leader to the character of a Messiahship that He would fill. The second marker follows in 16:21. "From that time began Jesus to show unto the disciples." It was the teaching ministry to the small group of select instead of preaching to the crowds as had been done before. Keeping away from the through the inner spirit of sacrificial service as the badge of kingdom citizenship and the path leads to the open break with the opposition in the scathing words of chapter 23 and the revealing discourse on the last things in 24, 25. Chapter 26 shows the same process of division taking place among the intimates and 27 and 28 crown in turn hate and love, vindicating every claim of the latter. It is intensely Hebrew thorough; the writer, pointing to some prophetic word and comparing that with some fact in the life of Jesus, would declare, "All the dreams of all our past are fulfilled in HIM." And this is the work of the Jewish renegade who was redeemed to his lost loyalty by this wonderful Man who refused to believe anything but the best about him. Indeed to be a bad Jew was not to be a bad man and Jesus was right in the judgment of his fitness to share with John, Peter and the rest the life of communion with Himself. But the recovered his old loyalty to the holiest heart of Hebrewism. He is the man of rekindled fire.

THE STAR FOLLOWERS.

Star gleams precede the light of day. Always in the shadow of the world's darkness here are the portents of the dawn for those whose eyes are open for the sight. When Jesus was born to usher in a new era blackness covered all lands but there was eager longing everywhere for change. The peace of Rome was only on the surface for unrest was in her heart. And in Judea it followed as the Messiah. False stars fell but the watchers still gazed hopefully into space eager for the day. But only the wise can name the stars. How many there were is not told in the Book; Ben-Hur may know, and others may guess at three but that is all. But there were wise men who saw God's star of promise and hurried to find the road it indicated. Balaam's old prophetic words too wide-scattered to be unknown to these searchers after truth. But in Jerusalem they lost the gleam. No stroller along the Great White Way need look for stars. Eyes dazzled by pleasure, business, greed or passion know nothing of Heavenly lights. Politicians never find a way out of world muddles; only statesmen follow stars. Once more it was from the pages of the Book that direction came and the Bethlehem story found its fulfillment in the lives of those willing to follow the Scripture-blazed path. God's Word and God's star always agree and only he is really wise who consults both and acts upon the conclusion reached with worship in his heart. Much of today's confusion comes from those who follow stars without the Word or, busy reading, refuse to seek God's star.

THE SWORD FOLLOWERS.

There is a third class that follows neither Word nor star but seek what appears to them as self-interest only. There is a South American bird that sings "Me, Me, Me"—these are human "Me" birds. "My world must not be interfered with" is the attitude always taken. It may be the profiteer, the capitalist refusing to treat with the men, labor disregarding public rights, personal liberty advocates or just plain hog but in every case the big "I" and little "you" is the moving motive. Herod has many successors and every one would settle his case by casting a sword in the scale. Ideals, scripture, righteousness, and justice are nothing in comparison to the thing they want and when they have, Bethlehem came in the way and suffered but what if twenty babies did give up their lives

Herod had secured his throne. Yet he failed as completely as the Emperor for the sword is the poorest foundation for continuing dominion in any field of human endeavor.

THE CHILD FOLLOWERS.

It was true that a little child led both the wise men and the foolish king but in vitally differing directions. And it was the same child. Both saw a possible tomorrow there but one would have it another today while the other looked for a new day. One would take toll of the future for the present and would send the child to factory and mine and rob tomorrow of its wealth in lives. One would see to it that the men of tomorrow have a better chance than those of today and would pour into the growing life all the store of accumulated wisdom that the future may be lifted upon the shoulder of the now. The Wise men never faltered in their search until they found the Child and bowed in reverence before the King who was and is to be. And they brought their best gifts to His feet and poured out their store for His benefit. Singularly enough it was the work of the Wise that frustrated that of the sword. If the riches paid for the asylum in Egypt and Christ shall come to His own because He is preserved in the childhood about us by the wise of today to save a single generation of children for the King is to bring the full Kingdom in all the earth. Fortunately there are more Wise today than ever before who seek just that method of saving and serving.

MOTIVE EVERYTHING.

The pure in heart are free from hypocrisy and from double-mindedness. A heart with sin, living in sin and longing for it, can no more have a just view of God than the eyes of the drunkard blind with rum, can have of persons and things about him. Nothing but a sight of God by faith—a view of His holiness and mercy—has power to cleanse and purify such a heart. God must manifest Himself. Pope Benedict XI, laying his hand on his heart, said to deputies of the Council of Constance: "Here is Noah's Ark." To this the reply was: "In Noah's Ark were few men and many beasts," intimating that there were abominations wherein he would have them believe, were lodged all the laws of right and religion. This is true of all. The natural heart is Satan's throne. He fillets it from corner to corner. But when the heart is God must cleanse themselves from all filthiness of the flesh and perfect holiness in the fear of God. Purity of heart is the condition for seeing God, yet it is the last to be accepted by men.

Many other devices are substituted, such as "I am sincere," "I can't believe," "I am honest," "I am a hypocrite," "I mean to," "My motives are all right." Let us see.

Motives are all important as may be seen by the following illustration: The attendant of King William Rufus shot an arrow at a deer, but it glanced against a tree, killing the king. Was he a murderer? Not at all, because he had no such intention. A man who lays in wait to assassinate another and pulls the trigger of his gun with the intention of killing him, though his gun misses fire or is discharged and misses the man, is morally a murderer as truly as if he had killed him. Motive is everything, because our actions take their character from the motives from which it proceeds. No act of the body can take place without an action of the mind preceding it. This is true also of mental acts, if we use the word voluntary as synonymous with spontaneous. Our desires are as free and spontaneous as our volitions, and when it is said that every moral act must be voluntary we mean the word in this comprehensive sense. Our volitions receive their moral character from the quality of the motives which produce them, so that the same volitions, i. e., the act of willing or choosing or forming a purpose, may be good or bad, according to the moral character of the motives by which it is produced. A man fires a gun. He must pull the trigger to do so. It required a volition to do that. He may have done it for the purpose of killing a deer or of murdering a man. The volition is the same in either case. No matter what his motives may have been, the volition was simply the action to discharge the gun and if it is done by an insane person there is no morality in the volition. Suppose a robber breaks into your home and is about to kill you and you pull the trigger of your gun to kill him, i. e., you put forth that volition in self defense—then the volition and the act which follow it will be good. If, however, there is malice in one's heart and he wants to revenge himself, or if there is avarice and he seeks to gratify it by possessing the other's wealth and so shoots him, the volition prompting his act of discharging the gun will be wicked. You can see that the true moral source of actions is not traceable to volitions.

We must go further and discover the motives. To illustrate: A man is accused of a crime; the court must investigate it. The chief thing to be found out is what motives actuated him. According to their decision will he be judged innocent or guilty. Hence the true and ultimate source of the morality of action is not found in the will, but in the desires and affections. So far as the mere act of volition is concerned—that is a determination to do a certain act—it is always the same, regardless of motives. To ascertain that an action proceeds from an act of the will only determines that it is the act of a particular agent but it does not give us any knowledge of the true moral quality of the act. This is universally true. Two men give money to a poor woman. The acts are the same, the volitions prompting them are the same, and we naturally say both acts are good. Why? Simply because we cannot see the heart, when in truth both may be good or bad, or one may be good and the other bad. Suppose, however, that it is revealed to us that one was influenced by a love of praise of men and the other by a sincere regard for the welfare of the poor, we should at once make a wide difference in our judgment as to the acts. The volitions are the same in both cases, the only difference is the motive which prompted the act. One was a hypocrite, the other a true man and both of them are accountable for their motives. This is true of all of us. We are more accountable for our motives than for anything else and the morality consists in the motive, i. e., the affections of the soul.

Married.

Callis-Williams.—A very beautiful home wedding took place September 2nd at eight o'clock when Miss Elenora Williams was united in wedlock to Mr. Walter B. Callis, the ceremony taking place at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Gomer Williams, at Dodson. The bride is a beautiful and accomplished young lady, formerly of Mt. Carmel, Pa., but for some time past residing with her brother at Dodson. The groom is a most estimable young man of high ideals, being formerly of Mountain Lake Park, but now employed as chief clerk in the store of the Dodson Supply Company at Dodson. The Williams home was beautifully and tastefully decorated for the occasion and as the many guests arrived they were ushered into the parlor where the numerous and useful presents to the bride were on display. Mrs. Williams played the wedding march as the couple entered and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Arbogast, pastor of the M. E. church. The bride was dressed in a gown of white moire and wore a long white veil, carrying a lovely bouquet of roses and orchids, while the groom wore a full dress suit of black. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Bensinger, of Mt. Carmel, who had been married the Monday previous. Following the ceremony a delightful repast was served. Those present at the ceremony included Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bensinger, Mr. Lincoln Callis and sons Asa and Joe, Mr. and Mrs. Gomer Williams and family, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Dellinger, Mr. Clyde Shipley, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Burkholder and family, Mrs. C. N. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Thomas, Mrs. Harry Burke, Miss Rose Hollenbach, Miss Lulu Hartman, Miss Loretta Amtower, Mr. A. J. Garrett, Mr. L. K. Dellinger, Mr. John Fitzwater, Mr. Jacob Hollenbach, Mrs. Jacob Fresh, Mr. Bert Sharp, Mr. John Lehnach, Mr. Ray Nine, Mr. Walter Amtower, Mr. Branson Brady, Rev. Lynn Arbogast.

HUTTON

Mr. Charles R. Hecker, a former resident of Johnstown, Pa., who for a period of three or four months was engaged in superintending the installation of a heating appliance at the tanning company's plant here, left for Pittsburgh, Pa., on Tuesday morning for a visit of several weeks before going to Island Falls, in northern Maine, where his firm has offered him the position of general manager. We regret very much the departure of Mr. Hecker from our midst, for as a man of genial disposition he has won many loyal and true friends in this community as well as being quite a favorite among the young people.

Miss Frances DeLoroux Pendergast, Ada M. Steward and Marguerite Clara Pendergast, accompanied by a number of their Oakland friends, motored to Shadydel on Saturday last where the entire party spent several hours as the guests of friends.

Mr. Robert Helbig, an employee of the Freeport mines located a few miles west of this place, was in Hutton for a few hours recently while en route to his home at Oakland.

Miss Emma Hamill, principal of the Hutton public school, spent Saturday and part of Sunday in Oakland, where she was the guest of friends and relatives.

Mr. Stephen E. Faherty was in Oakland Saturday on business.

Miss Margaret Feeney, of Edgewood, was shopping and visiting some of her friends in the county seat one day recently.

Miss Emma Salzman left Hutton on Thursday for Parkersburg, West Va., where she will resume her studies in the Mountain State Business College located in that city.

Mr. Paul Daily, who after an absence of some thirty-three years, returned to Hutton on Monday of this week, his visit to this place being a very agreeable surprise to a number of the older residents, who remembered him as little Paul of ten years at the time of his parents' removal from here to Frostburg where at the present Mr. Daily is actively engaged with a mining company.

You will find most of our people these days at Oakland attending the Garrett County Fair.

Autumn days oft remind us of that famous and beautiful poem composed by William Knox, a poet of Scottish descent, written in the year 1824, at Edinburgh. The writer reproduces for the readers of The Republican a few stanzas only, as no doubt most every one is familiar with his works, the entire poem having appeared in The Republican under date of August 14th, 1919:

"The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade,
Be scattered around and together be laid;
And the young and the old, and the low and the high,
Shall moulder to dust and together shall lie."

"Like a flash of the lightning, or a break of the wave, Man passes from life to rest in the grave."

"Yea! hope and despondency, pleasure and pain,
Are mingled together in sunshine and rain;
And the smile and the tear, the song and the dirge, Shall follow each other, like surge upon surge."

ACCIDENT

Upon his return homeward from Oakland last Thursday morning State Superintendent Cook paid our school a visit. He was accompanied by Assistant Superintendent Reavis and County Superintendent Rathbun. The latter's work in behalf of the schools of the county are being appreciated by those who are in a position to know what he has done to keep the schools of the county upon the high plane where they have been placed through his zealous endeavors.

Mr. F. C. Diehl and family visited Mr. Diehl's brother Clarence at Addison, Pa., Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Broadwater and children, of Bittinger, were guests of W. A. Speicher family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hecker and children attended the confirmation services at Bittinger on Sunday.

Furnaces are being installed this week in the homes of Asa Beechley, Edward Georg and Fred Hoffman.

Two of the McHenry boys, James Fraker and Mason Gholfeity, have enrolled and taken up high school work in the Accident school.

Quite a number of the people in and around Accident attended the Mercantile fair and the Grantsville fair, both of which were held last week.

Among those of our people who attended the funeral at Red House last Wednesday, at which time the three victims of the horrible accident at the Weber crossing were buried, were the families of William Hauser, A. J. Alexander and Randall, Sadie and Neek Spoerlein.

Miss Flora Nelson, who spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. John Englehart at this place, returned to Frostburg Monday morning to resume her studies at the State Normal school there.

Mrs. H. M. Speicher and family and Mrs. J. A. Speicher, daughters Mary and Nellie and son Ellis, and Mr. Howard Englehart were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Webb DeWitt of Hoyes.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Pike and Mr. and Mrs. Silas Fike, of Exton, W. Va., were visitors at D. A. King's home on Sunday. They returned home Sunday evening, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Hamstead and family, of Terra Alta, who were also visitors at this place during the past two weeks.

Two carloads of Lonsconing folks arrived at the home of Mr. John L. Englehart Sunday morning and spent the day as guests of the Englehart home. Those comprising the party were Mrs. James Stevenson, Mrs. Wm. Fisher, Mrs. Alex. Gardner, Mrs. Martha McMillan, Misses Agnes McMillan, Margaret and Julia Marks and Anna Costorphan.

DEER PARK

Last Thursday evening a Liberty airplane, piloted by an aviator from Dayton, Ohio, and bound for Westminster, Md., was forced to land due to the heavy fog which was rising. The plane landed on the Hollenbeck farm, about a mile from Deer Park. Many people of the town and vicinity visited the place of landing Thursday evening and a large crowd gathered to see the plane resume its journey on the following morning. The aviator, Mr. Rex K. Stones, was in the air service over seas and since his return has been an exhibition flyer.

Joe Harvey, who was arrested Saturday for having on his premises about forty cases of whiskey, declares he was not the owner of same.

Mrs. James Hardesty has returned from a visit to relatives at Grafton, West Va.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clary and son Kenneth will leave for their new home at Keyser, West Va., Saturday.

Miss Mae Jones, of Cumberland, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Jones.

Mr. Harry West, after spending a week or more in Washington, D. C., returned home.

Mr. Lawrence Hennen, a former resident of this place but now lives at Panama City, was in town last week.

Mrs. Cimmerman, of Cameron, West Va., who spent the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler of this place, returned to her home.

Mr. C. H. Browning, who has spent two weeks in Eastern cities will extend his visit a week or ten days longer.

Mr. Ray Hinebaugh, of Deer Park, and Miss Mae Wright, of near Swanton, were recently married.

Mrs. Frank Thrasher went to Cumberland to be with her daughter, Miss Carrie, who will undergo an operation on her throat.

MY MOTTO: QUALITY FIRST

An October Sunday in Garrett County. "The frost is on the pumpkin and the fender's in the shock"—in Garrett county.

The October skies were never so beautiful—in Garrett county.

The landscape panorama never spread more enticingly than Sunday, due to the unusually clear atmosphere—in Garrett county.

A great red fox ran across the road in front of an automobile at Little Crossings. It was noticed that a large henry was maintained nearby.

One could look many miles before the distant mountains would be obscured by the beautiful haze.

The woods are just beginning to color with russet and crimson in Garrett county.

Never did the Cove, which presents one of the most peaceful and delightful pastoral views, with its shocks of fodder and buckwheat, hold one's gaze more devotedly.

Just now beautiful ferns are being gathered in the woods in Garrett county.

Many pilgrims find their way to the lonely grave of the Union soldier on the mountain top, east of Grantsville.

On slips of paper they inscribe their names. These slips, held on the grave by small stones, show that people from many states tarry there. The grave is covered with hundreds of these papers.

Good sweet cider was on tap at the inns that have sprung up on the National road in Garrett county.

The restaurant that has opened in Grantsville where meals may be obtained at all hours is "meeting a long felt want."

Near Pruzzley Run there is a field of pumpkins. All the verbiage has disappeared and hundreds of pumpkins yellow, striped and dark green, show up in all their nakedness.

Three Injured When Speeder Leaves Railroad Track.

Section Foreman G. K. McDonald and two fellow-employees on the Confluence and Oakland branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Joseph Sines and Lester Fike, were injured last Saturday when a motor car on which they were riding struck a rock which had fallen along the track, and was derailed. Two other employees, Roy Havener and Irwin Groff, escaped with minor hurts.

Beginning next Sunday, October 10, and continuing until spring, St. Paul's M. E. Sunday school will meet at 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon.

GARRETT COUNTY FAIR OVER

Closed Saturday Night With a Deficit of Several Hundred Dollars, But Officers are Not Disheartened

The annual fair of the Garrett County Fair Association closed on last Saturday evening, after a run of five days against every imaginable handicap. The weather was as bad as it possibly could be for four days in succession, hence the attendance was extremely small; the various attractions were tied up on the railroad on account of freight congestion along the line; the mercury was at or near the freezing point on Friday with a stiff, cold wind blowing and at times snow could be seen mixed with the incessant rainfall which began on Wednesday and did not cease until Saturday afternoon, hence the elements as well as other things combined against the success of the fair.

The exhibits in many departments were never better nor were they ever larger in number. Every department was filled and had the rain not interfered there is every reason to believe that the fair of 1920 would have excelled every particular.

The various departments were exceptionally well arranged, especially those departments who had as their superintendents the ladies and to these as well as to all others, exhibitors, superintendents, patrons and exhibitors, the management of the fair requests The Republican to extend thanks, assuring them that their efforts were highly appreciated.

The exhibits were all judged and awards made as planned by the association. The premiums have all been paid. Secretary Davis, of the Association, has requested The Republican to say that "if a prize winner receives his or her check which does not carry the proper amount of the premium offered, please notify me and correction will be made promptly and willingly. Also those having bills against the Association will please send them in at once."

The actual loss to the Association this year will be approximately $1500. This amount, according to the secretary, represents actual cash losses. The Association, however, is not discouraged. Plans are now under way for a larger and better fair next year than any previous one, and this fact should be kept in mind by everybody in the county.

It was the intention of The Republican to publish the premium awards, the publication to be made this week, but it has been found utterly impossible to collaborate and arrange the same. However, the special premium awards are printed below:

Oakland Hardware and Furniture Co., best Boy's Club pig, $5; won by James Fike, McHenry.

Oakland Hardware and Furniture Co., best Girl's Club exhibit, $5; won by Elizabeth Engle, Grantsville.

W. S. Martin, best pen of chickens exhibit by club member, a watch; won by Elwood Groves, Oakland.

Bittner & Stahl, best sow and pigs, $5; won by C. R. Savedge, Deer Park.

W. A. Gonder, largest and best exhibit made by one exhibitor, box cigars; won by Scott Ridder, near Red House.

The Democrat, best quart maple syrup, year's subscription; won by Mrs. J. Beachy, Grantsville.

The Democrat, best pound honey, year's subscription; won by Miss Minnie Shaffer, Oakland.

The Republican offered one year's subscription for the largest pumpkin; won by Andrew Shartzer, Oakland;

the same for the largest head of cabbage, won by P. T. Lipscomb, Mt. Lake Park, and for the best pound of butter the same, which was won by Mrs. William DeBerry, Oakland.

COMMITTEE.

MUST LIVE IN STATE A YEAR

Those Of More Brief Residence Cannot Vote, Says Attorney General

Attorney General Alexander Armstrong, in a letter sent last Friday to State's Attorney William J. Ryon, of Prince George's county, made it clear that any person, man or woman, must have been a resident of the State for a year in order to be entitled to vote. The impression had gained ground that any woman who was a resident of the State prior to the adoption of the Federal suffrage amendment was entitled to register and vote, no matter how brief her residence in the State had been.

The question asked by Mr. Ryon was this: "If a man is a resident of the State and marries and brings his wife to live with him in the State prior to the passage of the amendment enfranchising women, can the wife register and vote, although she came into the State two weeks prior to the passage of the amendment?"

The answer was: "No."

This lady is not entitled to be registered, because she does not satisfy the Constitutional requirement of one year's residence within the State.

Question—If a man and wife and one son, a minor, should move into the State of Maryland, neither the man nor woman being residents of the State nor voters, and their son lacked three or four months of the legal age before registration day, could this son register and vote in the election, although his actual residence in the State was only about four or five months?

Answer—This boy cannot be registered for two reasons: First, he has not lived in the State for one year, as required by the Constitution. Second, if he lacks three or four months of legal age at the time of application for registration he cannot possibly be of age by election day, and, therefore, does not possess the age necessary for registration.

Question—A man was granted his final naturalization papers on September 27, 1920, by the Circuit Court for Prince George's county, and his application showed he had been a resident of the State of Maryland for nine years. Can this man be registered?

Answer—I am of the opinion that this man is entitled to be registered. He is now a citizen of the United States and he has been a resident of the State for more than a year.

Knights of Pythias Notes of Interest.

On last Friday evening no degree work was done by Garrett lodge, but its regular business meeting was held, following which refreshments were served by the Pythian Sisters and a good time was enjoyed by all present.

On next Friday evening the rank of Knight will be conferred upon a class of candidates.

We hope to see a good attendance at our next regular meeting as the work to be done will require the assistance of several, and your Chancellor Commander urges your attendance at this meeting.

During the fair the Pythian Sisters had a booth at the fair grounds and served a large number of people with lunches. From reports we understand the ladies did very well.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

The State Forest Nursery Offers Trees For Planting.

The Republican has been advised that the State Board of Forestry, 815 Calvert Building, Baltimore, announces the list of stock available at the State Forest Nursery, College Park, of trees available for forest and roadside planting this fall.

There are four standard varieties of evergreens—white pine, loblolly pine, Norway spruce and cypress. The six standard varieties of hardwoods offered are red oak, American elm, white ash, black walnut, black locust and pecan. The stock offered has all been grown in the State Nursery and is distributed at actual cost or less. Small trees for forest planting are quoted as low as one cent apiece, while those suitable for roadside planting are listed from twenty to fifty cents each and vary from seven to fifteen feet in height.

The State Nursery in the few years since it was established, has rendered a valuable service to the people of the State in furnishing home grown trees of proven worth at nominal cost, thus encouraging the tree planting idea. The increase in the number who make use of the State Nursery each year shows its popularity and has necessitated two expansions of its capacity within four years.

NEW COAL FIELDS BEING OPENED IN GARRET COUNTY

Old Lumber Town of Jennings Taking On New Life as Mining Center.
(Meyersdale Republican)

Among the new coal fields that are attracting the attention of coal operators, dealers and others interested in the development of coal mines is the Jennings field in Garrett county, constituting a basin in which the coal beds are said to be inexhaustible for the next half century or longer.

There are five tippie mines and about ten wagon mines along the line of the Jennings Railway and within less than four miles of Jennings. None of these mines are perfected yet, but taking into consideration the short time they have been in operation, they have all progressed wonderfully.

The most extensive mines in the Jennings coal field are those of the Phyllis Coal Mining Co., an incorporated company with a Maryland charter. The office of the company is at Jennings with W. A. Morgart as general manager and John Harvey, superintendent. This company started business this year, having shipped the first car of coal in April. The company operate four mines located above Jennings, and numbered consecutively Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4. Mines 1, 2 and 4 are located on the west side of the South Branch of the Casselman river, and No. 3 on the east branch of the same stream. In these mines are three veins: No. 3 mine has the Freepoint vein; Nos. 1 and 2, the Bakers-town vein; No. 4, the Masontown vein. These veins average from 4 to 5½ feet in thickness. The coal is of the best quality steam coal.

These mines all slope toward the river, giving a natural drainage, so that no pumping is required to keep the mines clear of water. They are tippie mines, so that the mine cars have neither to be elevated to a higher level, nor let down a steep grade.

The Phyllis Coal Mining Co. has exclusive mineral rights in a tract of land of between 5,000 and 7,000 acres. Having such a large area of land underlaid with three veins, it seems that the supply is practically inexhaustible. This company is now working 50 men and is increasing the output by leaps and bounds.

The company has also 100 acres of surface land for a townsite, located about equally distant from all of the four mines. The company is a progressive one and has installed an up-to-date electric light plant and also contemplates getting a moving picture show from Cumberland to exhibit weekly for the recreation of the citizens of the place.

Besides the mines of the Phyllis Coal Mining Co. the following new tippie mines have been opened in the last few months: The Hoover, Baum, Ross & Ambrose, and the Billmeyer mine.

Ten wagon mines, although restricted by ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission, are doing a good business.

The miners and other workers in this field are all Americans and an intelligent and law-abiding class.

About twenty years ago the lumber town of Jennings was inaugurated by Jennings Brothers, lumbermen from Towanda, Pa. The town flourished for many years until the lumber supply was exhausted a few years ago, when it ceased to exist as an exclusive lumber town. But it is again forging to the front, this time as a coal town and few new coal fields have better prospects than the coal fields located along the upper waters of the Casselman river and its tributaries.

Jennings is connected with the outside world by a standard gauge railroad, known as the Jennings Railway, which connects with the Salisbury Branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Worth Junction, about 2 miles south of West Salisbury and near the Mason & Dixon line. The Jennings Railway was built by Jennings Brothers as an outlet for their lumber but is now almost exclusively used as a coal road.

This railway is about 13 miles in length and is built through one of the most beautiful valleys that can be found anywhere, with its diversified scenery. Starting at Worth, a short distance from the State line, it skirts along through the edge of one of the fine groves of sugar trees that made Somerset county famous for its manufacture of maple sugar. It passes close to one of the sugar camps of Elijah Livensood, the sugar king of Somerset county, and crossing from Pennsylvania into Maryland passes through another fine sugar grove formerly owned by Samuel C. Loechel, now the property of Daniel Helmuth. It also passes through the William Stanton sugar grove, one of the largest in Maryland. It crosses the National Pike at Little Crossings, less than a mile east of Grantsville. At this point is a siding and freight station where a large amount of freight is handled in the course of a year.

From Grantsville to Jennings the railroad passes through a fine section of farming country and the farms all along the valley show the marks of careful cultivation. Here can be seen fine herds of thoroughbred cattle and large flocks of sheep. The farm buildings are of the very best and all the surroundings show signs of thrift and industry.

The Jennings Railway, the artery of trade and commerce for Jennings and the mines in the Casselman basin, is a well conducted road. The track and sidings are kept in the very best order, and it will compare favorably in every way with most of the branch railroads of the Baltimore and Ohio system. The rolling stock includes 3 locomotives. Engine No. 3 conveyed a representative of The Republican from West Salisbury to Jennings and the engineer in charge, Leroy Kenner, showed him every courtesy. H. C. Talmcr is engineer of engine No. 8, with a shay attachment for heavy grades. He is an old experienced engineer and keeps his engine in good running order.

Besides the coal mines, there are several small saw mills along the line. The proprietors are the Casselman Lumber Co., Blocher Brothers (Urban and Llewellyn) and Senator H. J. Speicher.

Near Grantsville, Uriah Stanton has three coal mines.

The village of Jennings does not show any signs of retrograding, but has every mark of prosperity. The buildings are all in good state of preservation. The town has three stores, a hotel, two school houses and two churches.

In a fine, large, commodious building is the Jennings Brothers' store, located near the railroad. This store is well stocked with general merchandise and under the management of W. W. Baum. It is run in an efficient manner. The Jennings postoffice is also located in this building. In the same building is the office of the representative of the Jennings Brothers, and manager of the Jennings railway, E. W. Woodward, a gentleman who is courteous to all who visits the office, either on business or otherwise.

Mr. George Hoover also keeps a good store at this place.

The Jennings Hotel is an up-to-date establishment and has electric lights, baths and other modern conveniences. Every detail of the establishment is looked after with the greatest care.

The Manager, Charles Faidley, and his estimable wife spare no pains to make their guests feel at home and provide them with every comfort. All persons who are guests at the Jennings Hotel cannot fail to observe Mr. and Mrs. Faidley's bright, interesting and intelligent family, as fine as can be found in Maryland.

Jennings has two good churches, Lutheran and Methodist Episcopal.

The Lutheran church, built in 1909, costing $2,500, is one of the nicest small churches than can be found in any small town. It is built of cut stone. It has a seating capacity of over 200 and is built in the form of an L, the smaller wing being for the Sunday school. The interior is neatly finished, the wood work grained and the ceiling finished. Rev. J. L. Marvin, of Bittinger conducts services every two weeks.

W. H. Guinn is the sexton in charge of the church and keeps it in the neatest condition. Miss Alice Guinn is organist.

The Methodist Episcopal church, also built in 1909, is a neat building. There are services every two weeks, conducted by the pastor of the M. E. church at Grantsville. This church has a prosperous Sunday school with Simon Durst as superintendent.

Both churches are free of all debt, and the members of both congregations can well feel proud of the self-sacrificing devotion they have shown.

Jennings has two schools. The primary school is taught by Miss Lilieth Wiley, with a good enrollment. The school for the advanced pupils is taught by Miss Myrtle Custer, with an enrollment of 24; an additional number will be enrolled later in the season. The school terms in both schools is nine months.

MOTIVE EVERYTHING.

I closed my last article by saying the morality of our actions consists in the motive. D. Thomas Reva, in his work on "Active Powers," says the will is not always governed by motives, and he makes this distinction: Animal emotions act by a blind impulse on the will, without regard to consequences. Rational motives operate by the force of reasonable considerations. It is true there are principles in the human constitution which act on the will with great force, by a blind impulse. Such are the appetites and passions, the desire for happiness and the desire to escape pain, no matter whether it is lawful or not. For example: Hunger urges us to eat. It requires some strength of purpose to resist it even when we know that we cannot with propriety appease the appetite. In such a case you have the animal and rational motive operating each other and the will must be determined according to the strength of the one or the other—that is to say: The will, will act, the volition will be in the direction of and in keeping with the stronger motive. If the animal motive is the stronger the act of our will will be in that direction and vice versa.

We find ourselves every day in such positions, and we must decide as to our action which will invariably be in accordance with the stronger motive. These contend one against the other, and victories are obtained by one or the other according to the influence they possess at the time. Hunger induces us to eat, but reason says it will injure your health. Here you have the two forces contending—it is a trial of force, of blind appetite on the one hand and of rational regard for health on the other.

If the appetite be very strong it will take strong resolution to oppose it, though usually appetite prevails. In every such case it is a trial of strength between different motives.

But suppose food is before one who is hungry and there are no considerations of duty to prevent, we will eat as a matter of course. If the man is told the food is poisoned, though the appetite clamors for the food, his love of life or fear of death will induce him to refrain. Or let us say, the food belongs to another and he knows it, but the owner will not allow him to use any of it. Now the moral feelings stand in the way and whether or not he partakes will depend upon the strength of his appetite and the compunctions of his conscience. You say the mind determines between the motives, but it is not independent of the strength of the motives, but always in accordance with the strongest desires. There is no moral quality in the mere hunger of a man, more than of a beast, for in both it is constitutional. The moral quality begins at the point they require to be directed and governed. It is not wrong for a hungry man to desire food when he sees it, but if he knows that it belongs to another it is wrong for him to take it. If he knows it will injure him it is his duty to abstain. You can no more extinguish animal feelings by an act of the will than you can dam up Niagara. They rise involuntarily, and you can't help it. But we are to govern, control and direct them by higher powers, and the sin lies in our not controlling them according to the dictates of reason and conscience.

So far as other desires and affections are concerned, they are good or bad in every degree in which they exist.

Malice and envy are always sinful, not only when ripened into act, but the smallest exercise of them is evil. As they increase in strength their moral evil increases. They are evil in their essence and are condemned by the moral sense of mankind. We see now, do we not, the part that motives play in our lives. They are the springs of action—the sources from which our acts flow, the governing power of our lives—for which we are responsible. Our motives, our affections, are over our will, not subject to it, but direct the will, and our volitions are inwardly along the line of our motives. If the stronger motive of the heart is to please God, then we act accordingly. If the stronger motive is to seek self interests, our actions are along that line.

It is not safe to judge the actions of others. We may be mistaken, or may do them a gross injustice. We may think one is all right when in fact he is all wrong; or we may think he is wrong when he is right. God alone is able to judge. He looketh on the heart, but man looks on the outward acts. God judges by the motives. We may be impelled by many motives.

When David fled from Saul's anger and Saul demanded of Jonathan where he was, and was told, then his anger kindled against Jonathan and he appealed to Jonathan's selfishness to deliver him. When he said, "for as long as the son of Jesse liveth upon the ground, thou shalt not be established, nor thy kingdom." Saul thought Jonathan was defeating his own interests by befriending David. Saul was actuated by envious motives. He appealed to Jonathan's selfishness. Jonathan's brethren were moved by motives of envy. They hated him without a cause and so sold him. It was envy that led to the crucifixion of Christ. The chief priests delivered him for envy. It was envy that moved Cain to slay Abel. Aaron and Miriam, moved with envy, spake against Moses. So did Korah and his companions, but the earth opened and swallowed them.

Senator Harding, observation leads us to believe, has created a strong impression of earnestness, sincerity and a high sense of duty. His utterances are marked by a studied moderation; he exhibits no arrogance of opinion, and has made no extravagant promises of a millennium to be created by proclamation; he seeks rather to express the national spirit than to impose a doctrine of political infallibility. And there is an unmistakably growing view that Governor Cox is a shifty opportunist, superficial in thought, reckless in appeal and irresponsible in statement.

185 times - no difference !

Miss Betsy Lane Shepherd, famous concert soprano, has made this test 185 times. 185 public audiences, in 185 cities, have heard her compare her voice with its RE-CREATION by the New Edison. No one, out of a total of more than 100,000 listeners, has been able to tell when Miss Shepherd was singing, and when the New Edison—except by watching her lips.

4,000 similar tests of direct comparison, made by over fifty other celebrated vocalists and instrumentalists, have given this same result.

The New Edison is perfect realism achieved!

What kind of music
"gets" you ?

Tell us—and we'll show you how all its emotional power is RE-CREATED by the New Edison

Is it the soulful violin?—a mellow contralto?—the scintillating flute?—a sweet, soothing tenor?—that draws the quickest emotional response from you.

Let us play your favorite voice or instrument in a new kind of Realism Test. See whether you are touched by the RE-

CREATED music in the same way that you are touched by the living music.

We want to show you that the New Edison RE-CREATES all the vital power in all music.

Remember what to ask for—"personal favorites" Realism Test!

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

Perfect realism is your one vehicle to the inner joys of music which you crave.

Mr. Edison spent three million dollars in the research work which gave the New Edison perfect realism. He did this in order that the phonograph might transcend its former limitations and (here we quote Mr. Edison's own words), "bring into every American home, music so realistic and so perfect in its rendition as to be an unending source of benefit and pleasure."

The instruments which proved this perfect realism in Miss Shepherd's 185 tests were all exact duplicates of the original Official Laboratory Model on which Mr. Edison spent his three million dollars. You can also have an exact duplicate of this three million dollar original. We have it in our store, and guarantee it to be capable of sustaining the same test of direct comparison.

Important Practical Detail

Our Budget Plan brings your New Edison for immediate enjoyment, without asking for immediate payment. Ask about it when you come in to hear the "Personal Favorites" Realism Test.

The Republican--Garrett Co.'s Paper

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 10.

The Baptism and Temptation of Jesus. Matt. 3:13-17. Read Chapter 3: Luke 3: 4, John 1.

This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. Matt. 3:17.

THE VOICE.

Mountain masses are echo makers. So are human masses. And the talk of today concerns itself largely with masses and classes from each of which comes a perfectly deafening clamor. Voices are much rather than echoes even if the noise in less for the echo is only a multiplied voice. John said a great thing about himself when he said "I am the voice." All about him on the hillside and slopes were the crowds that echoed his word far and wide thru all the hill cities of Judea and Galilee. All the country was stirred and came out to hear the "Voice." Put Billy Sunday in any city and there will be a tremendous echo from press and people. Teddy was a voice. Wilson, George and Clemenceau were others and Lenin cannot be classed as an echo. Voices may be true or false but voices they are nevertheless and echo follows. John has the distinction of being true. Against the background of Jewish desire for nationality and freedom from Roman rule, against the instant hope of the appearing Messiah he flung the challenging call of preparation for a new day. Dawn was just over the hill and men must bestir themselves and be ready at its coming. Like all voices he had insight. The Messiah was not a Lion but a Lamb. Holiness and sacrifice were part of the coming character instead of selfish autocratic power. "Saviour," cried the Voice; "Soldier," responded the echo for often there is strange shifting of emphasis or the dropping of syllables. Immediacy was another characteristic that marked John in common with Voices in general. The world was to be remade at once for His fan was in His hand, the chaff was ready to fly and the fire was kindled for its burning. A whole new order was to be made over night in the most drastic fashion and tomorrow would see the glory of its full coming. A holy Christ must have a holy world. A holy Christ must have a holy world. A third characteristic is the inability to recognize any color save black or white. There can be no such thing as a grey. A thing is either bad or good, never a mixture of both, and being all bad it must be destroyed without delay. John knew himself when he gave himself that distinctive title for no man ever held better right to its suggestiveness. THE VOLUNTEER.

John's great call was for volunteers for the new day, for men who were willing to get rid of personal unrighteousness and to proclaim their allegiance to the coming Kingdom. Baptism held both these ideas within it for it was a cleansing rite and a declaration of intentions as unmistakable as a coat of khaki. Up in the Nazareth village there must have come strange rumors from the Jordan that stirred the mind of Jesus to new activity. He could not remain neutral in any such time and whether He knew His High destiny or not he could not fail to appear and approve John's message. His chief interest was the Kingdom and when he found another with the same passion He must clasp his hand as comrade. Through those years of quiet growth there must have gone a constantly increasing intimacy with God unless the hint of the boy's chief attraction on the first visit to a great city holds no truth. His country's heroes and heart-aches were fully known. He spoke Aramaic but read Hebrew and Greek so that a full mind was added to the trained hand and the sympathetic heart. He simply could not keep away from such a proclamation as John was giving. Mingling with the crowds He heard the call and presented Himself for the rite. John objected as he naturally would on recognizing the person of Jesus. The double nationality explains the part which affected the Christ. For Him there was no need for the cleansing but there was for the open declaration involved in it and it was as a volunteer for Kingdom service that the Messiah accepted from John's hand the significant rite.

THIS VISION.

Out of that dedication to service came the vision that opened a new world to Jesus. Visions and voices accompany such hours as Mountain Lake can testify, as can many other gathering places of youth today. He saw the heavens open for God came strangely near in that hour and there was a new consciousness that earth is not distant from the unseen world. The soul knows that it has all heaven in which to grow for there is no roof above the spirit. And this other world is as real as the one handled and used, seen and felt. There is a new consciousness of relationship existing for the God of this open Heaven calls Him Son. God is known as never before and His approval rests upon the dedicated life. God's purpose and the Man's purpose have become one and the soul is athril with the knowledge. There came the baptism with the Spirit of the unseen world. A new life emerges from the dedication and this was recognized by John as the evidence sought for an identifying the Messiah of his message. There is no hint that he saw the open heaven or heard the voice. He did see the Spirit that made Jesus' face radiant and fitted Him for service.

THE VICTORY.

There was full acceptance of the call and the temptation concerned the methods of applying the Messiahship to the facts of life. Should he use for Kingdom business only or were there some perquisites that would be entirely personal in the affair? Could this King of Heaven wear an earthly crown? Can a man make profit out of his patriotism? Presently it was settled that His should be selfless service and that victory was won. But another took its place. Should dazzling, spectacular popularity be sought as the fakir seeks it or should the slow years see the laying of abiding foundations in transformed thinking? Should it be the short cut or the long wait? Again the battle was fought in which reality conquered sham. For the third time there came the assault; could some things be compromised that good might be done? Just to trim some corners a bit round, just to play politics until power was His and then He could use it for the good of the world. And again He refused to lower the standard of His life for the gaining of His goal and tossed aside the idea that too end justifies the means. It seems that something like this must have been involved in these long hours of solitary struggle in the heart of the Christ and all thru them "He was led to the Spirit" until the time came when "In the power of the Spirit" He entered upon His work in Galilee.

ROOSEVELT'S WIDOW APPEALS TO VOTERS TO ELECT HARDING

Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt, widow of former President Theodore Roosevelt, appeals to the "manhood and womanhood of America" to elect Senator Harding and Governor Coolidge, Republican Presidential and Vice-Presidential candidates.

In a statement dated at Sacramento Hill, Oyster Bay, last Friday and given out by the Republican National Committee the same night, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"The country's vital need is the election of the Republican candidates, Warren G. Harding, and Calvin Coolidge. Only will the full measure of Americanism in the next Administration be attained if the people shall declare for the party which holds true nationalism as its high ideal. It is not necessary to forget our duty to our neighbor in doing our duty at home.

"The time appeals most strongly to the manhood and the womanhood of America—to woman more than ever before, because by her has come the perfected opportunity to make her influence weighty in behalf of the nation. "This year, as never before, with world conditions as they are, steadiness and staunchness of American purpose are obligatory if we would first bring back our country to its stable place and then by strong endeavor do all that can be done for peace and the general welfare in all lands."

THE BEST REPUBLICAN SPEECH.

Mr. Cox made the best Republican speech of the campaign when in a recent address to the people of Oakland out in California he flayed the "profiteers who have reigned for five long years, sordid, soulless, ugly and hateful."

These profiteers reigned, of course, concurrently with the man whom Mr. Cox aspires to succeed and whose legitimate heir-at-law he is. His charges are pointed indictments of the Wilson regime.

Further, he said in the Oakland address:

"The extent to which profiteering prevailed during the war and especially since the signing of the armistice, has been outrageous. The amount stolen from householders of America in that time by profiteers would pay off the greater part of the funded debt arising from the war itself."

Mr. Cox bears out in detail the Republican contention. So far he is speaking by the book.

Mr. Cox promises to end profiteering. So did Mr. Wilson in 1912. So did Mr. Palmer for several months before the San Francisco convention. We need a change.

VOTE IT STRAIGHT.

Republicans have every reason to feel good over the final registration figures here. So overwhelming is the sentiment recorded that there is no doubt that Republican majorities here and over the country on the second of next month are going to be impressive.

The outcome of the Presidential election is practically a foregone conclusion. The millstone of Wilsonism and the mudslinging tactics of Candidate Cox constitutes such a double barrier to Democratic success that even Democrats themselves privately admit that it is all over but the shouting. The fact that supporters of Candidate Cox want odds of 6 to 1 and even 7 to 1 reveals most vividly the confidence (?) they have in the outcome.

The one big duty before Garrett county Republicans, with the success of the Presidential ticket assured as it is, is to make certain the election of Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman. Support of Harding and Coolidge unaccompanied by equally active support of Republican nominees for the House and Senate, would be a form of loyalty to these candidates better described by the name of "treason." The Presidency of the United States would be a barren honor stripped of the opportunity to put into execution the great policies which the chief executive will represent. The voters of the United States elected a Republican Congress in 1918 because they wished to repudiate the directorship of President Wilson; because they believed it would be better to deadlock the wheels of government than to let things go as they were. But to elect a President and at the same time to repudiate the policies for which he stands by denying to him and to his party the opportunity to put them in execution with the help of a friendly and sympathetic Congress, would be to betray the cause for which these candidates stand; to inflict irreparable injury upon a country which needs for its very safety, relief from the almost intolerable conditions which are the product of seven and a half years of Wilsonian control of government.

It is no more important to elect a Republican President and Vice-President on November 2, than to choose a working Republican majority in both branches of Congress. Don't forget that!

Republicans should direct their thought and endeavor to the general success of the whole cause of Republicanism without which there can be no victory at the polls in November that would open to the Republican party the opportunity for rendering that high national service essential in this emergency, for the restoration, rehabilitation and reconstruction of the nation.

If it was ever fitting that a Republican Congressman be returned to a Republican House from this, a Republican district, now is the time. Every Republican, regardless of any bit of political camouflage or sympathy plea, on the part of the opposition, should loyally support the Republican Congressional candidate from this district, Fred. N. Zihlman.

Now is a time when any man wishing to assist in retiring the Democratic party from national control must, in order to demonstrate his sincerity in such a purpose, support not merely the Presidential but the Congressional ticket of his or her party. It would be more intelligent and more patriotic for any citizen to be against both the national and congressional ticket, than to be against either, for support of the one might give fictitious weight to opposition to the other, and might be accorded for that very purpose.

Mr. Cox's big mud gun has blown out the breech and the Tammany candidate is badly shattered. About all that has been proved is that the Republicans are raising their campaign fund by a popular subscription from the people, with a $1,000 limit, and the Democrats are raising theirs from the big corporations, munitions makers and liquor men with no limit. Anything to get away from Wilsonism, is Cox's idea now.

If Franklin D. lacks the family brand, some of Mr. Cox's utterances seem to indicate that he lacks even the American brand.—Detroit Free Press.

SWANTON

Little Eileen Friend entertained a few of her friends in honor of her birthday on October 5th from one until four o'clock. Those present were Donald, Lavene, Morris and Alferta Friend of Swanton, and Gladys Welch of Newark, Ohio. Refreshments were served and games played. All the little guests had a good time.

Mrs. Lee Comp is on the sick list at present.

Mr. James Campbell, of Kitzmiller, and Mr. Ernest Snaffer, of Woodstock, Va., were pleasant visitors at the home of B. T. Bray, Sunday.

Quite a crowd attended the services at Anderson chapel on Sunday and all greatly enjoyed Bishop Murray's sermon.

We are glad to hear of the improvement of Mrs. Harriett Friend, who has been ill.

Already Jack Frost is busy with his fall work. The chestnuts are beginning to come down, much to the delight of the younger folks.

A number of our future voters registered here yesterday. Harding is sure to win now that all the women voters are busy.

Miss Della Wilt was taken to a hospital on Monday to undergo an operation.

SKYLARK.

BITTINGER

Last Thursday was dark and cold and dreary; it rained, and the wind was never weary. On Friday the weather man took his blow and mixed up the rain with a batch of snow. On Saturday farmers swore it would freeze and hustled around to "kiver" their peas. They worked all day with a hearty will and cussed old Dobbin to beat Sam Hill, but the clouds rolled by and the mercury rose, and not a blameworthy thing in the garden froze.

The report of registrars for this district shows that last Tuesday, the first sitting, fourteen women and two men were registered as eligible to vote at the November election.

We regret to chronicle the death of our esteemed and aged neighbor and friend, Joseph Buckle, who passed to his reward on Monday morning, September 27th, at the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland. The funeral services and interment occurred in this village on Wednesday morning, attended by a large gathering of neighbors and friends. Mr. Buckle was born in Bavaria, Germany, and came to this country in early life, spending most of the time as a stonemason in Allegany and Garrett counties, where he was always respected as a faithful and useful citizen of his adopted country. The survivors of the deceased are a widow, three daughters, Mrs. James O'Brien, of Meadow Mountain, Mrs. Lloyd Bronneman and Miss Amanda Buckle, of this village, and three sons, O. C. Buckle, one of our village merchants, Charles H. and William Edward Buckle, employees of Jennings Bros., and Lawrence Buckle, of this place, to all of whom is extended sincere sympathy in their hour of bereavement.

Messrs. E. W. Woodward and William Baum, of Jennings, were pleasant business callers in this village a few days ago.

Messrs. C. E. Ellithorp and Asa J. Orendorf, with their wives, were out of town visitors on Sunday.

Mr. Wiley Welling, A. D. Naylor's keen and efficient workman, was in this section last week installing Caloric furnaces. Mr. Welling was accompanied by Mr. Charles Pifer, as his assistant.

Henry B. Wiley and son Dewey returned from Akron, O., last Saturday, having completed the farm work for the fall season on Mr. Wiley's farm near Akron.

Mr. B. Harrison Wiley left here on Friday of last week for Akron, O., where he purposes locating.

Many persons were hindered from attending the fair at Oakland last week by the weather conditions.

Archibald Bittinger, of the Bear Hill settlement, purchased a new Ford last week and proposes to enjoy the fruits of prosperity.

It is reported that Frank Bittinger and Miss Goldy Wilt, of Bear Hill, were quietly but thoroughly married at the parsonage in this village on last Saturday afternoon.

The Bittinger base ball team went to Jennings Sunday afternoon to play a game with the boys of that place, but at this time we cannot give the result of the contest.

Noah Bittinger, of near Jennings, was a pleasant caller among us last week. Mr. Bittinger has been ailing for some months, but now appears to be in much better health.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Orendorf returned last week from a visit to their daughter in Canton, Ohio.

Miss Lulu Hetrick, of the village school, attended the fair at Oakland last Friday.

William Winterburg and Albert Swauger, of Grantsville, were greeting friends here last week.

Mrs. William Weyrick and Mrs. John Lyonette were delayed on their return to Wheeling, W. Va., from Monday until Friday, owing to weather conditions.

By reason of the continued miserable weather which prevailed in this section nearly every day last week, winding up with a slight flurry of snow on Friday afternoon, and the inability of the carnival company which arrived for the fair as late as Wednesday night, the Fair officials decided at a meeting held on Friday afternoon to allow the carnival to complete the erection of their attractions upon the fair grounds and remain throughout the present week. As a result of this arrangement quite a number of people from all parts of the county have been attracted to Oakland every day during the week and they are being afforded entertainment at the carnival grounds.

Miss Dolly Gray Reed, of Terra Alta, was the guest of the Misses McComas at their home on Second street Saturday last.

Mrs. Harper and daughter Miss Mildred Harper, of Grafton, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Falkenstein a few days last week.

Mrs. S. C. Hartley and Mr. Earle S. Hartley, of Meyersdale, Pa., spent Sunday and Monday in Oakland with Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hammond.

The ladies of the Lutheran church of Oakland, desire in this manner to express their thanks for the many donations made the lunch counter during the County Fair. They also wish to extend their thanks to the Fair Association for the consideration extended them.

Bishop Murray, who is always a welcome visitor in Oakland, made his annual visitation to St. Matthew's Parish Sunday last. The vestrymen of the parish met the Bishop informally at the Rectory Saturday night. Sunday morning the Bishop confirmed a class and preached a wonderful sermon. Sunday afternoon he preached at the chapel at Swanton. During his stay here he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Hamill, Jr.

Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Shultz left Oakland Tuesday morning in their automobile for Charlestown, West Va., in which city Mr. Shultz will become pastor of the Center Methodist Episcopal church after having served the people of that denomination in Oakland faithfully and well during the past four years or more. Mr. Shultz leaves the local church in splendid condition, spiritually and financially. During his pastorate he has succeeded in freeing the church property of debt and in addition has collected from the membership more than ten thousand dollars for benevolences and other purposes in which the church as a whole is interested and highly concerned. Mr. and Mrs. Shultz have the best wishes of the people of Oakland, irrespective of denominational fealty, for unbounded success in the years to come.

In another column of The Republican today will be found the official ballot for the special municipal election whereby the legally qualified voters of the town will decide at the election on Monday whether or not to issue bonds for the purpose of buying or building, maintaining and operating a municipal electric light plant for the convenience and use of the citizens of the town. Men and women who are registered and are otherwise qualified to vote at the November election and who are residents of the town, will have the right to participate in this election. The result will mean everything for the future of Oakland. With lights on the streets and in the homes and an additional debt of probably $20,000, or no lights on the streets or in the homes, with no increased burden insofar as municipal debt is concerned, is the main issue and really the only one to be decided. Can Oakland afford to be in darkness? Can Oakland afford to vote additional bonded indebtedness? This last question can be readily answered and in the affirmative if the people who will eventually have this money to raise with which to retire the bonds can have any assurance that none of it will be uselessly expended.

FORDSON

TRADE MARK

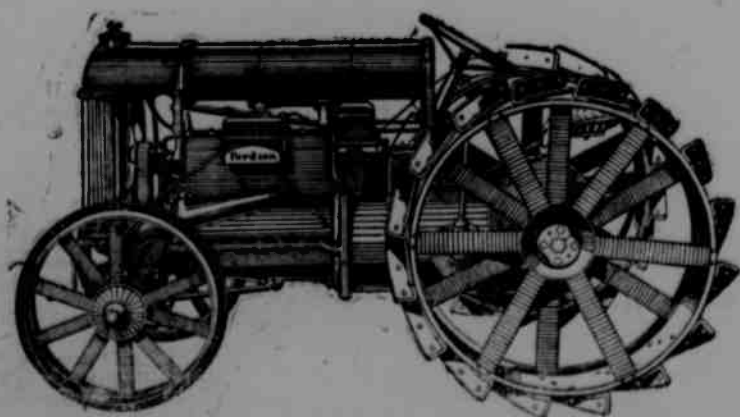

A Fordson Tractor on the farm means more prosperity for the farmer. It doesn't make any difference how you spell that prosperity—whether it is in increased production; whether it is in the saving that comes from a machine over a horse or a mule; whether it comes in a release from the drudgery and all-day and all-night labor on the farm for both man and wife—because the Fordson answers all these problems to the satisfaction of the farmer.

It can't be otherwise. These are the days of progress, and power on the farm is the necessity. It is only a question of what kind of power the farmer is going to have, but no farmer with the facts now before him can question the monetary advantage of machine power over horse and mule power. The Tractor is the farmer's necessity just as much as the sun is the necessity for growing crops.

All that is necessary for a farmer is to know his Fordson Tractor as familiarly as he understands handling a team of horses. He wants to use the same amount of reason and common sense. In the Fordson Tractor is the concentrated power of eighteen horses, and as flexible as the movement of your arm—much more flexible than horse control—and beyond all comparison much more economical both in service and in keep. Then it will do so many things that horses and mules cannot do, and it doesn't eat when idle.

We don't believe there is any question in the mind of any farmer as to the necessity for a Tractor, but he may have some doubts as to what make of Tractor, so that is the reason we are putting this advertisement in this paper to draw his attention to the Fordson Tractor. This is why we put the above arguments before him, and why we now invite him to come into our place of business and view the Fordson Tractor. Let us show him what it has done. Let us prove to him its superiority over any other Tractor. It means more to him than it does to us. When we sell a tractor we make a small profit, but when he buys a Tractor he buys a power that is working for him every day in the year; that is, if he buys a Fordson—we can't speak for the other kinds. Come in!

GRANTSVILLE COMMUNITY FAIR

Third Annual Event Was Successful From Every Viewpoint.

The Grantsville Community Fair, which was held on Thursday and Friday of week before last at the grounds of the fair association, recently purchased and will be maintained as a site for future gatherings of this nature, was the most successful of any fair the association has conducted during its activity now covering three years. Financially, it exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine of its promoters, and socially it was, as in former years, the means of bringing together neighbors, friends and relatives in a community spirit with community interests at heart, and, like one big, happy family, everybody gathered together for work and recreation. For, as everyone knows, it takes work to plan and carry out any kind of entertainment and an agricultural fair is by no means an exception to the rule, as it entails a great amount of not only careful planning, but actual physical labor as well, but our men and our women worked so faithfully and so willingly, each committee doing the work of three ordinary ones, that the result was success.

The livestock exhibit, with G. H. Bedell and S. G. Shaw of the University of Maryland Extension Service as Judges, showed some of the finest cattle, horses, pigs and sheep one could wish to see, while the pens of ducks, chickens, turkeys, geese, pigeons and rabbits were a delight to the eye.

Several attractive refreshment booths were well patronized at all hours, and on Friday music was rendered by a colored orchestra from Frostburg.

One unique distinction in connection with the fair was the utter absence of any kind of amusements. No ferris wheel or games of chance were to be found, it having been the desire of the association to hold the fair purely on the merits of an agricultural and livestock display, with the various other exhibits usually found at such places, and since the gate receipts, proceeds from refreshments, association fees, etc., amounted to the snug sum of $1,100, it can readily be seen that the venture was a success.

The entrance fees were but 25 and 15 cents and certificates of membership were $1.00 for men and 50 cents for ladies. Several hundred dollars were paid out in prizes for other purposes. With the exception of bananas, ice cream, soft drinks, etc., all refreshments, including bread, cake, pies and coffee, were donated, all being home-made and most delicious, it is needless to say.

The display of vegetables of all kinds was magnificent, and in the canned fruit, preserves, jellies, etc., department exclamations of appreciation were heard upon all sides. The Junior Home Makers' Club exhibited some of the finest canned goods ever seen.

In the domestic arts corner there were some beautiful pieces of handwork, including crochet, tatting, embroidery, knitting and other like products. A flag made by Corp. Harry Patton, who was in overseas service, and a cover made by Harrison Wiley, also a former service man, were on display, both being done beautifully in wool. These exhibits were all judged by Miss Rhoe Morgan, Allegany County Home Demonstrator, and Miss Ora Day, district agent from Colledge Park, Md. There were also some photographic exhibits from L. J. Beachy and a number of other things, including renovate and remodeled wearing apparel, quilts, rugs, etc. County Agent J. A. Towler and County Demonstrator Miss Laura Henshaw, assisted all through the fair, and the local committees and officers worked like beavers to make the Third Community Fair the success that it was in every way, even the weather being propitious.

The first registration day for women was held on Tuesday last, 53 names being entered upon the registers, 46 of them being women. Six men registered as Republicans, two as Democrats, and the women were about equally divided, there being 22 Republicans and 23 Democrats, and one who declined to affiliate with either party. About one-half the village women of voting age registered, but there are still several hundred to be heard from in the district, and it is hoped that all women will become awake to their responsibilities as citizens and perform a duty which cannot be conscientiously ignored, by coming out at the succeeding registration days and affiliating themselves with the party of their choice and vote intelligently at the November election. The women of Garrett county have never been known to shirk a duty, with so many important issues at stake they will not do so now.

A reunion was held at the home of Jonas J. Folk on September 15, nearly all his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren being present. Mr. Folk is 83 years of age and lives alone, his wife making her home with one of the children at present. His family consists of the following: Frank and Calvin Folk, Mrs. Hattie Stahl, Mrs.

Thieves recently raided the apiary of L. J. Beachy at Mt. Nebo, uncovering all the hives and turning things topsy-turvy generally. But the miscreants got "stung" for Mr. Beachy had only a few days before removed all the surplus honey except from one hive.

Nobody thinks anything now of going away on a trip

THE railroads were partly responsible. But it wasn't until the automobile reached its present state of development that the old barriers against travel were finally broken down.

II

More people own automobiles today than ever thought of owning a horse and buggy in the old days.

That's because the cost of motoring has been brought within reach of the average citizen's pocketbook.

We look upon it as part of our job to keep it there. If it weren't for the trade of the man with the medium priced car there wouldn't be much in this tire business for us.

III

The less a man has to spend on motoring, the more important it is that his tires should be of first quality.

Any tire is not good enough for the small car owner. He wants a tire that will give him just as much for his money in the small size as the big car man gets for his money in the large size.

IV

In thinking over what kind of tires we would represent in this community we tried to put ourselves in the place of the car owner. And we believe we hit it exactly when we selected U. S. Tires.

Polltiness and the Telephone Girl. A recent issue of the Baltimore Methodist comes to the defense of the utterly defenseless telephone operator in the following article:

We find ourselves in hearty sympathy with the plea of Mr. Earl Godwin, assistant to the president of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, this city. A few days ago before the Advertising Club of Maryland he spoke upon "Public Psychology."

Treatment of the telephone operator was the burden of his speech. We would that his words were hung in flaming light above the telephones of many who forgetful of ethics, urbanity and proprieties of address, speak roughly to operators whom they never saw. We confess to a lack of patience with those who fly into a tempestuous rage when given a wrong number, or the call receives a delayed response. We can reasonably be assured that no well-instructed telephone operator wishes to embarrass any subscriber, or hamper the good service of the telephone company.

Frequently we have been amazed at the rough treatment "over the phone" accorded a young lady who in her position at the other end of the wire was perhaps clothed with all the graces and virtues of true womanhood. We have discovered women bearing down with unparadonable severity upon the "exchange girl." Some men, if such punishment were obtainable, should never be allowed a telephone in home or office. The decencies of business and society should prevent.

A few weeks ago we were in a certain barber shop. The proprietor desired a certain telephone number. There was some delay. The wrong number was given him. His passion led him immediately into violent language. He lost a customer, for we went from that shop registering a purpose never again to allow a man so vituperative and coarse in language to place a razor upon our face.

We consider the remarks of Mr. Godwin perfectly sane and to the point. It is true that "often the girl gets angry at such treatment and leaves her position, with the result that the service is just a little bit worse than before." "During the war," he said, "many operators left to take positions at war-time wages and as a result of many new girls being 'broken in' at one time the service became poor. This made the public ill-tempered, and when it started abusing the girls they left in large numbers, making the service even worse."

It must be a great temptation to a telephone operator "to send as good as she receives" to a hot-tempered individual, and even to render him inferior service in the face of unwarranted abuse. Is not Mr. Godwin's advice worthy to be followed under all circumstances, agreeable and disagreeable?

"Suppose the girl does get your number wrong. If she were sitting at your desk and you dictated a word or number to her and she wrote it incorrectly, you would call her attention to it, straighten the matter out without a ruffle and then forget it. That's because she is seated near you and you see her. But let the average man get a wrong telephone number and he begins to get mad. He is likely to speak to the girl at the other end of the line as he would never dare to speak to her if she were within sight."

PARALYSIS FATAL TO C. H. JENNINGS.

Wealthy Lumberman Died At His Towanda Home Two Weeks Ago.

Cortez H. Jennings, the wealthy lumberman of Towanda, Pa., founder of the town of Jennings, Md., and in whose honor the town as well as the town of Jennings, W. Va., was named, died at his home in Towanda Sept. 12, of paralysis with which he was stricken at the Jennings Hotel at Jennings, Md., July 9, after having driven his car from Towanda to Jennings, a distance of nearly 300 miles, on the previous day.

He was accompanied on that trip by his pastor, the rector of the Episcopal church at Towanda, and was conversing with the reverend gentleman when he received the final stroke. He lost both his sight and the power of speech when stricken but remained conscious and informed his companion of his dilemma by writing on a piece of paper: "I am paralyzed; can't talk or see. Don't telegraph my wife."

Dr. Horatio Dorsey, of Grantsville gave him first aid and Drs. A. H. Hawkins and W. A. Gracie and John E. Logge, of Cumberland, were called in consultation. But medical skill could not restore his palsied nerves. His wife and son were notified and hastened to his bedside. When it became apparent that his malady could not restore his palsied nerves, Cumberland by automobile, about a week after he was stricken, and conveyed thence to his home in a special Pullman car. At his home he lingered until the night of September 12, when his days were numbered.

Mr. Jennings was about 65 years of age. He is survived by his wife, one son, Paul, and one daughter, who is married and lives in New York.

The lumber operations of Jennings were carried on under the firm name of Jennings Bros. The brother who was associated with him in business died by his own hand at Jennings, W. Va., some years ago.

Mr. Jennings was not only a successful business man, but a gentleman of good heart and soul. He inspired the confidence and friendship of his employees and business associates and was highly esteemed by all who had intercourse with him in a business way or socially. He was public-spirited and enterprising and took a lively interest in the various communities in which he had business interests.

Besides his extensive lumber interests in Garrett county, he was president and one of the principal stockholders of the Pennsylvania and Maryland Street Railway and of the First National Bank, of Grantsville, and a leading stockholder of the 20th Century Manufacturing Company, of Baynton. He was also interested in various industrial enterprises in various parts of the country. He sold his lumber interests at Jennings, W. Va., several years ago for $3,000,000 and leaves a large estate.

A Growing Bank Is A Safe Bank.

THERE are many reasons why a growing bank is a safe bank. A growing Bank has the confidence and esteem of the people. Growth indicates life and health. A growing Bank has financial strength and strength means safety in Banking. The growing Bank is in a position to adapt its business to changing conditions and so protect its resources against any possible loss. The large number of depositors that patronize a growing Bank form a safeguard for the Bank and assure positive safety.

OAKLAND WOMEN WERE THE FIRST TO VOTE IN MARYLAND

Bond Issue for Electric Lighting Plant Almost Unanimously Carried.

Women of Oakland have the distinction among the gentler sex of Maryland to be the first in the State to appear at the voting place and cast their ballots for or against an issue demanding the ballot, and this they did at the election held in Oakland on Monday of this week when they voted upon the question whether or not Oakland should issue bonds in the amount of $50,000 for the purpose of buying or building, operating and maintaining a municipal electric light plant with which to illuminate the streets and furnish power and light for domestic and commercial purposes.

There were 292 votes cast at the election, of which the women cast about 50 per cent., and the bonds were carried by an overwhelming majority, the vote being:

For bonds 267

Against bonds 25

The bonding bill, giving the voters of town the right to pass upon the question, was passed at the January session of the General Assembly, and authorizes the Mayor and Council to issue bonds to the amount of $50,000 for the purposes above set forth.

Since the election, however, a new and what may prove to be a solution of the lighting problem with day and night current, has been brought to the attention of the city authorities which may result in the saving of some thousands of dollars to the taxpayers of the town and great convenience to those who have use for power with which to drive machines of all kinds.

Some months ago the Wills mine at Curinth was purchased by some outside capital, presumably the Consolidation Coal company, which concern is now engaged in installing an electric plant at its mine six miles west of town, midway between Terra Alta and Oakland. The Terra Alta people interested themselves in the feasibility of securing light and power from this new source of supply and from good authority it has been learned that if arrangements could be made with both the West Virginia and Maryland municipalities the coal company is willing to increase the capacity of its proposed electric power plant to supply its own needs as well as those of Terra Alta and Oakland. This information was communicated over the telephone Tuesday to one of the Oakland officials by one of the Terra Alta councilmen and therefore its authenticity cannot be questioned.

Should it be possible to make satisfactory arrangements with the coal company to furnish the current as proposed a much vexed and expensive proposition which now confronts Oakland would be readily solved and to the satisfaction of all concerned.

THE DEATH RECORD

MRS. RACHEL M. SCHMIDT

GAME PRESERVE IN GARRETT

The Nicola Holdings of 2890 Acres May Become Best in the Country.

Mr. F. F. Nicola, of Pittsburgh, who recently completed a stone bungalow on the top of the mountain south of Bittinger, where he also owns a large scope of wild land much of which he has turned over to the State for a game preserve and which the State has accepted and posted against trespassers, has made the Conservation Commission a proposition that may in time restock the mountain about the Nicola property with game of all kinds. Mr. Nicola has proposed and agreed to contribute a large sum of money to assist the State in placing within the confines of the preserve, such as turkeys, pheasants and deer, as well as other kinds of game if the State will lend its assistance and afford the game the protection necessary. In this event Mr. Nicola, according to a statement given The Republican yesterday by one of the officers of the Garrett County Game and Fish Protective Association that he will add to the game preserve of 1500 acres already set aside an additional acreage of 1380 acres adjoining.

Sent to Sykesville.

Robert Hoyer, aged thirty years, who was born and reared on a farm near Sang Run, coming to Oakland two or three years ago, where he purchased a portion of the Charles Shaffer farm, located about a mile west of Oakland along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, where he continued to reside with his family until about three weeks ago when he bought the Brown Brothers restaurant on Railroad street and moved to town, became violently insane on Monday when served with papers by the state officers alleging fraud in the purchase of the restaurant property and the disposition of the goods and wares contained therein. His condition was such that he had to be restrained and was committed to jail on Saturday by Justice West where he was kept confined until Tuesday morning when he was sent to the Maryland Hospital for the Insane at Sykesville.

Property Changes Ownership.

Recently several valuable properties in Oakland passed into the hands of new owners and as a result Oakland will have additional citizens.

On last Friday Mr. Ezra B. Wolfe, one of Garrett county's most energetic and successful farmers, purchased the Porter property at the corner of Second and Water streets, and will move to Oakland with his family in a short time from his farm located near Cranesville in District No. 6.

Mr. A. Totten Matthews has purchased the Lowenstein hotel property on Oak street, adjoining the Methodist church which is now occupied by Mr. S. H. Jackson and family and Mr. George Sprague and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Walter have recently sold the old Pfeiffer property located in the east end of town to Mrs. Elizabeth Shank and her daughter Miss Mary Castold.

Mr. George Helbig, who advertised his farm located near Oakland, for sale in the columns of The Republican two or three weeks ago, disposed of the property on Monday to Mr. James Welch and son, who have been operating the Offutt farm at the State line for the past several years. The Helbig farm is splendidly located and is a good investment for the new owners who will take possession at once. What Mr. Helbig's future plans are since he sold the farm have not been made known.

Fined $100 by Local Justice.

A man who gave his name as Joseph Fries, was taken before Magistrate West last Friday charged with illegally operating a game of chance on the fair grounds in Oakland. Fries was fined $100 and costs, besides having to refund to a man named Kamp the sum of $61 he had won from him and the sum of $40 he had won from "Sport" Adams, of Crellin.

WARREN G. HARDING Your Kind of Man and—

The Next President of the United States

The Next President.

As certain as anything can be, in this world, is the election of Senator Harding.

To readers of this newspaper, the many family groups to which it comes a regular welcome visitor, Senator Harding's face shines as that of a friend.

Senator Harding, your next President, is your kind of man. You see him, hear a few words, and you know it.

He was born in a small town, has lived there all his life, lives there now, and will live there again when he leaves the White House with his work for the country done.

How He Lives.

He lives as you live, simply, in the old fashioned American way.

The main residence street in any little American town, boasts half a dozen homes more elaborate than Senator Harding's, and many as good.

Millions of men, believing in this country, devoted to its government, SATISFIED with the UNITED STATES, believe that the United States is able to deal with its own problems, and settle its own questions free from outside assistance or interference.

Those millions of men are men of the same sort as Senator Harding.

What Kind of Man.

Harding is a big American in physical size, thanks to vigorous farming ancestors. He is a big American also in heart, in understanding, in sympathy and in simplicity.

You read his speeches and know that he does not imagine himself created to tell all the world what to do. He believes in, and he understands the American people, his friends, the citizens of his own little town, Marion, Ohio, and the dwellers in thousands of other towns like it.

Your Servant, No Autocrat.

After you have elected him, you will find in Senator Harding an earnest, conscientious, straight thinking servant of the people, not an autocrat, but a man respecting the traditions of American government, and the Constitution of the United States.

Senator Harding understands that the people will elect him to be President of the United States, not President of the whole world. He will know that he is employed by the PEOPLE of this country to look after the interests of THIS country.

Born on a farm, living all his life close to farmers, he knows and sympathizes with the problems of the farm. Living in the average American way, in the average American small town, he knows the problems of the average American. He understands the printer he employs, and he knows their trade and sets type as they do.

His Ambition.

Senator Harding has no ambition to be called a political superman, or RULER of America. It is his ambition to be known as a good American, a faithful servant of those that trust him.

National politics are discussed this year less than at any election since the republic was founded. Why? Because men do not discuss, to any great extent, that which is DEFINITELY SETTLED.

And this national election is definitely settled as you read this. YOU know it.

But it is important that demonstration of the popular will should be of the most overwhelming kind. Therefore the good citizen will do what he can to increase the vote for Harding, should there be any doubtful votes within reach of his voice.

It is almost ludicrously difficult to find a man or woman that intends to vote the Democratic ticket this year.

But if you do find one, show him or her this picture of the next President. And express in your own way the reasons that inspire you to approve and vote for him.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE

MR. PINCHOT FOR HARDING

Warm Personal Friend of Roosevelt Is Ardent Harding Supporter.

The Republican which has published many letters in the past two or three years from Mr. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, former forestry chief under the late President Roosevelt, was recently in receipt of the following, and there being so much contained in the letter that is of highest importance to our readers, that we publish it in its entirety:

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 8, 1920.
Mr. Benj. H. Sincell, Editor,
The Republican,
Oakland, Maryland.

Dear Mr. Sincell:—So many former Progressives have asked me why I am for Harding that perhaps your readers might be interested in my reasons. Here they are:

I am a follower of Theodore Roosevelt, alive or dead. While he was here I worked with him and supported him. Now, that he has gone to his reward, I stand for the principles and work for the things for which he worked and stood. I am a Roosevelt Republican.

Had he lived, my choice for the Republican nominee and for the next President would have been Theodore Roosevelt. But only the spirit of Roosevelt is with us still. The Republican Convention has perforce chosen another candidate. I cannot have what I wanted. That, however, is no reason for throwing my vote away.

Senator Harding and I have opposed each other in politics. He was regular in 1912, while I followed Roosevelt; and I can never be glad enough that I did. He has said things about Roosevelt which I deeply resented; I have said things about Harding which he must have resented just as deeply, and I have not forgotten. He has many friends who are not mine, and there is not a little in his record that I regret. On the other hand, I find deep in his confidence men whom I trust; what I like least in his record is farthest back, and what he has said about Forestry, Conservation and Agriculture at Marion is sound and right.

Senator Harding was not made to my order, but he is by no means the Reactionary I thought him. He is a Republican Regular, who supports what his party agrees on and acts with the majority. There is nothing autocratic about him. Under him there will be no one-man rule at Washington. Congress will represent not the President, but the people, and the Government will be American again.

Harding is no superman, but simple, earnest, sincere and human, best thought of where best known. Men who know him and on whose judgment I rely, say he is slow to decide, but having decided, stands like a stone wall. What I saw at Marion confirms it. I liked Harding because he did not look me straight in the eye, and unmistakably meant what he said. And I liked Mrs. Harding even better.

I want to see Harding elected not only because I have come to think well of him, but because he belongs to the party of Lincoln and Roosevelt and because I have had my fill of the Democracy at Washington. We must have in charge men and a party who are running the government and in the White House a President, not a boss.

Cox is in bad company. The liquor men are for him. He stands with the man who refused to prepare when he knew war was sure to come and therefore sent against the German machine gun thousands of young Americans untrained, or half-trained, and without artillery support.

Cox stands for Palmer, who promised to reduce the cost of living and has conspicuously failed, but for political reasons let the liquor traffic go on; who denied the rights of free speech and free assembly; who has sent hundreds of people in defiance of the law he has sworn to enforce; and turned over to the Southern Pacific Railroad without a struggle five hundred million dollars worth of oil lands in California to which it had no right. That Palmer was seriously considered for the nomination at San Francisco shows how low the Democrats have fallen. There may have been more unfaithful public servants than Mitchell Palmer, but not many.

Cox stands for Wilson. No sooner was he nominated than he hastened to the White House and authorized the statement that there was perfect accord in all things between Wilson and himself. Nothing is more important than to have done with the Wilson clan and the only way to do that is to vote against Cox.

The people of the whole earth have learned at bitter cost that what Wilson says is no indication of what he will do. What he says will be his words and his actions do not match and that to have his own way is more important in his eyes than the safeguarding of America, the welfare of nations or the saving of California.

If a man believes in Wilson, argument is useless. As for me, I hold that it is time to finish with all that smacks of Wilson, with the inefficiency, extravagance and secretiveness, with the National and International blundering and with the impudent assumption of wisdom and righteousness beyond human. The only way to repudiate Wilson is to vote against Cox.

Finally, Cox is too reckless in statement, too shifty in argument, too much like a man running for a little office in a little town. His speeches shout it aloud—Cox is too small to be President. Harding's speeches could have come only from a man big enough to handle the job.

Sincerely yours,
GIFFORD PINCHOT.

PAGE "MR. FACING BOTH WAYS."

The national headquarters of the Democrats at New York joyously issues the information that Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, will at once take the stump for Cox and Roosevelt. The Senator is a man of notable forensic ability and an impressive personality and has always been an effective figure on the stump.

Coincidentally with this announcement from headquarters Senator Gore gave to the reporters of New York this very frank and succinct statement of his position on what many of the Democratic leaders hold to be the paramount issue of the campaign:

"I believe now as I have always believed, that when the San Francisco convention drafted the league of nations as its leading issue, it drafted disaster. I believe that the covenant of the league of nations as drafted at Versailles and urged by the President, is a lien on the life of every young man in America. I went to my political grave on that very issue. I might have been nominated if I had yielded on that issue, but I refused to yield, even to bring about my own re-nomination."

About the time the Senator shall actually get upon the stump it is promised that President Wilson will write a few letters in support of Governor Cox. May we not anticipate with confidence that he will indicate his gratification with the broad and catholic spirit that enables the campaign committee to exploit at once the Gore antagonism to the league, while warmly upholding the President in his whole-hearted devotion to it.

And the yearning of the people for precise and trustworthy explanation of this engrossing international problem is still further to be satisfied by the presentation of Mr. George Creel as the President's own knight and doughty champion on the field of honor. Shall we say that it is evidence of desperation on the part of the Democratic management that Mr. Creel should thus have been summoned from his well-earned retirement to engage in the tourney? Does the situation require a certain "elaboration" lest the Democracy lose heart?

These questions must answer themselves as the campaign progresses. However, the Democratic National Committee merits applause for its effort in the cause of popular education. It really should send out its spellbinders in pairs. Senators Gore and Hitchcock; Senators Reed and former Chairman Cummings; Senator-elect "Tom" Watson and Secretary "Joe" Daniels—if the Democratic position on the league could be presented coincidentally by these shining lights and official spokesmen the public mind might be sufficiently dazed to do almost any eccentric act on election day.

WILSON WANTS SECOND VERDICT, OF COURSE.

On October 24, 1918, two weeks before the congressional elections, President Wilson issued a statement from the White House addressed to "My Fellow Countrymen," in which he said among other things:

"If you have approved of my leadership and want me to continue to be your unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad, I earnestly beg that you express yourselves unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both the Senate and House of Representatives."

"I am your servant and will accept your judgment without cavil."

This appeal made the issue. The Republicans promptly and squarely met it. The elections were held. A Democratic Senate was made Republican; a Democratic House was made Republican. Many Democratic state administrations went down in defeat.

The response from the people was indeed "unmistakable," as Mr. Wilson had asked that it should be; he was no longer the "unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad;" on that naked issue the partisan majority in both houses of Congress that had merely followed the executive will was retired from control; in its place there was substituted a majority pledged to restore the legislative branch of our government to its proper functions and sense of responsibility as set forth in our Federal Constitution.

But what effect did this verdict, which he so earnestly sought, have upon President Wilson's course? In his appeal he gave the people to understand that an adverse judgment by them would greatly affect him. He said:

"My power to administer the great trust assigned to me by the Constitution would be seriously impaired should your judgment be adverse, and I must frankly tell you so because so many critical issues depend upon your verdict."

"The return of a Republican majority to either House of Congress would, moreover, be interpretative on the other side of the water as a repudiation of my leadership. . . . If in these critical days it is your wish to sustain me with undivided minds, I beg you will say so in a way which it will not be possible to misunderstand."

No man in public position ever asked so explicitly for approval of his course, or had his request so emphatically refused, as in this letter of October 24, 1918 and in the verdict of the people on November 5 following.

Did Mr. Wilson give heed to this refusal?

Not the slightest! Remember his words: "I am your servant and will accept your judgment without cavil."

Did he? He did not. Thirteen days after election he issued the amazing statement from the White House that he was going to Paris personally in order to interpret to the world his "fourteen points;" on December 2 he told Congress that it was his "paramount duty" to go abroad, but he added:

"I shall be in close touch with you and with affairs on this side of the water, and you will know all that I do."

"I shall not be inaccessible. The cables and the wireless will render me available for any counsel or service you may direct to me."

Did he keep "in touch" with Congress? Was he accessible to Congress—or even his associates on the Peace Commission in Paris? Were the cable and wireless open to render him available? Before sailing for Paris he took over all the cables and wireless by executive order. They were Bureauized and not a word passed over them that revealed America, or its Congress, to the nations of the world, except as Mr. Wilson interpreted them; not a word came to America from the nations abroad except as Mr. Wilson decreed. Finally, a majority of Senators, among them Warren G. Harding, signed an open letter of protest against the League of Nations programme that Mr. Wilson was forcing through the peace conference, and put the conferees in Paris on notice that Mr. Wilson was not an "unembarrassed spokesman" for his country.

Now Mr. Wilson issues another campaign statement to "My Fellow Countrymen." Again he reviews the critical situation that will follow a failure by the people to endorse the purposes and course he would pursue.

"This election is to be a re-nu-national referendum," he says, "the determination of a great policy. . . . is to be referred to the people themselves for a sovereign mandate to their representatives. They are to instruct their own government what they wish done."

But that is precisely what the people did in the 1918 elections, at Mr. Wilson's direct request—and he paid not the slightest heed to their verdict! The President now asks for a judgment on these two points:

"Do you want your country's honor vindicated and the treaty of Versailles ratified? Do you in particular approve of the League of Nations as organized and empowered in that treaty?"

We do not know how Senator Harding will meet this challenge, but the Democratic presidential candidate and every Democratic candidate for Senator and Congressman should be compelled in advance definitely to declare that he will abide by the verdict of the people next month on these two points—that he will abandon the League of Nations "as organized and empowered in that treaty," if the people so direct; that he will not follow the Wilson example of 1918 and ignore an adverse judgment.

Married.

Harned—Marquis—Miss Naomi Marquis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Marquis, 49 Davidson street, Cumberland, formerly of Oakland, having moved from here about a year ago, and Mr. Harold H. Harned, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Harned, of Oakland, were married Monday afternoon at the parsonage of Centre Street Methodist Episcopal church in Cumberland by the pastor, the Rev. Joseph Dawson. Miss Helena Marquis, sister of the bride, was the only attendant. The wedding was to have taken place on Tuesday, but upon the arrival of the groom-to-be in Cumberland Monday, it was decided to steal a march upon the friends of the couple. Accompanied by her sister, Miss Marquis and her prospective husband journeyed to the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, Cumberland, where the necessary license was procured, and thence to the parsonage where the ceremony was performed. Mr. and Mrs. Harned left Cumberland Tuesday evening for a tour of two weeks of the eastern cities. On their return they will reside in Oakland where the groom is associated with his father in conducting the Oakland Pharmacy. Both the bride and groom have many friends in Oakland who will join with the Republican in wishing them unbounded happiness and prosperity.

Hessen—Carney—Mr. Alexander Hessen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Hessen, of Keyser, formerly of Oakland, and Miss Florence Carney, of Oakland, were married on Saturday at St. Peter's Catholic church by the pastor, Rev. James E. Connell. After a honeymoon trip extending over a week to New York the young couple returned to Oakland on last Friday. They will reside at Keyser where Mr. Hessen is employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

Criswell—Getty—Miss Margaret A. Getty, daughter of Mrs. Sara Roberta Getty, of Grantsville, and Mr. Engle Evans Criswell, of Wheeling, West Va., were married at the Lutheran church in Grantsville on Saturday, October 2, in the presence of a very few relatives. The young couple were both employed by the Verona Milling Co., at Morgantown, where they will reside.

The following news note of interest was taken from the Huntington (W. Va.) Herald-Dispatch of last Thursday morning:

Jones—Bowman—The wedding of Miss Maude Bowman, of this city, and Mr. E. Ray Jones, of Oakland, Md., will be learned with interest. The wedding took place at high noon yesterday at the home of the bride's mother, day at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Tacy J. Bowman, of Washington avenue, where Rev. John L. Jenkins, pastor of Johnson Memorial church, read the ceremony in the presence of the immediate family. The bride was attired in a smartly tailored suit of dark blue with accessories of gray. Her corsage bouquet was of pink rose buds and lilies of the valley. She is a young woman of unusual charm and has attained marked popularity since coming to this city about twelve years ago. She is a sister of Stuart H. Bowman, one of the best known business men of the county, and she is a prominent member of the Current History Club. The groom is a widely known resident of Garrett county, Maryland, of which he has served as prosecuting attorney. Immediately after the wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Jones left in their car for Pittsburgh, Pa., and following a motor trip of several weeks in the east, they will reside in Oakland, Md.

Riley—O'Brien—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. O'Brien, Oak street, on Tuesday evening at seven o'clock when their daughter, Miss Nina Olive, became the bride of Mr. Jasper W. Riley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Riley, of near Mountain Lake Park. The bride wore a handsome gown of white satin and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and carnations.

Miss Bertie Spiker, a cousin of the groom, was bridesmaid. She wore a gown of pink satin and a corsage bouquet of pink roses. Mr. Randall Spoerlein was best man. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Lorena Falkenstein and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Archibald Moore. Following the ceremony refreshments were served and immediately thereafter Mr. and Mrs. Riley, accompanied by Miss Spiker and Mr. Spoerlein, motored to Cumberland. At that place the bridal couple took a train for eastern cities. Upon their return they will reside on the H. B. Harvey farm near Oakland, which was recently purchased by Mr. Riley. Those present at the wedding were Rev. and Mrs. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Riley and two children, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Dixon, Mrs. David Durst, Mrs. L. L. Walter, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Spiker and family, Mrs. Wm. Thayer and family, Mrs. Wm. Beckman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Paugh and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Falkenstein and Misses Falkenstein, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. O'Brien, Misses Virginia Scott, Ruth Welling, Ethel Hillcoy, Messrs. Merritt Harvey, Blaine and Carl Newjille, Oliver Smouse and Randall Spoerlein.

The Cumberland City Council has agreed to the increased rate schedule of the West Virginia and Maryland Gas Company on the promise of having a sufficient flow of natural gas in the winter. The rate goes from 50 to 72 cents per 1000 feet during the months of April, May, June, July, August, September and October. During November, December, January and February and March the rate will be 72 cents per 1000 for the first 8000 feet; 82 cents per 1000 for the next 7000 feet, and 92 cents per 1000 for all in excess of 15,000 cubic feet. L. Dolling Company, investment bankers of Columbus, Ohio, with branch offices in a number of the larger cities. The Dolling Company handle securities of going industrial concerns only which pays the investor not less than 7 per cent. The concern was established nearly twenty years ago and in that time not a single investor in any of the securities handled by the concern has suffered a loss. The Dolling Company's representative here will be glad to take up the subject with any interested party who has money to invest that will bring good returns.

Engines of the Mallet type are now hauling trains of 50 cars from Fairmont through Oakland to Kevers, a distance of over 100 miles. The gradual improvement by the Baltimore and Ohio Company of the tracks and bridges between these terminal points has made it possible for trains hauled by engines of this type to be taken the entire distance without changing engines or crews. Formerly loaded coal cars were hauled into Grafton in trains of 50 cars each, pulled by two drag engines, the cars then assembled and hauled east to Kevers by the Mallets. Now a single Mallet can haul 50 loaded cars direct from Fairmont to Grafton, with the usual helpers on the Newburg grade from Hardman to Tunnelton and on the Cranberry grade from M. & K. Junction to Terra Alta. At Mountain Lake Park these trains get a third helper up to Altamont. There is also other economies resulting in the elimination of switching and making up of trains and changing engines and crews at Grafton.

FORDSON

TRADE MARK

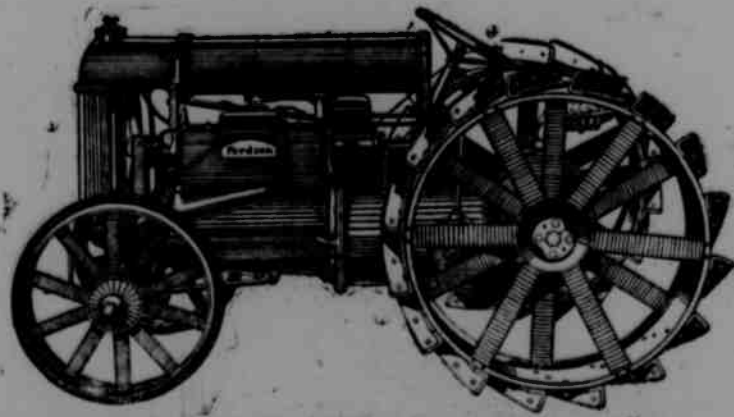

There is every reason in the world why every farmer should buy a Fordson Tractor, while there is not a single reason in the world why a farmer should not buy a Fordson Tractor.

In the claims we make for the Fordson Tractor as being the superior farm Tractor, there is nothing of boasting. Our claims are based upon demonstrated facts. In every sensible test that has been made (and we don't believe in any jockeying or technical tests) but in the real common sense work on the farm—the work the Tractor was intended to accomplish—we say, in all such tests the Fordson has stood head and shoulders above all competing Tractors. And this is best proven in the fact that while there are about three hundred thousand farm Tractors in use in the United States today, and while Tractors have been sold to farmers for twenty years, and while the Fordson Tractor has only been on the market two years, more than one-third of all the Tractors in use in the United States are Fordson Tractors.

Now you can't upset a fact. You can't back away from an established truth, and there it is—out of three hundred thousand Tractors, one hundred thousand are Fordsons, and there are probably some fifty different makes of Tractors on the market. Just let your common sense consider these facts. "Figs are not plucked from thistle bushes, nor plums from thorn trees."

The Fordson Tractor has the necessary power. It is economical in operation. It is flexible in control and operation. It is simple in design, and it is sturdily built of the best iron and steel. It is the product of the genius of Henry Ford, and it wasn't placed on the market until Henry Ford had tested it, and tested it, and tested it, before he asked the farmers to buy it. It is no idle faith that in the Fordson Tractor Henry Ford has given to mankind one of the greatest benefits which has ever come to civilized man.

Now we solicit every farmer to buy one or more Fordsons. Come in and see them. Come in and let us tell you more than we can in an advertisement. Let us demonstrate to you. Let us put it to every test that you ask. The Tractor is just as necessary for the farmer as water is in the house. Come in! Look over the Fordson. Test it. Don't take any chances. Don't experiment. Supply your farm with the Tractor of established value.

COX UNPOPULAR IN HOME TOWN

Charles Adams, Former Wheelingite, Discusses Situation in Dayton.

A dispatch published in one of the eastern papers under date of the 3rd inst., says:

Charles Adams, who formerly lived in Wheeling, but now resides in Dayton, Ohio, and owns coal interests in the Tug River field in southern West Virginia, was a caller at Ohio county Republican headquarters yesterday. Mr. Adams was delighted at the reception Wheeling and the upper Ohio Valley gave Senator and Mrs. Warren G. Harding Tuesday.

Mr. Adams talked quite interestingly of the contrast in sentiment for Senator Harding and Governor Cox in Ohio.

"If you want to see how popular Governor Cox is," he said, "just go to Dayton, Ohio. I venture to say that there are ten thousand Harding pictures in windows in the business district of Dayton, Governor Cox's own home town.

"Adam Shonts, a multi-millionaire, of Dayton, was one of Cox's supporters in the Ohio delegation to the Democratic convention in San Francisco and worked unceasingly for the Ohio governor at Frisco. When the Ohio delegation returned, and the Dayton delegation stepped from the train at home, Shonts inquired for Governor Cox and was told that the Governor had gone to Washington for a conference with President Wilson. Shonts turned to the delegation and said:

"Boys, you know what I've done for Jimmy Cox? Well, from this time on, I'll do just that much against him. I want a candidate for President who is big enough to lead his party with out running to Washington to ask Woodrow Wilson what he should do."

"From that day to this, Adam Shonts' offices have been absolutely closed to politics, and he is doing absolutely nothing for Governor Cox."

On the other hand, Mr. Adams said, Dayton is planning a tremendous reception to be given Senator and Mrs. Harding soon. The city has organized a splendid musical organization, he said, known as the Mrs. Warren G. Harding Glee Club, and it will play a big part in the reception. Dayton is strong for the distinguished Marion citizen, he said, and looks Mrs. Harding in the very highest esteem.

MOTIVE EVERYTHING.

May I speak of the motive of avareice?

That was what decided Ananias and his wife in their effort to cheat the church, insult God and at the same time appear well in the community. Judas, too, fell to the same temptation when he betrayed his Master for thirty pieces of silver. It led Gehazi to practice fraud, but it brought upon him the leprosy of Naaman.

The worldly motive influences many, as is illustrated by Peter rebuking Christ, but he was rebuked by the Lord's answer: "Get thee behind me, Satan."

Paul gives us the evidences of it in Rom. 8:5, when he says, "They that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the spirit, the things of the spirit." This spirit is sure to entangle us in wrong relations. "No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier." It neutralizeth faith. Jno. 12:42. "Among the chief rulers also many believed on Him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess Him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue. For they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God." It hinders us leading us to make excuses that are trivial, foolish and wicked. Witness the parable of the great supper, where, in answer to the invitation to come, one said he had bought a piece of ground and so could not come; another had bought oxen and must need try them. A wise man tries them before he purchases. Another had married a wife. The fact is the wives as a rule are more willing to do their duty than men when it comes to religion.

The motive of ambition is another, and Absalom fell to this when he would have taken the kingdom from his father. Bonaparte is a striking illustration of this. He could scarcely plead sincerity. It led him into extremes of cruelty and an utter disregard for the rights and feelings of others.

The mercenary motive is quite common. It led Jacob to cheat Esau out of his rightful blessing.

A father and son lived in a new settlement. The older man invited ministers to visit his neighborhood and entertained them. He opened his doors for religious meetings. The son advised against it—it would break him up. The father took no notice of the objections, but was prospered in his course. The son seeing that, concluded he would try it—he would get rich by it. Some give with that purpose in view. Right giving is rewarded. It is done in love.

An Arab of the desert found a spring of sweet water. He thought it was worthy of a monarch, so he filled his leathern bottle and traveled a long distance to the caliph where he laid his humble offering at the feet of the sovereign. The caliph did not despise the little gift brought with so much trouble. He ordered some poured into a cup, he tasted and thanking the Arab with a smile, directed a reward to be presented to him. Courtiers flocked around to taste the wonderful water. He forbade them to touch a drop. After the Arab had gone the caliph explained his motives. During the journey of the Arab the water in the bottle had become impure and distasteful, but it was an offering of love and as such, said the caliph, "I received it with pleasure, but I knew, that had I suffered another to partake of it, he would not have concealed his disgust and therefore I forbade you to touch it lest the heart of the poor man should have been wounded. His motive was love." When we bring to God our offerings polluted by sin, He looketh on the heart and judgeth accordingly. He rewards us only as a just God can.

It is wonderful that he who cannot look upon sin with any degree of toleration, who even charges His angels with folly, is pleased to accept those who come to Him in the name and merits of His Son. He maketh such pure in heart that they may see God. To all He offers the cleansing properties of that blood which shall purify our hearts.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 17.

Jesus Begins His Ministry. Matt. 4:12-25. Read Luke 4:14-32; 5:1-11; John 2:4.

Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. Matt. 4:17.

THE TRAVELING TEACHER.

Christianity has ever been a marching faith. Its Founder did not sit down and wait for folks to appear but sought the crowds and individuals wherever they were to be found. Open doors are never wide enough to waken desire among the dead. It was late in the year 29 or early in 30 when Christ heard the call at the Jordan. Returning to the company of John some of the latter's disciples joined the Master at the beginning of the long movement that has girt the world. Naturally the first climax came in Judea at the Jerusalem Passover with its cleansed Temple and the visit of Nicodemus. For a day he was the town talk and then the excitement passed except that the priests watched warily this new claimant to leadership. But the settled hate toward Rome or members of any opposing faction refused to yield readily to the wooing note in this new ministry and kept the path that filled 300 crosses a night in the last bloody orzy that engulfed Jerusalem. Germany could not understand the United States nor Ireland, England, the brain filled with one idea is practically closed to its opposite. There is no common ground for hate and love. So the nation's heart rejected its great Lover. Quiet months followed in which there was constant movement along the Jordan and the slow study of the temper of the crowds until the day came when there was the starting story of the arrest of John. Jesus turned toward Galilee passing thru Samaria and stopping at Sychar where there was ready response but seemingly no sufficient foundation upon which to rear any abiding structure. It would have compromised the entire mission of our Lord to have called a group of Samaritan disciples. Steadily the march northward continued until the home town came into view and Mary welcomed her Son. And on the Sabbath the familiar home church was filled to hear this fellow-townsmen who had stirred Jerusalem and had now succeeded the great John as spokesman for the people. But they could not hear Heaven's voice thru the familiar tones of the village Carpenter. It is harder to see God in flower and sun, garden and lake than in San Francisco earthquake or the World War. That He should assume to be the Messiah roused the ire and brought almost a tragedy. Once more was His Messiahism rejected. Thus Capernaum became headquarters for His ministry.

THE CALLED MEN.

In the busy heart of the commercial world Christ found the men who were to shift the balance of civilization. Perhaps the bulk of America's Christian leadership was called from the farm, in India it was the sturdy outcastes, in China it has been the student class; where would Christ turn today in His search? Provincial Nazareth and privileged Jerusalem are to us no more as then. Where the busy tides of life swept and minds were alert and hands busy He took His stand and centered His activities. Old acquaintances were many for the months had brought numerous contacts that gave a list of prospects now to be hunted down. A number had been intimates like Simon, Andrew and John. Now was to be begun the building of an organization and careful choosing was to be made among the materials at hand. He had settled upon these fisher-folk of the lesson and began the closer movement by borrowing Simon's boat. The talk to the crowd was directed at the men more than at the mass. When they were ready the crowd was dismissed and he turned directly to their business and using language that they could well understand assumed command in their own chosen field of industry. They had been accustomed to listen to His word as a Teacher but if their whole allegiance was to be secured there must be the willingness to allow Him to direct all their activities. To share a song book and share a bargain, to shout with the lin and curse with the hand is never the life the Lord calls. He must be the acknowledged head of all the activities. To have refused the note was to have lost the discipleship. If He would direct their business it should be His to direct however unwise seemed His direction.

THE CONVINCED MEN.

All their experience was against the command to launch out into the deep. Day was no time for deep fishing and not a single fish had stirred the waters all night. They chuckled to themselves as they listened to this perfectly wonderful Friend of theirs whose word stirred their deepest feelings attempting to direct a business about which He knew nothing. "Never-the-less" how ever marked the confidence born of their conquests in other fields; they would let Him try His hand. Friends these were worthy of the Carpenter. They disbelieved but their loyalty was unwavering. Out shot the boat under the strong stroke of vigorous arms. Down went the net into the rippling sea. Certainly skill backed the landman's word to the limit. He should have all His chance with no failure due to lack of cooperation by them. Suddenly every float went under as the net sagged with its weight of finny silver. The other boat put out from land and both could scarce make shore with their burden. Jesus had made good. Utterly convinced by this incursion into their own chosen field of mastery they accepted a new stage of relationship with this Man who was Master where they had thought Him weak.

THE CONVERTED MEN.

These men had counted it a great thing to be friends of Jesus. He had been welcomed to their homes, to their company on many a march, to their utmost loyalty and now they were ready for a further advance to the acceptance of Him as Master in directing the affairs of their lives. Later they would crown Him Lord. Now they were to be shifted to another occupation that would carry all their old skill along, but would be in another medium. From fishermen they were to be converted into fishers of men. Convinced in mind they surrendered their will to be placed at His discretion in a field of service as new to them as the water was to Him. He knew what they could do with their lives and they would permit His picking away from the old, familiar boats and nets. Home ties would be broken in the great adventure, risks were to be assumed, but He was calling and they were eager to obey. And they set forth upon their conquest of the ages all unconscious of their high destiny but led to the Man who had touched hearts, convinced minds and now claimed hands for service.

185 audiences tried it this way

MOST people know that the musical enjoyment which they get out of a phonograph depends upon one thing. That thing is the phonograph's realism.

This picture shows the best way to test a phonograph's realism. Miss Betsy Lane Shepherd, the famous soprano, is standing beside the New Edison, and singing in direct comparison with the New Edison's RE-CREATION of her voice.

185 audiences, aggregating more than 100,000 people, have actually heard this comparison. None could distinguish between her living voice and its RE-CREATION.

This is one of the phenomenal records of realism. The New Edison holds all other records of realism, too, because no other phonograph attempts this comparison-test—or could sustain it.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul!"

You try it this way

—the way we use in our store!—the Realism Test! Test the New Edison's Realism against the pleasure you know music can bring.

Tell us what kind of voice or instrument gives you truest musical enjoyment. Listen while we play your favorite on the New Edison. The Realism Test will enable you to gauge whether the New Edison's RE-CREATION gives you all of this enjoyment.

This is your test! It will help you determine what the New Edison's Realism means, in terms of your own musical enjoyment.

Ask for it! The "Personal Favorites" Realism Test.

Another thing to ask about is our Budget Plan. It disposes of the money question, in a way that will appeal to your common-sense, and to your pocketbook.

Warning About Silos.

Deaths from carbon dioxide gas generated in silos has caused a warning to be sent out to farmers of the danger of becoming gassed during the filling of silos. Large amounts of carbon dioxide are produced in the silo from the green crop and may collect in dangerous quantities if conditions become favorable. To prevent such accumulation of the gas the door should be left open as long as possible. Men should not stay in the silo when the blower is not running. If work has been interrupted for any length of time, workers should not again enter the silo until the blower has been running for a few minutes. This removes the dangerous gasses.

"We could not possibly have taken this action unless we felt thoroughly justified in anticipating reduced costs of materials, against which conditions our companies have made provision," said Mr. John N. Willys.

in this industry than prior to the war. "After two months of personal investigation on conditions abroad, I am firmly of the opinion that this country cannot hope to develop a healthy business and be able to compete with foreign markets, unless we re-establish merchandise selling prices more nearly on a par with conditions existing prior to the war."

SWANTON

A crowd of young folks from Kitzmiller and the Misses Bray, of Swanton, had a delightful time Sunday rambling over the hills in search of chestnuts. It was understood that a party from Swanton was to join them but after waiting the allotted time and they failed to appear they decided to go on by themselves. Near the Sharpless home the lunch cloth was spread and while the girls arranged the catables the boys took one of the cars and hied away to Vindex after ice cream and when they returned all enjoyed a delicious lunch. Not many chestnuts were gathered but all had a jolly good time.

Mrs. Iva Bray is spending a few days with her parents. Mr. J. C. Carder, of Wilson, was a guest of B. T. Bray on Sunday. Digging potatoes and cutting corn seems to be the order of the day. Mrs. J. R. Thomas spent the weekend with her mother at Westernport. Sunday school every Sunday in Anderson Chapel at 2:45 P. M., to which everybody is welcome. Mrs. B. T. Bray was a Keyser visitor on Monday. Miss Edna Ashby spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Grotfeldt.

Mr. Charles Barkman and two children are spending this week at the home of Mr. Samuel Barkman.

The women of this section went to Oakland in large numbers to register and at the election next month their influence and voting strength will be felt.

The query here is, what caused the Republican wagon to stop on its way to town one day last week.

Many of the people from this part of the county attended the carnival in Oakland last week.

Howard W. Showalter Pardoned.

Howard W. Showalter, a banker of Fairmont, W. Va., who was sentenced to serve five years in federal prison in 1917 for misapplication of national bank funds, was pardoned a few days ago by President Wilson. Showalter was first vice-president and executive head of the First National Bank at Fairmont. Washington friends who interceded for him said that the President promptly granted a pardon when he came into possession of the facts which showed he was "absolutely innocent." He had been out on bond since conviction pending decision as to an appeal and was to begin his sentence in a few days.

BLOOD IS FUEL TO THE BODY.

Pumped Through the System by the Heart it Sustains the Muscles and Tissues.

PEPTO-MANGAN HELPS BLOOD

Keep the Quality of Your Blood at its Best—It Means Vigorous Health and Ability to Accomplish.

Blood acts like a fuel. Pumped through the body by the heart, it sustains the muscles and tissues. It renews them. It feeds the brain—the tissues of the eye and face. That is why people look so pale and lifeless when blood is impoverished. The body tissues are being supplied with weak fuel. The blood has not enough red corpuscles. You would not eat poor food with no nourishment in it; no more should you let the fuel that supplies sustenance to your entire body be inferior. Have good blood. Improve the quality and keep it at its best. If you look pale and feel weak, if you have lost your enthusiasm and energy, if your blood is clogged with poisons, your system is being fed with a poor grade of blood. That is no way to go around. If you are not at your best, get at the source of the trouble right away. Put an end to half-living. Take that ideal tonic, Pepto-Mangan, to tone up your blood and purify it. Get the full enjoyment out of living. Breathe the fresh air, take exercise.

Be sure to ask for "Gude's Pepto-Mangan." It comes in convenient tablet form and in liquid. One has the same medicinal value as the other. There is only one genuine Pepto-Mangan, and the name "Gude's" is on the package.—Advertisement.

A Growing Bank Is A Safe Bank.

THERE are many reasons why a growing bank is a safe bank. A growing Bank has the confidence and esteem of the people. Growth indicates life and health. A growing Bank has financial strength and strength means safety in Banking. The growing Bank is in a position to adapt its business to changing conditions and so protect its resources against any possible loss. The large number of depositors that patronize a growing Bank form a safeguard for the Bank and assure positive safety.

Republican mass meetings will be held in Garrett county at the following places and on the dates named: GRANTSVILLE, OCT. 26, at 7:30; FRIENDSVILLE, OCT. 27th, at 7:30; OAKLAND, OCT. 28, at 7:30. These meetings will be addressed by Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman and others.

The presence of all voters, especially the women who have recently registered, is urgently requested.

THE BALLOT FOR ELECTION IS PRINTED IN THE REPUBLICAN

Six Marks Necessary To Vote Full Ticket on all Propositions.

In this issue of The Republican will be found the official ballot to be voted at the election on November 2nd. The notice of election, specifying the places where the voters may cast their ballots is also set out in another column. Under the newly amended law there will be two voting precincts in the Fourteenth District. Those whose surnames begin with A and including those whose names begin with M will vote at the office of registration on Liberty street adjoining the Oakland Garage, while those whose surnames begin with N and including those whose surnames begin with Z, will vote in the new office of the Oakland Garage, directly adjoining the present place. The Legislature, at its recent special session requires the election supervisors to erect a second voting place in any district where the registration numbers eight hundred or more, and in District No. 14 this number has been exceeded, hence to comply with the law and to avoid any possible congestion in the polling room the second voting place has been established. It would be well for the voters to preserve this and the following issue of The Republican in order to study and make themselves familiar with the arrangement and marking of the ballot. To vote for Harding and Coolidge it is only necessary to make a X mark in the space provided therefor to the right of their names on the ballot, which will be found in the center of the first column. Passing to the third column of the ballot will be found the names of the Congressional candidates, Mr. Weller for the Senate, and Mr. Zihlman for the House of Representatives. A X mark in the spaces on the ballot to the right of their names will also be required to vote for them. The last column contains the texts of the proposed amendments to the Constitution and the proposed bond issue for public school purposes where spaces to the right of each proposition is provided wherein the voter may indicate by a X mark his or her preference for or against. If the voter desires to vote for or against these several propositions, for the presidential and vice-presidential candidates, and for the Senatorial and Congressional candidates the total number of X cross marks necessary will be 6.

REGISTRATION FIGURES OUT

A Total of 1932 New Names Placed Upon the Books With Republicans Leading Opposition.

The registration officers of the various districts of Garrett county made their returns to the Board of Supervisors of Election in Oakland yesterday and today, all the districts being in except Deer Park, which came this morning.

A study of the figures in the tabulated statement below shows that 1192 Republican women registered and that 449 Democratic women had their names placed upon the books, while 173 men of the Republican faith and but 79 Democratic men registered, thus giving the Republicans a majority of 837 in the registration of new voters. There were also 25 women who declined to state their party affiliation; 7 women registered as Socialists and 6 enrolled themselves as prohibitionists, while but one man declared himself as belonging to the Socialist party.

The registration by districts was as follows:

COUNCIL TOLD OF TAR AND A COAT OF FEATHERS ON TOP

Citizens of Westernport Rise in Righteous Indignation.

Citizens, tiring of lawlessness in Westernport and indignant over the name of "Bootleggers' Paradise" given to the town, "took the bull by the horns" Monday night, so to speak, and let it be known that a vigilance committee might get to work. After an indignation meeting at the Baptist church they stormed the Town Council chamber, forcing the appointment of a town sergeant of their own choosing. The citizens looked over the names of the applicants on the table, arbitrarily rejected them and then submitted the name of John H. Basye, whom the Council appointed without parley.

Recently Federal officers raided a number of places at Westernport, making several arrests and hauling about $10,000 worth of confiscated liquor to Cumberland. Then the Grand Jury investigated conditions, charges having been made that certain officials were derelict in their duty and that the general reign of lawlessness was winked at. It was shown that Howard Springer, the sole officer, besides patrolling during the day and far into the night, was also tax and water rent collector. Friday night Springer resigned, and on Saturday night, with no officer in the town, general hellum prevailed with fighting and orgies on all sides and no one to stop the participants.

This called for the indignation meeting held Monday night in which about 100 citizens participated and the naming of a committee of five to wait on the Council, then in session, and demand that policemen be appointed who would enforce the law. The committee, composed of George C. Dixon, chairman; W. W. Shultice, Charles Peters, R. A. Hoffmeister and John Barnard, proceeded posthaste to the Council chamber, accompanied by about 60 citizens, and their demands were put forcibly and their attitude was determined. It was intimated that unless the lawlessness stopped, a coat of tar and feathers was coming to the violators as well as persons who failed to exercise their authority to stop them.

West Virginia was dry several years before Maryland, and as Westernport is just across the river from Piedmont it was a resort for bootleggers from that State and Westernport dealers cashed in heavily. The "picking" was so good that many speakies are said to have been maintained and bootlegging operated on an elaborate scale despite national prohibition.

FEW MARKS OF WAR IN HAMBURG

Streets Are Clean, Houses Freshly Painted and People Well Dressed and Fed.

BUT THERE IS MUCH MISERY

About 150,000 Are Out of Work, Prices Are High, Homes Scarce and Discontent General—People on Rations.

Hamburg.—Travelers from the United States landing in Hamburg find it difficult to realize that Germany has been at war for six years. The streets are clean, the houses freshly painted, and the people one sees in the streets look better dressed and quite as well fed as the average person on the streets of New York.

The Hotel Atlantic is filled with Americans who pay about 20 per cent less for their rooms than they would in New York, although these rates are more than double that paid by German travelers. The restaurants and cafes, which are now open until eleven o'clock at night, are crowded with people who appear to have plenty of money. The women are plainly dressed, and the rich gowns of pre-war days have vanished. The Alster, a charming lake in the center of the city, is covered with small yachts, canoes and rowboats.

Clothing is very expensive, a business suit costing 3,000 marks, and a pair of shoes 500 to 1,000 marks. Wooden shoes for the poorer classes cost from 24 to 37 marks, and are much worn, especially by boys.

The government issues new paper money every day in 5, 20 and 50-mark notes. Business men have to carry pocketbooks the size of miniature valises to hold the bills.

The working man gets from 50 to 60 marks a day, which barely suffices to keep them and their families. Every citizen in Germany has to have cards for bread, meat, sugar, butter, margarine and soap.

Pork Sells at 20 Marks a Pound. Meat is 6 marks a pound, and pork 20 marks, butter 36 marks, eggs 1 mark 70 pennings each, and a common kind of bread 5 marks a penny for a five-pound loaf. For Americans who get 40 marks for a dollar these articles are cheap, but for the German they are very dear.

Plenty of food of all kinds, including tea and coffee, can be bought by what is called in Germany the underground system. The restaurants all have supplies on hand for customers who can pay high prices, and when the police hear any hotel or restaurant has too much food they make a raid and confiscate it.

The working people, and more especially the salaried educated classes,

Indian Village 1,200 Years Old

Though American history dates back but a little more than four hundred years, there is a village in the United States that is known to be at least 1,200 years old. It is the Hopi Indian village of Walpi, on the government reservation in the Arizona desert. The village still stands on the extreme point of a perpendicular-walled mesa, 250 feet above the floor of Kanab canyon. It was originally built in this unusual spot for protective purposes, and it would be quite impossible to scale the rocky cliffs if the Indians did not want you to do so. Walpi is 112 miles from the nearest railroad town, Holbrook, Arizona.

professors, school teachers, clerks, etc., cannot afford to pay for extra food for their families, and this is one of the chief causes of the present discontent, which is prevalent throughout Germany. The only contented people are the profiteers, called "Schelchers," who rank from the millionaire contractors, who have licenses from the government to purchase entire cargoes as they arrive on ships or in freight cars on the railroad, down to the small "Schelcher" who makes a living by eluding the police.

Nearly everybody is trying to do a little profiteering to augment his income.

Strikes occur almost daily in Hamburg, as the workmen are continually demanding increases in wages.

150,000 Unemployed in City.

The Rathaus, or town hall, which was destroyed by bullets during the recent Kapp revolution, is now protected by barbed-wire barricades to prevent it being seized by another revolutionary group.

It is estimated there are 150,000 unemployed in Hamburg at the present time, of whom about 40,000 are suffering men thrown out of work by the German merchant marine. They are paid 9 marks a day, which makes a heavy burden for the taxpayers, who will have to give up 40 per cent of their incomes under the new law coming into force soon. Several encounters have occurred in the streets be-between the unemployed and the Reichswehr, as the new soldiers are called who wear gray uniforms and caps, carry rifles and short swords, and have orders, if attacked, to shoot and throw hand grenades and if necessary to use machine guns, which are always kept in readiness for an outbreak.

Some of the more desperate characters among the unemployed have formed themselves into bands and go around the city at night holding up people in their houses, in stores and on the streets. The Reichswehr have orders to line these bandits up against a wall and shoot them when they are caught red-handed.

The housing problem is a very difficult one in Hamburg, as thousands of workmen have come into the city from the smaller towns with their families, the unemployed allowance being larger here than in their own districts.

The American Express company and the International Mercantile marine are the only American firms which have so far opened offices in Hamburg.

One the Movies Missed. Columbus, Ind.—The rescue of Mrs. John Sprague from death in a runaway would have done credit to a movie thriller. When her horse ran away, Charles Hatt cranked up his motor and with David Marr on the running board, gave chase. As the auto passed the horse Marr made a flying leap, grabbed the reins and brought the animal to a standstill on the brink of a high embankment.

War Dog Dies.

Shadyside, O.—Cammie, a dog which served thirteen months in the third division in France, is dead at the home of his adopted owner, John Hays. The dog was found in the town of Cohan, north of the Marne, during the Alsace-Marne offensive, and became the division mascot.

Turkey's "Tree of Fate" Destroyed by Storm

Jerusalem.—A storm recently wrecked a tree known as "bulmi" (tree of fate), which stood outside the city walls and formerly was used as a gallows. Tradition has it that the end of Turkey would come when "bulmi" perished. To prevent destruction of the Ottoman empire from being placed around the withered trunk and the branches were supported by strong posts. All efforts to save the tree were in vain. Orthodox Turks are convinced that the empire of the Caliphs is doomed since "bulmi" went to pieces.

And hardly had the silent words been mentally formed when before him, noiselessly appeared an angel, in the guise of a white man mounted upon a white horse.

Without word or slightest sound this angel passed in Pen's outstretched hands a small, green box containing six new files, and silently disappeared from view.

It was "Hoo-hoo" night in St. Louis, and the corridors of the Planters' hotel were thronged with well-dressed men, each wearing that mystic insignia denoting the owner a devotee of lumber's cult and a worshiper at the shrine of the black cat.

It had been a very busy day and evening, and in the short time remaining before the noise and reverbation of a large city awoke was to change into the drowsy, echoing, audible silence of the same city asleep, a few of the prominent brothers in forestry had seated themselves round a table in the cafe, willing away the time by anecdote, experience and reminiscence.

The conversation had slowly drifted into those higher ideals and places of thought so frequently found most highly developed among those whose working has been close to nature's breast, and the opinion was expressed by the Nestor of the gathering that naturally all men were good, and the bad in them resulting only from education and environment. In support of his argument, he stated that in his experience every unconscious voluntary action by a human being was based upon a good impulse and inevitably resulted in a kindly deed.

These sentiments were warmly indorsed, and the silence which followed left each to his own reflections until broken by one of the party.

"Speaking of unconscious impulses," he said, "reminds me of an incident which happened to me down in Tennessee."

"I had been cruising around among some timber in the southern part of the state, and was temporarily staying at a mill owned by a friend of mine near the Sequatchie river. I was mounting my horse to go to a small town near by when the superintendent asked me if I would bring him back a box of files.

"Upon finishing my business, I brought the files and started for the mill late in the afternoon. It had been raining hard, but had stopped, and to save time I took a short cut through the timber. My horse, a pure-white pacer, stepping noiselessly along, his hoofs made no sound upon the cushion of damp leaves.

"Suddenly, upon rounding the uppermost stump of a fallen tree, I almost ran upon a negro convict hiding behind the roots. His leg impaled by a ball and chain.

With closed eyes he knelt in an attitude of prayer, his hands upraised to heaven. Unconsciously and impulsively as my horse passed along, without a word being spoken, I placed the box of files in one of his

A Modern Miracle

By EUGENE S. WATSON

(Copyright.)

Big Ben, sheltered from observation by the upturned roots of a forest giant, squirming uneasily upon his earthy seat, seeking relief for his swollen ankle by tenderly lifting from it the weight of its encircling iron band, attached to which through the medium of a short chain was a heavy iron ball.

Big Ben was a convict and had escaped.

All during that hazy autumn day he had eluded the vigorous search of the guards from the iron mines where, with other convicts of the state of Tennessee, he had been forced to labor.

It was not his fault that the first few breaths of frost-kissed autumn air always filled his being with an uncontrollable appetite for backbone and spareribs. Nor could he be blamed because just upon the first day that this appetite was irritating his system the colonel's brother from up North had carelessly left his new rifle leaning against the porch, where Ben's eyes could not help seeing it.

And after that, while crossing through the timber to his little cabin, he had nearly run over half a dozen of the finest porkers in Marion county, escaped from the plantation of the judge and enjoying their new-found freedom in the woods. Under this irresistible chain of circumstances, how could he be blamed for taking the rifle and forgetting to return it in the excitement following a lust for slaughter which culminated in the death of four of those porkers?

The jury that found him "guilty" could not understand. They had said he was a thief and branded him a felon. But they did not know, no one knew except "mammy" and sisters.

As his thoughts dwelt upon his tribulations, there came to him a vision of his old "mammy" and her early teachings of the strength and comfort to be derived from prayer, and with this picture before him he lowered his head, knelt with hands outstretched, and fervently exclaimed:

"Oh, Lord, I never done nothing. I don't deserve all this trouble. You knows how good I been, so send me a file quick so's I kin take off dese iron and go home to mammy."

And today, over the fireplace of that little cabin are suspended a small green file-box and an empty leather wallet, which no money could purchase from that family.

Panama was sultry. It had been a very hot, oppressive day, and now that night had come the expected breeze had failed to blow and no relief was felt. An excited native pounded on the door of the American consul general until the drowsy office boy begrudgingly answered his knocks, and relieved him of a note for his master.

It was an urgent summons to the consul to secure the release of one of his countrymen from the Panama lockup. This was soon accomplished; and the consul general, finding his compatriot charged with no more serious crime than that of carrying a suitcase on the streets of Panama after dark, invited him to his office and partake of his hospitality before returning to his hotel.

The visitor proved to be a mining engineer returning to the United States from a trip through Chile and Peru. As they sat and chatted, the engineer said: "This is my first experience in being arrested, or in being in the clutches of the law, although I once wore a convict suit for a few hours. I was never so glad of anything as I was to get rid of it."

"It was some years ago, down in southern Tennessee, I had been studying the geological features of the iron mines in that part of the country, and had almost completed my stay, when one morning, while taking my customary swim, I lost my clothes and found in their place a convict suit. It happened that I had discovered a small cave on the bank of the Sequatchie river, and it was my custom to disrobe in the mouth of this cave and plunge into the river.

"On this particular morning, when through with my swim, I found that my clothes had been stolen, and in their place was a large, dirty suit of convict clothes, probably left there by some negro convict who had made his escape from the iron mines, for in that country convicts are worked in the mines. After exhausting myself making all kinds of noises, I finally overcame my repugnance sufficiently to don this suit and start for the house where I was staying, and every moment of the way I was terrified by my imagination, expecting to be shot or pursued by dogs, or some other horrible fate.

"When I reached the house I had a hard time to convince the folks of my identity. I never recovered the clothes, nor the money which was in them, and have always wondered what became of the convict who stole them. I suppose he has been sent to jail many times since."

outstretched hands and passed out of sight between the trees.

"The entire action was unconscious impulse. I have often wondered what he thought and what became of him."

As the dusky evening shadows filled the forest with gloom, a negro convict was silently limping along, hastily dodging from one tree to another. The ball and chain were missing, but tightly clasped in one hand he held a green file-box, and every few moments he would stop and gaze intently at it, his face filled with a wonder that was akin to reverence. Slowly and cautiously he treaded his way through the timber, headed for the little cave by the river where he had spent so many lazy hours in his childhood.

Big Ben was exhausted, and much needed rest was to be found in that cave.

It was nearly midnight when he reached it, and hastily feeling his way to its inner recess, he stretched himself upon the damp floor and was soon lost in the deep slumber of complete weariness.

When he awakened the morning sun was high. His first thought was of that little green file-box; his next of the convict clothes. Tightly he clasped the little green box to his breast and murmured a silent prayer; then, staggering to the entrance of the cave, saw spread upon the ground before him a pile of clothing.

It was another miracle. No doubt remained. This, he had been sent to him by the same power which had freed him from the ball and chain.

It was a sorrowful and fearful group that greeted him as he entered the old home. The joy at his appearance was marred by a shadow which his return could not dispel. The mortgage on the old home and its few acres was to be foreclosed today, and the little place was to pass to strangers.

Big Ben listened in silence to the woes of the family, and suddenly lifting his head with an air of new-born confidence, he laid before them the little green file-box and said:

"Mammy, don't you worry. De same power what give me dese will, take care of de mortgage. De Lawd don't punish his innocent children widout cause. How much am dat mortgage?"

"It am mos' a hundred dollars," replied his mother.

Big Ben confidently replied: "Mammy, if de Lawd give me dese files and dese close he sartin suah ain't er gold' to let dis home be sold for no hundred dollars. I ain't looked tri de pockets of dese close yet. Mobbe he's already send us de money."

Suelling the word with action, he hastily commenced a search of his new clothes, and brought to light a pile of pencils, letters, and small change, and, at last, a black leather wallet. It contained $120.

"I knowed it, mammy; here's de money for de mortgage man. Go pay off de mortgage and giv $20 to de parson, and wid dese change get sumptin to eat. I'm starvin'."

And today, over the fireplace of that little cabin are suspended a small green file-box and an empty leather wallet, which no money could purchase from that family.

It happened that I had discovered a small cave on the bank of the Sequatchie river, and it was my custom to disrobe in the mouth of this cave and plunge into the river.

"On this particular morning, when through with my swim, I found that my clothes had been stolen, and in their place was a large, dirty suit of convict clothes, probably left there by some negro convict who had made his escape from the iron mines, for in that country convicts are worked in the mines. After exhausting myself making all kinds of noises, I finally overcame my repugnance sufficiently to don this suit and start for the house where I was staying, and every moment of the way I was terrified by my imagination, expecting to be shot or pursued by dogs, or some other horrible fate.

"When I reached the house I had a hard time to convince the folks of my identity. I never recovered the clothes, nor the money which was in them, and have always wondered what became of the convict who stole them. I suppose he has been sent to jail many times since."

PIPE SNOW TO DESERT

Arid Wastes of Arizona Transformed by Engineer.

Charles H. Spencer Found Hidden Water Supply From San Francisco Peaks.

Phoenix, Ariz.—Solving a problem that for years had puzzled the greatest engineers of the country, Charles H. Spencer has brought billions of gallons of water to the arid lands of Arizona. The water comes from an underground flow on the snow-capped San Francisco mountains. The mountains, 12,611 feet above sea level, are of volcanic origin, and the total precipitation is equal to nine and one-half billion gallons a year.

Irrigation experts had sought for years to solve the problem of saving this water, which was going to waste, and which, when turned on Arizona's deserts, would mean millions of acres available for use. Mr. Spencer spent four years searching through the mountains, making careful tests and examining the rock formations.

His tireless labors were rewarded when he discovered a line of diacetic current, which carried the water to the stratum below. He found that by piercing these lower strata he could reach the underground flow, and in the spring of 1918 he filled the first of his reservoirs, Crater lake, with 150,000,000 gallons of water of true underground flow.

Mr. Spencer used seven extinct craters for reservoirs, with a combined capacity of 2,000,000,000 gallons. There will be no such thing as pumping costs. There is, not an ounce of power required anywhere, for it is entirely gravity flow. By solving the secret of the hidden water supplies he has made it possible for arid lands to be transferred into beautiful gardens, rich farming lands and verdant grazing grounds.

Has an Artistic Hand.

Cottage Grove, Ore.—J. W. Eddy has discovered to his entire satisfaction that the rattons fed to hens have a great deal to do with the kind of eggs the hens produce. A few days ago he gave his hens a ration part of which was sunflower seeds. Since then one of the hens has produced an egg with a perfect sunflower pictured in the shell. He has decided to name his place the "Sunflower chicken ranch."

CANADA'S EXPORTS DECREASE

Drop $19,717,349—Imports Increase Heavily, Says Dominion Report.

Ottawa.—The United States now is Canada's largest customer, according to export figures for the year ending May 31.

The total exports to that country, aggregating $472,449,294, showed an increase of $22,015,228 over the previous fiscal year, while exports to the United Kingdom, amounting to $450,470,143, showed a decrease of $101,720,035.

Total exports were $1,250,208,294, a decrease of $10,717,349, and which was accounted for by the cessation of munition shipments aggregating $229,034,395.

Total imports of dutiable goods were $762,077,507, an increase of $230,770,505, and of free goods $308,577,001, an increase of $31,138,564. The heavy increase in imports was principally from the United Kingdom, the United States, British West Indies and Cuba.

RICE EXPORTS GROW

Cereal Shipped to Japan in Increasing Quantities.

Unlimited Opportunities for Future Development of Industry, Says Agricultural Department.

Washington.—The United States exported more than 300,000 pounds of rice to Japan during the first three months of this year, according to figures of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture. In contrast, less than a thousand pounds of this commodity were exported to Japan during the entire year of 1919.

The average rice exports of the United States to all countries during the period 1910-1914 were less than 20,000,000 pounds a year. Today the exports range from 30,000,000 to 60,000,000 pounds a month.

This enormous export business has been made possible by the development of the rice industry in California based upon experiments made by department of agriculture scientists in growing rice in communities where it was said to be impossible to grow this commodity. The first commercial field of rice in California was planted in the Sacramento valley in 1912. There are now a dozen rice mills in operation in the Golden state, which handled $21,000,000 worth of rice last year.

There is an almost unlimited opportunity for future development of this industry in the United States, say the department's specialists. The rice growers are most enthusiastic over the outlook, and declare that they are going "to teach the American people that rice is one of the finest foods in the world."

A whale is able to remain under water for an hour and a half.

No Reduction in Price of Oakland Sensible Six

At this time when the public mind is disturbed by sensationally announced price reductions of automobiles and other merchandise and commodities, we desire to give assurance to those who require Personal Passenger Transportation, such as provided by the Oakland Sensible Six, that we do not anticipate reducing the price of our cars.

Starting with the production of the raw material required and continuing through to the finished product, over 80 per cent of the cost of an Oakland Sensible Six is labor.

Over 80 per cent of the cost of all other automobiles produced in large quantities is labor.

When wages paid to labor are reduced, or when labor produces more per man, then may manufacturers of honestly priced automobiles legitimately consider the reduction of their selling prices.

We have not heard of any instance where automobile workers are receiving lower wages.

If wages may be lowered eventually we see no immediate trend in that direction.

In the production of so essential a factor in our economic life as the passenger automobile—increasing as it does the personal efficiency of owners by nearly 57 per cent—we believe the workers whose toil produces the vehicle should be large beneficiaries of the constructive character of their work.

If abnormal demand has been responsible for over-enthusiastic expansion and inflated profits in certain instances, the wage earner should not be made to suffer as he must if powerful forces effect lower automobile prices whether or no.

True enough, there have been many instances of inflated prices. There has been profiteering. And true enough, abnormal profits must be eliminated.

And that is what has been going on all around you recently—the price reductions you have witnessed in automobiles and other merchandise are the belated shaking out of the abnormal profits. The normal profits are still there.

Manufacturers whose goods have been priced on actual cost to produce, plus normal profit, have no inflated figures with which to appeal to the uninformed public in sensational announcements of "Price Reductions." Prudent, studious buyers will not be misguided by erroneous principles.

Oakland Price Advance In Five Years, Due to Increased Cost of Labor and Material, Only 27.4 Per Cent.

In 1915 Model 32 Oakland Sensible Six was put on the market at $795 f. o. b. factory.

Since 1915 the wheelbase of the Sensible Six has been lengthened five inches, its weight increased about four hundred pounds, its horsepower materially increased, its frame made deeper, and in many other ways the car has been enlarged, strengthened, improved and refined.

If the present Model 34-C had been built in 1915, it is more than conservative to say that, based on labor and material costs at that time, we would have been compelled to list it to sell at $1095, or more f. o. b.

We are therefore able to say, also with great conservatism, that the present price of Model 34-C represents an increase, due solely to increased costs of labor and material, of 27.4 per cent. Larger production each year has kept this increase at a low figure.

Compare this increase with the increase of other automobiles and with commodities—with the things you buy every day.

Nowhere have we been able to find a standard article of merchandise that has increased as little in selling price as the price of the Oakland Sensible Six.

In the event of unexpected reductions in the cost of the labor and material that enter into the construction of the Oakland Sensible Six to a point where we may properly and legitimately reduce the list price of our cars between October 1st, 1920 and May 1st, 1921, we will refund to every Oakland purchaser who buys within the above mentioned period of time the amount of such reduction.

(The above guarantee does not apply to second-hand cars or former models)

KITZMILLER

Quite a wave of crime has swept over out town during the past week.

On Wednesday night the store of Mrs. Anna Pratt was entered and looted of thousands of cigarettes, several cases of grape juice, a dozen or more of flash lights and quite a lot of men's wearing apparel. The blood hounds from Fairmont were sent for and arrived on Thursday. They found a scent and followed it into the upper part of town, then on up across the North American mine tippie down into Potomac Manor. At the lower end of Potomac Manor the hounds went down to the river and there the trail ended. Nothing has been yet discovered that will lead to the arrest of the party or parties guilty of the burglary.

On Saturday night, Mr. E. Sowers, on his way home from his pool room, was held up and relieved of over $300 in cash. The man who held Mr. Sowers up is still at large and the victim has no way of identifying him.

The same night towards twelve o'clock in one of the pool rooms Bill Lee was the victim of a shot fired by Nan Hartley. The bullet grazed Mr. Lee's head, but he was able to be around the following day. The men had been drinking, but there was no fighting previously to the firing of the shot. Up to this time Hartley has not been arrested.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sowers are the proud parents of a little girl, who was born one day last week.

The stork also visited the homes of Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Gowers and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Strah.

Miss Ruth Walker, student nurse at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, spent a vacation of two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Walker, at this place.

The M. G. C. gave a chicken supper in Miss Walker's honor. Club members alone were present, these being Mrs. G. W. Coffman, Mrs. C. I. Long, Mrs. Hallie Hartley, Misses Ruth, Caroline, Katherine and Verba Walker, Marion Trout, Yo DeVall, Gladys Hamill and Mrs. C. Noy Smith. Mr. and Mrs. John Nogel returned to Morgantown, West Va., after having spent a week here with relatives.

Miss Marguerite Decker, of Keyser, visited her father several days last week.

Messrs. J. J. Walker and Robert W. Walker spent Sunday in Elkins.

On Saturday last a linen and aluminum shower was given Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Liller at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Liller. The house was tastefully decorated and dancing was the mode of entertainment. Refreshments were served at a reasonable hour. Mr. and Mrs. Liller received quite a large number of handsome and useful presents. Over fifty persons were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pickering, of Morgantown, are spending a few days here.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Price, formerly of Vindex, are spending a few weeks in town before going to their new home at Gasaway, West Va.

Mr. Dan Walker, Jr., has returned from the Keyser Prep. to remain until he regains the use of his knee, he having been injured in the football game between that school and the A. C. H.

S. a week ago. Walker plays half-back and has been greatly missed from the team since the accident.

Mr. D. Walker, Mr. R. A. Smith and Mr. John Shore were in Cumberland on important coal business the first of the week.

Miss Nell Largent spent the week-end with her parents at Piedmont.

Mr. D. Meese and Mr. D. Wilson, mining engineers from Johnstown, Pa., are in this vicinity where they will spend several weeks.

Mrs. Victoria Rafter and Mrs. Mary Wilson, of Short Run, are at Huntington, West Va., for a visit before going to White Sulphur Springs where they expect to remain several weeks.

Miss Anna McKenzie, of Pittsburgh, is spending a week here with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Trout and their daughter Marion motored to Keyser, W. Va., last Sunday.

Miss Audrey Lyon was a Western- port visitor the beginning of the week.

School at this place is progressing very wonderfully this winter with Mr. H. A. Ziel and Rev. A. Bird instructors in the high school. Mr. Ziel's return to Kitzmiller as head of the high school was made possible by the patrons of the school who were loath to give him up even when he went to Oakland as principal of the school there. Kitzmiller is certainly fortunate in again securing his services.

Miss Royer, one of the grade teachers, left us to go to Accident, but Miss Burns stepped right in and took her place. Miss Iva Bishop is teaching the third grade now. Mrs. I. Poland substituted the first month of the season of school as Miss Bishop had not returned from Vancouver, B. C., where she spent the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harman Kerr have returned from their honeymoon and are going to reside in Blaine. Quite a distressing accident occurred last week at North American mine when Mr. Battisti Cossu was struck by one of the mine motors. He was immediately taken to the Western Maryland Hospital at Cumberland where his leg was amputated.

Little Jack Hudson is undergoing treatment at a Cumberland hospital. Mrs. P. P. Wallace is getting along nicely at the Western Maryland hospital where she is a patient. Mr. William Metcalf has returned to the Allegheny Hospital, Cumberland, for treatment.

MUTTON HOLLOW

Mr. and Mrs. Gilmor DeWitt, of near Deer Park, were pleasant callers at the home of John A. Wright one evening last week.

Mr. A. H. Friend made a business trip to Oakland on last Thursday.

Mr. H. V. Leighton, of Mountain Lake Park, was a business caller in our section one day the past week.

Messrs. Ray and Ted Wright and Clyde Bernard spent Thursday evening in Piedmont.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan O'Brien, daughter and son, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John T. O'Brien, of North Glade, visited Oakland on Saturday.

Mr. W. C. Bernard visited friends at Cumberland one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Glofelty and Clifford Glofelty, of Green Glade, and Mrs. William Otto, and son of North Glade, accompanied by Mr. John Fitzwater, of Dodson, visited at the home of Mr. D. T. O'Brien on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wright and two daughters are visiting friends at Barton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Friend visited at the home of James Smeerman near Swanton on Sunday.

Miss Edith Wright spent Sunday afternoon at Altamont.

The All-Around Usefulness of THE OVERLAND SEDAN

The Decathlon in the Olympic Games embraces ten events in one.

Is it for men who are varietists in sport rather than specialists.

Specialization is the obsession of a single-track mind.

The rare thing in the world today is diversity of talents.

In men and in automobiles the great essential is the ability to match any occasion, to cope with any emergency, and to do it with a minimum of effort and a maximum of success.

But greatest of all the merits of the Overland Sedan is her all-around usefulness—the ceaseless cycle of her service in the Decathlon of Travel—her eagerness for the golf game, her readiness for shopping, her efficiency in business, her up-and-doing spirit on a tour—where the road goes she will go also, swiftly, comfortably, economically, and so safely that any man who buys an Overland Sedan can trust his wife or daughter at the wheel.

The Overland Sedan does not ask for auspicious conditions under which to perform.

She asks only for the open road. If it be smooth, so much the better. If not, then her Triplex Spring will make it so.

For comfort is second nature to the Overland Sedan, and maintenance is the least of her difficulties.

Gasoline means no more in her young life than oil in a salad dressing, and her official gallon record exceeds 27 miles.

			CHAPTER 102 AN ACT to empower and direct the County Commissioners of Garrett County to borrow money on the credit of said county for the purpose of erecting suitable public school buildings in the county of Garrett, and heating, furnishing and equipping the same, and to purchase or condemn real estate for the erection of the same, and for the purpose of repairing and heating public school buildings in said county, and to issue bonds for the payment of said money, and to levy taxes upon the assessable property of said county to redeem such bonds and to pay the interest thereon, to refer said question to the voters of Garrett county. Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That for the purpose of erecting public school buildings in the county of Garrett and for the purpose of heating, furnishing and equipping the same, and for the purpose of purchasing or condemning real estate for the erection of the same and for the purpose of repairing and heating public school buildings in said county, the County Commissioners for Garrett county be, and they are hereby authorized, empowered and directed to borrow money on the credit of said county to an amount not exceeding two hundred thousand dollars, and to issue coupon bonds therefor, the said bonds to be in the sum of one thousand dollars each, and to be signed by the president of the Board of County Commissioners for Garrett County, and countersigned by the Clerk of said Board with the corporate seal of said County Commissioners attached to every bond so issued; said bonds to be dated the first day of July, 1920, and to bear interest at a rate not exceeding 5 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually on the first day of January and the first day of July in each and every year until the maturity thereof, and the said bonds shall mature as follows: Ten thousand dollars thereof on July 1, 1925, and annually thereafter the sum of ten thousand dollars in every year until all of said bonds shall have matured. Sec. 2. And be it enacted, That said bonds shall have written or printed on them a distinct reference to the act directing the issue of the same, and that said bonds when issued shall be exempt from municipal and county taxation in Garrett county, and they shall be sold after due advertisement by the County Commissioners to the highest bidder or bidders, provided, however, that none of said bonds shall be sold at less than par value. Sec. 3. Sec. 5. And be it enacted, That the County Commissioners of Garrett county shall, when notified by the County Board of Education of said county that they desire to avail themselves of the provisions of this act and of the amount of money they will require for the purpose aforesaid, the said Board of County Commissioners previously in written form having concurred in the need therefor, advertise and sell such proportionate part of said bonds as above provided to an amount sufficient to produce the sum designated by the said County Board of Education, and as previously concurred in by the Board of County Commissioners for the specific purpose in written form previously set forth, but in no event in excess of the sum of fifty thousand dollars annually, and shall pay over the proceeds of the sale of said bonds to the County Board of Education who shall account for the same in the same manner as they account for other monies passing through their hands. Sec. 6. And be it enacted, That the said County Commissioners for Garrett county shall have the option to redeem any or all of said bonds outstanding after ten years from the date of their issue. Sec. 7. And be it enacted, That at the general election in November, 1920, there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of Garrett county the question whether the said bonds shall be issued, and at such general election the ballots used and cast upon the question shall have printed or written thereon the words, "For the Bond Issue" and "Against the Bond Issue," and if the majority of the votes cast upon said question shall be "For the Bond Issue," then the County Commissioners for Garrett county shall proceed to exercise the power vested in them by this Act, and shall issue bonds as herein provided; but if the majority of the votes cast shall be "Against the Bond Issue," then this Act shall be null and void.

For Congress:

DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION HAS SHOWN THAT IT IS SEC-TIONAL IN INTEREST.

Does the American farmer desire a perpetuation of Democratic rule in the White House and in Congress?

To judge from the treatment meted out to the farmer during the Wilson Administration and the Democratic Congresses of that Administration the farmers, outside of the "Solid South" and in sections that are traditionally Democratic, will vote the Republican ticket almost en masse on Tuesday of week after next.

Under the present Republican Congress the farmer has not been molested, injured or annoyed by discriminatory legislation. Under the last Congress which was controlled by the Democrats in House and Senate, the farmer in all states outside of the South was outrageously discriminated against. That Democratic Congress fixed a war-time price on wheat—$2.10 per bushel. The Democratic leaders, who absolutely controlled that Congress through the caucus system, which in turn was controlled by the votes of the Representatives and Senators from the Southern States, refused to fix any price on cotton and rice—two purely Southern products.

The Democratic Congress, by fixing the price of wheat at $2.10 per bushel, simply took out of the pockets of the wheat farmers of the country hundreds of millions of dollars that they would otherwise have received for their grain in an open world market.

It was the general opinion at the time the price of wheat was fixed at $2.10 per bushel that it would have brought far more in an open market, and later this belief became a certainty when it was learned that without a fixed price on American wheat that grain during the war would have brought $5 or more per bushel in the world's markets. The Democratic Congress and the Wilson Administration therefore simply prevented American wheat farmers from getting all his wheat was worth. On the other hand the Wilson Administration and the Democratic Congress allowed the Southern cotton and rice farmer to get all he could for his two staples. Southern cotton and rice growers piled up immense fortunes under the fostering care of their representatives and senators in the Democratic Congress, which was absolutely dominated by these men in everything it did. Rice and cotton prices were fixed by the world's law of supply and demand, and the rice and cotton men got all the cash their products brought in the open market.

Nothing in the whole history of Democratic legislation was ever more unjust than this.

Similarly the Democratic Congress fixed a price on wool—mainly a western product, but refused to fix a price on lumber—another product principally of the South.

This Congress also fixed a price on coal. Most of the coal in the United States is mined in the North and the Middle West.

How many hundreds of millions of dollars were thus taken out of the pockets of the wheat farmer, the wool grower and the coal miner it would be hard to estimate, but the total sum would stagger the imagination. How many hundreds of millions were put in the pockets of the Southern cotton growers and the Southern rice growers and the Southern lumberman cannot be estimated, but it too would cause amazement if correctly computed.

Whenever Congress has been Democratic it has invariably been controlled by a coterie of Southern Senators and Representatives who have

OVINGTON E. WELLER, REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR SENATE

tors and Representatives who have never failed to protect the industrial, manufacturing and agricultural interests of their own section, and always to the detriment of the other sections of the country. If the President was democratic, at the same time he always backed up the discriminatory legislation in favor of the South by the Democratic Congress.

With this record and particularly the record of the last Democratic Congress, the farmer, except in the south, will no doubt vote for a Republican Congress and a Republican President in November. His interest calls for such a vote. Not only will he serve his own interest by voting Republican, but he would have the satisfaction also of knowing that in intrusting the country for the next four years to a Republican President and a Republican Congress that the vast problems of reconstruction will be solved much better than under a Democratic President and a Democratic Congress which badly bungled the conduct of the war with Germany, as every intelligent citizen now recognizes.

Senator Harding, in his speech of acceptance, promised that the farmer would get a square deal if he is elected. The Republican candidates for House and Senate are pledged to the same policy.

MR. WILSON'S TREASURY
It is not fair, as some critics are doing, to charge Mr. Wilson's Treasury Department with greedy profiteering because it brought slathers of Liberty bonds at a heavy discount in the money market.

It is true that from Liberty bond holders in such financial distress that they had to part with their Liberty bonds on any terms they could get the Treasury did buy about a billion dollars of such securities at a net gain to the Government and corresponding loss to the needy bondholders of nearly $50,000,000.

It is not fair, however, to denounce this as odious pillage by the Treasury of those Liberty bond holders, because if the bonds were there for sale, if the hard pressed bondholders had to sell to anybody that would take them at his own price, those bondholders would have been compelled to lose part of their bonds anyhow, when the Liberty bond market was so panicky. Indeed, if the Treasury had not been in the scramble for the bonds of those unfortunate subscribers to the Liberty issues—if the Treasury had not been on the spot taking advantage of the bargain counter prices of its own obligations, the prices might have gone still lower and other bidders might have scooped them in at a still greater loss to the Liberty bond holders and a still deeper stain on the Government's financial name.

But is it fair to question the fiscal efficiency of a Government borrowing policy which has so manhandled the Liberty bond issues, so neglected the interest of the bondholders, so wasted and misused the resources of the nation, and with exhausting taxes and spendthrift mismanagement so impaired the credit of the government that the Liberty bonds of the United States Government can get kicked around the Stock Exchange like a wildcat mining stock.

It is fair to question the business capacity of a Government spending policy always demanding from Congress more and more of the overtaxed public's money to squander here, there and everywhere when the Treasury had lying around loose a clean billion of dollars which it could plank down upon the bond bargain counter.

It is fair to question the horse sense of a Government investing policy which, having a billion dollars available for paying off some of its debts, as long as Congress wouldn't let it spend that billion any other way, chose to buy in its low interest bearing bonds, instead of retiring its high interest bearing I O U's. The Treasury Department, for example, by buying in first Liberty bonds, was stopping 3½ per cent. interest charges.
But the Treasury at the same time was stuffing the banks with its I O U's, paying on the 5 per cent., 5½ per cent.—all the way up to almost 6 per cent. And stuffing the banks with those high interest bearing I O U's the Treasury Department was trying up the supplies of money needed by legitimate industry and business, inflating the general interest rate, throttling production and tending to jack up still higher the already agonizing high cost of living.

When Mr. Wilson's Treasury managers did that astounding piece of business they were not ferocious financial wolves; they were just careful foxes.

That's the plain record of the Liberty bond repurchases fairly and squarely stated. It forms only part of the total record of the taxation blunders, the business incapacity and the financial error which would have marked Mr. Wilson's party for the slaughter by common sense American voters two weeks from Tuesday if the League of Nations never had been heard of.

B. & O. ELECTRIFICATION

New Motive Power For This Section of Road Said to be Under Consideration by Officials.

Congested terminals will soon be a thing of the past if the present plans of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad are carried out. Electrical engineers both from the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, the two largest manufacturing concerns of their kind in the United States, have been busy for several months compiling data for the electrification of the Cumberland Division of this road. According to the latest reports the Seventeen-mile Grade between Altamont and Piedmont, has been picked by these engineers as the point for a durability test on the local division.

That the Baltimore and Ohio is also considering the electrification of other parts of the road seems almost a certainty, for at the present time a corps of engineers in the employ of the General Electric Company, in charge of Homer Youngerman, chief engineer, are now working along the M.
& K. Railroad, a branch of the Baltimore and Ohio. This road was recently acquired by the Baltimore and Ohio and taps the virgin coal fields of West Virginia. According to Mr. Younger-man, the proposed power plant to take care of that portion of the road will be located along Cheat River at a point between Rowlesburg and Albright, in Preston county, West Va.

It is said that the location of the hydro-electric plant to take care of the first part to be electrified will be between Piedmont, West Va., and Bond, Garrett county. Water will be used as power for generating the current wherever possible. At points where it is not possible to secure power of this kind the power plants will be located in the coal fields. This will eliminate the hauling of coal over the road which is necessary in the use of steam locomotives. It will also eliminate the hauling of hundreds of tons daily over the road for company use at the various coaling stations.

On a number of western roads where the electric locomotives are already in operation, they are fast taking the place of steam. At the present time when traffic is congested, sidings crowded, cars needed but are standing idle because of lack of motive power to keep them moving, K.
trunk line steam railroads as well as interurban electric roads and even many private or branch roads are looking for some relief from the situation. This situation is most serious at terminals owing to the lack of sufficient numbers of switching locomotives and to the inefficiency of the required type of labor, not only for the operation of locomotives, but for maintenance, upkeep and repairs.

The value of electrification of terminals and even larger sections of trunk lines has become so well recognized and has met with such marked success that no one doubts the ability of electric locomotives to help the situation. J. E. Davis, electrical engineer for the Baltimore and Ohio, has spent much time during the past six months in looking over the system on other roads. At the present time Mr. Davis and his score of assistants are busy getting together the mass of data that was secured during these trips.

ARRESTS MAY BE MADE.

Confession of Cumberland Culprit Implicates Young Men of Oakland. Information from Cumberland was transmitted to Oakland yesterday to the effect that through the arrest of a young man in that town for thievery he disclosed to the officers of the city that he was in the gang of young men who had committed a number of robberies in Oakland last winter and also was in possession of information that will identify the would-be hold-up artist who attempted to rob Mr. Louis Gortner as he was going to his home late one night during the winter. It will be remembered that nearly every week for several months during the winter and early spring stores and other places were entered and cash as well as merchandise carried away. Should the information given the Cumberland officers be found to have any foundation arrests may follow.

A festival and box supper will be given at the Silver Knob school on the evening of October 23rd, 1920. A cordial invitation to attend is extended to all by the committee having the matter in hand.

Mr. Lloyd Shaffer has purchased the home property of Mr. J. B. Chevront, located on Pennington street and will move into his new home about November first. The property is practically new, having been built by Mr. Chevront only a few years ago, and is supplied with all the modern conveniences.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ray Jones, who were married in Huntington, West Va., quite recently, arrived in Oakland on Saturday morning last and will maintain their home here where Mr. Jones has established a splendid law practice. Mr. and Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell, upon the 25th anniversary of their wedding, went to Morgantown Saturday morning last where they were guests until Monday of Judge and Mrs. I. G. Lazelle. In Morgantown The Republican met several former Oakland residents, all of whom were prosperous, as well as busy, for Morgantown is indeed a busy and growing town.

During the past week Mr. Wade H. Mason, of the Oakland postoffice force, has been engaged in placing upon the telephone and electric light poles at each corner in town neatly lettered signs indicating the names of the streets and in numbering the houses along all the streets. This is done by the Government prior to the institution of free mail delivery to the residences and business houses of town.

Mr. Harry Porter, one of the progressive young farmers residing near Oakland, was in receipt of a letter from Governor Ritchie recently in which the Governor named Mr. Porter a delegate to represent Garrett county at the Farmers' Convention to be held at Salisbury, this state, on November 9th, and also a delegate at the Farmers' National Convention to be held at Columbus, Ohio, November 16th.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll A. Elliott and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Elliott left Oakland this morning for a motor trip to Pittsburgh and other Pennsylvania cities.

These gatherings will be addressed by Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman and others who will present the great questions confronting the American people today and which will be solved wisely or unwisely by their ballots to be cast on Tuesday, November 2nd. The committee urges all to attend one or more of these meetings. The women who have recently registered for the purpose of voting are especially invited to be present. Mr. Zihlman was one of the champions in the House giving the women equal suffrage and we are sure they appreciate his efforts and will show their appreciation by being present and hear his address.

A Handsome Roof at Little Cost

Art Craft is the wonderfully popular roll roofing that comes in the design—natural slate-roof and slate-green.

At little cost Art Craft adds beauty to residence, bungalow, cottage, garage or barn. It has a heavy felt base. It won't catch fire from falling sparks. Coats about one-half as much as a wooden shingle roof.

If desired, can be laid right over old wooden shingles.

If you want an extra good-looking roof at as little cost as it is safe to pay, you won't go wrong in buying Art Craft.

When You Feel Out of Sorts and See Things With a Dull Eye

LOOK TO YOUR BLOOD

Pale Complexions, Languid Feelings, Lowered Vitality, Need More Red Blood. Take Pepto-Mangan

So many people spend week after week feeling down and out. They never stop to think that something really is the matter. They satisfy themselves by saying, "Oh, I'm not sick. I'll be all right tomorrow."

And tomorrow comes again and again. Still they feel depressed and languid, scarcely able to get around. If you don't feel like yourself, you are not yourself. If you are weak and pale, your blood needs strengthening. You should know about Pepto-Mangan, that famous blood tonic. Physicians recommend it and prescribe it because it contains just the ingredients needed to make red blood. It renews your energy, puts you where you ought to be. Begin with it today. Get the tablets if they will be more convenient to take than the liquid. Both have the same medicinal qualities. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan. Ask for "Gude's" and be sure that the full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on the package.—Advertisement.

BLOOMING ROSE

The roses are still blooming, and we are still on the globe, although we have not seen any news published from here for some time.

We certainly do enjoy the beautiful weather we have been having for the past two weeks or more.

The Kildow Coal Company has built several new dwellings and we trust they will all be occupied before long.

Mr. Burkhart is a very welcome friend at the Mercing home because of his sweet and innocent look and mannerisms.

Dan and Gay Hamill, who have had whooping cough, are improving very rapidly.

Stanley Kildow will leave for California about December 1st. We are all very sorry to see him go and wish him the best of luck.

Mrs. Mercing was a very pleasant caller at the home of Mrs. P. H. Hamill on Sunday.

Henry O. Hamill, who is attending school in Oakland, spent the week-end with his parents here.

We want to give all of Mr. Michael Kildow's friends warning not to neglect him, for the attraction at Mountain Lake Park may become too great.

Clark Glatfelter has resigned the position of drawing "Old Jack" to join his old pal in digging black diamonds.

Several of the young people of our community spent Saturday evening in Oakland.

Mrs. C. L. Browning, who has been visiting friends and relatives here, left for her home at Akron, O., Saturday evening.

Colonel Mayle has gone to Kentucky to spend the winter. We were sorry to see him leave, but hope that he will return in the spring.

Everyone cordially invited to attend our church services. Special singing Sunday evening.

FLATWOODS

Quite a long time has elapsed since our last letter, but we are still among the living.

Rev. Flora preached two very interesting sermons at this place Saturday evening and Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Keller attended Mennonite communion service out near Bittering on Sunday.

Miss Emma Callis, who spent the summer in Oakland, visited her home folks on Saturday and Sunday.

The apple butter factory, owned and operated at this place by Mr. Fred. Richter, is running full time and for the past week has been running both night and day.

Mrs. Alex. Georg, who has been ill for some time, is able to be up and around again.

Mr. and Mrs. John Savage, of Sang Run, spent Sunday at the home of L. L. Savage.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Alexander, of this section, spent Sunday with friends in Accident.

Rev. C. C. Grisso, of North Liberty, Ind., will begin a series of meetings at this place on Sunday, October 24th, which will continue until November 3. Other announcements will be published later. We urge that all who can will attend these meetings.

Miss Anna Alexander, who is employed at W. E. Spoelrin's at Gortner, spent Saturday night and Sunday at her home here, returning to Gortner Sunday evening, being accompanied by Harry Kamp.

HUTTON

The following named gentlemen were business visitors at the tanning company's plant in Hutton on Saturday: Messrs. John W. Lee, of New York; William O'Connor, of Wellsboro, Pa.; James L. Snyder, of Boston, Mass.; H. H. Grisswald, of Wellsboro, Pa., and Robert Dale, of New York.

Mrs. Martin Pendergast had as her guests on Monday at her home in Hutton, Mrs. Miles O'Hara, of Piedmont, W. Va., and Mrs. Julia Keeney, of New York City.

Mr. E. W. Buckley, of Olean, N. Y., was a visitor to this place on Wednesday last.

Mr. Henry C. Grusendorf, of Keyser, accompanied by his little son, motored to Edgewood on Tuesday where they were guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Grusendorf.

We learn that the Tioga Tanning Company contemplates the erection of a beach house at their plant here, to replace the one that was recently destroyed by fire. It is said that the building and equipment will cost in the neighborhood of thirty thousand dollars. Mr. Charles Carr, a former employee, arrived here on Friday last from Wellsboro, Pa., for the purpose of superintending the construction of the proposed building, which will be started in a very short time.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kimmell, of Morgantown, West Va., came to Hutton on Saturday last where they were guests at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. Grant Felton, who resides near here, leaving on Monday for a point in Texas where they expect to make their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. Arch Connell, who have been sojourning in Texas for the past seven months or more, are here as guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Connell.

Mr. J. Homer Nordeck was a business visitor to Terra Alta on Saturday last.

Mr. Ralph Sanders, of near here, was visiting some of his friends in Terra Alta Saturday evening.

Miss Margaret Feeney, of Edgewood, was visiting friends in the county seat recently.

A few days ago we observed in a New York paper the following article under the caption "Brief Notes of Interest", which may probably be of some interest to the readers of The Republican: "Music of an orchestra playing in London was transmitted by the wireless telephone so distinctly that recently the guests of Senator Wm. Marconi danced to its strains on board his yacht 'Electra' in the Bay of Naples." Is it any wonder, then, that mental telepathy is more convincing today than it was in years previous? ST. ELMO.

SELBSPORT

On Sunday, October 17th, Mr. Okie Friend and Miss Elizabeth Bryant were married at the home of Mr. O. C. Friend by the Rev. Mr. Fox, of Friendsville. Mr. Friend is a very popular young man and is employed with the Coal and Coke Co. of Uniontown, Pa. The young couple will make their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pritt and son Wade, of Bidwell, Pa., was here visiting friends last week.

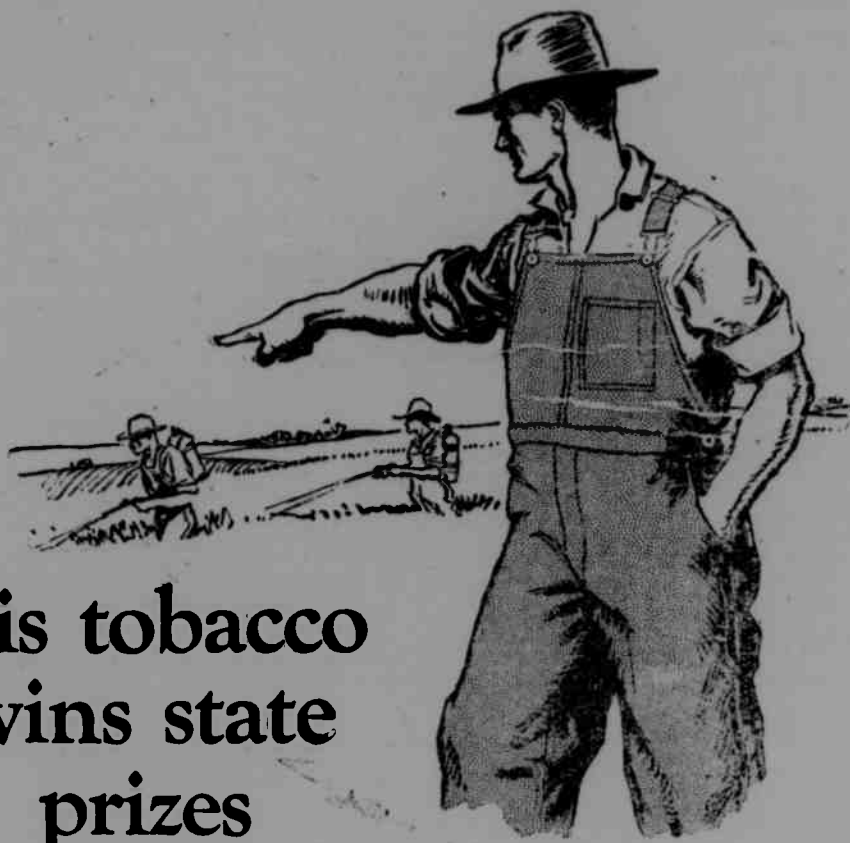

Mrs. Hervey Smouse and daughter Sadie Marie, of Gortner, were the guests of Mrs. M. V. Frazee several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Rush, of Accident, attended church services in this town on Sunday.

Mrs. John Riley, Sr., returned home on Saturday after visiting her son at Fairmont, West Va.

Miss Kathryn Liston returned home on Sunday after spending a week at Fairmont, West Va.

Mrs. Clyde Kalp and little son, of Indian Head, Pa., and Mrs. John Humbert, of Connellsville, are here for a visit of a few days.

Fordson TRADE MARK Farm Tractor

When Henry Ford set about building the Fordson tractor he had a thorough understanding of just what it should be and what it should do. His early life on the farm gave him a deep insight into the daily life of the farmer; his mechanical genius saw the type of tractor needed. He began work on a farm tractor thirty-five years ago, and for more than twelve years he experimented over more than 7,000 acres of land in different kinds of soil, with different crops.

So he built the Fordson. It is so simple that a school-boy can operate it. It is low in first cost. It is lowest in operating cost and Fordson parts and Fordson service are always to be had promptly from the dealer.

The Fordson is a profitable investment. It can be used every working day in the year. It is an inexpensive power plant that will lighten your farm work. It has proven its worth on more than one hundred thousand farms not only in operating implements in the fields but in belt and pulley work. And it doesn't eat when idle.

Don't delay ordering your Fordson tractor. The demand is greater than the supply.

CHAPTER 219.

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 15 of Article III, of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," regulating the compensation of the members of both Houses of the General Assembly of Maryland, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. 15. The General Assembly may continue its session so long as in its judgment the public interest may require for a period not longer than ninety days; and each member thereof shall receive a compensation of three hundred dollars per annum and five dollars per diem for every day he shall attend the session, but not for such days as he may be absent, unless absent on account of sickness or by leave of the House of which he is a member, and he shall also receive such mileage as may be allowed by law, not exceeding twenty cents per mile, and the preceding officer of each House shall receive an additional compensation of five dollars per diem. When the General Assembly shall be convened by proclamation of the governor, the session shall not continue longer than thirty days, and in such case the compensation shall be the same as herein prescribed.

UNIFORM POTATO GRADES FAVORED

Potatoes Graded and Packed Ready for Market.

Proper distribution of farm products requires, first of all, that a common understanding exist as the basis of negotiations between producers and purchasers. The bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, is endeavoring to bring this about by the recommendation of grades for fruits and vegetables. No. 2 potatoes should be No. 2 potatoes throughout the United States and not, as at present, No. 2 potatoes in one section of the country and No. 1 somewhere else. Higher Grade Demanded.

During the war period the United States food administration required licensed dealers to use government potato grades. The results were so satisfactory that when the regulation was canceled the use of grades to a large extent was continued voluntarily. In fact, since that time a higher grade has been demanded to provide for produce of highest quality.

Therefore the bureau of markets now recommends United States grade fancy in addition to grades No. 1 and No. 2.

Grade fancy consists of some potatoes of one variety which are mature, bright, smooth, well shaped, free from dirt or other foreign matter, frost injury, sunburn, second growth, growth cracks, cuts, scaly soft rot, dry rot, and damage caused by diseases, insects or mechanical or other means. The range in size shall be stated in terms of minimum and maximum diameter or weight following the grade name, but in no case shall the diameter be less than two inches.

In order to allow for variations incident to commercial grading and handling a per cent by weight of any lot may vary from the range in size stated, and, in addition, 3 per cent by weight of any such lot may be below the remaining requirements of this grade, but not more than one-third of such 3 per cent; that is to say, not more than 1 per cent by weight of the entire lot may have the flesh injured by soft rot.

Particulars in Circular. Complete particulars regarding United States potato grades are contained in Department Circular 106, which will be mailed free upon request to the bureau of markets.

Running Potatoes Through a Grader—An Increasing Number of Growers Are Doing This and So It Is More Important Than Ever That Uniform Grades for the Entire Country Be Followed.

MAKING FINE RECORD FOR IMPROVED Sires

Virginia Leads Country in Effort to Discard Scrubs.

Many Farmers of Pulaski County File Declaration They Will Follow Methods to Further Live Stock Improvement.

With over 10,000 head of domestic animals in addition to poultry enrolled in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement, Virginia leads all other states in the nation-wide effort to rid the country of scrub and other inferior sires. The stock mentioned is owned by 470 farmers, of whom 354 are in Pulaski county, Virginia. All of these live stock owners have filed with the United States department of agriculture declarations that they will not only use pure-bred sires, but will follow methods leading to further live stock improvement.

The bureau of animal industry, which is handling the enrollment records, received from Virginia recently 72 pledges in one day. Of this number 18 contained statements that purebred sires, including rams, boars and roosters, would be purchased. Cases of this kind show that the movement is not only educational, but is gradually resulting in the replacement of inferior males with purebreds.

THIN ALL PLANTS IN GARDEN

Tall, Spindly, Unhealthy Conditions Result Where Practice Is Not Followed.

Nearly all home gardeners plant more seed than necessary. In order to get a full stand of plants. As soon as these are large enough to handle easily, all excess plants should be pulled out, leaving enough space between the plants remaining for the vegetables to develop properly. If this practice is not followed, not only do the crowded conditions cause tall, spindly, unhealthy growth, but the excess plants act as weeds, using up the plant food and moisture that should be available for the crop.

VEGETABLES STORED FOR USE IN WINTER

Good Time to Begin Plans in Saving Garden Truck.

Money Will Be Saved and Variety Added to Menu by Preparing Room in Basement or Outdoor Cellar or Pit.

One of those nights not far distant there will be a frost. That means, does it not, that huge basket of pumpkins, squash, beans, onions, tomatoes, apples and other vegetables and fruit grown in your garden and orchard, must be brought in and saved for winter use?

Before that time the question of storage must be settled. If you have never had them to store before or did not have success in the methods used last year, or want to know more about the subject for general information, send for a copy of "Home Storing of Vegetables," Farmers' Bulletin 879, United States department of agriculture.

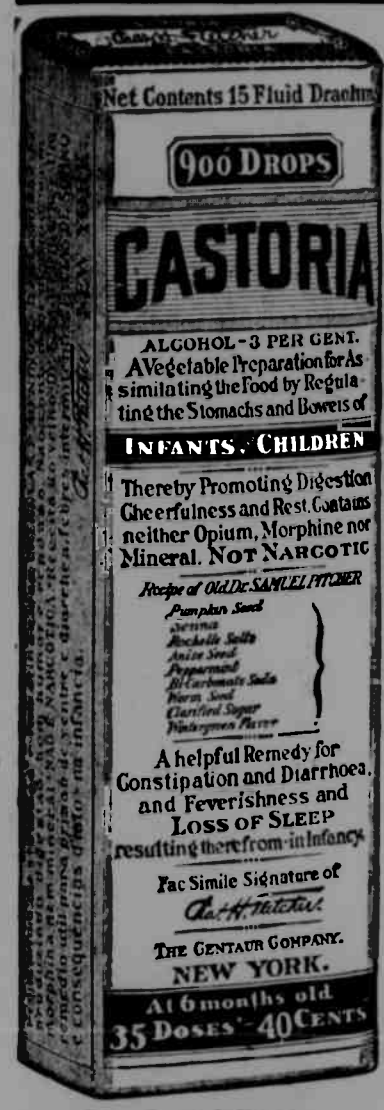

Different types of inexpensive and reliable storage places, the room in the basement of the dwelling, the outdoor storage cellar or cave, the bank or pit, are described in detail. The saving in money and the additional variety in your winter menus will more than pay you for spending time in preparation for good, careful storage.

CLOVER SEED IS PROFITABLE

Vigorous Second Crop May Be Obtained If Cut Early and Given Light Dressing.

Clover, if cut early when just coming into blossom and given a light dressing of land plaster or of any fine compost, will, if the stalks are strong, make a vigorous second growth and give a paying crop of seed. Every farmer might raise his own clover seed by this method. The seed comes from the second crop and not from the first crop.

Plaster is the best and most economical mineral fertilizer to use.

When the inspection was finished and the two had returned to the library on the first floor, the visitor said:

OAKLAND, MARYLAND

A REVIEW OF COUNTY BOND ISSUES.

In view of the great interest being taken in the proposed loan of $200,000 for new school buildings, etc., we are printing below the results of similar movements in Garrett county.

The proposed loan is to be submitted to the qualified voters at the general election to be held next Tuesday, November 2d. In this connection we take this opportunity of calling the attention of our readers to the open letter to the voters of Garrett county published elsewhere in this issue of The Republican, and which is signed by each of the three members of the County Board of Education and the County Superintendent of Schools.

The friends of the proposed loan assure us that those voters who become acquainted with the present urgent needs in school buildings, etc., the present financial outlook for the county, etc., that such voters pledge their support to the measure. Furthermore, it seems reasonable for the friends of the loan to believe that the newly-enfranchised women voters are going to cast their ballots for the best school conditions possible for the boys and girls of our county. It is reasoned that a poor water or light supply, bad roads and streets, no sewerage or other similar health promoting agencies and other defects, important as they are, affect the voters themselves—they shoulder the evils therefrom; conditions in the schools affect the children, who are helpless to remedy them. This fact is being recognized today as never before and it is believed the women voters will join with many men voters to help improve conditions for the helpless children.

If there is anything in prophecy in order of events, it appears the loan may be successful. The results were unfavorable for a loan at the general election held November 8, 1904, "for purchasing lots and furnishing and erecting and building a new Court House and new Jail and furnishing the same," as is set forth in the table below; however, the new Jail was immediately erected by direct taxation, which many of our citizens well remember. The pendulum swung the other way at the general election held November 6, 1906, when the voters ratified a proposed loan "for the purpose of building and furnishing a new Court House", the results of which are also set forth below, there having been cast 914 votes for the loan and 796 against it, the loan being ratified by a majority of 118 votes. Then the pendulum swung the other way again for a proposed loan of $20,000 was rejected by the voters, as set forth in the table below, the purpose of the loan as submitted to the voters at the general election held November 7, 1916, having been "for the purpose of erecting a high school building in the town of Oakland, furnishing, heating and equipping the same and improving other school buildings, securing land, etc." However, the high school building was erected during the year of 1918-1919, the funds necessary for the same having been secured from direct county taxation, which in part explains the present and past increases necessary in the county tax rate. So, in the ordinary course of events, it appears the friends and advocates of the present loan are going to have their inning for a home run.

Many supporters of the present proposed loan contend that wise school administration requires that school buildings be built from funds raised through loans. They state that the life of a modern school building is at least thirty or thirty-five years and that they should not be all paid for at once; that those who secure the immediate benefits therefrom should help pay for them by helping to pay off the bonds; that new settlers and residents who come later into the county should help pay their cost by helping to pay off the bonds; and that such permanent improvements as school buildings should not be paid for entirely by the present tax payers, many of whom by moving away or selling out in a year or two, will no longer be required or expected to pay taxes or to have provided such improvements for new citizens who will secure the benefits therefrom but who have not been required to pay one cent of taxation for their erection.

There are many friends of public education, however, who contend that every needed school building should be provided and that old, dilapidated, antiquated and unfit buildings should be replaced by modern, suitable structures and paid for by direct taxation at the time of their erection. It must be admitted that this plan perhaps is an ideal one, but those friends of public schools do not take into consideration fully the present school growth and situation in Garrett county. The salaries of teachers have been greatly increased during the past few years and the present act of the General Assembly of 1920 in reference to salaries of teachers has made mandatory a much larger expenditure for teachers' salaries and, even with the funds already provided for salaries of teachers, still larger funds must be provided in order to meet the growing demands of the public generally for teachers who are still better equipped for the work, the demands commendably growing better.

Below will be found a table in which are set forth the annual amounts paid for teachers salaries during the school years as designated, the current school year for 1920-1921 being carefully estimated and being as correct as data at this time will permit:

Teachers' salaries, 1912-13..	$30,069.11
Teachers' salaries, 1913-14..	49,677.63
Teachers' salaries, 1914-15..	51,382.35
Teachers' salaries, 1915-16..	51,713.04
Teachers' salaries, 1916-17..	59,161.54
Teachers' salaries, 1917-18..	59,977.67
Teachers' salaries, 1918-19..	68,439.80
Teachers' salaries, 1919-20..	70,703.90
Teachers' salaries, 1920-21..	136,675.00

The tables setting forth the results of similar movements to secure loans, referred on the opening paragraph of this article, are printed below:

The first and second columns represent, for and against, respectively, the vote on the proposition of bonding the county to build a new court house and jail; the third and fourth columns for and against the bond issue for a new court house, while the fifth and sixth columns show the vote for and against, respectively, on the proposition for bonds with which to build a new high school and for other school purposes:

KILLED AT UNIONTOWN

Young Garrett Countian Met Instant Death at Uniontown.

Gilmer Coddington, aged a little more than twenty-one years, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coddington, of Hoyes, this county, met instant death at New Salem, Pa., near Uniontown, on last Thursday. The young man was in the employ of the West Penn Power Company and at the time of his death was working on a high tension electric line. His left arm and forehead came in contact with a wire carrying 2200 volts of electricity. He fell from the pole to the ground and when picked up by fellow workmen it was found that in addition to the burns he had received from the wire, his neck was broken.

His body was sent to the home of his parents at Hoyes on Saturday and on Sunday his funeral took place from the Hoyes Methodist Episcopal church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Johnson, assisted by Rev. A. Donahy, of Friendsville. The interment was made in the Addison (Pa.) cemetery following the services at the Hoyes church which was largely attended by people from all sections of the county.

KIEV EVACUATED WHILE BURNING

Americans With Polish Army Tell Thrilling Story of Flight From Bolsheviks.

MANY ATROCITIES BY REDS

Evacuation Is Wild and Picturesque Happening—Hacked and Mutilated Bodies of Polish Soldiers Attest Cruelty of Reds.

Washington.—A vivid description of the evacuation of Kiev by the Polish army was received in Washington, in the shape of mail dispatches from Warsaw, the Polish capital. Colonel Gaskill, formerly of the American army, but now of the Polish railway mission, and Jay P. Moffat, secretary of the American Legation at Warsaw, furnished two of the clearest stories of the actual abandonment of the Ukrainian city.

The account, which, although not official, is regarded as reliable information, follows:

Picturesque and Thrilling Event.

"The evacuation of Kiev by the Polish army was a picturesque as well as a thrilling event. Credit for saving not only his men but also for the rescue of the immense swarm of refugees which accompanied the army must be given to General Rydz Smigley, the Polish commander of the Kiev occupation. Since the evacuation these refugees have been making their way into Warsaw and in surviving remotely resembling clothes and have been giving truthful but none the less extraordinary accounts of the experiences which they have undergone.

"Colonel Gaskill, who came out of Kiev with the Polish troops, was with the Polish staff there throughout the entire experience and witnessed the planning as well as the execution of the evacuation movement. Mr. Moffat took part in the evacuation of Jitomierz and experienced, after a Budapest red cavalry raid, a thrilling night ride through the forests of Kovel, while the peasants along the way were apparently taking pot shots at any soldiers they saw, with little regard to the color of their uniforms.

"The stories told by both Colonel Gaskill and Mr. Moffat confirm what has so often been said of the cruelties of the red troops. Colonel Gaskill told with considerable vividness of the descent of the reds upon the city even before the troops and refugees had gotten away, and of a night spent amid turbulence and constant indiscriminate firing by the reds on refugees and troop trains. Fortunately their aim for the most part was poor. Mr. Moffat in his region saw the hacked and mutilated bodies of Polish soldiers along the roadway at Jitomierz, and the bodies of four mutilated soldiers hanging in a freight car, their wounds attesting that their deaths had been made as horrible as humanly possible.

"The condition of the refugees was described by both men as pathetic. Men, women and babies being huddled into box cars, and all arrayed in most extraordinary makeshift clothing. They had been summoned to flee the city with hardly more than an hour of warning and all had fled almost as they stood. They had abandoned their homes with no preparation. They had no food and no clothing other than what they wore. Even more terrible than the refugees, however, was the condition of the people whom the Poles were obliged to leave behind since the trains could not accommodate them. There were incidents in which fathers and mothers gave up their places in order that their children, particularly their daughters, might escape from the doomed region.

Ordered to Leave City. Up to the last, according to Colonel Gaskill's account, the Poles were determined to hold the city. The staff had not only planned but had put into operation a scheme for defense, and General Rydz Smigley was satisfied that while the east might be heavy, they could hold their ground. All the time that the decision was being made, Colonel Gaskill stated, the staff headquarters was fairly besieged by Russians and Poles begging the general not to abandon them and predicting their fate with the return of the reds.

The knowledge that the reds had crossed the river and were advancing from the north was confirmed by the appearance of red airplanes which began dropping incendiary bombs on the city so that in a relatively short time half a dozen fires were burning.

"While the Polish staff was endeavoring to reach a decision the Polish order came from the chief of staff, Pilsudski, to abandon the place, and a wild rush of preparation began. A Polish Red Cross and other agencies began to gather together the refugees and the army officials to marshal their men. These preparations were, of course, noted by the enemy, and the number of red planes increased. By the time the movement was actually under way the convoy was suffering from gunfire as well as from the bombs of the aviators, and in the city which they had left behind the fleeing troops and refugees could see the flames mounting steadily from burning buildings. The ride out was an exciting one. The trains could only be moved at a slow speed, and Polish soldiers were required on the footboards of all the engines to maintain order and prevent panic."

FRENCH GALLANTRY IS DEAD

Girls Now Have to Fight for Seats in Paris Subway Trains.

Paris.—So had have the traveling conditions become on the tubes here that the woman workers, including the middlemeters and modistes of the fashionable shops, have demanded that a special carriage on each train be reserved for women.

"The traditional gallantry of France must be dead," remarked a tired business girl. "Traveling on the metro at certain hours of the day has become nothing more or less than a battle in which the weak have no chance against the strong."

Wireless Guidance for Swedish Fishers

Stockholm.—Wireless telephone receivers are being placed by the Swedish government on fishing craft, so the fishers may be warned of bad weather and informed where good catches of herring may be expected. As no transmitters will be placed on the boats the fishers will not be able to communicate with other vessels nor with wireless stations on shore.

VENTILATION IN METAL MINES

An Economic Fault That Should Be Remedied, Says Federal Engineer.

LIVES AND EFFICIENCY LOST

One Thousand Die Annually From Miner's Consumption, Chiefly Caused by Dust—Time Lost Aggregates Millions of Dollars.

Washington.—The desirability of efficient control of air currents and the necessity of supplying metal mine workers with better and safer working conditions has created an active interest in metal mine ventilation, especially in recent years. In a paper just issued by the United States bureau of mines the writer, D. Harrington, mining engineer of the bureau, discusses the subject both with regard to efficiency and economy as well as safety and health. It is based on personal observations of Mr. Harrington during more than four years' study of metal mines in six states, in which more than fifty mines were visited.

In coal mines ventilation is generally regarded as essential, but in many metal mines, especially shallow ones, the operators pay little attention to ventilation, or ignore it altogether, says the writer. Mr. Harrington says: "There is greater necessity for adequate ventilation of metal mines than of coal mines. The latter require air currents to remove explosive gases and the fumes of explosives, but metal mines, in addition to the need of removing fumes of explosives and occasionally explosive gases, frequently have need of removing dust dangerous to health, reduction of high temperatures and high humidity, and removal of inert, but unhealthy gases."

The main features affecting metal-mine ventilation as outlined in part by Mr. Harrington, are:

Movement of Air.—This involves effects of air movement at various temperatures, humidities, and with certain gases present, and the advisable velocity of current to use.

Temperature.—The temperature of the air in a metal mine is influenced by the outside air temperature, underground motors and other machinery, oxidation of ores and timbers, mine fires, friction of air due to velocity of flow, movement of ground, firing of shots, quantity of air circulating, heat from breathing of men and animals, heated air from other mines, heat from electric motors and other machinery.

Humidity.—The humidity of mine air depends on the relative humidity of surface air, wetness of shafts and workings, the velocities, quantities, and temperatures of the air circulated. Where small fan units are employed to force air through galvanized iron or canvas tubing, these also affect the humidity through absorption or deposition of moisture.

Mine gases and dusts.—The intake air is usually pure, except in rare instances where smoke or dust from surface workings may be present. The air in the mine changes through breathing of men and animals, burning of lights, oxidation of ore or timber, gases issuing from strata, gases from mine fires, fumes from explosives, gases from compressed air, gases from operation of machinery, dusts from drilling, blasting, shoveling and other work.

Studied by Experts.

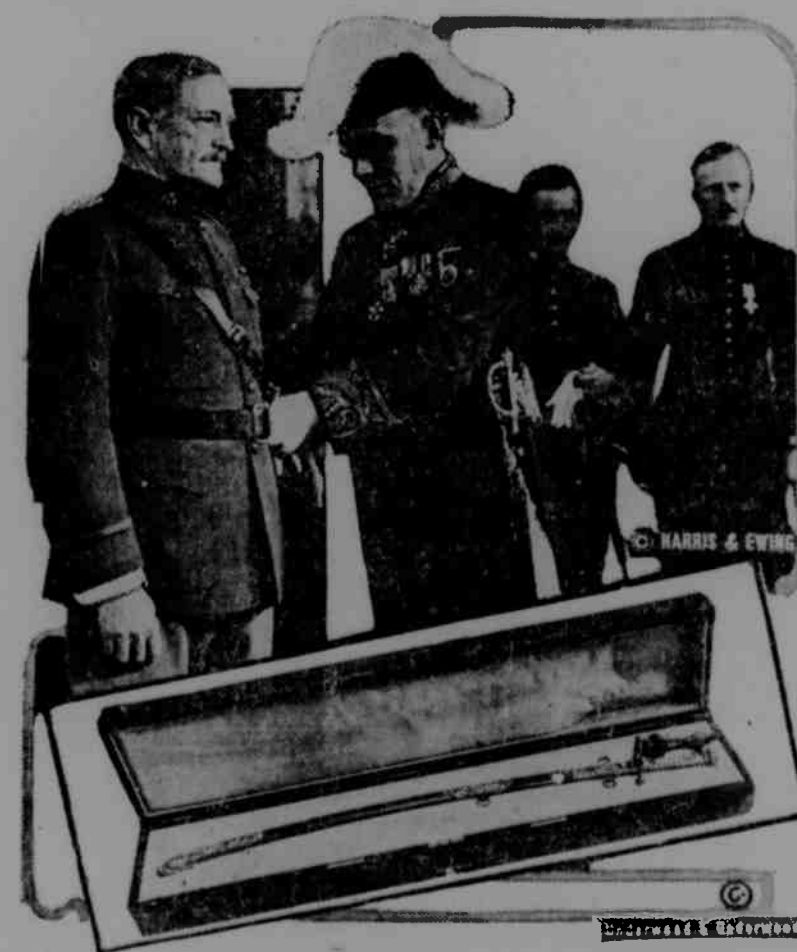

The writer says that the bureau of mines and the United States public health service, in conjunction with the investigation of mine dusts and gases, are studying effects of temperature and humidity on workmen's health and efficiency.

"Few mines having humid hot working places with no circulation have escaped without one or more fatalities from 'heart failure,' which is really heat prostration," says the writer, "yet proper air circulation would make these mines endurable."

"In some mines where gases such as nitrogen or carbon dioxide issue from the strata, fatalities and many cases of gassing have occurred from inadequate ventilation; the remedy is force or pressure ventilation during constant vigilance. Many lives have been lost as well as much property, from fires in metal mines because no ventilating equipment arranged to control the air currents in such an emergency had been provided."

Miners' consumption probably kills at least 1,000 metal miners annually in the United States, and causes a loss of time aggregating millions of dollars; the misery and suffering to miners and their families cannot be estimated. Yet the causes of this disease could be reduced 75 per cent, if not wholly eliminated by proper preventive measures on the part of operator and miner, one of the most potent measures, as previously mentioned, is adequate ventilation."

General Pershing Gets Jeweled Sword

The British ambassador to the United States, Sir Auckland Geddes, presenting to Gen. John J. Pershing a magnificent sword, jeweled, chased and engraved in commemoration of the splendid services rendered during the war by General Pershing and the men who fought under him. The sword was a gift from the corporation and city of London, delayed until London's jeweler could be released from their military tasks long enough to fashion the gift with all possible care.

ALGIERS RICH IN SUNDAYS Holy Day Observed Three Times a Week by Followers of Different Religions.

Although no fewer than three Sundays are observed each week in Algiers, writes a correspondent, only one could in any sense be called a "day of rest." For while the prophet enjoined his followers to attend worship on Sunday, he warned them against allowing it to become a day of idleness. An Arab or Moor, therefore, will frequently leave his wars unattended in his shop while he goes off to the mosque to pray, and he seldom has occasion to regret this course, cases of robbery being extremely rare. The French Sunday is typically French. The Jew alone makes his Sunday a day of rest, his religion forbidding anything save talking on that day. A walk through the Jewish quarter on the Sabbath will carry one's thoughts back many years. The picturesque groups at the street corners, in their rich, flowing robes, will recall many an Old Testament story learned in childhood, for the Jew in his oriental garb has a very different appearance from the Jew as we know him in the West.

Apprehensive. "Why do you speak so kindly of pulpit drama?" "Anything to dodge bathrobes."

FOR EVERY DAY, AS IT WERE

Soldier's Preference Was for Something of Which He Could Make General Use.

A British general who was commandant of a district in India had presented the prizes at the garrison sports, and was rather surprised when one of the prize-winners, a private in an infantry regiment, approached him a few days later and begged to know if he would be allowed to change his prize for something more useful.

"What was your prize?" asked the general. In reply, the man produced a long case under his arm, and showed a handsome pair of most curvaceous. "Very nice, I am sure," said the general. "What do you want to change them for?"

"Well, you see, sir," replied the man, "I would rather have a knife and fork of the size to eat meat with." —Edinburgh Scotsman.

FLATWOODS

At this time we are having fine weather which we trust will continue indefinitely. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Alexander and sons, Robert and Fred, attended the Cumberland fair last week. Mr. Lloyd Skiles purchased a new Overland touring car last week. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hostetter, of near Oakland, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Boyer, Rev. C. C. Grisso and Miss Sarah Savage were guests at the home of B. M. Keller on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Luther Keller spent Sunday at the home of Lewis Beitzel. Some of the folks from this section attended the funeral of Gilbert Codding, which took place at the M. E. church at Hoyes Sunday afternoon. We extend to the grieving ones our heartfelt sympathy in this hour of their trial. We can only look forward with comfort to the promise of meeting again some day. Miss Nellie Hostetter, of near Oakland, spent last week with her sister, Mrs. Albert Boyer.

Mrs. W. D. Herring entertained a number of young folks on Saturday evening. The hours were spent in playing games, singing, etc. Among those present were Misses Mabel and Gladys Keller, Sarah Savage, Emma and Hannah Callis and Gladys Dixon, and Messrs. Milton Savage, Garrett Dixon, Gordon, Ben, Mason and Marvin Callis, Milton Edgar, Floyd Bowman and Earl Weimer. At an early hour refreshments were served and all departed for their respective homes reporting a very pleasant time.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Dr. and Mrs. Slutz and daughter, Mrs. Graves, have returned to their cozy cottage here after having been absent about two weeks. Mrs. A. V. Enlow is visiting her daughter Lois in her new home in Baltimore. Mrs. Utterback and little son Bobby accompanied Mrs. Enlow to the city. There were five cars here on Sunday from Uniontown, Pa., crowded with men, women and children. The party ate their lunches in the old auditorium. Three or four families of the summer colony have remained at the Park during the present delightful weather and they have greatly enjoyed it. The Park grounds are covered with removed as rapidly as possible to secure the buildings against the possibility of fire from this source. A wise move and one that should be taken up by all property owners and occupants of property in the Park, for we remember with regret the experience of last spring when a number of buildings were burned, the fire having its inception among the dried leaves that had fallen the year before. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, who purchased the McComas property, have put in improvements in the way of baths and have painted the house inside and outside. They are now at their home in Fairmont for the winter. Mrs. C. Cuppett, of Cranesville, W. Va., is a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. V. Leighton.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31.

How Down the Corrupt Tree. (World's Temperance Lesson) Matt. 7: 13-20.

Every tree that bringeth forth not good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire. Matt. 6: 19.

THE ROAD.

Jesus always led hearers to a place of choosing. There was never any definite talking for talk's sake with Him. The lesson is taken from the conclusion of the address as Matthew gives it and the orderliness of it all is worth any speaker's study. First there is a description of the life of a kingdom-citizen as we had it last week. It is related to the old Israelitish past so that the unity is clear. (6:17-20). The hicks are stripped from the old laws so that the inner Kingdom-corn is perceived. (6:21-48). Its life is expressed in worship, in trust and in the attitude of good-will. (6:17-12). Last of all there is the privilege and reward of obedience pressed upon the will of the hearers and this is the text taken for our lesson. A series of pictures carries the truth Jesus desired to impart. The first is that of contrasting roads each of which is entered thru a gateway that is wide open. No bars obstruct the free passage of any traveler upon either one. Life's great choice is made here for there is no connection between the ways and they lead in opposite directions. One is narrow to the single requirement of obedience to the Lord of the way while self-interest, expediency, the swift success of show and desire give amplexure to the entrance of the other. The roads are no less distinct for one is merely the wide plain over which one may wander aimlessly if so desired while the other is "rutted" by the traffic of laden lives. There is direction and progress here and since obedience is followed by all the ways deeply worn but few are they that find it (narrow). With eyes looking ever forward into the fulness of life they are thrallied by the far reaches ahead so that there is no sense of narrowness as they journeyed toward their goal. Certainly "if rutted is the way" there must have been many who have gone over it which is precisely true for all strong souls have obeyed the moral law written in the Word or in their own consciences. The peril of the traffic in strong drink is that it makes it impossible to keep any direct path but allows only the straying foot that wanders aimlessly, the striking characteristic of the other road.

GUIDES AND GARDENS.

Distractions beset travelers always. The corner taker of nickles for a look through his telescope who made sure of pleasing patrons by a painted star does not differ from Christ's deceptive prophet who sought to stop the advance by guile. Enemies of life would turn all its devotees to destruction and lose them in the windings of the road that gets nowhere except to self-loss. How may they be known? "What do they produce?" is the test submitted by Jesus as final in their judgment. There may be entire absence of fruitage which is itself the bitterest condemnation. Parasites are to be destroyed in whatever realm they may exist. They may be converted into something useful, a tree by grafting or a germ may be made to produce a toxin that will destroy disease. But if there is product look at that to determine what is the nature of the producer. Test the church, the school, the state by this means and find how very much good is coming from each of them. The fact that there are some faulty apples does not condemn the tree, unless that is the only sort it bears. But it takes more than one apple to save a crop. That is precisely the trouble with the saloon. It has had its defenders on the basis of its social ministry but there are no more rotten fruits that its condemnation has been complete. The record of savings banks, of groceries, of orderly strikes, of built up health and home of closed jails and depleted rescue missions are to much evidence to permit the cry of those who for profit would pander to appetite to longer camouflage its character. No "slush funds" ever grew on good stock. No corrupter of the heart of youth appears on a perfect tree.

THE TONGUE OR THE HAND.

"The passing of the class-meeting" has been much discussed with many sad shakings of heads. God pity the day when the thing for which the class stood passes from us but if that abides in other forms then there is small cause for anything other than praise. The testimony of the tongue is not final with God. Youth today is more willing to work than it is to speak of its inner dreamings and the witness of the hand is just as valid as that of any other member of the body. A dumb man may be a better Christian than a paralytic. Neither hand nor tongue can criticize the other for Jesus probes below them both, rejecting both word and deed unless each is based upon the obedience of love. The class to which He refers is that company that speaks and practices for profit rather than for service. Their pay-envelope has already been received so they cannot justly ask for more. Again we run into the position of the saloon. The whole system is built upon the idea of personal profit, capitalizing a stimulated appetite for gain. Posing as the meeters of a public need they robbed it of its very life. Small wonder that the people ultimately said: "I know you not!" Its plea of personal liberty will bring the same answer from all its true lovers. And whatever voice it is that banners its service and banks an unholy profit may expect the same arresting word from the Lord of Life.

THE STORM SWIFT WAY.

No building is made for sunshine only. The test of every structure is its ability to weather storms. That is true of lives or businesses or states or houses. And it is down underneath where the eye does not rest that the final determination is made. Not the witness of word or hand but the foundations upon which both rest will be revealed in some fierce gale. Christ's picture of the two houses tells the same story for it is upon that unseen portion that the safety of the whole depended. The story goes that a Connecticut Deacon kept a grocery store and was asked for a pint of whiskey. "I can't sell it to you," he answered. "Why?" "The law won't let me sell less than a quart." Quick as a flash the semi-drunk replied, "Deacon, if you ain't any better than the law allows, you'll go to hell sure." Outer conformity may cover inner deformity. When the wind blows the cloak aside on some stormy day all the world may see. When the storm of war swept across our national life the foundations under the traffic in drink crumbled and under its revealing blast prohibition came into being. The house of sobriety stood staunch enough but the other fell and to judge from the noise, great was the fall of it. And the whole world traffic will drop into the same pile under the storms that are ahead for everything of the kind.

MOTIVE EVERYTHING.

In the breast of everyone God has placed a monitor that accuses us of wrong doing; warns against the tempter and would guide us into the purity of heart that is necessary to see God.

It's mandates should be obeyed, but also, they are not as they should be. We may think we will gain much by disregarding its voice, but though we gain houses full of silver and gold, yet must the voice of this rightful judge of our conduct be obeyed and duty done. That conscience must be obeyed is an intuitive judgment, admitted by every impartial mind, unless they belie the convictions of their reason. Men may conscientiously do a wrong thing, hence the necessity of the conscience being educated in the principles of God's word. Only a conscience instructed in the word is an infallible guide.

There is one duty to which conscience urges all, viz.: the duty of confessing the truth of the gospel; of putting ourselves in right relationship to God. If the motives to do this are stronger than those against it, if we think we will gain more by doing it; if the desire for heaven is stronger than the fear of death, we will follow the dictates of conscience and seek to be reconciled with God through Christ.

If everyone would obey conscience he would be led to this, because everyone recognizes it to be a duty. This moral force can never have too much power. Other propensities do have too much influence over us, but this one never can have, for it rightfully belongs to conscience to have the sway over all our conduct.

An angry man is too strongly inclined to retaliation because the voice of this judge which would prevent his plunging into sin and crime. A licentious man is too strongly prompted to indulgence because the voice of this judge which would prevent his indulging in sin and crime. An avaricious man is too strongly bent on securing wealth to obey the admonitions of this friend who would save him from many a snare that will criminate his check with shame.

A man's friendship for another may be too strongly inclined to partiality, but under the way of conscience would lead us into peace and life if we obeyed. Listen, then, to the voice of God within you; obey its dictates, walk in wisdom's ways and you shall find rest unto your souls. You shall satisfy know Him who is life everlasting and who will give unto you that purity of heart which is necessary to see God.

What, then, is your motive in rejecting Christ as your personal Savior and not confessing and serving Him? Why are you not doing your duty? Do you hope all will be well with you? What is the ground of your hope? Remember this, God is true and He do what He pleases. That you may test Him to the fullest, is the desire of your friend, JOANNES.

HUTTON

Mr. A. L. Light, superintendent of the mines at Corinth, was here recently as a business visitor.

A number of the young people of this community, including the writer, motored over to Shadydel on last Friday evening to attend a dance held at the hall at that place. The party encountered a little difficulty en route arrived there about 10:30 and was greatly pleased to find a good old-fashioned quadrille in full progress.

Toward the close of the evening the orchestra struck up a wonderful waltz which was greatly enjoyed by all the dancers, after which we retraced our steps homeward carrying with us a very favorable impression of Shadydel and its people.

Mrs. Agnes Clark, accompanied by her brother, Mr. Thomas Faherty, of Cumberland, spent Sunday at the home of her brother, Mr. Stephen S. Faherty, in this village.

Merchant William Bishop, of Terra Alta, was here Thursday on business.

Rev. James E. Connell, of Oakland, was visiting his parishioners here and at Edgewood on Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gurd and little son Clarence of Durbin, West Va., motored to Hutton Tuesday morning where they visited friends for a few hours, returning home in the afternoon.

Mrs. Jessie Poole Walsh, of Terra Alta, was a visitor to Corinth and Hutton on Monday.

FORDSON

TRADE MARK

It is a habit of Henry Ford to thoroughly try out and test any product he manufactures before he puts it on the market. He personally must know it will do all he wants it to before he will allow anybody else to buy it. For thirty-five years he worked on this Fordson Tractor. He kept buying land until he had something like eight thousand acres in order that he might get a great variety of soil conditions containing the plowing problems that meet the farmers of the world, and then the Fordson Tractor was put to work and made to take all sorts of practical tests for years before Mr. Ford put it on the market.

And, therefore, when it came on the market, it was right, it was reliable, it would do the work he said it would do. People have bought it, have tried it out, have tested it, and it has proven to be all that Mr. Ford claims it to be, and this is why that while farm tractors have been on the American market more than twenty years and while three hundred thousand have been sold one hundred thousand of that three hundred thousand are Fordson Tractors, and yet the Fordson has only been on the market two years.

It has sold rapidly because when one farmer bought one, he practically converted the neighborhood to the desirability and profit of the Fordson Tractor on the farm.

The Fordson is made small, compact, flexible, dependable. It is made to be much more convenient to handle than a horse. It was made so that anybody of ordinary common sense could operate and take care of it. We wanted to make it so that a mechanic would not have to be sold with every Tractor. It was made by a farmer for a farmer, and it has the endorsement of the farmers—the little farmer and the big farmer. Some farmers have one, some farmers have ten and fifteen, and one farmer we know has fifty-six. It works just as well in the West as it does in the East. It is just as flexible in the North as it is in the South. It is just as profitable in the wheat fields as it is in the sugar and rice fields. It is just as flexible and useful on the fruit ranch as it is among the fields of oats and barley. It is just as useful and profitable in the lumber camp, railroad yard, coal mine, as it is in the oil fields or any other commercial line. But especially designed for the farmer, it is especially his necessity.

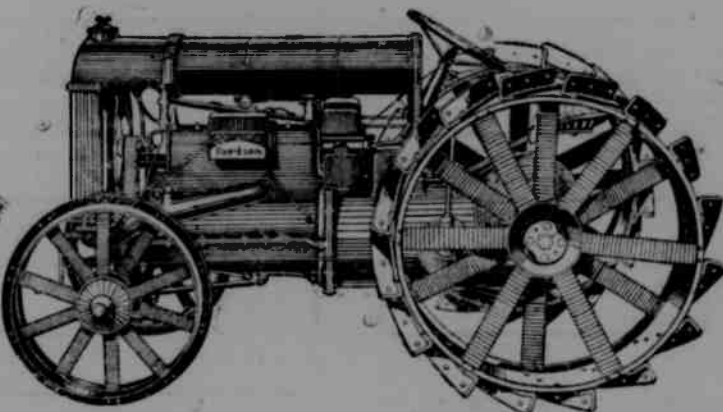

Because it increases the production of every acre by enabling the farmer to cultivate his ground to better advantage than he can with mule or horse-power. It takes the sting and drudgery out of farm work. It is a great conservator of labor expense. Oh, it has so many money-saving advantages that the farmer can't do without it and be progressive and make money.

So we ask every farmer to come in and let us tell him more about this Fordson Tractor. Let us make a demonstration for him on his own farm. Let us test it out to his soil conditions. Let's show him.

Don't delay because there are only so many Fordson Tractors to come to this territory. Get your order in now, and remember that the Fordson after service is prompt and sure. We are supplied with everything necessary to keep your Fordson going every day in the year. Come in and let's talk it over.

DEMOCRACY vs. BANKRUPTCY
When we entered the World War the slogan was "The World must be made safe for Democracy." Now in time of peace the slogan of the Presidential campaign is "The World must be saved from Bankruptcy."

When business men form a partnership they each contribute something to the general assets. It may be money, brains or labor; but in any case the benefit to be derived is mutual. Each party to this enterprise needs what the other has to give. Now before entering the biggest trust ever formed, let us weigh the assets and liabilities of the two big parties concerned and see if the benefits to be derived is mutual. The two big contracting parties are the East and the West. Let us take the former and consider its financial responsibility. The total war debt of England alone was $34,199,000,000. That of France was $23,896,000,000. Speaking of debts it is remarkable that the United States spent more money during the nine months he was in the war than England or France did in the four years they were in the war, our debt being $25,389,000,000. All the European countries are in debt and some can't even meet current expenses. Europe owes us $12,000,000,000. We can't hope then for any financial assistance from Europe. How about the other assets? The East would like to supply the brains for the West, tell us when to go to war, where to spend our money, what territories to guard, which people to clothe, which not to feed. They also would like the privilege of regulating our commerce, our tariff and any of our domestic problems, which, in their estimation, would "Threaten the peace of the world."

Can they supply Labor? They can and that is their only asset. How would this affect the other party to this agreement? Would the benefit to be derived be mutual? Let us see. In Europe today the common laborer gets about 12 cents (in U. S. money) a day in China and India to between $2 and $3 in England. In the United States the same class of laborer gets an average of $5 a day. What would be the result if we entered this partnership and accepted the only asset the East had to offer? A lowering of our average American laborer's wage scale and a lowering of the standard of living for the workmen of America. Every foreign born American citizen knows the difference in the living conditions of the laborer on the eastern continent and those on the western. Is he then going to vote to enter a league, which seeks to standardize the daily wage and the daily output of the workman?

Summing up then, we find, in this business deal, all the assets furnished by one side, the Western half of the world, and all the liabilities lined up on the Eastern side.

According to Article 23 of the Covenant even immigration itself could be regulated by a foreign council, if this question in the estimation of this Council "threaten to disturb international peace." This might cause an indiscriminate flood of immigration which would not only cheapen labor and lower the standard of living, but make more serious our problems of cost and production.

Once in this un-business like proposition, we could not get out until, according to Article 1 "after two years' notice of our intention so to do, provided, that all our international obligations shall have been fulfilled."

X Y Z OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

The Democratic party has issued a pamphlet called the "A B C of the League of Nations." The entering or beginning of a proposition is important; but not so vital as the serious consideration of what the end will be. Therefore, we should give our time and thought to the X Y Z, or result of this Foreign Covenant.

They say this Covenant "will prevent war." How does it propose to do it? First, by "mandates" or protectorates over small countries.

At the Peace Conference the United States was asked to be the "Big Brother" for Armenia. Mr. Wilson appointed the Harbord Commission to investigate the number of American men and American dollars it would take to police Armenia. That Commission reported that it would take from 50,000 to 200,000 American soldiers and $756,000,000 for the first five years. The United States Senate thought that was too many men and too much of the American people's money to "protect" one small country, so they refused to accept this "little Brother." Now hordes of Turks and Bolsheviks are pouring into Armenia, and a daily paper tells us if the U. S. had accepted this mandate for Armenia "the United States would now be at war with Turkey." So much for the "Big Brother" arguments. You can draw your own conclusions.

Another way to prevent war they say is by "arbitration" or a conference of nations. A conference in which England has six votes to our one. They tell us that the final power rests with the Council, and that England has only one vote in that body; but they don't say that any of England's colonies or dominions are eligible to occupy any one or all of the four positions in the Council that are appointed by the Assembly. New Zealand with half the population of Chicago, has as much power in this league of justice as the entire United States. If Mr. Wilson's League of Nations had existed in 1898 and Spain had been a member, we would have been compelled to protect her "territorial integrity" and Cuba today would have been a colony instead of a free and independent republic. Should this arbitration fail, then, according to Article 16, the "members of the League shall severally contribute to the armed force to be used to protect the covenants of the League."

Mr. Wilson was asked, "Will it (the League) prevent war?" to which he replied, "Nothing will prevent war, but it will give us a chance to talk about it." And while the six months' consideration by the Council and the three ensuing months before action can be taken (Art. 12) the bandits of Mexico or the Bolsheviks of Russia can commit all the depredations they like. A fine chance Belgium would have had, had she been compelled as a member of the League to wait nine months before defending her borders. Now if the League can prevent war, why doesn't it do so. Thirty-nine countries, according to the A B C, are now in the League; but we know eighteen countries in Europe and Asia are in a state of war today.

It can't even cure what it would prevent.

Taking an X Y Z view of Mr. Wilson's League, we find it not only economically unsound, but politically dangerous.

Those countries with whom we would "pool" owe us $12,000,000,000 which will be hard to collect. What assurance we have under Article 23 that our domestic affairs shall not be interfered with?

It is politically dangerous because it robs us of our independence of action, scraps the Monroe Doctrine, breaks the Constitution of the United States, takes the free out of freedom for English, French or Japanese colonies, sacrifices our nationalism and will not prevent war, because based on force as provided in Article 16 of the Covenant.

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION
OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD.

October 25, 1920.

To the Qualified Voters of Garrett County, Maryland:

The Board of Education of Garrett County, Md., takes this opportunity of calling the attention of the qualified voters of Garrett County to the "Bond Bill" for new school buildings, etc., which will be submitted to the voters of this county at the general election to be held on Tuesday, November 2, 1920.

The "Bond Bill" is printed in full upon the ballot that will be submitted as well as in this issue of this paper, it being a part of the sample ballot printed herein. It authorizes a loan of $200,000—$50,000 for four consecutive years—for new school buildings, etc., that are pressing needed in various sections of the county.

The Board of Education keenly appreciates the responsibilities attached to the expenditures of these funds, if they are authorized. It shall strive to make the benefits therefrom as far reaching as possible throughout the entire county in accordance with the needs as the Board after careful study and investigation understands them. The Board, furthermore, is willing to assume these obligations in connection therewith in so far as the Board's joint authority with the Board of County Commissioners places thereupon it such obligations, as is set forth in the Bill authorizing the proposed loans.

The needs for new school buildings, etc., are now the more urgent when we recognize:

(1) That many of these needs of several years' standing have not been supplied in anticipation of securing the necessary funds from this probable loan.

(2) That these needs have resulted also from a very wise policy of restricted expenditures during the past few years for these purposes in order to have secured the greatest amount of money possible for salaries of teachers; without these restricted expenditures for new buildings, etc., the present increases in the salaries of teachers would not have been possible without having had practically an almost prohibitive county tax rate.

(3) That the "Bond Bill" passed the General Assembly after the unanimous endorsement of a very large meeting of representative citizens held in the County Court House in Oakland on February 3, 1920, a full account of which meeting was published in the county papers. At that meeting it was unanimously agreed that the urgent needs for new school buildings, etc., could not be supplied without an excessively higher county tax; in order to avoid this, the proposed bond issue of $200,000 for these purposes was endorsed unanimously as stated above.

(4) That the needs are more urgent today than they were at the time of the county-wide meeting described above. Additional and improved school facilities must be provided in order to meet the growing social and industrial demands of our county. Furthermore, it seems unwise to permit any attempt to provide the necessary funds from immediate and direct taxation without first having recommended the less noticeable and exacting method of a bond issue. As it is now, the county tax rate has been greatly increased for the current expenses of our schools and with those increases the funds are still greatly restricted for those purposes. In order to avoid any attempted further large increases in the county tax rate for these purposes, the ratification of the "Bond Bill" is suggested at this time to the voters of the county.

The Board of Education accordingly respectfully recommends that the "Bond Bill" be liberally supported with the result that there will be a decided advance in the educational system and industrial situation of the county.

For the best interests of all of our boys and girls throughout the whole county as well as for the best method of furthering business interests, the Board of Education hopes that every voter will mark his ballot thus:

"School Teachers Endorse Zihlman's Work and Record."

To the Members of the Allegany County Teachers Union:

For the information of teachers desiring to know the records of the two Congressional Candidates, Hon. Frederick N. Zihlman and Hon. Frank W. Mish as to their attitude on Educational Measures, the following statement is submitted:

Mr. Zihlman has always shown the utmost interest in the welfare of the Schools and of the Teachers. During his eight years in the State Senate he never failed to support the Teachers in each and every measure in which they were interested, including repeated salary increases secured largely through his earnest and effective efforts.

Mr. Mish, according to Newspaper Report, while the last legislature was in session, openly protested against the passing of the present salary law for the teachers of the state when the bill was introduced. However, we understand Mr. Mish affirms that later he voted for the measure. This General Law for the State as passed provides for a minimum salary of $800 a year or $66.66 per month, while the Allegany County teachers, at the same session, secured the passage of a law raising the minimum salary to $912 a year.

In reference to the above State increase in salaries and the county increase in salaries, Congressman Zihlman wrote our teachers at the conclusion of the Legislative session as follows:

"It is therefore gratifying to me that the General Assembly at its last session, recognized the need of a more equitable compensation for the great corps of teachers in the state, and that my own county took the lead in this respect and advanced the salaries beyond those provided for in the General Law."

"I congratulate the teachers on the diplomatic way in which the increased salary question was handled, and feel sure that the results obtained will more than justify the confidence reposed by the county's representatives; and that the results in Allegany county will serve as an example which will assist in placing the schools of the State on a higher plane."

The above is quoted as it is expressive of the deep interest that Congressman Zihlman has always shown in the welfare of the schools and of the teachers from the very beginning of his legislative career.

Respectfully submitted,
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,
Allegany County Teachers' Union,
B. A. NOONE, Secretary.

VOTE FOR

FRANK W. MISH

OF WASHINGTON COUNTY

FOR CONGRESS

THE FARMER'S FRIEND

THE FRIEND OF LABOR

A BUSINESS MAN

who stands for a square deal

He was President of the Board of Street Commissioners of Hagerstown when the Home Light Plant was built. He was President of the Board of Education when the Surrey School was built.

He was Mayor of Hagerstown when the West End Reservoir was built. He was President of the First National Bank of Hagerstown when the white marble building was built. He was President of the Terminal Storage and Ice Company when this business tangle was unraveled and over $100,000 were saved to the citizens of Hagerstown.

As State Senator he was helpful in saving over $2,000,000 for Washington county and the State of Maryland in the session of 1920.

As a farmer he has spent his life in the development of the agricultural interests of Washington County, and is vitally interested in all needs and requirements of the farmer. As an employer of labor, ask the man who has worked for him. He will prove that the consumer, as well as labor and the farmer, has not had a square deal.

CHAPTER 319.
AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 15 of Article III, of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," relating to the compensation of the members of both Houses of the General Assembly of Maryland, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection.

FARMERS DO WELL

Record Prices Paid Wheat Growers of Western Canada.

Will Get Above 40 Cents Over the Fixed Scale Set—World Looking to the Dominion for Its Grain.

It will be of interest to many readers to learn that their farmer friends in Canada will do so well out of the wheat they grew on western Canada's prairies last year.

There was a fixed price of $2.15 per bushel paid for their wheat last season.

Not knowing the price at which it would be possible to market the crop, the Canadian grain board, which organization handled the whole of the crop last summer, fixed $2.15 as a minimum price for No. 1 wheat, and arranged that each farmer should be given certificates for the quantity of wheat he delivered. The amount received over and above the fixed price which was paid to the farmers when selling their wheat was to be divided pro rata at the end of the season, and the holders of these certificates will, therefore, participate in the extra price received according to the quantity of wheat sold.

The latest advice is that the wheat board will pay at least 40 cents a bushel over the fixed rate of $2.15 a bushel for their wheat of last season. This means that about $10,000,000 will be distributed among the farmers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. This sum represents the difference in the price at which the wheat crop was sold and the price that was fixed for last season's crop.

Canadian Wheat in Demand.
A declaration that Canadian wheat would in all probability sell this year at between $3 and $5 per bushel, was made recently before a conference of western supporters of the government by Dr. Robert Magill, who was one of a deputation from the Winnipeg grain exchange. Dr. Magill argued in favor of open trading from the aspect of world conditions. He stated that no wheat could be exported from Russia owing to internal troubles.

Roumania would have absolutely none to export, India was prohibiting export, while Australia's acreage would fall from 12,000,000 to 7,000,000. The result would be that Australia would scarcely have enough to feed herself, and there would be absolutely no wheat for Europe, except from the Argentine and North America.

Dr. Magill, according to formal announcement, though it would be impossible to secure as good a price for the producer by control as by the open market. The United States market was now open, and, according to present prospects, the market might be little to spare from that quarter. The net result would be that Canadian wheat would undoubtedly go to a record figure.—Advertisement.

STRIPED BEETLE
QUITE HARMFUL

Insect Transmits Bacterial Wilt to Cucumbers, Squashes and Other Plants.

SPRAYING IS RECOMMENDED

Insects Prefer Unsprayed Plants as Food and Efficiency of Control Would Be Enhanced by Use of Early Trap Crop.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Infection with the bacterial wilt of cucurbits does not occur through soil or air. The striped cucumber beetle and the 12-spotted cucumber beetle are both summer carriers, and probably the only means of summer transmission of the disease in the localities that have been studied. Introduction of virulent bacteria into the interior plant tissues is necessary for infection.

These points are given in a recent United States department of agriculture publication detailing the results of studies on the disease, which occurs in 31 states, including the territory from Vermont and Canada to Florida and west to Minnesota, Nebraska, Colorado and Texas. The disease also probably occurs in parts of California. Of the common domestic cucurbits the disease affects cucumbers, cantaloupes, summer and winter squashes and pumpkins, but not watermelons.

Use Bordeaux Mixture.
Spraying with strong Bordeaux mixture and lead arsenate paste (4-5-50 plus 2) is recommended where the disease is likely to be severe. Treatments should begin as soon as the cucumber plants develop their first true leaves and should continue at intervals of about a week until the cucumber beetles practically disappear from the field. In localities where downy mildew is also prevalent the treatments should be continued later as a partial insurance against this disease. The beetles prefer unsprayed plants as food, and undoubtedly the efficiency of wilt control would be enhanced if a slightly earlier trap crop, such as squash, were planted along the edges of the cucumber field. The beetles could be easily poisoned there with a strong insecticide.

Pulling of wilted vines during the first part of the season, or as long as it can be done without mechanically injuring the healthy plants, will greatly assist in controlling bacterial wilt if consistently done in all neighboring fields. The diseased vines should be buried, or otherwise removed from access by the beetles.

Where a few plants only are grown in garden plots, screening the hills with fine mosquito netting will prevent the appearance of the disease.

Control in Greenhouses.
For control in greenhouses the beetles, in the first place, should be kept out. Do not grow cucurbits nor pile cucurbit refuse in the immediate vicinity of greenhouses, as this attracts the beetles and many will later find their way into the houses. If the beetles once gain entrance to a house filled with growing plants hand picking is the only remedy to be recommended until some fumigant is found that will kill the beetles without injuring the cucumber plants. Besides destroying the cucumber beetles, great care must be exercised in disinfecting all instruments used in pruning wilted vines before using them again on healthy plants. This may easily be done with a bottle of 1 to 1,000 mercuric chlorid and a sponge.

Large Cucumber Field.

MULCH IS NOT APPRECIATED

Practice Has Long Been Recognized as Important Factor in Successful Fruit Culture.

Although mulching has long been recognized as an important factor in successful small fruit culture, the value of summer mulching in the vegetable garden is not yet appreciated by most home-acre gardeners, and it is not practiced by them as generally as it deserves to be.

INJURIOUS TO CROWD SWINE

Far Better Plan to Order Additional Car Than to Pack Too Many in One Compartment.

Losses of hogs in the past have proven that it does not pay to try to crowd a few extra in the car. It would be far more economical to order an additional car, the freight rate being no larger than the loss that may be entailed by the overloading.

TRANSPORTATION IS BOTHERING FARMERS

Particularly True in Case of Perishable Produce.

Adequate Facilities Would Enable Producer to Pick His Market and Sell When and Where It Is Most Advantageous.

Regardless of the shortage of labor and other production problems confronting the farmer, the main cause for his not securing the full profits due him can still be traced to insufficient transportation facilities, at the time he must get his crops to market. The farmer who can convert the spoilage on the farm into cash goes a long way toward satisfactorily offsetting everything else eating into his returns.

This is particularly true in the case of highly perishable produce, also that which has a high market value early in the season. Another advantage of adequate farm transportation is that Gathering Potatoes in Field and Loading on Truck.

It enables the farmer to pick his market. He can sell when and where it will be to his greatest advantage to do so.

The farmers in the potato growing section of Maine have a period of about seventy days to market their crop. The case of one man in Aroostook county and what he did to put his yearly returns in the plus column is not only interesting but typical of how these men solved their haulage difficulties.

This particular grower had a 100-acre potato farm situated seven and one-half miles from a railroad. It yielded about 150 barrels to the acre for a total crop of around 24,000 barrels a year. Road conditions were such that one team of horses could haul but 20 barrels to a load and make but one trip a day to the railroad storage house. In other words, he required 20 teams to handle his crop if he got it to the loading platform in 70 days between "digging" and snow. Of course all the other farmers of the community were in the same position and naturally none of them could secure anything like 20 teams. Even if they had the loads could not have been handled at the loading platform. Indirectly the haulage cost of the 20 teams would have been $6,000.

The farmer in question put the problem up to a truck concern. They prescribed a truck for his job. He bought it. This handled 45 barrels of potatoes to the load, made six trips a day and more at night, put the potatoes in the storeroom in 70 days and more than paid for itself while it was doing it as the regular haulage rate by teams was 25 cents a barrel.

The motortruck is not a cure-all for every transportation ill, but it has barely scratched the surface as a farm transportation unit. There are innumerable cases of where it can go a remarkably long way to give the farmer more of the profits due him. This story illustrates but one of them.

TO DESTROY JOHNSON GRASS

Crop of Oats or Wheat Will Keep Plants in Weak Condition and Prevent Root Penetration.

If during the early and mid part of summer the Johnson grass can be kept short enough to keep the plants in a weak condition, comparatively few root-stalks that penetrate deep into the ground will be formed. An oat or a wheat crop serves this purpose quite well. When the Johnson grass is in this weakened condition, plowing in August will further weaken the plants and will entirely kill many of them. If the ground then is given clean cultivation until fall, nearly all of the grass that is not killed by the cultivation will freeze out during the winter. In case a good deal of the grass shows up after this midsummer plowing it may be advisable to plow in late fall so as to further expose the roots to freezing.

SOY BEAN GOOD SUBSTITUTE

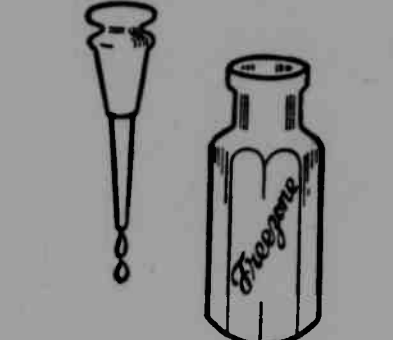

When Cured in Time Crop Makes Hay That Is Quite Palatable—Yield Is Satisfactory.

It will take two or three years to get back to the normal amount of hay land, and in the meantime the soy bean is one of the best substitutes for the regular perennial legume hay. If cured in time, it makes a hay that is very palatable and at the same time gives a satisfactory return per acre. Probably two and a half tons of cured hay would be about the average yield.

After Ten Years—
Eatonic Proves the Best

"I say, God bless eatonic," writes Mrs. Della M. Doyen. "I can truthfully say, after suffering with stomach trouble for ten long years, that I have never had anything do me so much good as this one box of eatonic."

We print these grateful words from this dear lady, so that sufferers everywhere may have hope and a little faith—just enough to give eatonic a trial. Why, folks, last year over half a million people used eatonic and found relief.

This is the secret: Eatonic simply takes up the excess acids, poisons and gases, and carries them right out of the body. Of course, when the cause is removed, the sufferer gets well. Stomach trouble causes about seventy non-organic diseases, so, if you are suffering any kind of misery, not feeling well, go right to your druggist today and obtain a big box of eatonic at a trifling price. Use it and find quick, sure relief.

Make this test—you will see, and then, if you are not satisfied, your druggist will hand your money back. He does not want one penny unless eatonic pleases you. Adv.

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

Children Cry For Fletcher's
CASTORIA

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

Why Has the Price of Gasoline Advanced?

The answer is furnished by economic principles: The demand is greater than the supply. The companies having the supply at the present time are making enormous profits. Wonderful investment opportunities present themselves in such companies, especially those having the four big features of the oil business: Production, Refining, Transportation and Distribution.

Would you like to get some of these profits? Of course you would.

We believe there is no industry in the country in which the margin of risk is so small and the average returns from invested capital so great as in the oil refining business.

COX'S VARIED ROLES

By SCOTT C. BONE

At "one" with Woodrow Wilson and for Wilsonism and all it implies, without reservation, yet hectoring a weary, tax-burdened country to elect him President. That's Candidate Cox.

An exponent, for campaign purposes, of progressive thought and lofty ideals, yet nominated and backed by Boss Murphy, Boss Brennan, Boss Taggart and Ed Moore! That's Candidate Cox.

Wettest of the wet aspirants for President, save Edwards, by Bryan's appraisal, in a Democratic Convention dominated by the wets, yet now endeavoring to convince an arid country that he is dry and ever has been a dry! That's Candidate Cox.

Charging that a corruption fund of $15,000,000 was being raised to buy up the Presidency, and then, at safe distance from the seat of inquiry, raising the amount to $30,000,000, yet without producing an iota of evidence in support of his wild charges. That's Candidate Cox.

A machine-made politician, vouched for by Tammany, yet pretending to have been given the light in 1912 as a disciple of Theodore Roosevelt and Hiram Johnson! That's Candidate Cox.

Arraigning the press for not taking him seriously by printing his speeches, yet knowing, as a newspaper man, that the cost of print paper under this Administration is too high to give space to mere words! That's Candidate Cox.

Crying out against a mythical "Senate oligarchy," because the precious Wilson covenant failed of ratification, yet with full knowledge that hostility of Democratic Senators rendered ratification impossible! That's Candidate Cox.

A mild, dodging critic of Burlesonism and Palmerism, when confronted by hecklers out West, yet committing unqualifiedly to Burlesonism and Palmerism by the Democratic platform! That's Candidate Cox.

An apologist for the sinking of the Lusitania, a pacifist of the Newton Baker stripe as clouds gathered, and intervening on behalf of a rich slacker when war came on, yet today appealing for the support of American sons who went to the front! That's Candidate Cox.

Dry to the dries, wet to the wets, spiritual to the spiritual, all things to all crowds, in the face of the G. O. P. landslide clearly impending, yet never daring to deviate in his devotion to Wilsonism, or the Wilson League by the dotting of an "i" or the crossing of a "u"! That's Candidate Cox!

And, finally—an acrobatic Ajax defying the lightning of public disapproval! That's Candidate Cox.

Only 14, But Is Very Busy Boosting Harding

Here is a picture of James Duncan MacGregor, Jr., age fourteen, who is the publisher of The Weekly Press of Stamford, Conn. In a recent issue of his newspaper he said:

"The editor of this paper wishes

JAMES DUNCAN MAC GREGOR, JR.

to say the object of The Weekly Press is to publish facts, and do my part in helping the United States get into office good, honest men, men who love their country first of all. As I am only fourteen years old, I cannot vote, but I appeal to all voters to cast their ballot for Senator Warren G. Harding and Governor Chauncey Coolidge.

James numbers his ancestors among the signers of the Declaration of Independence and always has been a reader of biographies of great men. Roosevelt is his hero. Harding is his idea of the kind of a man the country should have for President.

BAKER'S ADVISOR OUT FOR HARDING.

Washington.—Major Benedict Crowell, Mr. Baker's former Assistant Secretary of War, warm admirer of President Wilson, is the latest distinguished man to declare in an interview that he is in favor of the election of Harding and Coolidge and a Republican Congress at the polls in November. Major Crowell goes so far as to say that he is in favor of the league of nations but he prefers to take his chances on getting the league with Senator Harding rather than with Governor Cox.

"Now that President Wilson is retiring from active political life," said Major Crowell, "it is wise for his supporters to pause and take stock of the situation. I have always favored a league of nations but the Democratic party has no monopoly on the league. Indeed, the present Democratic administration has failed on this subject in spite of the fact that 75 per cent of the Senate were in favor of some kind of a league.

"It seems evident that Governor Cox is making many promises regarding the league which he may not be able to fulfill."

Senator Harding, observation leads us to believe, has created a strong impression of earnestness, sincerity and high sense of duty. His utterances are marked by a studied moderation; he exhibits no arrogance of opinion, and has made no extravagant promises of a millennium to be created by proslavery; he seeks rather to express the national spirit than to impose a doctrine of political infallibility. And there is an unmistakably a growing view that Governor Cox is a shifty opportunist, superficial in thought, reckless in speech and irresponsible in statement.—Philadelphia North American.

VOTERS ENCOUNTER NO DIFFICULTY CHOOSING BETWEEN CANDIDATES.

Washington.—The American people are carefully making a close comparison right now between Senator Harding and Governor Cox. The choice between these two men and the policies they represent is not a difficult one and the writer honestly believes the American people have their minds made up and are ready to vote.

Senator Harding and Governor Cox are almost diametrically opposed to each other in everything. Senator Harding stands for Americanism and Governor Cox espouses internationalism. Harding is cautious about what kind of a league he and his party goes into while Cox wants to wade right into the European league as proposed by President Wilson.

Senator Harding is careful, deliberate, dignified, sincere, serious and constructive, while Governor Cox is crafty, quick to seize upon any kind of an artifice; he is bombastic and impulsive.

Senator Harding has been a lifetime accumulator of a moderate fortune while Governor Cox jumped into the multimillionaire class in a few years. Harding lives modestly and quietly in an unostentatious manner while Governor Cox lives in luxury on a large estate in a home costing half a million dollars.

Warren G. Harding will be fifty-five years of age on Election Day. He is old enough to know and young enough to do. His rival has not yet reached even the years of discretion.

ATTENTION!

It has come to my attention that a false and malicious slander, to-wit, that Senator Mish had remarked "that women were just a little above animals anyway," has been circulated in Garrett county.

This is not only a lie but so silly as to make even a denial seem ridiculous. As I have a wife, mother and three daughters further comment is unnecessary. However, falsehood is the last defense in a lost cause. When such methods are used in desperation it seems that my election to Congress is certain and sure.

The people know that I am the Farmer's friend, the Miner's friend, the Consumer's friend, and a business man who stands for a square deal. What the people want in a Congressman is a man who knows their needs and will fight for their rights. This I shall do and not be turned aside by silly slander.

MY MOTTO: QUALITY FIRST

CLEAN SWEEP FOR HARDING; REPUBLICANS GAIN IN CONGRESS

Republican Victory Greatest Ever Recorded by Any Presidential Candidate.

Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 3.—Governor Cox, the defeated Presidential candidate, today wired his congratulations to Senator Harding, the President-elect, pledging support "as a citizen to the executive authority in whatever emergency might arise."

New York, Nov. 3.—The Republican landslide continued to roll along in even greater proportions today as belated election returns came in from the West.

Besides electing Harding, it was assured that the Republicans would increase their margins in both Houses of Congress and in the Senate in particular would change their precarious control to one of a substantial working majority.

Although most Democratic leaders deep in their hearts have felt from the outset that they faced defeat, they are staggered and stunned today as they view the wreck of their campaign and the extent of the devastation wrought.

They find that the Republican ticket has carried 34 states, with the outcome in Oklahoma, Tennessee and New Mexico in doubt. They find the Solid South menaced for the first time since reconstruction days, with Tennessee wobbling in the balance. They find the Republican membership in the Senate increased from 49 to at least 57, with two seats in doubt. They find the Republican membership in the House increased from 233 to more than 250. They find 26 Republican governors elected in States outside the South, five of whom replace Democrats—Missouri, Montana, Tennessee, Utah and West Virginia. They find that Harding has a total of not less than 379 electoral votes, with 13 more leaning that way, and a popular plurality which is expected to exceed six millions.

In many of its aspects the election was very unusual. It developed what may turn out to be the greatest Republican victory of party history. Both the Democratic candidate and his chief managers conceded defeat before enough returns actually were in to show it in figures.

With the election went what President Wilson characterized as a "solemn referendum" on the League of Nations issue and if it may be said that the electorate regarded their votes as an expression on that question they registered a preference for Harding who declared for "staying out" as against Cox who declared for "going in" with a landslide which exceeded the expectations of the most enthusiastic Republicans.

Everywhere the shift toward the Republican column was heavy. Many States which went to the Democratic strength when Wilson defeated Judge Hughes in the sensational election of 1916 returned to the Republican column in Tuesday's balloting.

Boston going Republican for the second time in its history; New York giving Harding an unheard-of plurality of more than a million and ratios of 2 to 1 in many states, give indications of the proportions of the Republican slide which apparently left the Democratic candidate nothing but the traditionally Solid South.

Saw Big Black Bear Gathering Hickory Nuts.

While "Squire J. L. Kendall and family of Laurel Run, were out for a joy ride and nutting in Southampton Township, on Sunday, Oct. 17, they stopped at the farm formerly occupied by Joe Albright, about two miles northwest of Wellersburg. Leaving his family in the car at a convenient point in the road, the Squire meandered off into the woods to see whether he could find any sportsmen hunting on Sunday. He did not see any hunters, but coming to a small clearing, in the center of which stood a big hickory tree, he was amazed to see a big black bear gathering hickory nuts. The Squire had neither a firearm nor a kodak with which to shoot the bear, so he watched Bruin at a safe distance for quite a while, but did not attempt to shake hands with him or get on speaking terms with his bearship. The Squire says it was a sure enough bear of the four-legged variety, not one of the two-legged bears so plentiful in Greenville township.—Meyersdale Republican.

School Children Need Clothing and Other Apparel.

Among the school children of Oakland and Garrett county, we find many who are in great need of sufficient clothing to attend school, such as shoes, stockings, undershirts, coats, overcoats—in fact, anything in the way of clothing, old or new, will be most acceptable.

Those desiring to aid us in this great cause will kindly send contributions to the County School Board office at the Court House, where they will be wisely distributed.

Attendance Officer.

GARRETT COUNTY RESULTS

Tabulation of the Vote Being Made This Afternoon by Officials.

The official returns of the election held in this county on Tuesday is in progress at the hour of going to press (4:00 o'clock) and will not be completed much before six o'clock, which hour makes it too late to give a detailed statement of the results this issue.

The unofficial figures show, however, that the county greatly increased its usual Republican majority.

The school bond measure was defeated by a vote of about 3 to 1.

G. O. P. SWEEP IN MARYLAND ASTOUNDS REPUBLICANS

Weller Wins By Comfortable Majority Of More Than 17,000

Maryland has joined the galaxy of Republican States.

By an unprecedented plurality of 61,863, which was bestowd by the State upon Senator Harding and Governor Coolidge, by the election of Mr. Weller to the Senate by a most flattering majority and by the election of four of the six candidates for Congress on Tuesday, the State has found its place and seems to be moored in the column of Republican states for years to come. It is doubtful whether Maryland can longer be classified as a doubtful border state.

Senator Harding's plurality is the largest which Maryland has ever given any Presidential candidate of any party. The record until Tuesday was the plurality of 32,000 for Mr. McKinley. Senator Harding has nearly or quite doubled that figure, the increase being due largely to the addition of women's votes to the electorate, and to the increase in population of the State.

Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman, re-elected Tuesday to the Lower House for the third consecutive time, has a unique record in the fact that he was accorded the largest county vote of his home county ever given a Sixth District Congressional candidate. Mr. Zihlman, in the final tabulation, will be found to have received in the neighborhood of a majority of nearly 9,500 votes in this District.

In Allegany, Mr. Zihlman received a majority of over 4,100; in Frederick his majority is 1,827; in Washington, he defeated Mish, the Democratic nominee, by 1,814; Montgomery gives the Republican candidate 244, while Garrett comes forward with more than 1,400 majority for the Congressman.

FOURTH RED CROSS ROLL CALL

Miss Grace Loar, of Oakland, Will Be Director For Garrett County.

Miss Grace Loar, of Oakland, has been appointed director of the Fourth Red Cross Roll Call for Garrett County Chapter, the announcement being made by Potomac Division headquarters one day recently, coupled with the statement that more than 75 per cent. of the Red Cross Chapters in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia had completed their organization for this annual event, which consists of renewing memberships or enrolling new members.

Volunteer workers are urgently needed to make the roll call a success in this county and all those who desire to solicit memberships should communicate with Miss Loar, who will furnish them with supplies and the proper credentials.

With its peace time program fully completed the great relief organization, which has more members than all the combined welfare agencies in the nation, is carrying out a health enterprise in cooperation with other health agencies, that will eventually be taken up in every community in the United States. Included in the general plans for promoting the public health are the Junior Red Cross, the extension of home service to civilian families, the health centers, public health nurses, home care of the sick and dietetic classes and first aid methods. The Red Cross is also finishing its obligations to the soldiers, sailors and marines in the military hospitals of the country; is continuing home service in the camps for our peace time forces, and is still conducting a system of foreign relief.

The Fourth Red Cross Roll Call begins Armistice Day, November 11, and ends Thanksgiving Day, November 28.

PRINCIPLES OF CHRISTIAN LIVING.

Matt. 6:1-12.

Seek ye first His kingdom, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. Matt. 6:33

Shadow or Substance?

The Master first in this great sermon gave the requirements for citizenship, and the life of the country followed naturally. Visitors from abroad are continually reporting to their own people their impressions of America. Some are complimentary, some scolding and all are illuminating either of ourselves or of the visitor. But they are interpretations of the conduct of our citizens and it is up to the conduct of the Kingdom members that the estimate of its worth is based.

Giving, praying, fasting, are held under the light and both the substance and the shadow shown. The news paper report has had wide circulation of "the most eloquent prayer ever offered to a Boston audience," with the comment that "it probably went no farther than the audience!" Jesus held the same opinion concerning these acts that had in them only the desire for the approval of the public. He was no denier of the reward accompanying each, for He knew full well the truth of such return in His daily experience. His contention was that the party affected should be the payer and there should not be the double collection upon the same act. If the public has paid, God's account should be clear. The man I work for pays the bill. There is mighty emphasis upon the practice of all these acts. "Let not your left hand know what thy right hand doeth," seems an absurdity. Does your left foot know when your right foot steps? Not unless you are giving special thought to that particular movement, for habit has so taken up the entire process that it has become automatic. This ought to be the case with your giving; so much a habit of one's life that it is as automatic as walking or breathing, and passes without notice being taken of the act. In this fashion one is in full accord with the spirit of God who certainly does good without being aware of it. To imagine Father God counting His kindnesses would be a joke, and would make Him one—why shouldn't it be the same with his children? And the example of Jesus in Luke 11, John 17, etc., settles His approval of social prayer as a group but the drive here is toward the building of that shared life upon the private experience. He who knows the intimacy of the holy fellowship has little difficulty with its outer expression. He whose secret devotion is full and rich needs little warning about ostentation in public. The form given would seem to be a guide for all-inclusiveness in the closet rather than for a form for public worship as we use it. Certainly it is distinctly the disciple's prayer. But its reach is toward one's fellows for the forgiving spirit is twice stressed. Fasting holds the same double relationship and the spirit is paramount. To be sure there are times when giving, praying and fasting may be the badge of royalty; then let the band play, banners wave and feet keep time jubilantly.

Banks and Bosses.

No poor man can enter heaven. Only the rich will feel at home where gold is used for paving; walls are of gems and doors of pearl. Only those with a bank account can keep pace with such luxury. But the biggest bank in the universe is Heaven's Trust Company and deposits bear interest compounded at rates that would bankrupt any other institution than God's. "Do business thru Heaven's bank," was the advice of Jesus. To every depositor He assures the issuance of anti-worry certificates good for the needs of the body and points to the birds and flowers as evidence of the working of such a provision. It is not a barnyard bird nor a conservatory Chrysanthemum to which He pointed, but to the hustling birds and lilies of the open fields that must work with a working God in order that they may be fed. Life lies at the foundation of the clothing, for it is from this that sunshine, shower and soil are transmuted into the green garments of the grass and the loveliness of the lily. In heaven's vocabulary trust is a stimulant to activity and not a sedative to labor. Dividends from His Trust Company are given only to its active shareholders who are pushing the company's business and must in consequence have their expenses met. "Put the Kingdom first," "Serve God, not Mammon," are cast-iron clauses in the contract. In the striking phrase of Robert E. Spier, "You cannot serve God and Mammon, but you can serve God with Mammon." Certainly to serve other than God relieves Him of all responsibility for providing for the life. Look to your Boss for the paying of your bill.

Hammer Healing.

What delicate instruments one finds in the office of an oculist. Nothing that can in any way mangle the sensitive sight organ is permitted to be used. Think of having a hammer for any such purpose! But that is just the instrument many carry solily for the benefit of others' hurts. From morning until night there is the sound of knocking, and each blow brings bruises to some other soul. But look out when they get a touch of their own method, for one hour cries of "cruel," "mean," "mind his own business," "better holler at home," and a dozen more. It was the self-appointed critic of every other man that was pilloried by Jesus. It was the man whose shiny pate cast light upon the hair tonic he was recommending. It was the man who felt himself to be faultless who was posing as the corrector of the faults of others. Only love has the right to criticize; only love can remedy the splinter of another's eye as well at the ridge-pole of his own. And if love ever uses a hammer it is to build instead of to break—to mend instead of to mar.

Getting Results.

Page after page of magazine advertising promises better pay, better positions and a thousand advantages from taking some self-culture course. Jesus has the original and the only one that is absolutely certain of getting results. Our only difficulty is that we have revised His statement so that in our private version it reads:

"Ask what you want and it shall be given you; seek what you like and ye shall find; knock at the door of your desire and it shall be opened unto you." There is no promise that we shall have the thing we ask for because God does not move in the realm of things but in that of the spirit, and all of us know that there is many a thing each of us has asked that we have not received. But always he who asketh receiveth—God; he who seeketh, findeth—God; and he who knocketh hath the door opened to—God. And when that goal has been reached by any soul there is nothing beyond that can be asked or sought. And in that opulence we can live the Golden Rule that denies any rule of gold.

Facts for Sick Women

Reliable Information

All American women know of the great success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in restoring to health women who suffered from ailments peculiar to their sex, yet there are some who are skeptical and do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true—if they did, our laboratory would not be half large enough to supply the demand, though today it is the largest in the country used for the manufacture of one particular medicine.

The facts contained in the following two letters should prove of benefit to many women:

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I suffered from organic inflammation and displacement. When lifting I had such pain and bearing down that I was not able to stand up and it hurt me so much to go up or down stairs. I was going to a doctor without any results and he said the safest thing would be to have an operation. I met a lady who told me she had had three operations and was not well until she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt relief after taking two bottles of Vegetable Compound and I kept on with it until I was cured. I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and they are fine. Everything used to turn sour on my stomach and the liver pills relieved that."—Mrs. A. Rogers, 893 Fargo Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

Sacramento, Calif.—"I had organic trouble and had such terrible pain and swelling in the lower part of my side that I could not stand. My feet or even let the bed clothes touch my side. I gave up my work thinking I would not be able to go back for months. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it had saved her life at one time, and it put me in a wonderful condition in a couple of weeks, so I can keep on working. I work in a department store and have to stand on my feet all day and I do not have any more pain. I surely recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Dorothy J. Parker, 3320 M St., Sacramento, Calif.

The fact is, the Best Medicine for Women is

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

AND THAT WOULD BE ENOUGH!

Surgeon Knew Just Exactly How Much Talkative Convalescing Patient Would Suffer.

She is a talkative young school teacher and a surgeon, who is not much given to speech. Recently when he operated on her, her chattering preceding the operation almost drove him mad. After the operation, though, he forgot all about that and did all he could to alleviate her suffering.

The fourth day he dressed her wounds and made her comfortable in every way he could. Then she began to chatter and asked him question after question, the last one being, "Doctor, how am I really now?"

He remembered his experience with her talkative little tongue before the operation. "Oh, you're getting along splendidly," he retorted. "In fact all the suffering you will now have to endure is just to keep quiet."

Not a Bit Curious. Mrs. Smith was all dressed up, and that pleased Mrs. Rogers' curiosity as she met her on the road.

"Going to town, I suppose?" asked Mrs. Rogers.

"No," answered Mrs. Smith. "Oh to see your sister at Blagovestie."

"No," was the sententious answer. "Going to see Cy's sister at the Corners, perhaps?"

"No, I'm not," came the positive answer.

"Well, my gracious!" exclaimed Mrs. Rogers impatiently. "Do you think I care a rap where you are going?"

About the hardest crop to raise on a farm is the children.

The High Price of Sugar

makes one welcome foods which are rich in natural sweetness.

Grape-Nuts

—the ready-cooked cereal

requires no added sweetening, for it contains its own pure grain sugar, developed from wheat and barley by twenty hours' baking.

Sprinkle Grape-Nuts over ripe fruit or berries and you'll save sugar.

PROMISE GIVEN OF MORE SUGAR

Crop Conditions Give Assurance of Increase Amounting to About 333,000 Tons.

BEET ACREAGE MUCH LARGER

There is Also Substantial Addition to Cane Acreage, Especially in Louisiana—Growing Conditions Show Improvement.

People who have soft-pedaled the sugar bowl for six years may be interested in the statement that crop conditions on July 1 promised an increase in beet sugar production in the United States; an increase amounting to, approximately, 333,000 tons, or enough to load a train of freight cars 70 or 75 miles long, allowing 40 tons per car. This prospective crop is equal to more than 22 pounds of sugar for every man, woman and child within the United States, and the increase over last year equals more than six pounds per person.

Big Beet Acreage

The sugar-beet crop this year covers almost a million acres as against the five-year average of about two-thirds of a million; and the growing condition on July 1 was above the ten-year average. There is more than half a million acres of sugar cane this year, about half of which is intended for sugar and the other half for syrup, after deducting considerable amounts for planting the next crop. There is a substantial increase in acreage over last year, especially in Louisiana, where nearly all the cane sugar of the United States is made. The growing condition of the cane in Louisiana is much better than last year, but considerably under the average for the past nine years.

Protection for Crop.

The department of agriculture, which has carried on a number of projects looking toward making this country self-sustaining from a sugar standpoint, is co-operating with other agencies in protecting the crops from insects and disease and otherwise promoting the production and utilization of a bumper sugar crop. It should be borne in mind, however, that the forecast for 1921 is based upon conditions on July 1, and the actual out-turn would be above or below this forecast according as conditions between July 1 and harvest are better or worse than average.

PROPER TRAINING FOR STOCK

Finest Colt in World is of Little Use to Farmer Unless It Has Been Broken.

Nobody really cares what makes the wild cat wild because the wild cat is not good even when it is tame. But it makes all the difference in the world whether useful live stock is trained or wild. The finest colt in the world, product of the best draft stock, is of little use to a farmer unless it has been broken to harness, is bridle-wise and gentle.

A cow may be a champion milk producer, but she is of comparatively little value if nobody can milk her. A setter may carry the blue blood of Count Gladstone and have a nose for birds that is unequalled, but nobody wants to hunt behind his unless he has felt the jerk of the trainer's choke line and learned not only to find birds, but to give his owner an opportunity to bag them.

MOLD IN SILO PREVENTABLE

Use of Plenty of Water at Filling Time Will Overcome Difficulty—Pack Thoroughly.

The use of plenty of water at silo filling time is one of the surest ways of avoiding difficulty from molds if the corn has been frosted or has become overripe. If one has the facilities for running a steady stream of water into the blower and at the same time is careful to see that the tramping is thoroughly done the loss from molds can be made almost negligible. As a matter of fact, it is possible to entirely prevent the growth of molds if the corn is cut at the proper time and thoroughly distributed and tramped in an air-tight silo. What air remains after this is done is used up in the fermentation processes which begin as soon as the corn is ensiled—the oxygen being converted into carbonic acid gas and silicic acids.

Sudan Grass for Pasture.

Sudan grass furnishes good pasture for horses, cattle, sheep or hogs. It is best not to pasture a young seedling until it is about a foot high. By this time it will have become firmly rooted and under average conditions will not be injured much from tramping and pulling by animals. A hay crop can be cut about the last of July and an abundance of succulent pasture secured throughout August when other pastures are burned up, or it can be pastured the early part of the summer and a hay crop secured afterward. The crop also may be cut and fed green with good results.

BEST AND EARLIEST EARS FOR SEED CORN

Quite Practicable to Allow It to Ripen on Plant.

Examine Grain Carefully, Removing Any Worms Found and Then Fold Back in Place and Tie With Elastic Band or String.

The best way to secure home-grown sweet corn seed, according to United States department of agriculture specialists, is to allow it to ripen on the plant, and, since a single ear will be seed enough for a small garden, it is quite practicable to do this. Select the best and earliest ears by stripping down the husks to examine the grain and to remove any worms that may be found, and then carefully fold them back and hold them in place by an elastic band or a string. Allow these ears to ripen thoroughly on the stalk. In the North it is often better to pull and hang the plant where there will be no danger from moisture, frost, or even chilling until the seed is thoroughly dry. All the ripe ears remaining at the end of the season in any crop of sweet corn should be harvested.

Well-Formed, Properly Dried Sweet Corn for Seed—Crosby's Early.

and saved. The best ears will make fairly good seed, and nearly everyone knows the enjoyment in parched sweet corn.

Sweet corn spoils much more quickly than field corn, and cannot readily be cured in large shocks, but should be husked from the stalk and spread thinly on staling to cure. A convenient way of storing sweet corn is in the ear.

GUARD TWINE FROM INSECTS

Solution of Kerosene and Crude Creosote Is Recommended by an Illinois Entomologist.

If the twine one buys is not already protected from crickets and grasshoppers the following formula given by W. T. Flint, entomologist of Illinois, can be used very satisfactorily. He recommends a solution of two gallons kerosene, and one gallon crude creosote. Mix these together and immerse the twine for a period of about one hour or until it is saturated, then lay out in the sun and dry thoroughly before using. The Missouri Agricultural college recommends a solution of one gallon of lime sulphur and ten gallons of water. Soak for a similar period and dry thoroughly before using.

IMPROVEMENT OF GAME BIRDS

Putaski County, Virginia, Continues as Leader in Stock Improvement Campaign.

The aggressive character of live-stock improvement activities in Putaski county, Virginia, is illustrated by a recent sidelight in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement. A poultry man enrolled his 50 Indian Games (Cornish) headed by an Indian Game cock in the campaign. He kept no other stock.

Putaski county, Virginia, continues to retain first place among all counties in the country for the number of persons agreeing to use purebred sires only.

Father and Daughter Get Relief by Etonic

R. J. Powell, Sweetwater, Texas, says, "Etonic helped me at once, but it was my daughter who got the marvelous benefits. She could not even take a drink of water without awful misery, but it relieved her; she is feeling much better. All this from one box, so send me four more at once."

Hundreds of people now take Etonic; one or two tablets after each meal keeps them in good health, feeling fine, full of pep. Etonic simply takes up the excess acidity and poisons and carries them right out of the system. Of course, when the cause of the misery is removed, the sufferer cannot help but get well.

You will find it a quick, sure relief for heartburn, indigestion, sour, acid, gassy, bloated stomach. It costs but a trifle and your druggist will supply you. If you don't feel well, you give Etonic a test. Adv.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt relief after taking two bottles of Vegetable Compound and I kept on with it until I was cured. I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and they are fine. Everything used to turn sour on my stomach and the Liver Pills relieved that."—Mrs. A. Rogers, 893 Fargo Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

Sacramento, Calif.—"I had organic trouble and had such terrible pain and swelling in the lower part of my side that I could not stand on my feet or even let the bed clothes touch my side. I gave up my work back for months. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it had saved her life at one time, and it put me in a wonderful condition in a couple of weeks so I can keep on working. I work in a department store and have to stand on my feet all day and I do not have any more pains. I surely recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Bertha J. Parker, 3320 M St., Sacramento, Calif.

AND THAT WOULD BE ENOUGH!

She is a talkative young school teacher and she is a surgeon, who is not much given to speech. Recently when he operated on her, her chattering preceding the operation almost drove him mad. After the operation, though, he forgot all about that and did all he could to alleviate her suffering.

The fourth day he dressed her wounds and made her comfortable in every way he could. Then she began to chatter and asked him question after question, the last one being, "Doctor, how am I really now?"

He remembered his experience with her talkative little tongue before the operation. "Oh, you're getting along splendidly," he retorted. "In fact all the suffering you will now have to endure is just to keep quiet."

Not a Bit Curious. Mrs. Smith was all dressed up, and that plumed Mrs. Rogers' curiosity as she met her on the road.

"Going to town, I suppose?" asked Mrs. Rogers.

"No," answered Mrs. Smith.

"Oh to see your sister at Blagesville?"

"No," was the sententious answer.

"Going to see Cy's sister at the Corners, perhaps?"

"No, I'm not," came the positive answer.

"Well, my gracious!" exclaimed Mrs. Rogers impatiently. "Do you think I cure a rap where you are going?"

About the hardest crop to raise on a farm is the children.

A flame which will burn without protection under water, and which cuts holes in suken vessels, is now in use by ship-salvors.

MISTAKEN IN HIS SURMISE

Mr. Brown Somewhat Hasty in Blaming the Gramophone for Those Unearthly Sounds.

Perfect peace reigned in the Browns' household. The head of the family, his day's work over, was reading, in blissful anticipation of the evening meal which Mrs. Brown was busy preparing in the kitchen.

The gentle stillness was suddenly broken by eerie sounds, apparently coming from the next house—a weird moaning, developing into heart-rending wails and howling shrieks.

Mr. Brown jumped up.

"It's Mrs. Wood's confounded gramophone playing Tosti's 'Good-by,'" he cried, "Lizzie"—to his oldest daughter—"go and implore her to stop it! Tell her I'll tell her we're all ill, anything you like, only make her leave off!"

The child obediently hurried out, and two minutes later came rushing back.

"It's not Mrs. Wood's gramophone, then," she said, "it's the Murphys down the street opening a tin of corned beef!"

A Leading Clue. "What made the prohibition enforcement agents suspect a staid, respectable elderly woman of having whisky bottles concealed about her?"

"I'm sure I don't know, unless it was her cork screw curls."

The High Price of Sugar

makes one welcome foods which are rich in natural sweetness.

Grape-Nuts

—the ready-cooked cereal

requires no added sweetening, for it contains its own pure grain sugar, developed from wheat and barley by twenty hours' baking.

Sprinkle Grape-Nuts over ripe fruit or berries and you'll save sugar.

PROMISE GIVEN OF MORE SUGAR

Crop Conditions Give Assurance of Increase Amounting to About 333,000 Tons.

BET ACREAGE MUCH LARGER

There is Also Substantial Addition to Cane Acreage, Especially in Louisiana—Growing Conditions Show Improvement.

People who have soft-pedaled the sugar bowl for six years may be interested in the statement that crop conditions on July 1 promised an increase in next fall's sugar production in the United States; an increase amounting to, approximately, 333,000 tons, or enough to load a train of freight cars 70 or 75 miles long, allowing 40 tons per car. This prospective crop is equal to more than 22 pounds of sugar for every man, woman and child within the United States, and the increase over last year equals more than six pounds per person.

Big Beet Acreage

The sugar-beet crop this year covers almost a million acres as against the five-year average of about two-thirds of a million; and the growing condition on July 1 was above the ten-year average. There is more than half a million acres of sugar cane this year, about half of which is intended for sugar and the other half for syrup, after deducting considerable amounts for planting the next crop. There is a substantial increase in acreage over last year, especially in Louisiana, where nearly all the cane sugar of the United States is made. The growing condition of the cane in Louisiana is much better than last year, but considerably under the average for the past nine years.

Protection for Crop. The department of agriculture which has carried on a number of projects looking toward making this country self-sustaining from a sugar standpoint, is co-operating with other agencies in protecting the crops from insects and disease and otherwise promoting the production and utilization of a bumper sugar crop. It should be borne in mind, however, that the forecast for 1929 is based upon conditions on July 1, and the actual outcome would be above or below this forecast according as conditions between July 1 and harvest are better or worse than average.

PROPER TRAINING FOR STOCK

Finest Colt in World is of Little Use to Farmer Unless It Has Been Broken.

Nobody really cares what makes the wild colt wild because the wild colt is no good even when it is tame. But it makes all the difference in the world whether useful live stock is trained or wild. The finest colt in the world, product of the best draft stock, is of little use to a farmer unless it has been broken to harness, is bridle-wise and gentle.

A cow may be a champion milk producer, but she is of comparatively little value if nobody can milk her. A setter may carry the blue blood of Count Gladstone and have a nose for birds that is unequalled, but nobody wants to hunt behind him unless he has felt the jerk of the trainer's choke line and learned not only to find birds, but to give his owner an opportunity to bag them.

MOLD IN SILO PREVENTABLE

Use of Plenty of Water at Filling Time Will Overcome Difficulty—Pack Thoroughly.

The use of plenty of water at silo filling time is one of the surest ways of avoiding difficulty from molds if the corn has been frost-killed or has come overripe. If one has the facilities for running a steady stream of water into the blower and at the same time is careful to see that the tramping is thoroughly done the loss from molds can be made almost negligible. As a matter of fact, it is possible to entirely prevent the growth of molds if the corn is cut at the proper time and thoroughly distributed and tramped in an air-tight silo. What air remains after this is done is used up in the fermentation process which begins as soon as the corn is ensiled—the oxygen being converted into carbonic acid gas and silicic acids.

Sudan Grass for Pasture.

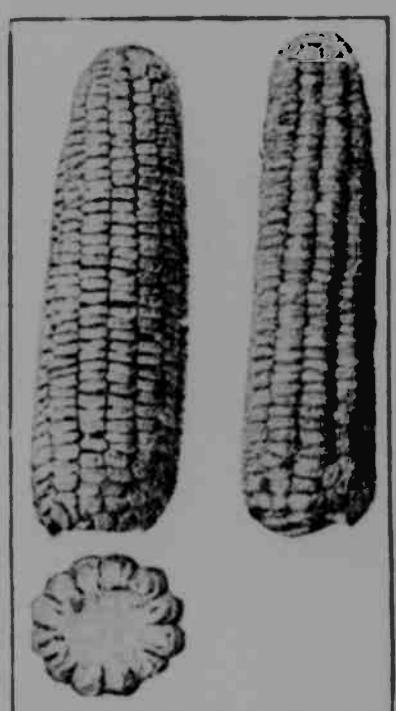

Sudan grass furnishes good pasture for horses, cattle, sheep or hogs. It is best not to pasture a young seedling until it is about a foot high. By this time it will have become firmly rooted and under average conditions will not be injured much from tramping and pulling by animals. A hay crop can be cut about the last of July and an abundance of succulent pasture secured throughout August when other pastures are burned up, or it can be pastured the early part of the summer and a hay crop secured afterward. The crop also may be cut and fed green with good results.

BEST AND EARLIEST EARS FOR SEED CORN

Quite Practicable to Allow It to Ripen on Plant.

Examine Grain Carefully, Removing Any Worms Found and Then Fold Back in Place and Tie With Elastic Band or String.

The best way to secure home-grown sweet corn seed, according to United States department of agriculture specialists, is to allow it to ripen on the plant, and, since a single ear will be seed enough for a small garden, it is quite practicable to do this. Select the best and earliest ears by stripping down the husks to examine the grain and to remove any worms that may be found, and then carefully fold them back and hold them in place by an elastic band or a string. Allow these ears to ripen thoroughly on the stalk. In the North it is often better to pull and hang the plant where there will be no danger from moisture, frost, or even chilling until the seed is thoroughly dry. All the ripe ears remaining at the end of the season in any crop of sweet corn should be harvested.

Well-Formed, Properly Dried Sweet Corn for Seed—Crosby's Early.

and saved. The best ears will make fairly good seed, and nearly everyone knows the enjoyment in parched sweet corn.

Sweet corn spoils much more quickly than field corn, and cannot readily be cured in large shocks, but should be husked from the stalk and spread thinly on string to cure. A convenient way of storing sweet corn is on the ear.

GUARD TWINE FROM INSECTS

Solution of Kerosene and Crude Creosote Is Recommended by an Illinois Entomologist.

If the twine one buys is not already protected from crickets and grasshoppers the following formula given by W. T. Flint, entomologist of Illinois, can be used very satisfactorily. He recommends a solution of two gallons kerosene, and one gallon crude creosote. Mix these together and immerse the twine for a period of about one hour or until it is saturated, then lay out in the sun and dry thoroughly before using. The Missouri Agricultural college recommends a solution of one gallon of lime sulphur and ten gallons of water. Soak for a similar period and dry thoroughly before using.

IMPROVEMENT OF GAME BIRDS

Pulaski County, Virginia, Continues as Leader in Stock Improvement Campaign.

The aggressive character of livestock improvement activities in Pulaski county, Virginia, is illustrated by a recent spotlight in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement. A poultry man enrolled his 50 Indian Games (Cormish) headed by an Indian Game cock in the campaign. He kept no other stock.

Pulaski county, Virginia, continues to sustain first place among all counties in the country for the number of persons agreeing to use purebred sire only.

Father and Daughter Get Relief by Etonic

R. J. Powell, Sweetwater, Texas, says, "Etonic helped me at once, but it was my daughter who got the marvelous benefits. She could not even take a drink of water without awful misery, but it relieved her; she is feeling much better. All this from one box, so send me four more at once."

Hundreds of people now take Etonic; one or two tablets after each meal keeps them in good health, feeling fine, full of pep. Etonic simply takes up the excess acidity and poisons and carries them right out of the system. Of course, when the cause of the misery is removed, the sufferer cannot help but get well.

You will find it a quick, sure relief for heartburn, indigestion, sour, acid, gassy, bloated stomach. It costs but a trifle and your druggist will supply you. If you don't feel well, you give Etonic a test. Adv.

"HOW WELL YOU LOOK"

When Your Blood Is Rich and Red People Notice Your Good Health

PEPTO-MANGAN BUILDS HEALTH
Pale Face, Dull Eyes, Drooping Shoulders Result from Clogged Blood.

If your blood is in bad shape it shows up in your looks and feeling. When your blood is rich with red corpuscles your color is better—your lips are red, eyes wide open and bright; your good feeling shows in your actions.

Common sense will tell you that if weak, thin blood makes you look lifeless, it lowers your vitality. If your vitality is low you have little power to resist disease germs. Men, women and children with rich, red blood are able to fight off germs which bring severe illness.

When you feel run down and weak, with no appetite and no ambition, take Pepto-Mangan for awhile. It is a great, blood building tonic. You should begin to feel better in a few days.

Pepto-Mangan is put up in both liquid and tablet form. Take either kind you prefer, because they have the same medicinal value. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's". The full name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" should be on the package.—Advertisement.

FIGHTING STORM HIGH UP IN AIR

Navigator in Plane Tells of Thrilling Experience During a Fierce Cyclone.

BREAKS WITHOUT WARNING

Hall and Rain Lash Machine Mercilessly, Making It Toss From One Side to the Other Like a Cork on Surface of Sea.

New York.—An observer in an airplane describing an experience in a storm thousands of feet above the earth writes:

"The sky was strewn with the remnants of a morning cirrus, as the climb was made carefully but swiftly on the wings of a warm wind. Eight thousand feet was reached with the merest effort. The sultry features of the countryside could be picked out without glasses. The air had a milky tinge, but it was such as the eye could 'speak' through, and it gave no impression of the moisture with which it must have been heavy. It seemed warm and brilliant, and as the machine thrashed its way through it two warm slip streams flowed back over the wind screen.

"Some time must have elapsed before the pilot, in twisting the craft round to a new direction, caught a glimpse of a purple-gray bank of clouds which had crept up from the south. It had come quite unheralded by thunder, but although the sight was not attractive there seemed neither cause for alarm nor need for a premature descent. Even the growling rumble of thunder at a great distance, which came at last, failed to disconcert, and the airplane soared on with bracing wires slung and the engine in deep, full-throated roar.

"Then, without further warning, the storm broke in full fury. A mighty crash of thunder, which seemed to dent and almost shake the machine out of the sky, was accompanied by a wild burst of hail and rain which lashed the machine mercilessly and made it toss from one side to the other like a cork on the surface of the sea. In a steaming cloak of rain and mist it was impossible for the eye to see the ground.

"Ten after noon of thunder followed in swift succession between vivid flashes of furious summer lightning. The heavens had opened to pour forth the accumulated passion of centuries. At nearly 7,000 feet up it would be suicidal to descend into the unknown and unseen. Which was safer—air or land? To the pilot, anxious almost beyond endurance, came the thought, common to every flying man, of fire in the air, and as if to confirm this, a flash in a moment illuminated the whole machine as though it were caught in the probing beam of a searchlight at night. The sky was rent from vault to horizon by a vivid streak of electric fire. The lightning fingers of the navigation instruments oscillated wildly.

"Like Wounded Bird. "It seemed the last moment; but it passed, and still the machine was airworthy. The hail still tore fiercely at the fabric of the planes; the machine was becoming more and more unstable, but it still hummed on. Down below a cloud of vapor made it impossible to see the earth or to sight a stretch of ground whereon to land. The thunder broke with unabated fury at regular intervals, and at each onslaught the machine quivered like a wounded bird.

"If the pilot continued to fly on it could only be a matter of moments before all control of the craft would be wrested from his hands. It was equally hazardous to plunge down into the sea, for in total ignorance of the lie of the land beneath. But to the latter course only could a shred of hope cling. The engine therefore was suddenly shut off and the nose of the machine dropped.

"By the altimeter, watched feverishly, the descent of a few thousand feet seemed to take many minutes. In the thick of a swirling mist a sudden and violent contact with the earth was momentarily expected. But down—down; until at last seemed the critical second when came a sudden burst of steady, grateful air from a region of smilling content and peacefulness, with the earth a thousand feet below. There was no sunshine, but there was also no storm. It had been a cyclone of the upper regions only."

AVENGE ESSAD PASHA

"Blood Brother" Is Ready to Keep His Oath.

Gambling Incident With Slain Albanian Cemented Friendship Long Ago.

Paris.—Yengonnes for the assassination of Essad Pasha, head of the Albanian delegation here, is being quietly awaited by a "blood brother" of the Balkan leader, according to a circumstantial story by a French writer, published by the Excelsior.

This man, now rich and influential in France, the story goes, was one of several poor young men who 30 years ago met Essad Pasha, then known as the "Black Dagger of Abdul Hamid," in Constantinople, when he crowded into a card game and insisted upon playing with them. Essad Pasha, they protested, they were too poor to play with him, but he insisted, emphasizing it by placing his revolver on the table as a threat.

To meet this, the "blood brother" put down his dagger, poisoned, he said, Essad Pasha showed his surprise, then his pleasure.

"Young man," he exclaimed, "this is the first time anyone has dared defy me. Men like you are rare."

Essad Pasha took his own dagger, opened a vein in his wrist and also in that of the young man, each sucked a few drops of blood from the other and they became "blood brothers," according to Albanian customs, sworn to avenge each other's deaths.

"I am ready," this "brother" now is quoted as saying, "to keep my oath, but I have confidence that French courts will make it unnecessary for me to interfere."

Rustem Avenl, arrested on the spot for shooting down Essad Pasha as the latter was entering his automobile in the downtown district recently, is awaiting trial.

An Unsuccessful Bachelor

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(© 1926, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Roger King returned to Newton, Conn., after roughing it for two years on a sheep ranch in Colorado, he found himself the victim of a condition and a theory. The condition, that of a quite satisfactory bachelorhood, was his. The theory, that until attractive and eligible bachelors were converted into model and happy husbands there was no place for them in the world, was Newton's.

Poor Roger! At the club, at the dinner table, even when he sought refuge in the blue, blue waters of Long Island sound, inexorable fate was always beside him in the form of some well meaning young newswoman, saying: "Jove, man! You don't know what you are missing. Just look at us! And always the echo would follow, "But just wait until Peggy Jerome comes home from Honolulu!"

To say that Roger King became restive after a week of this is putting it mildly. After two weeks he began to show signs of positive ill humor. And when, on the first day of the third week, he stopped in at the Tom Stedmans' for a friendly chat and Mrs. Tom pulled out a letter with a Honolulu postmark, saying, "I just must read you this letter from Peggy to show you how awfully bright she is," he must be excused for saying under his breath, "D—n a Peggy!"

That's what Newton did to Roger King, by nature a most polite and well-mannered young man.

"You tell me again what a bright, beautiful, bound-to-make-any-man-happy sort of girl Peggy Jerome is, and I'll be off for Colorado so fast that you can't see me for the dust. Is it a crime for a man to be single?" he raged when they protested.

"Yes!" answered Newton with one word.

"Well, I won't be reformed by Honolulu Peg, anyway," he retorted rudely.

It was the night of the Jennings dance, Roger was looking forward to a splendid time. He adored dancing, and as he tied his tie with great care in front of the looking glass he climbed into his car and started off, at perfect peace with the world, declaring that since he had stopped his friends' attempts at playing Cupid by one "d—n" and two rude remarks, Newton was the best town this side of heaven, and he'd fight any man who said otherwise.

Mrs. Jennings met him, beaming. "I'm so glad you've come at last, Roger," she said sweetly. "I've been telling someone all about you, and I want you to meet her right away."

"Lead me to her," cried Roger, interrupting. "What's her name?"

"Peggy Jerome," announced his hostess. "She's the prettiest—"

But Roger's back had disappeared out of sight down the hall before she had time to finish.

"Plague take it!" he cried as he made for the door that led into the safety of the garden. He sank onto a stone bench and gazed fiercely at the moon, which smiled back at him benignly, quite untouched by his ill humor. Here he was, enjoying life and thinking Newton an earthly paradise—when this Peggy creature had to boom onto the horizon again and spoil it all.

"D—n it all!" he raged; "they haven't even mentioned her for six weeks!"

A tempestuous, furious rush which ended in the sudden occupation of the other end of his bench made Roger jump up in surprise.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," said a musical voice, which somehow reminded Roger of springtime in the woods when the call of the birds mingles with merry noise of overflowing brook. "I came out in such a hurry I did not notice anyone was here."

"You see," she continued, after a pause, leaning a little toward him, "there is a man in there that I would rather die than meet. I hate him!"

"Good!" exclaimed Roger, full of his grievance. "I rather think we're kindred souls. There's a girl inside that I just won't meet, even if it means that I've got to go to Colorado to escape her."

"She's awful!" groaned Roger, the tortures of his first few weeks in Newton sweeping over him. "Point by point, I know she can outdo your friend any day."

"Well, let's match them up, then, point by point," laughed the girl. "You start!"

"To begin with, she's 'very bright.' I do hate very bright people," began Roger.

"My man is very eligible! If there's one crime worse than being bright it is being eligible," retorted the girl.

"She is bound to make any man happy," exclaimed Roger in disgust.

"He is so handsome and strong. Ugh!" cried his companion.

"She plays beautifully on the guitar," continued Roger.

"What!" demanded the girl abruptly.

"Then in Honolulu, you know, and—"

"When are you?" she interrupted. "Excuse me, I should have introduced myself," Roger said. My name is Roger King—why, what on earth is the matter?"

The girl was looking at him in horrified amazement. "I thought you were from me—that I am the unpleasant creature who is so eligible and handsome and strong!"

"Yes," faltered the girl. "You see, they kept writing me about you. Every letter I received was full of your doings and sayings, and I became rather fed up, I'm afraid. In fact, I wrote them about two months ago that if they couldn't write to me without hauling you in they need not expect any answer from me."

"You this so brazenly—but you see, they did ram you down my throat so?"

"Good Lord!" ejaculated Roger, "you're Peggy Jerome!"

"Yes," breathed the girl. From the house came the strains of a waltz, faint and sweet. The moon was bathing the garden with a magic enchantment. Roger King and Peggy Jerome faced each other, a rather shy light in her eyes, a very determined one in his.

"I'm afraid you win in that point by point game, as you were playing a minute ago," she said finally.

"I do not win," replied Roger with decision. "She is the most beautiful girl I have ever seen and after I have persuaded her that I am neither very eligible nor at all handsome, I am going to—"

Peggy interrupted him quickly. "Let's go and dance," she said. Newton won, hands down.

CITY EXPECTS GREAT FUTURE

Murmansk, Not Long Founded, May Be In Future the Greatest Naval Port of Russia.

Quite new on the map is the little city of Murmansk, founded after the beginning of the war, and now, in the general taking account of stock, the world over, subject to examination as probably the greatest naval port of Russia, when that nation becomes normal and the capital of a vast district containing about 60,000 or 70,000 inhabitants, a considerable number of whom are refugees from the west to return to other parts of Russia. Meantime it is difficult to imagine another city like Murmansk, with its population of perhaps 10,000, its sunless winter, and its long summer days when the sun is in visible duty through the whole 24 hours.

Situated north of the Arctic circle, its importance as a naval station comes from a harbor where the ice never freezes solidly enough to prevent navigation, hastily connected with Petrograd by rail as a means of bringing war supplies and ammunition into the country. But although there have been said to be valuable deposits of gold, platinum, silver and other minerals in the district, no investigation has yet discovered them; nor do the investigators see any very promising sign of agricultural or commercial development.

The northern herd, too, was practically extinct, its actual numbers being placed by Doctor Hornady at 635 animals.

The death-knell of the bison was sounded when the Union Pacific railroad, under the auspices of the government, made marketing of the robes easier and divided the northern and southern herds.

By 1875 the southern herd, consisting of at least 3,000,000 animals, had been exterminated. By 1880 the northern herd, too, was practically extinct, its actual numbers being placed by Doctor Hornady at 635 animals.

Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt of the American museum, calls this "the most striking and appalling example of the fate of an animal existing in apparently inexhaustible numbers, when left exposed to unrestricted slaughter."—Exchange.

Tall Trees of America. Where on the globe can there be found an arid region in extent with that occupied by the bulk of our states, so fertile and so rich and varied in its productions, and at the same time so habitable by the European, as this? Michaux, who knew but part of them, says that "the species of large trees are much more numerous in North America than in Europe; in the United States there are more than 140 species that exceed 30 feet in height; in France there are but 30 that attain this size." Later botanists more than confirm his observations. Humboldt came to America to realize his youthful dreams of a tropical vegetation, and he beheld in its greatest perfection in the primitive forests of the Amazon, the most gigantic wilderness on the earth, which he has so eloquently described.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

LIONESS CARESSES 41ST CUB

Helen of New York Zoo Shows Affection for Her Latest Offspring.

New York.—Helen, a lioness caged in Central park, licked her forty-first offspring as affectionately as if the cub were her first born.

Her keepers explained this unending maternal affection by saying that her other children, save two, which died in infancy, have all been sent away to repopulate other zoos.

Ackbar, the father, roared fiercely when the youngster was born, but later looked upon the event as simply representing one more lion in the world.

This Xmas let it be a Furniture Aristocrat

Get this Xmas guide- book to Period Furniture

Come in and let us give you a copy of "Edison and Music". Tells about the chief period designs—what they look like, what they stand for. Pithy descriptions. Beautiful illustrations. Just the information you want.

Let us show you what an exquisite thing a phonograph cabinet can be.

Every New Edison on our floor—no matter what its price—is encased in a genuine period cabinet.

Period Furniture is the world's most exquisite development of furniture. It originated in the 16th, 17th, and 18th Centuries. Europe was ruled by a Gorgeous Aristocracy. Fine living was the ideal of the day. An unparalleled race of artists, architects, and designers built palatial living-places for kings and nobles, and furnished them. The palaces of the nobility became treasure-houses of fine furniture. It was called the "Golden Age of Furniture."

So Mr. Edison had his designers go back into the manor houses of England, the chateaux of France and the castles of Italy. They adapted 17 designs from historic masterpieces. They preserved entire "the character and feeling of the best periods" in these superb phonograph cases for the modern American home.

No matter which Edison cabinet you choose, you get both the arts that make your house a cultured home—music perfectly RE-CREATED and furniture of purest period source. What finer gift for all the family?

HEMPHILL EXPLAINS ORGANIZATION OF NEAR EAST RELIEF

Prominent New York Banker Says Aim Is 100% Relief of Starving Peoples.

"Just what is the Near East Relief? Is the question that many people are asking whose interests have been awakened to the terrible conditions existing in the Levant today," says Alexander J. Hemphill, President of the Guarantee Trust Company and well known New York banker and financier. "In prosaic facts, the Near East Relief is a body incorporated by act of Congress the object of which is to provide relief and to assist in the repatriation, rehabilitation and re-establishment of suffering and dependent people of the Near East and adjacent areas; to provide for the care of orphans and widows and to promote the social, economic and industrial well-

ALEXANDER J. HEMPHILL.

fare of those who have been rendered destitute or dependent, directly or indirectly, by the vicissitudes of war, the cruelties of men or other causes beyond their control.

100 Per Cent Relief.
"The aim of the organization is 100 per cent relief, the relief which puts those aided on a self-supporting basis, which installs in them a confidence for the future, places in their hands the means with which to begin life anew, and in their hearts the courage to go on. Work, that is the prescription subscribed and provided by those loyal men and women who have journeyed into perilous places for the sake of their fellow men; to make these people independent for the future, to encourage the flickering fire of national pride.

"There are 62,291 workers employed in the industrial establishments of the Near East Relief, where wool is furnished for the women to spin and weave, and all the girls who are strong enough are washing wool, sewing beds, grinding and sifting wheat, tailoring and learning to make lace. The big problem is to make these women independent.

"About 500 American men and women, Near East Relief workers, are now in the field, including 26 eminent physicians and surgeons, 70 nurses, 7 mechanics, 15 industrial experts, 16 agriculturists, 11 bacteriologists, 167 relief workers, 25 supply and transport workers, 19 teachers, 20 administrators, 31 secretaries, 7 engineers and 45 army officers.

Where Money Goes.
"Funds for relief purposes are distributed in two ways: First, the various relief centers are authorized by the Executive Committee to draw slight drafts on New York for specific amounts each month; second, by supplies purchased in America, the major portion of which are shipped to the committee warehouses at Derindje, and the remainder either to Beyrouth or Batoum.

"The relief is rapidly expanding and meeting the situation, but the future depends on the continuation of American support."

According to Mr. Hemphill, the need for American help to see the destitute peoples of the Near East through the crisis of present conditions is greater now than ever before on account of the uncertainty as to the future, the truculence of the Turkish government and the danger of bolshevism from Russia, which threatens to engulf the whole of Armenia.

Who Direct the Work.

Mr. Hemphill is the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Near East Relief. Other members are Dr. James L. Barton, Secretary of the Foreign Department of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions; Edwin M. Bulkley, banker, of Spencer Trask & Co., New York; Judge Abram I. Elkus, former United States Ambassador to Turkey; Harold A. Hatch, a well known New York cotton man; Herbert Hoover, William B. Millar, one of the Secretaries of the International World Movement; Henry Morgenthau, United States Ambassador to Mexico; Edgar Rickard of the American Relief Administration; Charles V. Vickrey, who is Secretary of the Near East Relief, and Dr. Stanley White, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Daniel B. O'Donnell vs. Edith M. O'Donnell, No. 233 in the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this order is to procure a decree of divorce, a vinculo matrimonii, in behalf of Daniel B. O'Donnell, plaintiff, from his wife, Edith M. O'Donnell, defendant.

The bill states that the plaintiff is a miner of coal and has been living in and about the town of Bloomington, Maryland, for some time over three years past, and that his wife, Edith M. O'Donnell, is a native of Pennsylvania, and when his wife was married to him, she was a resident of that State, and then his wife separated from him and he does not know where she is now living but believes she is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

That there were no children born of said marriage.

That ever since they were married he has been a faithful and affectionate husband towards his wife up to the time she left him. That within a few months after his marriage he discovered that she was not faithful to him and that on diverse times he discovered that his wife has committed the crime of adultery, and when his suspicions were confirmed about her behavior he then trailed her and found her in company with another man, and that he discovered her adulterous conduct before he discovered her adulterous conduct.

That your orator has not lived or cohabited with his wife, the said Edith M. O'Donnell, since he has discovered her may be a divorce, a vinculo matrimonii from the said Edith M. O'Donnell; that he must have such other and further relief as his case may require, and that he prays that an order of publication should be issued against the said Edith O'Donnell, so that she is not a resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 30th day of October, 1920, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in Equity ordered, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in a newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 3rd day of December, 1920, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 20th day of December next to show cause if any she has, why a decree should not be given as prayed.

BOOTLEGGER SURRENDERS

Dewey Harvey, Suspected of Illicit Selling, Surrenders to Authorities

Dewey Harvey, for whom a warrant has been in the hands of the authorities for the past month, surrendered to the State's officers on Monday, made a confession of his guilt and was released upon bond in the sum of $300 his bondsman being his brother, Jonas Harvey, who himself was later arrested as an accomplice of his brother Dewey and is being held under bond for the action of the grand jury next month.

It will be remembered by readers of The Republican that on the last Sunday of September, the barn of Jonas Harvey, located on his farm at Sand Flat, was raided by the Sheriff and a large quantity of liquor seized which had been placed there, it was alleged at the time by a Pennsylvanian. Circumstances surrounding the storage of the liquor in the Harvey barn at the time had a suspicious aspect which caused the State's Attorney's office to get busy and through the efforts of that office the arrest of Jones Harvey and the surrender of his brother Dewey was accomplished.

What facts in connection with the case may be brought out when the matter is presented to the grand jury and what other individuals may be incriminated is a matter of conjecture, for it has been given out by the authorities that others besides the Harveys are implicated in the sale of the contraband.

THE DEATH RECORD

MRS. FLORENCE BROWNING.

Mrs. Florence Jamison Browning, widow of the late John T. Browning, of Oakland, died at her home here on last Friday morning at nine o'clock, after a prolonged illness due to advanced years. Mrs. Browning was aged eighty years and was the daughter of the late Squire and Mrs. Richard B. Jamison of Oakland, and a sister of Mr. R. S. Jamison. For many years Mrs. Browning conducted the Browning House very successfully, relinquishing its management to her son and daughter about a year ago. She was a woman representing the highest type of Christian living and had hundreds of friends in all parts of the country. Mrs. Browning was born at Blooming Rose and was married to her late husband in June, 1871. To this union eight children were born, namely: Mrs. A. W. Helbig, Jerry D. William R. Zaudie J. and Mrs. Edward Helbig, all of Oakland; Mrs. John Mountain, of Hollandsburg, Pa.; Mrs. R. E. Frazer, of Pittsburgh, and Mr. Frank Browning, of Baltimore. The funeral of Mrs. Browning took place from St. Peter's Catholic church in Oakland on Monday morning, where a requiem high mass was said by the pastor, Rev. James E. Connell. The edifice was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends, those from a distance present being Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Haigh and Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Feather, of Cranesville; Mrs. Frank Browning, of Tuba Alta; Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Ennis, of Lonaconing; Mrs. Rose Rizer, of Newburg; Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Middleton, of Pottersburg; Edmund and Francis Dent, of Clarksburg; N. C. and W. G. Browning, of Sand Run; E. A. Browning, of Grantsville; Miss Olla Mattingly, of Hoyes, and Miss Ethel McGreevy, of Westernport.

MRS. THERESA WHITE.

Mrs. Theresa Helbig White, wife of Mr. Charles E. White, of Oakland, died at her home here on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock and was buried from St. Peter's Catholic church Tuesday morning of this week after services conducted by the pastor, the Rev. James E. Connell. Mrs. White was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Helbig, and was born and reared in Oakland. She was aged 56 years and was married in 1867. Mrs. White's death was the first in a family of ten children. She was a great sufferer for several years. Surviving are her husband and the following brothers and sisters: Messrs. John, Joseph, Andrew, Harry, George and Edward; Mrs. John W. Hart, Misses Agnes and Bertha Helbig, all of Oakland.

HELD UP ON HIGHWAY

William H. Bolt, of Cleveland, O., Victim of Auto Bandits.

William H. Bolt, of Cleveland, Ohio, mechanical draughtsman, traveling alone in a Ford car from Pittsburgh to Kingwood via Oakland, was held up at King's Run, three miles north of town on the State road yesterday evening at six o'clock and relieved of all the money he had—about $24.00.

Mr. Bolt stated upon reaching town half an hour after the hold-up had occurred, that he had experienced tire trouble and had stopped his car at the foot of the hill at King's Run to make repairs so that he could get to Oakland. While thus engaged a Cadillac car, containing two men drove up and stopped and one of the men asked him for a match. He accommodated him by handing out his box of matches and as he did so the driver of the Cadillac presented a gun and with the aid of a flashlight the second man of the party went through Bolt's clothing, securing all his money.

The Cadillac car, following the robbery, continued its way down the pike toward Mellory, and Mr. Bolt, with but three tires on his car drove into town and notified the authorities.

Securing a high-power car Constable Castelle and several others accompanied by the victim of the highwaymen, and armed with a John Doe warrant, left immediately for the scene of the robbery, first however telephoning to various points along the road the facts of the hold-up and requesting that tab be kept on all cars passing northward. Mellory reported a few minutes after the alarm had been sent out that car answering the description given had just passed and at that point all trace of the highwaymen was lost, although the officers followed the roadway through to the Pike at Keyser's Ridge.

One of the local garages reported to the officers this morning that a Cadillac car bearing a Pennsylvania license tag had been repaired in the shop attached to it yesterday, but of course there is no possible way of connecting the men owning this car with the robbery unless they are arrested and recognized by Mr. Bolt.

K. OF P. NOTES OF INTEREST

On last Friday evening the rank of Page was conferred upon one candidate and the rank of Esquire was conferred upon a class of four.

Prospects are that we will have a class of 15 to 25 candidates for the rank of Knight in the very near future.

An effort should be made by all members to have all applications in within the next two weeks, so that prospective members can be made Knight before the end of the year.

The death benefit fund has exceeded the thousand dollar mark.

Make a special effort to attend all meetings from now until the end of the year as there will be considerable work.

Garrett Temple, No. 17, Pythian Sisters will have a social on the evening of Monday, Nov. 15. Every member is urged to come and have "let-together" meeting. Refreshments.

ROADS WORK TO STOP

State Commission Will Lay Off 1009 Men November 15th.

One thousand men, employed on 30 jobs for the State Roads Commission in Maryland will be laid off on Monday, November 15th, when work is suspended for the season.

Concrete prices still are too high for Chief Engineer Mackall, and no further work will be contracted for until January 1, when lower prices are expected to prevail. The prolonged mild weather has made the demand for concrete brick and has prevented any falling off that might have been expected if cold weather had shut down work in the northern part of the country.

Many of the 1000 men are expected to return to their homes in various sections of the State and help meet the demands for such labor on out-door work that can probably be kept up until Christmas.

COUNTY BOYS HAVE CHANCE FOR MORE "Y" SCHOLARSHIPS

Donald Sincell Is Notified Garrett Has Received Its Allotment

Donald R. Sincell, secretary of the Garrett county committee for the awarding of Y. M. C. A. correspondence course scholarships to ex-service men, has been notified by the Y. M. C. A. Interstate Secretary in Washington, D. C., that $230 has just been allotted to Garrett county for scholarships. This is in addition to the amount in scholarships already awarded the county.

A list of courses and application blanks can be obtained from Mr. Sincell at the Republican office.

The wide range in courses offered make it possible for the man with little or no elementary education to participate in the benefits on an equal basis with those more fortunate in the matter of education. Comprehensive and practical agriculture courses are offered in the Home study courses along with commercial, academic, professional and highly specialized technical ones.

Men who were awarded scholarships during the summer have said the courses are well worth applying for, and have expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the methods of teaching.

Applications should be made at once so that the scholarships can be awarded and courses begun as quickly as possible.

Dr. and Mrs. M. C. Hinebaugh moved back to their residence in Oakland

HUTTON

Late Friday evening or early on Saturday morning the store of Mr. John A. Connell at this place was broken into and robbed of shoes and clothing to the value of two hundred dollars, the thieves gaining entrance to the building by way of the front door which they pried open with an old broken mattock that was left lying on the store porch as a souvenir of their midnight visit. There also was found a heavy piece of blunt iron which was probably used in smashing the door lock. Upon the discovery of the robbery Mr. Connell communicated with the State's authorities at Oakland who are making every effort to apprehend the robbers and bring them to justice.

Miss Margaret Feeney, of Edgewood, was an Oakland visitor one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Baker and Mr. Ted Baker were visitors at Morgantown on Sunday.

Former Sheriff George D. White, of Oakland, was a business visitor to Hutton on Friday last.

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Peter's church at Westernport on the morning of Wednesday last when Miss Bernadette Bell, of Piedmont, became the bride of Mr. Edward H. Pendergast of this place. Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to a number of relatives and friends at the home of the bride's mother, after which the young couple left for various points in the South. They will be at home to their friends at Piedmont after December 1st at Piedmont.

The tanning company's boarding house here is now being managed by a Mrs. Warnick, of near Terra Alta. Miss Bertha Warnick, of Oakland, has been the guest of the new hostess for the past week.

Miss Emma Salzman, a student at the Mountain State Business College, Parkersburg, West Va., spent a few days the past week as the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Salzman, in Hutton.

The writer, in company with a gentleman friend, motored to Corinth on Sunday last where they spent a few hours and while there inspected a number of improvements being made at the mines, among which was the huge concrete bases that are being put in for the proposed large power plant for the electrification of the mines. Superintendent Light, of the new concern which recently purchased the property, was also present and was engaged in showing a party of strangers over the grounds. Going further up the mountain we discovered where land owners had been prospecting for coal, there being openings made in the ground to the depth of several hundred feet. An outcrop of slate and other formations gave favorable indications of obtaining what the prospectors sought. To all appearances a considerable amount of labor will be necessary before these mines will be ready for operation.

BITTINGER

On Tuesday last, election day, the rain poured down from every corner of the district, with the result of an exceptionally good vote and a handsome Republican majority.

The registered manifest unusual interest and only three of the registered ones failed to vote, notwithstanding the rain and very bad traveling.

Mrs. Thomas B. Wiley left her home here on last Saturday morning for Akron, Ohio, where she will pay her daughter an indefinite visit.

FORDSON

TRADE MARK

There are many Tractors clamoring for the patronage of the farmer. The very air is charged with the noise of claims. One would think that all the farmer had to do was to buy a Tractor and he would enter into the Millennium.

Well, consider this fact—there are a great many different makes of Tractors. Tractors have been on the American market for twenty years. In that time some three hundred thousand Tractors have been sold to the farmers in the United States. The Fordson Tractor has only been on the market two years, and in that time more than one hundred thousand Fordson Tractors have been sold to the farmers of the United States.

Two and two make four. Two and two always will make four. If the Fordson Tractor had not delivered more good work, more satisfactory work, more economical work, than any other farm Tractor, it would not have sold in the ratio of anywhere from five and more to one. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." The proof of the superior merits of the Fordson Tractor is in its larger sale and use.

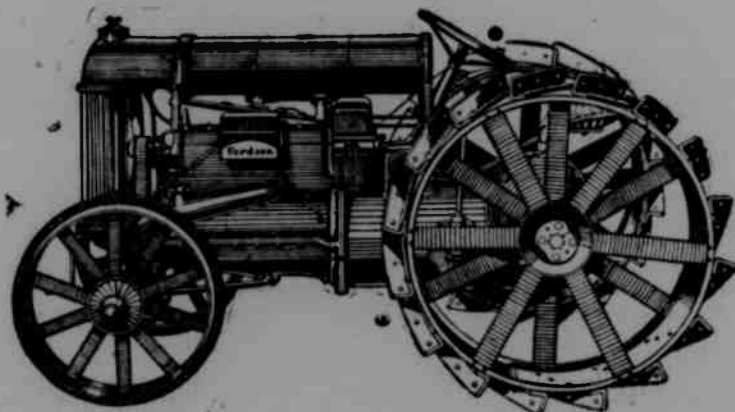

The Fordson Tractor then asks you to buy it because of what it has done for your neighbors. It asks you to buy it on its merits. It asks you to buy it, Mr. Farmer, because you have use for it every day in the year. All the uses for the Fordson Tractor have not yet been uncovered because new places where machine power can take the place of human power, where machine power can supplant horse and mule-power, are being found every week, and wherever such discovery occurs, the Fordson Tractor will fill the bill more satisfactorily than any other form of power.

The Fordson is simple in design, and it is very strongly made of the highest quality of iron and steel. It is the product of the greatest mechanical genius the world has ever known, and it is most economical in first cost and after expense. The Fordson Tractor on your farm will increase the value of every foot of ground in that farm. It will put more dollars and cents into every hour you put into the farm.

Now why not have a Fordson right away? Take up the subject with us. Come in and get the details, and all the particulars.

It is only a matter of time until you buy a farm Tractor—that is sure. So don't put it off when it means money to you to act promptly.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

During all the years the Ford Model T One Ton Truck has been on the market, we have never had one complaint of rear axle trouble. We have had no complaints of motor trouble. As the motor and the rear axle are the vital fundamentals in a motor truck, we have the right to conclude that the Ford One Ton Truck has not only met the demands of business, but has done so in a satisfactory and economic way. There is no other evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Ford One Ton Trucks are serving along all industrial and commercial lines. You will find them everywhere. If these statements were not facts, the demand for the Ford One Ton Truck would not be as large as it is, because people are not buying trucks which do not give service. Coupled with the dependability of the Ford One Ton Truck in all classes of usage, comes the economy in operation and maintenance. On the farm, in factory delivery, for the merchant, manufacturer and contractor, in these days of modern business methods, this worm drive One Ton Truck has become a virtual necessity. Leave your orders with any of the Authorized Dealers mentioned below, and you will be assured of prompt attention.

IT COSTS TOO MUCH TO BE SICK.
Keep Your Blood in Good Condition and You Throw Off Disease.

Pay Attention to Your Health.

No Need to Take Chances With It. Panto-Mangan Makes Rich, Red Blood.

When you first feel a tired, all-gone feeling and look pale, your blood is losing in quality. Weak, impoverished blood has no power to fight disease. It takes red blood to keep you well.

If you keep your blood in good condition it will fight off disease. You will not be such an easy prey to long and expensive sicknesses. With thin blood you take chances every day.

There's no need doing that. You can take Panto-Mangan and build up rich, red blood. With red blood you are able to win in the fight against prevailing diseases. Try Panto-Mangan. It comes in tablet or liquid form. Take either kind. The tablet has the same medicinal value at the liquid. But be sure you get the genuine Panto-Mangan. Ask for "Guide" and be sure that the name, "Guide" Panto-Mangan, is on the package.—Advertisement.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Daniel B. O'Donnell vs. Edith M. O'Donnell. No. 2344 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce in favor of the plaintiff, Daniel B. O'Donnell, plaintiff, from his wife, Edith M. O'Donnell, defendant.

The bill states that the plaintiff is a minor of coal and has been living in and about the town of Bloomington, Maryland, for some three or four years past, and that his wife moved with him from Bloomington to Frostburg, Maryland, where they lived a few months together, and then his wife separated from him and does not know where she is now living but believes she is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

That there were no children born of said marriage.

That ever since they were married he has been a faithful and affectionate husband to said wife up to the time she left him. That within a few months after his marriage he discovered that she was unfaithful to him and that on divers times he discovered that his wife has committed the crime of adultery, and when his suspicions were aroused he found her in the arms of another man, and he has since then treated her as an adulteress, and when his suspicions were aroused he found her in the arms of another man, and he has since then treated her as an adulteress, and when his suspicions were aroused he found her in the arms of another man, and he has since then treated her as an adulteress.

That your honor has not lived or cohabited with his wife, the said Edith M. O'Donnell, since he has discovered her adultery.

The bill then prays that he may be granted a divorce a vinculo matrimonii from the said Edith M. O'Donnell; that he might have such other and better things that an order of divorce should be issued against the said Edith M. O'Donnell alleging that she is not a resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 30th day of October, 1920, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in Equity, ordered, that the plaintiff, by counsel, appear in this court on or before the 25th day of December, 1920, to show cause if any she has, why a decree should not be issued as prayed.

If there are any new school buildings put up in Garrett county it will have to be done by direct taxation. The bond issue, which would have distributed the burden over a series of years, was voted down on Tuesday, very much to the regret now of many who voted against the issue. Kitzmiller district gave it a splendid majority, but eight votes being cast against the measure in that district, but Grantsville district, where a building for high and grammar school purposes is badly needed and will have to be provided, gave a majority against it. In some other towns of the county where buildings have been erected, the voters showed themselves poor sports and cast their ballots against providing school facilities for other towns.

Allegany county has one office that has gone begging—that of County Surveyor. Several months ago Henry W. Schmitt, who was re-elected to the position last year, resigned. Since then the County Commissioners have been skirmishing about to get some one to take the job. Several were offered the place, but they flatly refused to consider taking it. The pay is by fees fixed by law and are not adequate. It is thought the law will have to be changed and the place put on a remunerative salary basis, or the fees raised to adequate proportions.

Mr. James Walter Thomas, of Cumberland, an authority on Maryland and Colonial history, will attend the two hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary celebration in Philadelphia, November 10th, of the foundation of the Church of England in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as the representative of the Diocese of Maryland. Bishop John Gardiner Murray recently invited Mr. Thomas to attend as his representative and deliver an address.

The convention will meet in historic Christ Church in Philadelphia, erected in 1635, the first Episcopal church building in the Colonies. Several hundred clergymen will attend. Governor Sproul will deliver an address.

Sheriff Roy Winters has in Jail a man arrested by his deputy, Lester Bittinger, on a "John Doe" warrant, bearing the prisoner with having stolen a horse belonging to Donald Simpson at Loch Lynn Heights two or three weeks ago. The horse was taken from Mr. Simpson's barn and upon going to the stable the following morning to feed and water his stock he discovered that one of the animals was missing.

Coming to town the State's officials were notified and after using the telephone Deputy Bittinger learned that a man riding a horse as described by Mr. Simpson, was seen to pass McHenry. From this point the man went on to Hoxes and from thence back to the State road and at Alexander's he took the old dirt road back toward McHenry. At this point the officer came up with him and placed him under arrest. The man refuses to give his name, but he has been recognized as a one who lived in this county a number of years ago and who disappeared.

Patrons' Club Meeting.

The Patrons' Club of the Oakland Grammar and Garrett County High Schools will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, November 16th, at eight o'clock. The place for the meeting is in the Grammar school building.

The attendance at the October meeting was better than the previous month. Let's make the attendance at the November meeting better still. There is much room for improvement in this respect.

Parts of the Maryland school law, in which parents and teachers are most interested, will be discussed. People should be just as much interested in the laws which govern the schools as in other phases of the law. Ofttimes criticisms are made, which if the law which governs the matter was known, would never be made. The purpose of the meeting is to disseminate information concerning the present school law.

Bubble Force Makes Billions

Fortunes Extracted Daily From Froth by Treatment of Low-Grade Ores.

GREAT SAVING OF COPPER

Knowledge of Colloid and Organic Chemistry Necessary for the Flotation Millman—Skillful Work for a Profit.

New York.—Billions are being added to the world's wealth by the forces at work in the soap bubble. The flotation method of mineral separation, by which every day in the year fortunes are literally extracted from froth, is now exercising so powerful an influence on mining operations in this and other countries that, according to Columbia university authorities, the future of copper production, and therefore of the electrical industry, largely hinges on bubbles.

The process of ore concentration has always been considered important in mining engineering schools and the flotation process is a leading factor in laboratory practice at Columbia, where the ore dressing laboratory is now undergoing considerable expansion.

According to both Dean George B. Pegram of the Columbia School of Mines, Engineering and Chemistry, and Arthur F. Taggart, professor of ore dressing, the advent of flotation has worked a revolution in mining methods.

"The word 'bubble' used in connection with mining properties formerly referred to a kind of financial management which could hardly be tolerated in these dry and sober days, but in the last few years bubbles have taken on a new and more important significance for the larger part of the mining industry," said Dean Pegram. "The most important problem of the mining engineers is usually how to concentrate the mineral in low-grade ores to such an extent that the working of the ore will be profitable. A process has been developed which applies particularly to all sulphide ores, and these include most of the copper, zinc and lead ores, in which the ores may be beautifully concentrated by the action of fine bubbles of air attaching themselves to the particles of mineral, finely ground and mixed with water.

"Separate Sand and Froth. The bubbles with the sulphide mineral then rise to the top as a thick froth, while the sand and other worthless material sink to the bottom of the vessel. This flotation process has not only made much more profitable the working of the better grade of copper, zinc and lead ore but has also made very profitable the working of ores which previously could not have been handled without actual loss.

"The whole secret of the bubbles of air gathering up the mineral particles and leaving the sand depends upon treating the finely crushed ore in water with one of various chemical substances, among them oleic acid and pine oil. Only a very small amount of the oil is necessary, less than 1 per cent by weight of the amount of mineral that is in the ore.

"After the proper reagent has been added to the water and the finely crushed ore is introduced into it either by heating it in with a stirrer or by forcing it in through fine pores in the bottom of the vessel, or any way in which to bring fine bubbles of the air into intimate contact with the fine particles of the ore. The separation is invariably complete, the mineral going to the top in bubbles, forming a thick froth, which is collected by suitable arrangements, while the sand and other gangue material settles quite clean of any valuable mineral to the bottom of the vessel.

"Of course the process is made to run continuously, and in some mills as much as 4,000 tons of mineral in froth is separated each day. Altogether in 1918 there were 60,000,000 tons of ore treated by the flotation process.

"It may truly be said that the future of copper production, and therefore of the electrical industry, is very largely dependent on the same forces that are at work in the soap bubble."

Professor Taggart declared that the demand for specialists in ore dressing with expert knowledge of the design and operation of the bewildering array of machinery now employed has become so insistent that school curricula must be altered to offer the necessary preparatory courses.

"Ore dressing is an indispensable link between mining and metallurgy in present-day practice in the extraction of metals from the earth," said Professor Taggart. "It consists in non-chemical concentration of the valuable part of an ore into a bulk much smaller than that of the original ore, and at the same time rejection as waste of the worthless portion.

"Until about fifteen years ago most mills were small as compared with present-day standards and the ores were relatively high grade. The ore treatment problem was a simple one, and as a result the technical as well as the executive direction of the ore dressing plant could be and was incidentally the direction with which the concentrator was built.

"The services of a specialist in concentration were considered unnecessary. With the development of the large, low-grade, disseminated copper deposits, the importance of ore dressing took a sudden jump. These deposits contain only from twenty to forty pounds of copper per ton of ore. The ore bodies as originally discovered contained from 20,000,000 to 100,000,000 tons each of such ore. For economical working of such deposits elaborate concentrating plants, capable of handling from 5,000 to 40,000 tons of ore per day were necessary.

"Skillful Work for Profit. These plants required the most skillful direction possible if a profit was to be made from their operation, and a demand for specialists in concentration immediately arose. Within the last seven years the successful application of processes of froth flotation to the treatment of these low-grade ores has resulted in the saving of four to six pounds more copper per ton than was formerly possible.

"The advent of flotation called for a mill man of much broader scientific education than the old concentration processes required. A flotation mill man needs a working knowledge of the newest branch of physical chemistry, viz., colloid chemistry, and should also have some acquaintance with organic chemistry. Coincident with the advent of flotation in mining there has been a revolution in the methods of grinding ores preparatory to concentration. In the old concentration processes it was impossible to treat very finely ground ore economically.

"Hence all grinding was done with the end in view of producing as little slime as possible. Flotation, however, works best on finely pulverized ore. Hence it was necessary, on the introduction of flotation, to devise methods of grinding different from those in vogue at that time in such methods being aimed at producing slime. This resulted in the introduction of grinding machinery of an entirely different type. In connection with the new grinding and flotation machinery there was necessarily developed also machinery for sizing and dewatering the finely ground product.

"The men who will successfully handle this work must understand the physical principles underlying the operations of ore concentration, and must have, in addition, the collateral engineering knowledge essential to the designing of structures and the installation of machinery, sufficient grasp of the principles of chemistry and metallurgy to be able to judge results from a commercial standpoint, sufficient knowledge of mining to understand how ores are produced to the surface of the ground, and, finally, sufficient knowledge of metallurgy to understand the demands of the metallurgist as to the character of concentrate produced.

"The instruction of such men in college then should consist in a foundation of the fundamental sciences and a firm grounding in the use of the English language to express ideas and to present results and conclusions; in other words, such basic instruction as is essential to the training of all engineers.

"On this foundation should be built a superstructure composed of courses leading to a thorough knowledge of the properties and occurrences of minerals, to an understanding of the principles of chemistry and metallurgy, and to the character of structures, the generation and transmission of power, the methods of mining, the general principles of metallurgy and the principles of economics and business finance and accounting.

"Finally, following some elementary instruction in ore dressing, the student should be assigned a definite, fairly difficult problem in that subject, which he is expected to carry through to a conclusion largely by his own efforts and initiative.

"In connection with this problem there should be time in the curriculum to allow the student to elect one or more courses in some other department, preferably in chemistry, physics or metallurgy, such courses being along the line of the problem under investigation."

Send for Owens

By JANE OSBORN

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When the last vote had been cast and the last ballot had been counted, it was a fact beyond disputing that the candidate for whom Richard Leavenworth had spent so much of his youthful and zealous enthusiasm, had lost the election. Richard Leavenworth took the defeat really harder than the man himself. The fact that Richard had never fully convalesced from the hardships he had experienced two winters in France made him less hardy against the sharpness of the disappointment.

When it became apparent to Mrs. Leavenworth and Richard's sister that he had taken the thing so to heart, when the thermometer thrust into his parched lips had shown that he was actually ill in consequence—no one was especially wrought up about it. "Poor Dick has always been that way. He's a very bad loser, and always did play too hard."

The old family doctor had assured Mrs. Leavenworth that, while Richard was not in actual danger, he ought to have a change of air immediately. He would recover from the fever as soon as he had his sleep out, but after that he should be packed off to the mountains to get the mental rest his nerves demanded.

But it was perfectly obvious that none of the Leavenworths wanted to bury themselves off in their mountain cabin in November. Loretta was going to be married in January and Mrs. Leavenworth certainly could not go off with him, much less could Loretta. It was still the day after the defeat, snowy Richard—Loretta and his mother were settling the situation.

"We'll just have to send for Owens," quoth Loretta with finality. "Certainly we can't go off there, and, anyway, if anything were going to be the matter with him it would be necessary to have a nurse—way off there, where a doctor or anything. Besides, I don't believe we would either of us be any comfort to him."

Mrs. Leavenworth upbraided herself for not having thought of Owens before and within five minutes a telegram was off to that man who, at the childhood instructing her to be at the mountain resort to meet Richard within two days. She had been there often enough—she knew the way. She was further instructed to wire if she was unable to be there.

So Richard was bolstered up with the doctor's prescriptions, bundled into a closed car with the Leavenworth chauffeur who could be dispensed with for a few days, and Loretta and her mother went back to the important work of planning bridesmaids' dresses with a free conscience.

For after all Richard would be content with Owens, the old Welsh woman who had nursed him through all the small ills of childhood and then had always been willing to come back whenever her vigilant care was needed to help Richard through any illness or accident.

Owens, to be sure, was a baby specialist. It was her rule to take no one over twelve, but she had never refused to come back to Richard. So when he broke a rib or so at hockey in high-school days she hurried home from a isolated vacation to be at his side.

Later it was she who went up to college to take her place in the infirmary while he recovered from the batterings received at his first canoe spree. In fact it was a family byword when anything went wrong with Richard, who had not always been the most docile of patients, to "send for Owens."

Meantime, how were the Leavenworths to know that Owens had gone back to the land of her nativity for a few months' sojourn? And how was Madge, her pretty niece, who had followed her aunt's example in taking the training course in the baby hospital, to know that the aunt made one exception to her rule to take only children? When the aunt had left she had told Madge to go out on any case to which she was summoned.

She had perfect confidence in the younger nurse's ability to take her place. So Madge had come in from one case only to find the telegram to come at once the next, and, being a young woman of resources, she had started out at once, gone by rail as far as it would take her, and had then landed in the forlorn little mountain hamlet a few hours before the arrival of Philip and the chauffeur.

"A sick child from the Leavenworths is coming up," she had told the postmaster. "By chance, have you the keys to their cabin?" She got them without difficulty, and had one of the natives get the fire started so that the place possessed a semblance of cheerfulness by the time that Richard arrived.

"But you couldn't leave now," persisted the chauffeur when Madge—who had the same prejudice against adult nursing that her aunt had had before—had told him that he had better take her back to the city as soon as possible and get another nurse in her place. "I don't want to be alone here with a man in his condition."

So Madge stayed the first two or three days because she felt it was her duty—and the last days of the week

she stayed because something had grown up and was still growing up between Richard Leavenworth and herself that made the thought of separation seem like one of those impossible things that we do not even like to mention.

Meantime Madge continued to wear the immaculate white uniform and cap that she had worn when Richard first saw her, and she continued, too, in the presence of the chauffeur, who acted as camp cook and general factotum, to give Richard professional directions as to what he should and should not do, what he should eat and what wraps he should don.

"But you needn't think," rebelled Richard one morning when the chauffeur had just departed for the village after being present while Madge gave Richard orders to eat two soft boiled eggs and to drink only one cup of coffee, "that I am going through life letting you tell me how many eggs I must eat and how many cups of coffee I mustn't drink."

"Certainly not," answered Madge, smoothing out the wrinkles in the army blanket at the side of Richard's chair, paused for one caressing plume by the arm beside it. Gently large snowy fingers took the hand and then two lips were pressed in a kiss upon that hand.

"Madge," said Richard, "I'm not going to be bad enough to propose marriage to you under my own roof. I know the only decent way to ask you is to wait until you get on your own territory—when you are no longer employed here. Suppose you take a train back to town this afternoon, so that I can come right after you and ask you."

Madge looked up timidly, and there was a twinkle in her eye that reminded Richard even then of the aunt he had loved so long. "Don't you suppose," she said, "that there is a train I could get this morning, so that you could get down and ask me sooner?"

HEBRIDES THE 'TIN ISLANDS'?

Mystery of Lands Described by the Ancient Phenicians Seems to Have Been Cleared Up.

Where were the tin islands? Every boy and girl has been taught that the Phenicians visited Britain before the time of Julius Caesar to get tin for use in the manufacture of bronze. They have been told that when the ancient writers speak of the tin islands, or Cassiterides, they mean the Shetlands, although little or no tin is found in those islands.

The fact is that no one could say definitely where the tin islands were. Some historians thought they were the little islands at the northwest corner of Spain, while others have believed that they had no real existence, and that in speaking of them the authors merely meant to indicate that tin came from overseas.

Now, however, an important discovery has been made that seems to clear up the mystery. Tin has been found in considerable quantities in the Hebrides, and everything suggests that these are the famous tin islands of the old writers.

The mystery has largely arisen owing to the fact that the Phenicians, who were cunning traders, and did not want anyone else to poach on their preserves, kept the source of their tin secret.

This discovery of tin in the Hebrides is a very interesting fact, and it will be curious if the islands that first brought Britain into prominence should again become a source of wealth and fame.

Service Brings Increase.

Two beautiful little springs lived close to the mountain side and drew their crystal water from the same source; yet as they grew older they grew very different, for the one insisted on running out of its banks and trickling down the mountain. Soon flowers spring up all along the way and beautiful ferns and moss lined its banks. Its water was always cool and refreshing, and travelers always paused to chat with it—but its neighbor refused to leave its own shaded spot and soon became stagnant and sour and green. No one ever came near it save one old frog, and he was a "croaker." Which one are you like?—P. H. Cheley in "Stories for Talks to Boys."

Waterproof Glue.

To render glue insoluble in water, hot or cold, add a few crystals of bichromate of potash to the water with which the glue is being dissolved for use. After the part has been glued expose it to the light. For most purposes bichromate of one-fiftieth part of the amount of glue used will be sufficient. Glue containing potassium bichromate becomes insoluble when exposed to light and allowed to harden thoroughly.

Wood and Cement.

When wood is used as a reinforcing material for concrete it should be impregnated with magnesium chloride, and the wood must be so placed that any change in the cross-sectional area does not affect the durability of the structure. If the proper precaution is overlooked the concrete may crack.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, head ache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive a sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 14

The Power and Authority of Jesus.

Matt. 8, 9.

And Jesus went about all the cities and the villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom and healing all manner of diseases and all manner of sickness.

THE STIRRED COMMUNITY.

Recently Piedmont, W. Va., has been the center of excitement that reached far beyond its borders in every direction.

In the tabernacle where Mrs. McPherson was preaching there was the constant coming of the blind, deaf, paralyzed, tubercular and many more seeking her prayers and anointing for healing.

Men threw away crutches, persons carried up the steps ran down them and the crowds grew large and the excitement more intense. Special trains were run, trucks were loaded with eager throngs, trolley cars were filled to their capacity and all the talk was of the wonderful things happening among the diseased. And this is the day of hospitals and multiplied agencies for healing that have done so much to relieve the sick of the horrors connected with hurt bodies. Put the same appeal into a land where these were unknown and where the simplest remedies waited upon superstition and one may gauge what must have been the excitement in Galilee as Jesus made His way thru her cities and towns preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom to be sure but there was far more talk of the cures he wrought than of the message that they were meant to carry. Matthew gathers up in these two chapters events running thru seven or eight months of the year 28 and one can see the deepening hatred of the rulers, the deepening popularity among the people and the deepening sense of messiahship on the part of the Disciples. Each day brought some new revealing of Christ's power and increasing multitudes thronged Him as this year of popularity passed so that there was only need that it be noised about that He was in any place and immediately there was an open highway to the spot so that there would be no time even to eat bread on the part of the Twelve.

THE SCOPE OF POWER.

Christ is revealed as the Master of all realms of life. In the storm which swept the lake with sudden and unexampled fury the Man of many tasks lay sleeping while the Disciples fell into utter panic. His first task was with them to allay their fears and bring some order out of the confusion that more than the tempest threatened the safety of the boat. Then He rebuked the winds and the sea and they hushed into stillness. Small wonder that the hardy fishermen were amazed! The Master of all nature's forces was on board and the things that He had made obeyed His word. On the far side the sea when He reached shore the shriek of madness was the first greeting as the wild, nude figure rushed toward the boat. Nothing is more terrible than the mind possessed by utterly alien ideas that makes the person more demon than human. There can be no question of Christ's courage after His facing such an onslaught unmoved. His word restored the rightful owner to possession of the human house and showed Him Lord in every field of that realm which we dub psychic today. Once more crossing the lake He was pressed by crowds as the call of the distressed Jairus was answered. Come into the home where death had preceded Him was forced to release its spoil and a child radiant with life received food from the hands of the rejoicing parents. Disease, danger, demons or death mattered not at all to Him who held them all under His control and could overcome any of them with a word. There is no realm where He is not master and Lord.

THE USE OF THE POWER.

Jesus always subordinated the control of physical forces to spiritual purposes. Healing and all other manifestations of power were incidental to the far greater work of revealing the Fatherhood of God expressed in sacrificial love for all men. He refused to pose merely as a healer tho this must have been one of the causes for the crowds that followed Him. He did plan for the saving of the world. He did build an organization for propagation in the convinced Twelve. But healing a few lepers left the scourge untouched. Setting the impotent man to carrying his bed thru the Jerusalem streets on the Sabbath did nothing for the five porches that still bore their weight of pain. Stopping a funeral procession in Nain put no grave-digger out of business. Peter and John found a man at the Temple gate lame from birth and he was but one among many untouched by the healing hands of Jesus. Healing was not Christ's chief business tho He seems to have done it freely and generously without conditions as opportunity presented. It was man's life that He sought to lift and bless, his whole life included in the body but as with that Capernaum paralytic the cure was used as a witness for far greater power than bodily healing. His commission to the church included the ministry to the whole life of man and we have seen greater things done in this field than Jesus ever attempted for we have banished whole disease and freed thousands from their clutch where Jesus healed a few cases merely. And it is where the church has gone that health has come. That there is material agency has no bearing in the matter since the only real power of healing is back in God. Paul with his faith and his wonderful leading upon his Lord for all things kept the best physician he could find as a constant attendant upon himself.

THE MINISTRY OF POWER.

Always was suffering made a ministrant thing to the best life of man whether by removal or by remaining. What a tragedy it would be if there were no pain in the world. It would mean blunted nerves incapable of responding to other stimuli. And if Christ himself was made perfect thru suffering it is clear that it can do much for those who follow Him. One thing that has been burned into the world in these last days is the place that sacrificial pain holds in the progress of the race. And individual lives have cried out like Paul for deliverance only to get the greater answer of sufficient grace that has so transformed their entire lives that their radiance has been the shining that has marked Heaven's path for many besides themselves. Christ was trying to make Paul big not to give him an easy time. And his ministry is always to the biggest self

And no one could tell the difference!

This test of direct comparison was made by Anna Case, world-famous soprano, before 2500 people, at Carnegie Hall, New York City, on March 10, 1920. See the three diagram sketches below:

First—Miss Case stood beside the New Edison and sang.

Suddenly—the lights went out, but Miss Case's voice went smoothly on.

Then—the lights went on again. Miss Case was gone. The audience gasped with surprise to find that her voice had been coming from the New Edison.

Mr. Santa Claus! Come in and hear the phonograph that did it

We want you to see it, listen to it, test it for yourself. This marvelous phonograph can give the family more pleasure than any other instrument you can buy them for Christmas.

Here is why:

This phonograph has actually proved that it can match the performance of the living artist,—and match it so perfectly that no one can tell its RE-CREATION from the living performance.

It did this on March 10, 1920 before 2500 people at Carnegie Hall, New York City—with Anna Case, the world-famous soprano. It did this on September 30th, 1919, before 2500 people at Carnegie Hall, Pittsburgh—with Marie Rappold, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company. It did this on November 5th, 1919, before 6500 teachers at the State Armory, Albany—with Mario Laurenti of the Metropolitan Opera Company. It did this over 4000 other times, with more than fifty great vocalists and instrumentalists.

You can read the facts of these amazing achievements in the leading newspapers of the United States and Canada. They are the talk of the music and scientific world.

And the phonograph? It's the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison, "the phonograph with a soul." Every Official Laboratory

Model in our store is an exact duplicate of the famous original Official Laboratory Model which cost Mr. Edison three million dollars to perfect. It is capable of sustaining the test of direct comparison; we guarantee this.

Get an Official Laboratory Model for Christmas. You will have the one phonograph which brings you the living performances of great artists exactly as those artists have given them. You know this is so! The proof has been given! The absolute, scientific proof!

Say the word,—and we'll save an Official Laboratory Model for you, and deliver it in time for Christmas.

The NEW EDISON
"The Phonograph with a Soul"

Test It Yourself

You'll be able to recognize its superiority with your own ears—in every kind of vocal and instrumental music. Come in and see whether this isn't so. We'll gladly give you Mr. Edison's famous Realism Test.

Money Help

Ask about our Budget Plan. It shows you how to make best use of your Christmas money. It brings your New Edison for Christmas, and makes 1921 help pay. Careful, systematic spending always makes money go farther.

Prices

There is no inflation in Edison Prices. "Edison stood the Gaff" to keep his favorite invention within the reach of everyone.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

We are still having splendid fall weather which enables everybody to prepare for the winter months that are just ahead of us.

Dr. Slutz and family have returned to their winter home at Wooster, Ohio, where they will remain until spring.

Mr. Winters, of near Breedlove, W. Va., has purchased the Judge Henry Sanders cottage here and is greatly improving it for the occupancy by his family next spring.

Mr. Reedy, of the Baltimore and Ohio telegraphers' office at this point, who has been residing in Lech Lynn, has purchased one of the John Stevens cottages on H street and has moved into it with his family.

Mr. Leighton, of the Association of office, is having the ice plant at the lake put in shape for harvesting the ice crop at the proper time.

Mr. Jack Grimes has taken his family to Keyser for the winter. Mr. Grimes is one of the instructors in the Prep school at that place.

Mr. Claude Weimer, who has been in California for several years, is here with his sister, Mrs. Welch. He may become a permanent resident provided there is a suitable opening for him to teach in our schools. He will likely become a more successful instructor than his deceased father, the late Silas Weimer.

The managers of the Deaconess Home, located in the Park, have purchased a piano to replace the organ heretofore used in the Home. The organ has been placed in the hands of Mr. J. A. Enlow to present to some of the evergreen Sunday school in the county where they do not have an instrument.

The people of the Park were glad to have with them for a few days recently, Mr. and Mrs. Harman, of St. Mary's, West Va. They returned to their home this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Moon and Mrs. S. E. Harvey left on Saturday morning for Toga county, New York, where they will spend several weeks visiting Mr. and Mrs. Claude Harvey who moved to York state from this neighborhood last spring.

Misses Dolma Harvey and Evelyn Pool and Dr. G. I. Copland, of Kitzmiller, motored to this place on Friday afternoon. Dr. Copland returned to Kitzmiller the same evening and the young ladies remained over Sunday as the guests of their friend, Miss Emma Wilson.

Mr. Harry Adams, of Dodson, and his son Master Bernard Adams, of Cumberland, spent Sunday visiting at the home of Mr. M. L. Sharpless.

that he had been up Salt River.

PRESIDENT WILSON ISSUES THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

Setting Aside Thursday, November 25, For the Usual Observance.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—President Wilson issued his Thanksgiving proclamation tonight, saying that "in plenty, security and peace our virtuous and self-reliant people faced the future," and setting aside Thursday, November 25th, for the usual observance. The text follows:

"The season approaches when it behooves us to turn from the distractions and pre-occupations of our daily life that we may contemplate the mercies which have been vouchsafed to us and render heartfelt and unfeigned thanks to God for His manifold goodness.

"This is an old observance of the American people, deeply imbedded in our thoughts and habits. The burdens and the stresses of life have their own insistence.

"We have abundant cause for thanksgiving. The lessons of the war are rapidly healing. The great army of freemen which America sent to the defense of liberty, returning to the grateful embrace of the nation, has resumed the useful pursuits of peace as simply and as promptly as it rushed to arms in the country's call.

"The equal justice of our laws has received steady vindication in the support of a law-abiding people against various and sinister attacks which have reflected only the baser agitations of war, now happily passing.

"In plenty, security and peace our virtuous and self-reliant people face the future, its duties and its opportunities. May we have vision to discern our duties; the strength both of hand and resolve to discharge them; and the soundness of heart to realize that the truest opportunities are those of service.

"In a spirit then of devotion and stewardship we should give thanks in our hearts and dedicate ourselves to the service of God's merciful and loving purpose to His children.

"Wherefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-fifth day of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and I call upon my countrymen to cease from their ordinary tasks and avocations on that day, giving up to the remembrance of God and His blessings and their dutiful and grateful acknowledgments.

"WOODROW WILSON."

AUTO DEALER AWARDED PRIZES

A. R. Martin, of Martin's Garage, Will Receive $2,000 for Sales of Cars

On September 6th the Overland Automobile Company announced that beginning that day and continuing until November 1st, a bonus of $1,000 would be given the agent making the largest number of sales of the Overland car. This offer on the part of the manufacturers of this very satisfactory automobile was matched by the State distributor located in Baltimore, making a total bonus of $2,000.

Early in the contest Mr. A. R. Martin, the local distributor for the Overland determined to draw down these easy dollars, so he launched an advertising campaign, using the columns of The Republican exclusively as the medium of placing before the public the claims of the car. Week after week columns of advertising were inserted and an interest was thus aroused that kept the dealer busy delivering cars to all parts of the country, the total number of machines sold being thirty-five—33 being Overland Touring and 2 Willys-Knight.

Yesterday Mr. Martin was in receipt of a message stating that he had been awarded the factory bonus and later in the day was notified that the State bonus was also coming his way.

The Republican congratulates Mr. Martin upon the success that has come to him.

The moral of this little experience is that when you have something to sell it "pays to advertise."

The Maryland Theatre on Third st., which was recently leased by the Pythian Improvement Company to Mr. Fred. M. Brown, who comes to Oakland from Martinsburg, West Va., opened on Monday evening under the new management with a moving picture show of real class, the Municipal Band sharing in the proceeds as it was a benefit show for that organization. The interior of the theatre has been thoroughly cleaned and put in excellent condition looking to the pleasure and comfort of its patrons. The theatre will be open each night this week with a change of program each evening.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Garrett County Gave President Garfield 86 Majority.

Forty years ago the Republican majority in Garrett county was less than a hundred for President Garfield. A file of The Republican of November 20, 1880, revealed this fact when it was examined on Tuesday, the vote for the candidates, Presidential and Congressional, at the election held on November 2nd, 1880, being as follows:

Garfield 1210
Hancock 1124
Garfield's majority 86

Urner for Congress 1208
Schley 1122

Urner's majority 86

The Thursday night following the election forty years ago a "monster" torchlight procession was staged in Oakland in which two hundred marchers participated, one half of whom bore torches and marched from the court house through the main streets of the town amid tremendous enthusiasm. Many of the dwellings and business places were brilliantly illuminated. The parade was headed by the Oakland Cornet band, of which the late Dr. J. Lee McComas was leader and the old young men of town were members. Following the torchlight procession a mass meeting was held at the court house which was presided over by the late John G. Knauer, of District No. 8, and speeches were made by Thomas J. Peddicord and H. Wheeler Combs.

Those were the days of real sport!

4,000 War Men Study Farming

Disabled Ex-service Men Placed in Agricultural Training in Various Institutions.

1,500 READY FOR COURSE

Many of the Men Are Illiterate and Must Be Given a Course in Elementary Work to Fit Them for the Farm Course.

Washington.—More than 4,000 disabled ex-service men have been directly placed in agricultural training and in addition there are probably 500 engaged in pre-vocational work preparatory to a course in agricultural training. Perhaps 1,500 more have been approved for the course.

Special placement has been suggested and is being sought for tuberculous men in hospitals and sanatoria.

The men approved for agricultural training may be classed into three general groups:

(a) Men who went into the war from college or high school, and, returning, have entered the agricultural colleges.

(b) Men with an eighth grade preparation who are admitted into sub-college two-year courses. Smith-Hughes or other schools of agriculture.

(c) Men of elementary grade, ranging from illiterate to the seventh or eighth grade, who of necessity must have pre-vocational instruction in order that they may receive scientific training intelligently and benefit to the greatest degree.

The first and second groups have given the federal board and the institutions to which they have been recommended very little trouble, as they enter the classes if sent to the institution at the beginning of the school year or a term, and if not they frequently can be brought up to class work by evening.

Third Class Troublesome.
The third group has given the federal farm board and all the institutions great trouble. Insurmountable difficulties seem to have arisen. In varying numbers they form the problem at every state agricultural college and school, and they constitute from 25 to as high as 50 per cent of the men approved for agricultural training.

This large percentage is due to the fact that these men for the most part are from isolated country districts where the opportunities have not been so great for early education.

Farmer parents have been unwilling to allow the boys more than a very ordinary education, for fear of losing them from the farm. Many have had no opportunity. Such are usually older men, 15 or 20 years past country school age. Many of the men are therefore practically illiterate, and to this number must be added the foreign illiterate; that is, foreigners who are illiterate from the English standpoint.

These difficulties constitute a real problem to the federal board and the institutions to which these men are sent. State institutions are not always prepared to do the elementary work necessary to advance the men to a knowledge of English and mathematics where they can receive and be benefited by the agricultural training.

However, without exception, the state institutions are convinced it is their patriotic duty to assist the federal board in making preparation to extend the necessary pre-vocational training, and have changed wonderfully in favor of training disabled men in spite of their educational handicaps.

Forms a "Guidance School."

Dr. Walter J. Quick, training officer, worked out an elementary school, which he termed a "guidance school," where such men were collected and instructed in the elementary common branches and in elementary agriculture. The school has been made prerequisite to certain courses that Dr. Quick has designed as agricul-

French Nurse Visits Former Patients

Madame Henri Raquin, who nursed for four years in the French base hospital and for one year in the American base hospital near Bois, has come to America to visit the boys she attended in her own country. Here are two of her patients at Walter Reed hospital, Washington, whom she never expected to see again when they left France, both double amputation cases. Corporal Adolphus McKenzie, on the right, has two artificial legs which serve him well, but Lieut. Robert S. Fletcher has no stumps to which legs can be attached. Army surgeons are still wrestling with the problem of constructing a special basket for him.

FEAR IMPURE WATER

Supply of Many Cities in United States Menaced.

Impossibility of Getting Necessary Purifying Chemicals Alarms Federal Health Officers.

Washington, D. C.—The water supply of more than 30,000,000 city residents is in imminent danger of becoming diseased because of the impossibility of obtaining the necessary purifying chemicals, the public health service announced.

Emergency appeals have been received by the service from ten state and numerous city boards of health. It was said, for railroad priority on the movement of alum and chlorine, the chemicals largely used in ridding water of dangerous disease germs. Due to the congested traffic situation, the announcement said, an acute shortage of these chemicals has existed for several months, and at one of the largest chemical plants only eight cars of raw material for the manufacture of alum are being received a month, although 120 cars monthly are required. "Officers of the United States public health service view the situation with alarm, as do health officers throughout the country," said Surgeon General Cummings. "The summer is always a critical time in dealing with water-borne diseases, for the demands on municipal water systems are then so great that usually every available source of water has to be utilized."

No Rent for a Year.

Pontiacville, N. Y.—Here's a chance for some couple about to be married to drive all their prospective rent free away. Father Albert F. Rivers, pastor of the Church of the Assumption, announced that because a marriage has not been performed in his tural unit courses. They are divided into units of one month each, cover one year continuously from month to month and may be entered any month.

A man may take one or several unit courses, one as a major and others as minors related to the major, while at the same time he continues in the common branches of the guidance school.

Nearly all the state institutions will allow the men credits for the work done in the unit agricultural courses, which now include a two-year course, as well as the one-year.

These plans of the guidance school and agricultural unit courses were reduced to definite form and mimeographed for the benefit of all institutions offering agricultural training to the disabled class.

Pastor May Protect His Flock.

Lexington, Ky.—Although evidence was introduced to show the Andrew Sears, minister, warned moonshiners of the approach of revenue officers, Sears was freed in the federal court, but his brother, Bella, paid a fine of $50 for the same offense. The court held that a minister had a right to warn a member of his flock of danger, if no criminal intent was implied.

The Perils of Cherry Picking.

Lawrenceburg, Ind.—The buzzing of a honey bee about his head resulted in serious injury to Anthony Steinmetz, aged 64, a retired farmer. Steinmetz was picking cherries, standing on a step ladder, when the bee resented his presence. While trying to fight the bee off his nose, Steinmetz fell twelve feet. His injuries consist of a cut head, both wrists broken and three ribs fractured.

COMMUNITY LIFE IN BORNEO

Sometimes as Many as Four Hundred Persons Will Be Found Dwelling Under One Roof.

The Dyak women are chiefly occupied with weaving, dyeing, cooking, planting the seed and taking care of the children and the house, says Gertrude Emerson, writing in Asia. Housekeeping in Borneo has its own complications. As a rule a large number of families live under one roof. On an average there may be 40, but instances have been known in which as many as 400 persons were living together in a single community house.

The houses are constructed on piles, with ladders leading to the outer uncovered veranda which runs the entire length of the house. This veranda is used more or less as a public highway. Any one passing through the village may climb up the ladder at one end, walk along it and climb down the other end in the most casual manner. Just behind it lies a covered portion of the house and here most of the work is carried on. The men may be seen building a small boat or making brass jewelry; the women weaving or dyeing or pounding rice into flour for baking.

Opening from the veranda is a series of doors leading into separate rooms, one belonging to each family. Here the Dyaks do their cooking, eating and sleeping, except that unmarried girls usually sleep in a loft reached from the veranda, while the boys occupy the inner veranda. A Dyak has but one wife, and either husband or wife, if found guilty of improper conduct, is subject to severe punishment by the community.

A pleasant trait among the Dyaks is their fondness for their children, whom they have been seldom known to treat with anything but kindness and indulgence. They are also kind to old people—unlike other tribes in Borneo, who formerly followed the custom of killing or burning alive those whose usefulness to the community has been exhausted.

Siamese Funeral Custom.

The king of Siam recently put the torch to the pyre at the cremation of his mother, who died in October. This is the custom in Siam after the period of mourning is over. There was a long Buddhist ceremony and an officer handed the king a lighted torch. This he applied to the foot of the pyre, and the actual cremation began. Next morning the king and the royal family went back to find the charred pyre still surrounded by the guards. It is the king's duty and privilege to search for the first material part of the departed royalty. His family help him collect others until all the ashes in the casket are gathered together. They are then put in a golden urn, which is conveyed to their last resting place in the upper story of the middle turret of the palace in Bangkok. Such has been the custom since the days of the king who built the present royal palace about 150 years ago.

Satisfied Anyway.

An Indianapolis youth recently took a girl to a dance. He was exceedingly bashful as it was both his first dance and his first girl. And the latter was exceedingly bashful. Really to be truthful he took her because she had asked him to go.

That night he described it to his mother. "It was not half so bad as I thought it would be," he told her. "I didn't have to have anything to do with any of the other girls but my own. I guess that other fellows sort of liked me and wanted to be kind because they let me have all the dances with the girl I took."

His mother smiled. After all, it was his first dance and he would learn some day that there were sometimes reasons besides kindness which caused young men not to offer to trade dances.—Indianapolis News.

Restrictions on Flyers.

In the Bournemouth (England) police court recently an air pilot was fined $250 for flying at a dangerously low altitude and for trick flying over Bournemouth, contrary to the air navigation regulations of 1919. The defendant executed two Immelmann turns at an altitude of 500 to 600 feet. Had the engine failed he would have had no place to land without danger to the public. The defense was that the Immelmann turn was not trick flying, but merely a quick way of turning. The defendant said he did two Immelmann turns over the sea, and during his flight he was never under 1,500 feet. This is the first prosecution of the kind in England.

The Traveling Preacher.

Charles pondered over this advice long, but never said a word to anybody concerning it until he surprised his audience at a recent meeting by arising the second time and delivering the following:

"I've been thinking that I never could write any more sermons than would do me for three weeks, so I've decided that I'll have to be a traveling preacher."

Good Opinion of Himself.

My young son had been naughty and received a scolding. After a shower of some moments he asked: "Mother, how much did you pay the doctor for me?" I said, "Enough." He promptly answered, "Oh, well, I don't think you got stung."—Exchange.

Playing the Game.

"Why don't you go into politics?" asked the summer boarder. "I'm already in," replied Farmer Cornstossel. "I'm takin' a deep interest in several kinds of election."

Nervous Spells—Near Heart Failure Eatonic Stopped It

Mr. C. B. Lotts, writing from his home at Lay, Md., says, "I had been taking medicine from four specialists but believe me, friends, one box of Eatonic has done me more good than all the remedies I have ever tried. I was in awfully bad shape. About half an hour before meals, I got nervous, trembling and heart pressure as bad as I could hardly walk or talk. One box of Eatonic stopped it."

Eatonic quickly produces these truly marvelous results, because it takes up the poisons and gases and carries them right out of the body. Of course, when the cause is removed the sufferer gets well.

Everyone that wants better health is told to have just a little faith—enough to try one box of Eatonic from your own druggist. The cost is a trifle, which he will hand back to you if you are not pleased. Why should you suffer another day, when quick, sure relief, is waiting for you? Adv.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in the interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is as common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is as common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation and ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Red-Blooded Men and Women Are Seldom Sick

WATCH YOUR BLOOD CONDITION

If You Look Pale, Feel Gloomy and Run-Down, Take Pepto-Mangan and Build Up.

You see men and women who are never sick. They work hard, look robust, eat heartily and enjoy life. They have plenty of rich, red blood. That is why they are never ill.

People who try to get along with weak, impoverished blood always have a struggle. They go from one sickness to another. Children the same way.

If you keep your blood rich and red you'll enjoy full vigor. Disease has little chance to develop in healthy blood. As soon as you feel run-down take Pepto-Mangan for awhile. It will feed your blood with the ingredients needed to create a good supply of red corpuscles.

Pepto-Mangan is sold in both liquid and tablet form. Take either kind you prefer. They are alike in medicinal value. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's." The full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," should be on the package. Advertisement.

Farm Tractor

The Fordson cuts the cost of preparing land almost to half of what it costs with horses. But even more important is the fact that the Fordson saves from thirty to fifty per cent. of the farmers time. As ever, the machine way is proving more efficient, faster, easier than the old hand way. In the factory, the machine increases production, saves labor—produces more at less cost. And that is what the Fordson does on the farm. The Fordson way is the machine way of farming. BESIDES IT HELPS THE LABOR PROBLEM.

The Fordson's first cost is low; and the after or operating cost is low. It is a compact, easily handled tractor, backed by the greatest tractor service organization in the world.

We are Fordson dealers. Not only do we sell Fordson tractors, but we carry a stock of Fordson parts and employ Fordson mechanics to help the farmers get the best results from the Fordson. Let us demonstrate the Fordson on your farm.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1920.

America is without a ceremony befitting Armistice Day. This is perhaps natural; we are not a nation that turns readily to formalities. Yet is the hope expressed that another year may witness a growing sense of the solemnity of this day when guns ceased to boom over a large part of Central Europe after four long, anxious, heart-breaking years, and that the right services will gradually be developed to be shared by all. Meantime, all eyes were turned on last Thursday to those moving ceremonies in Paris and in London. The body of an unknown poilu was entombed beneath that arch of victory, the most celebrated of the modern world. And in Westminster Abbey, toward which so many American feet have trod in pilgrimage, the body of an unknown British soldier was laid at rest with every military honor.

WHERE SOME OF THE MONEY WENT.

The Secretary of the Treasury the other day issued a statement in which he said that the United States cannot keep up the orderly functioning of government in peace time and meet its war obligations as they fall due in the course of the next three years on an annual expenditure of less than $4,000,000,000.

In commenting on the financial needs of the country, Representative Fess, chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee, pointed out that there is only one way to put an end to the Democratic orgy of extravagance, against which the people have so emphatically revolted, and that is by cutting the cost of government "to the bone."

One phase of the opportunity and the need for far-reaching economies is revealed by the report of the investigators into the methods of running the United States Shipping Board, just submitted to the select committee of Congress.

This report, signed by A. M. Fisher and John F. Richardson, shows that through loose management or worse, the merchant marine has cost and is costing the taxpayers millions of dollars in graft, incompetence and lack of co-operation and co-ordination.

The story of the captain who under charges of graft, was permitted to get away with his ship, which he is now offering for sale at an African port, is only a detail of this amazing revelation of criminal waste of the people's money.

Here are some other instances of mismanagement, or worse, as revealed in the report:

"A bartender, thrown out of employment by prohibition, got a job as bookkeeper with the Shipping Board at $5,000 a year."

"A house detective at the St. Regis Hotel received pay from the Shipping Board as a 'sailor,' though he never had been on a ship."

"Contractors met just outside the Shipping Board's office to decide who would bid on prospective jobs."

"Defective forgeries cause one broken propeller each day."

"Monkey wrenches and iron bars are 'accidentally' dropped upon honest inspectors and timekeepers."

"A steward quit on the fifth day of a twelve-day voyage. His successor threw supplies overboard so as to get commissions on new stock."

The merchant marine offers an impressive opportunity for economies to which the Democratic administration, having readily acquired the habit of thinking in billions, has been entirely oblivious.

It is incumbent upon the Congress committee to sift this phase of inexcusable governmental mismanagement to the bottom and to introduce into the methods of the Shipping Board a reasonable record for the taxpayers that would reduce by millions the budget of 4,000,000,000 which Secretary Houston regards, or affects to regard, as an irreducible minimum.

Such methods as those revealed by the investigators would drive any private business into the bankruptcy court in a few weeks. They cannot and must not be tolerated in the people's business.

Commenting upon stock market conditions as they existed at the close of business last Saturday, the Baltimore Evening News of Monday morning, contained the following relative thereto: "Some of our esteemed contemporaries find it extremely hard to become reconciled to the election. But when they undertake to make capital out of the course of the stock market, they are going far afield. The stock market, for many weeks in a slump, has gone down rapidly since Senator Harding's election. But, had the market started upward, had the speculators made money on that side, we know what would have happened. The charge then would have been that Big Business was in the saddle; that it was going to run the Administration; that, knowing where it was going to get off, it was in for a wild plunge. The market is doing nothing more than discounting the deflation that must still come—a deflation that neither a Republican nor a Democratic Administration could prevent. When that process is finished, we shall see it begin to discount in another way the prosperity that will come from lower price levels, from sane business administration, from public confidence, from co-operative work in Washington, and even from satisfaction with desire on the part of a President for 'normalcy,' something that seems particularly to excite anger on the part of many of his opponents."

THE DAYS OF REALIZATION.

The American people hardly could have been surprised by the revelations of millions of their good dollars gone in Shipping Board waste, extravagance and graft. They already knew what billions of dollars it had cost them, under the present business management of their Government, to build cardboard training camps and hospitals. They knew what it had cost them in good cash and in bad service to have that business management operate the railroads. They knew what it had cost them not in millions but in billions of dollars to have that business management make guns that never got to the battle front, make powder that never exploded, make flying machines that never rose into the air, make uniforms and shoes and food that were left to rot in miles and miles of warehouses and along the runways of France when the men at the front were without food or even the barest of necessities and comforts that they should have had in abundance.

But what must astound the American people is not what slanders of money was consumed by the ton, but how it was consumed under the Shipping Board business management, honest but incompetent, well meaning but extravagant, enthusiastic but bumbling.

It was not enough for those handling the public's ships to pay highly inflated skilled wages to day labor that loafed on the job; they must even carry on the pay rolls at fat salaries men who were holding down private jobs hundreds of miles from where they were supposed to be on the Government jobs. It was not enough to pay several prices for provisions; ships' stewards had to throw those supplies overboard so that they could buy more and get new graft commissions on the purchases. It was not enough to let contractors build ships that would not float and install propellers that fell off vessels when they put to sea; they had to pay contractors for taking away partly constructed ships which the contractors then sold at good prices for the benefit of their own pocketbooks. It was not enough to pay $208 for replacing a damaged port light worth $8; they had to feed strawberries to ships' crews at 60 cents a quart.

In this and other ways of theft by minor officials, graft by middlemen, or just plain waste all along the line the Government merchant marine as a business proposition was scuttled. This is one of the reasons why the United States Government today owes in round numbers twenty-four billions of dollars. It is one of the reasons why the United States Government has an interest charge on its debts of about a billion dollars a year. It is one of the reasons why the American people have a tax bill of four billions a year. It is one of the reasons why many other billions covered by previous and larger annual tax bills were sunk in a bottomless pit between the spring of 1916 and today. It is one of the reasons why the business management of the United States Government was changed by the American people the first week in November, 1920, and why business methods of the United States Government, under its new management, will have to change on the 4th day of next March.

ZIHLMAN MAY GET CABINET POST

Mentioned in Washington for Secretary of Labor.

A telegram appearing in the Baltimore American last Thursday under a Washington date line, gives Congressman Zihlman prominence in mentioning the possibility of the Sixth Congressional District's Congressman as a member of President-elect Harding's official family. The Washington dispatch reads:

"A pronounced boom is on here in favor of the selection of F. N. Zihlman, member of the House of Representatives from the Sixth District of Maryland, for the post of Secretary of Labor under the next Administration. As the leader of the labor group in Congress Mr. Zihlman made an enviable record, his friends say, and he has ever been on the alert to urge the adoption of legislation which will benefit the workmen."

"While a member of the Sixty-fifth Congress he voted for the War Risk Insurance bill, the Madden amendment granting increases in wages to postal employees, the Nolan bill providing a minimum wagescale of $3 per day, and the bill to increase the wages of steamboat inspectors."

"In the Sixty-sixth Congress, Zihlman voted for the bill providing for a vocational educational board, for the Sundry Civil bill, the Cummins-Each railroad bill with the Anderson amendments favored by railroad organizations. Other measures of benefit to the workmen were voted on favorably by Mr. Zihlman."

"Besides his excellent labor record in Congress and his ability displayed there, attention has been directed to Mr. Zihlman by the national leaders because of his apparent political strength displayed in the last election, when he carried his District by 10,000 majority as against 3,500 when he was first elected to Congress."

"Two other members of the House of Representatives—Nolan, of California, and Burke, of Pennsylvania—have been mentioned for the post, but to the political wiseacres here Zihlman has the inside track."

"Up to the present time sixteen Marylanders have filled cabinet positions under different Presidents, the last one being Charles J. Bonaparte, who was appointed first Secretary of Navy by Roosevelt in 1903, and was afterwards made Attorney General."

"So far no Marylander has ever served as Secretary of Labor, Secretary of Commerce or Secretary of Agriculture. In view of the independence of the voters of the State and the record vote cast for Harding, it is believed here that Maryland has a fine chance to land one of the cabinet posts."

"Sources close to Harding intimated today that Philander C. Knox, United States senator from Pennsylvania, is first choice now for Secretary of State under the next regime. It is believed here that the only thing to prevent his selection and acceptance is the poor health of Senator Knox. He was the Secretary of State under Taft and knows foreign affairs as few men in this country and he understands how to deal with foreign diplomats. That appointment would please Senator Penrose, who is conceded to have had a big hand in the selection of Mr. Harding as the Republican nominee at Chicago."

"Governor Lowden and Frank A. Vanderlip are still being much discussed for the post of Secretary of Treasury, with Lowden leading at this time."

"General John J. Pershing and Major General Wood are the only persons being discussed up to date for Secretary of War."

"Senator Warren, father-in-law of General Pershing, is a close friend of President-elect Harding, and he was instrumental in swinging Wyoming and other western States back to Mr. Harding at Chicago."

"Will Hays, who managed the Republican campaign with such signal success, will be offered the portfolio of postmaster general, it is firmly believed here."

"Herbert Hoover is being considered for the head of the Department of Commerce, although he faces opposition of the farmers because of some of his rules and regulations while food administrator."

ELECTION TUMULT AND SHOUTING SOON SUBSIDE

Having Precipitated the Great Land-slide, Voters Go About Their Business, Leaving "Post Mortems" To The Professionals.

J. A. N. In Baltimore News.
The quadrennial grand prix having taken place, bankrupting by its results writers' vocabularies of figurative expressions indicating something stupendous, overpowering and unparalleled, the numerous millions, male and female, who participated in the event, have calmly resumed the routine of their daily affairs. The election over, the electorate has hung out the business-as-usual sign and has dismissed politics from its mind.

Considering the extraordinary nature of the recent phenomenon, remarkably little general, as distinguished from technical, comment has ensued. Perhaps this is because the voters had "discounted" the result of the election to employ the phrase which the financial experts love. At any rate the post-election comment is largely "professional," again to borrow the idiom of the stock market. Such participants in the fray, victors or vanquished, as have wished to make statements, have uttered their pronouncements and the newspapers have dutifully published them. The most notable of the losers have taken the "verdict of the people" in good part, that being the only thing left to do, and Mr. Bryan, once more stirred the risibilities of the nation and gratified his personal animus by suggesting that President Wilson ought to resign at once.

The more ingenious and less placable of the Democratic newspapers excel themselves in explaining how it happened and groaning over the folly of a blind and perverse electorate; the less bitter of the opposition press, having, during the heat of the conflict, had little to say about the President's physical condition, lest sympathy for Wilson should be transmuted into votes for Cox, are now beginning to print sympathetic descriptions of the "stricken President" to whom in the fullness of time, they may even ascribe the status of a martyr.

The more magnanimous Democratic journals are urging the President-electers that, since the people have spoken, since the die (or, more properly, the ballots) is cast, the President-elect will be the President of the party, but of a people, great and united, and that as such he is entitled to the support of every 100 per cent. of course! American—a sentiment which the Republican "organs" naturally uphold.

The more enterprising publications are already indicating to Senator Harding the personnel of his Cabinet, and if the President-elect can accomplish this initial and important bit of construction to the liking of all his supporters, he will, by that achievement, and if the President-elect can indicate the judgment of those who elected him by such an overpowering majority.

Whether the League of Nations has been buried or merely mutilated remains an open question, though one thing is sure—the "Wilson League," so far as the United States is concerned, has ceased to exist. No one can doubt that it was Mr. Wilson's Administration which was repudiated by the citizenry, and the crowning indignity of the election is that the authority of the President himself, is the League of Nations.

Not only will Maryland have two Republican Senators in the new Congress (to say nothing of four Republican Representatives out of the total of six), but one of those Senators will be especially close to the Administration. The Senator-elect, Mr. Weller, is a close friend of Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, who, in turn, is a close friend of President-elect Harding, and who is likely to have a cabinet portfolio, it is said. The junior Senator from Maryland should maintain excellent relations with the Executive, and as Mr. Weller has already indicated that his interest in the affairs of the nation will not preclude solicitude for his State, Maryland may have something to gain.

After his campaign, not the less strenuous for being silent, Mr. Weller has been elected to the Senate, thereby fulfilling to the letter predictions emanating from not too sympathetic quarters. How accessible and visible Mr. Weller will be, now that he has been elected, is another question. As a candidate, he was to say the least, not obtrusive. Nor did he talk much in the Senate, and he certainly not where locusts are present, or where a man who believes in deeds rather than in words may not be such a unit in the crowd.

The question of Federal patronage is already being discussed and now is an excellent time for suggesting "cut-gables." That Glen L. Tait will be rewarded for his efforts, at the least years of toil will be succeeded by the fact that Mr. Tait has worked hard, no less hard in the days of discouragement than in the hours of triumph. The Republican party has scored a tremendous victory in Maryland, and if Mr. Tait should fancy being Collector of Customs or Collector of Internal Revenue, the belief is that his aspirations will be gratified, and they should be without question.

For some days the election as it affects Maryland, has been commented upon at length. Senator Smith is receiving congratulations upon the showing which he made in the face of a Republican landslide. It was Baltimore City which defeated him, "two" voters in the city and hostile elements in the Democratic organization apparently more than offsetting such "personal following" as the Senator may have had.

In Senator Smith's defeat the Just Government League has triumphed. This League, the most "advanced," so to speak, suffrage organization in Baltimore, had denounced Senator Smith, not merely, it was said, for his opposition to woman suffrage, but for his record in general. This denunciation was published in a circular disseminated by the League. Another alleged anti-feminist, Mr. Benson, met his doom when he was defeated in the Second Congressional District by Mr. Blakely. To what extent the feminist vote

And brooded the summer through;

With tender love He's plotted His theme

And now His dream's come true.

He's spread His carpet over the hills.

Soft is its silken sheen

Or red and the color of daffodils.

Of rose and orange and green.

And a patch of blue reflecting there

The color of autumn skies;

The pattern vague, but beyond compare

Are these clear, mysterious dyes.

Its knotted warp in the ground below

Holds close its shimmering pile.

The Weaver of Rugs has dreamed it so

And this is its Master's smile.

Each being unaware of the plans of the other at the time arrangements were made for holding food sales, the ladies of the Methodist and of the Episcopal churches advertised in these columns last week that sales would be held under the auspices of the organizations of the ladies of the respective churches on Saturday, the 20th inst., the former at Sturges' Pharmacy and the latter at the Gonder Pharmacy. The Republican bespeaks for both undertakings liberal patronage from members of all denominations. The sales are not being held in the spirit of opposition, but as stated above neither organization was aware of the plans of the other when arrangements were made and the notices given to The Republican.

If you work for a man, in heaven's name work for him. If he pays wages that supply you your bread and butter, work for him, speak well of him, think well of him, stand by him and stand by the institution he represents. I think if I worked for a man, I would work for him. I would not work for him a part of his time, but all of his time. I would give an undivided service or none. If put to a pinch, an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. If you must vilify, condemn and eternally disparage, why, resign your position, and when you are outside, damn to your heart's content. But, I pray you, so long as you are a part of an institution, do not condemn it. Not that you will injure the institution—not that—but when you disparage the concern of which you are a part, you disparage yourself. And don't forget, "I forgot" won't do in business. —Elbert Hubbard.

The Republican will publish in its advertising columns next week a full, detailed and itemized statement of the receipts and disbursements of the Garrett County Board of Education for the period ending with the fiscal year of the Board. The cost of operating each individual school, the number of days the school was in operation, the enrollment, average day's attendance and the cost per pupil will also appear in the statement which has been prepared, and setting forth details that ordinarily do not appear in showings of this character, but the County Superintendent, realizing that the people should be informed of the matters in which they as a whole are interested, has prepared the statement and it will be published so that many things now discussed by persons having little or no information from reliable sources, may be fully informed. The statement will occupy upwards of a full page in The Republican.

YOUTH INJURED

Clyde Coates' Skull Fractured in Jumping From Automobile.

Mr. Gilmore H. DeWitt, accompanied by Clyde Coates, both of the Martin Garage, of Oakland, started to Deer Park Saturday night by automobile and at a point on the Deer Park road between Mt. Lake Park and Deer Park, while traveling along at a fairly high speed the lights on the car went out which frightened Mr. Coates and he jumped from the car, hitting his head on a rock which lay on the side of the road. Mr. Coates was unconscious from the time of the accident until the following evening when he regained consciousness. Upon examination it was found that Coates' skull was slightly fractured and Tuesday he was taken to a hospital in Cumberland where he will undergo an operation. Mr. Coates came to Oakland on Monday from his home in Bruceton Mills, West Va.

Last Thursday—Armistice Day—was very quietly observed in Oakland. The banks were closed all day, while the stores and other places of business closed at noon and remained so until six o'clock in the afternoon. One flag, that in front of The Republican building, was the only emblem displayed until noon, when the large municipal flag was run to the top of the staff on the hill on Second street. The day was unlike that of two years ago when the entire town took a noisy holiday and some men were heard to remark that if it were possible they would close their places of business for two weeks in celebration of the great occasion. Four hours was the limit on Thursday, and many were champing at the bit to get back to their places of business from the moment they locked up until the hour agreed upon to again open for business in the afternoon.

THE DEATH RECORD.

MRS. JOHN MOON.

Mrs. John Moon, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beckman, of near Mountain Lake Park, died at her home in Loch Lynn Heights, Md., on Wednesday night, November 3, 1920, at the age of 66 years, 4 months and 6 days. She was united in marriage on July 8, 1875, and to this union were born two sons and five daughters, all of whom are living. Forty-four years ago Mrs. Moon became a Christian and united with the Church of the United Brethren in Christ, and she lived a consistent Christian life until God took her to Himself. She was a good wife, a loving mother, a kind neighbor and an earnest church worker. She is survived by her husband, seven children, four brothers, two sisters and many other friends and relatives. Her funeral was conducted on Saturday, November 6, 1920, at 2 P. M., in the Loch Lynn United Brethren church by one of her former pastors, the writer, now of Salem, West Va., after which her mortal remains were laid to rest in the family cemetery on the Henry Beckman farm, five miles South of Oakland, there to await the resurrection on the last day.

The rank of Esquire or Knight will be conferred next Friday night. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

THANKSGIVING.

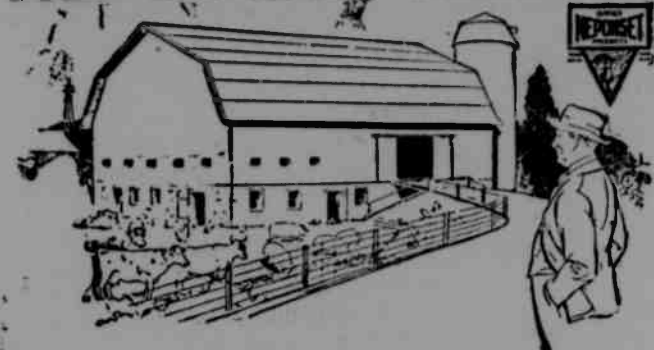

The Thanksgiving season has come again and we are reminded of our privilege and duty of rendering thanks to God for His blessings.

We are apt to take these as a matter of fact, as something that is due us and so feel but little gratitude for them. As to our expressing our thanks—that is superfluous. We have had plenty to be thankful for and enough to make us feel a sense of shame, but we are concerned now with the things that require thanks.

We ought to be thankful for the day itself which is an expression of the faith of our people in the existence and overruling providence of God. We have been preserved from plagues, pestilences and epidemics. We recall the sad experiences of a year ago when the flu carried away so many thousands of our young people and left aching hearts to mourn their untimely end, but sad as it was, the calamity was slight compared with similar ones in some of the countries of Europe and the East.

Our bountiful crops are reason for thanksgiving. We have enough for all our needs and some to spare, so that we can relieve the distress of other lands and satisfy the hunger of the thousands of starving in foreign lands. We may be glad also for the evidence that the prices of certain foodstuffs are on the downward grade. Let the good work go on, even if the heartless profiteers should go hungry—as they well deserve—or if they should spend time in a safe prison it would be just.

Glad we are that our boys are home and again engaged in the activities of peace and we trust they will not again be called to settle the quarrels of the contentious and bloodthirsty peoples of the old world.

It is cause for thanks that our nation is being aroused to the danger of the revolutionaries of the old world within our own borders. This is America and must be kept strictly Americanized. We have enough law, power and energy to keep down these lawless classes or to drive them out, and public sentiment is becoming crystallized behind it. If they are not satisfied with our government, let them move on or be fired out as undesirable citizens.

It is gratifying to know that the moral conscience of the nation, as shown in the prohibition amendment and the Volstead law, and in open protests now and then against the vulgarity and lewdness of woman's dress is being awakened. For this, all good citizens should thank God. "He daily loadeth us with His benefits."

One of the greatest blessings of our nation during the year was the check that was put upon certain religious movements and federations, which, under the guise of Christian unity, bid fair to become a real menace to stable government as well as pure and undevoted religion. It seemed to be the result of religious insanity and swept for a time, many good people off their feet, but sober thought and calm reason prevailed and the species of high financed religion that promised it would sweep the land, exploded as a sky rocket and men awakened to the absurdity of the whole scheme.

Let us meet together in our places of worship and give thanks publicly and sincerely to God. I know it is now regarded as a day for feasting for family reunions, for football games and turkey dinners, but, though these may be proper in themselves and in their places and not displeasing to God, yet around the family altar, where such a relic of by-gone days of devoted service exists—or in the congregation, let us give sincere and humble thanks.

Thanksgiving should be the great feature of our national life, as it was of Israel's.

The New Testament teaches us that "every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused if received with thanksgiving." "In everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving" we are to let our "requests be made known unto God." By thanking God we not only check our pride and selfishness, but the increase of gratitude strengthens faith.

If we thank God, we must call to mind His past acts of wise and loving care and as we rehearse these it will be easier to trust Him for the future.

"It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord."—Ps. 137:1.

May your lives abound with thanks. JOANNES.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

Sunday, November 21.

THE TWELVE SENT FORTH.

Matt 10. Read Mark 6:7-13; Luke 9:1-6.

Then saith He unto His disciples, the harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that He send forth laborers into His harvest—Matt. 9:37, 38.

THE DOERS.

Christ was in the hey-day of His popularity as He toured Galilee. And the shepherdless throngs tugged at His heart until waking or sleeping they were before Him. But there was nothing but the coolness of power in the meeting of the need for it was seen, planned for and held in such clear vision that there was no confused hurry. The twelve had been chosen to be with Him and to be sent forth carrying all the results of His sacrifice upon their word and work. To have failed in fully preparing them would have made the cross utterly ineffective. They had been listening to His words, they had memorized His parables, they had seen His deeds of mercy, but these were never enough for any pupils; they must do these things themselves. But the spirit in which a thing is done is vital. Some one says that no surgeon ever becomes great who has not felt the pan of the knife. Certainly that is true in soul surgery. How could these men be brought to undertake their task under the urge of their own passion instead of merely to carry out a direction of the Teacher? He must feed the mind with facts before the blood would become warm. There must be something to see before the vision will come. "See this," cries the artist, and the beauty of an old gate, a roadway and a cart rouses a thrill in the scholar's heart that is not satisfied until one of the great canvasses adorns the Corcoran Gallery. "See this," cries the teacher, as he points to the outline of a leaf in the heart of a bit of coal and presently the pupil finds in the piece of stone the story of the forming world. "See the harvest," cried Christ, and before the dull eyes of the disciples there began to shape the vision of the Kingdom in the human lives of ordinary folk. The sense of opportunity, the possibility of life investment took form in their minds under the skilled touch of the Master. "Pray for workers," was the next direction, and there can be no question that they obeyed, for men are willing to ask for others to do things and for the Lord to do them unrelenting the potency and peril of such exercise. For inevitably there came a day when they began to whisper, "Why can't we go?" and when they did Jesus knew that one great part of His task was done and He sent them forth into the harvest He had taught them to see and feel and desire.

THE DEED.

Christ never lost His practicality in His passion. The world was to be redeemed and the farthest race lifted by His cross, but the men who should later reach Rome, Babylon, India, Egypt and the Gentiles throughout their world were given no such commission now. You don't start a child with calculus, but with simple numbers. Mother Goose has Browning beaten to a frazzle with a three-year-old. They were to go to Jews only. Certainly, for they were Jews also and these were the most ready to see the new vision these men had been given. Every detail of the venture was fully explained to them so that there would be no uncertainty of method to chill their efforts. There would come a day when they would be trusted to make their own plans for the conquest of the whole Roman Empire, but not now. He paired the men as carefully as they had been taught, for the strength of one supplemented the weakness of the other. Matthew the convinced, was linked with Thomas the doubtful; Simon the zealot, with Judas the calculating; Peter the impulsive, with Andrew the careful. There would never come the sense of isolation in the doing of their task, for each would always have a comrade. Support was assured them while on their errand, but self-seeking was ruled entirely out of their minds. They were not to go from house to house hunting for better accommodations, but were to make it headquarters for serving whatever village they might enter. Peace should be within their hearts thru all the days and should be given to those who would receive, but if it were refused then it would keep them free from bitterness. Thus with word and work, conduct and commission fully planned, there could be no confusion of mind as they took up their first venture along familiar ways that linked the towns into one great community.

THE DARE.

There was another skillful touch used by Jesus in preparing these men for successful messengers. There would be peril and difficulty enough to call for all their courage in facing the sure opposition that would come as the story they told lined fathers and sons upon opposite sides and placed the powers of privilege in solid fighting line against the mass of exploited folk. Christ's word has ever been a starter of revolution for no one can proclaim brotherhood without having its implications draw blood. Slavery went down before it only in costly battle. War has drained the veins of the world and will take toll of more drops yet before yielding its bloody blade to the scarred hands of the Christ. There is that latent possibility of heroism stirring in all hearts that is one of the chords upon which the Master of life must play if there is to be the final response. Anzacs in Egypt deserted and became stowaways in vessels sailing not toward Australia but toward bloody Flanders. Sons of Canada and our own States were equally eager and poured contempt upon all holders of "cushy" jobs. This is the too overlooked call of the church to undertake a hard man-sized task. Jesus dared His followers and they shouted their willingness to accept. And the Centenary brought the note back and its striking holds within is something of the reason for the unparalleled spiritual achievement.

THE DECLARATION.

What slow scholars we always are in understanding the word of our Master. "Say, the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand," was the instruction given. "And they went and preached that men should repent," is the version Mark gives of their declaration. They went back to the teaching of John that demanded reformation as the condition of entrance into the Kingdom. It was the old word of works by which men should make themselves fit before the Kingdom laid its hands upon them and drove out the opposing things. Yet we are little better for in many cases Jesus has told us, "Say this," and we have gone out with, "Nay, this," upon our lips. What else is the saying: "You can't run business by the Sermon on the Mount." What else is the phrase? "The Decalogue has no place in politics." What else is the editorial line? "Money and munitions are the only security against war." Not until we accept all of Christ's word and put it into practice will the full Kingdom come upon earth. But just as He did not chide them but praised the good they had accomplished, so He treats us and patiently waits until we catch full meaning and carry it out in all the life of the world.

Married.

Moon—Baltz—Mr. Charles Abraham Moon, of near Mountain Lake Park, and Miss Stella Ida Baltz, of McMechen, West Va., were united in marriage November 10th, by the Rev. Dr. Archibald Moore, of Oakland. The marriage ceremony of the Methodist Episcopal church was used, including the beautiful ring service. Mr. Moon was a soldier of the late World War, having served for a few days only in France, his arrival there being on the 9th of November, two days prior to the signing of the armistice. These young people are popular and well known and begin life together under propitious conditions. They will reside on the Moon farm east of Mountain Lake Park. They have the best wishes of a large circle of friends for a joyful voyage over the sea of life.

Still Thrifty.

He was so miserly that the girl's family twittered her much about it. In desperation one night she decided to give him a very strong hint that she would like to have him expressively lay her a box of candy. They were standing in front of a drug store window, which was filled with boxes of candy. The girl looked at them a minute and said archly, "Do you know that there is a kiss at the bottom of every box of these boxes?"

The thrifty young man looked at them. "Well, some day when I have plenty of time," he said, "I'll go in and look under one to see if I can find any."

PARCEL POST MARKETING MERITS

The Parcel Post is a Short Cut Which Producers and Consumers Use to Good Advantage.

The proof of parcel-post marketing is in the eating.

Many thousands of consumers have tried out this method of purchasing farm products for the table and are eating their food with a relish born of good food, flavored with the sauce of economy and service. After all, the final test of this method of direct marketing is the measure of satisfaction secured by buyer and seller. Instances of successful parcel-post sellers, North, South, East and West, which have come to the attention of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, prove quite as much as pages of theory and discussion the immense practical value of this method of buying and selling. While the extent to which the people of this country are marketing produce through the parcel post is not definitely known, there is every indication that the volume of business is increasing steadily.

A "Parcel Poster" Prospers.

And there is every reason why the parcel-post business should increase. Men and women are succeeding splendidly in building up businesses with the mail service as their chief aid. Of course, the producer cannot succeed without an accessible market; he must be sure that he has the kind and quality of produce that is wanted; and he must learn the art of conducting his business, writing his letters, etc. In such a way as to give satisfaction. That is what a fruit grower in Oregon has done. For three or four years he has specialized in marketing fruits, berries, and vegetables by parcel post to customers in small towns within a radius of 200 miles. His mailing list now includes about 1,000 names, and his sales amount to about $3,000 annually.

By supplying products of extra quality which are carefully crated, packed, and shipped, this man has secured additional business through the recommendations which original patrons have supplied. Many of his customers he has never seen, but they trust him because he guarantees satisfaction. When an occasional shipment proves unsatisfactory it is replaced free of charge and no questions are asked. His business has grown so that recently he has bought fruit from other producers in order to supply his trade. But he has always taken particular care to ship only high quality fruit, so that his high standard will be maintained. He realizes that unless he does this he will soon lose his patrons' confidence and voluntary commendation—his best business asset.

Down in Kentucky is a farmer whose experience furnishes similar proof of the value of the parcel post in direct marketing. This man sells eggs, poultry, eggs, meats and fruits to customers in Nashville, Tenn. The business was started two years ago by selling to a friend who was so pleased with the results that he told his neighbors of his good fortune.

Cheapsness Not Essential.

Other things being equal, purchasers expect to save something over estimated retail prices by dealing direct with the producers. It does not always follow that the prices of parcel-post goods must be below the market levels. This Kentuckian, for example, has never engaged to those desiring low-priced goods. Rather, he has built up his entire business on the basis of high quality. He is just as particular in selecting customers as some customers are in selecting a producer from whom to obtain farm products. He retains his customers by never breaking his rule, which is "Sell only the best." Many producers would occasionally be tempted to sell second-grade produce when the orders exceeded their supply of first grade produce. This is something which the Kentuckian never does. Instead, he frankly tells his patrons that he is out of the desired supplies and, unless otherwise instructed, he will fill the order as soon as possible.

New Englander Sells Eggs.

Up in a little town in New Hampshire is a retired business man who has built up a good trade in marketing eggs direct to customers. The business was started because of the unsatisfactory prices at certain city markets. After some unsatisfactory experience in shipping with containers of various kinds, he finally evolved one of his own planning, which is proving very satisfactory. These are now manufactured for him in large quantities, thus bringing down the cost. Particular care is taken in packing the eggs and in tying the parcels. As

In most cases of successful parcel-post selling, satisfaction is guaranteed. Printed labels are used and special effort is made to answer all letters carefully and promptly. In the last year or so the business during the spring and summer months has amounted to an average of 600 dozen eggs per week.

These are but a few hundreds of instances of successful parcel-post marketing. Specialists in the bureau of markets have compiled valuable information on this question. Persons desiring literature on this subject should address the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

SCARCITY OF BALING WIRE IS BEING FELT

One Factory Induced to Resume Work to Capacity.

Shortage of Tie Material Is Due Mostly to Strikes and Transportation Difficulties—Loss to Hay Crop Is Small.

Something new in the way of "shortages" has developed. This time it is a shortage of baling wire for this season's hay crop. If the horses go unfed, it will not be because of lack of hay, but because of the lack of baling wire to bind the hay for shipment.

Active steps taken by the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, to aid in overcoming this shortage of baling wire have resulted in a factory, with an output of 800 bundles a day, resuming work to capacity, and several other large manufacturers stating their willingness to do everything possible to meet the demand.

The bureau of markets has communicated with the principal manufacturers of wire and the leading baling factories, urging them to increase their production. A survey of the entire situation disclosed that the general scarcity is due mostly to strikes, transportation difficulties and shortage of wire.

As distribution is one of the main reasons for the present shortage, the department of agriculture has suggested plans to manufacturers by which it is hoped to supply those sections of the country first where the need is most pressing. It is believed that if the manufacturers proceed along the lines suggested, sufficient baling wire will be manufactured and shipped to dealers to supply the demand with little loss to the hay crop.

SILAGE FROM MATURED CORN

Feeding Value Not Decreased Where Ears Have Not Fully Developed When Preserved.

Silage made from corn that has an opportunity to fully mature but which has been planted in such a way that the ears have not fully developed, has practically the same composition and the same feeding value as silage made from corn equally well matured but which will yield a fair crop of ear corn to the acre. This is supposed to be due to the fact that in its production of the nutrients from the stalk and leaves to the ear. There is a slight decrease in the feeding value of corn when placed in a silo, but this should not exceed 10%, and the loss is less from this method of preserving than in any other.

DESTROY HOMES OF INSECTS

Stalks of Cabbage, Cauliflower and Other Vegetables Should Not Be Left in Garden.

Clean up the cabbage patch! Don't raise a crop of insect pests on the stalks. That is what is likely to happen if stalks of cabbage or of cauliflower, collards, brussels sprouts, and such vegetables are left in the garden after they have fulfilled their food mission. Entomologists of the United States department of agriculture advise that where such remnants of the garden can be promptly fed to hogs or cattle a double purpose will be served—insect pests will be kept down and a food provided for meat-making animals.

PATS' PILLS

By ESTHER A. OWENS.

(Copyright, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
"Oh, John, I'm so tired! I couldn't lift a little finger if my life depended on it." Patrice snuggled in the corner of the car. They were coming home from a bungalow dance, 20 miles out on the old Boston road. "You could run this old car with your eyes shut—fish in my bag and see if I have a handkerchief."

John obligingly slowed up the car, and proceeded to "fish"—with one hand, slowly emptying Patrice's little mesh bag of its trifles—powder, lipstick, door key—"Pats! What's this?" he broke out sharply.

"What? John—please!" Patrice made a wild dive for the little box John was examining so intently, but only to find her hand grabbed and held firmly.

"Pats," John's look was stern, accusing. "You haven't been taking these?"

"No—No—" falteringly, "but," more intensely, "I will! I must! I can't help it, John—I don't know what it is to stay awake night after night, week after week, even—never to sleep, till nearly morning. I've seen the sun rise every morning this month; and I'm so tired—so tired—" her voice trailed away into almost nothing.

"Poor Pats! But surely you know this sort of thing is dangerous. If it becomes a habit why—"

"Oh, but it won't! You've no idea how strong-willed I am really—and it's just to sleep one night or maybe two. And I know I could stop."

"Pats, how long have you had these?"

"About—three weeks."

"And you haven't used them at all?"

"No; I—oh, I've tried so hard not to! I've done everything. I thought at first just to know they were there—that I could take them—would help—but it's no use."

"Pats, we've always been such pals, will you do just one thing for me?" The girl sighed slightly.

"What is it?"

"Just this—try a little longer to sleep—naturally—and let me keep these for you. If at any time you feel you must have them, call me, and I promise on my sacred word of honor I'll bring them to you at whatever time of day or night. Will you try, Pats? For my sake, please?"

"Pats," whispered Patrice very low, and their fingers met over the steering wheel.

John jumped from his seat and switched on the light. Surely he had heard the tinkle of the telephone bell.

"Hello!" Pat's voice came over the line, low, indistinct, but with a sort of desperation in it. "John! I can't stand it any longer—your promise, John!"

"Yes, Pats. I'll be with you in ten minutes."

It was a pale, heavy-eyed Patrice that nonetheless opened the door the next morning.

"John—at last! You—you—have them?" She held out her hand, quickly, feverishly.

"Yes, Pats." He put the small box in her hand and her fingers closed over it. "But, Pats, suppose we just slip out and take a ride around the block before you try them. Just a little fresh air, and see what it will do."

Patrice sighed, shook her head wearily, and finally allowed herself to be drawn along the steps and into the waiting car.

The engine purred rhythmically as they spun over the boulevard along the river road. Now and then John glanced at Patrice: first her eyelids began to waver, then to close; her head dropped down from the cushion and hung limply on her shoulder, and then by her quiet breathing he knew she slept at last.

The sun was just beginning to silver the birches along the river bank when Patrice opened her eyes. Bewildered, puzzled, surprised for a moment; then: "Oh! I never really went to sleep."

She laughed aloud at the delightfulness of the thought. "But—oh, John—you poor thing! You stayed out all night—I'm so sorry! And I really slept! John, how can I ever thank you?"

"If you really want to," returned John, "I'll promise you'll never wake up, if you'll take my shoulder for your pillow for always."

"Well, I don't want to sleep forever, but I think your shoulder makes a very nice pillow, even with my eyes open."

And this time it was their lips that met over the steering wheel.

Two nights later Patrice stood on the veranda watching the tall light of John's car disappear down the driveway. The moonlight glinted on the diamond sparkling on her third finger.

"Beautiful moon," she bowed as she spoke and tossed a kiss skyward, "behold a reformed woman! I no longer desire drugs to put me to sleep, oh moon! And the man I love loves me and will marry me, because he thinks I'm his mission in life. But I love him—you know how long oh, how very long, I've loved him—and everything's fair in love, isn't it?"

She took the little round box from her pocket and laughed, and held it a moment before she tossed it over into the flower bed, and laughed again.

A little later she again passed the old woman, having finished her game, and then by her quiet breathing he knew she slept at last.

The injured dame, "don't you know you ought to say: 'I'm sorry?'"

"What?" returned the little girl. "Do you think an express train stops to say that?"

Gone for the Day.

My boss had given me some special work to do, and had departed saying he would not return that day, writes a correspondent. It was exceedingly warm and to work was torture. Putting my books and papers away, I selected the most comfortable chair in his office and sat down to read a magazine which I found on his desk. You can imagine my chagrin when he returned in an hour and asked for the work.

CANNOT WITHDRAW LIQUOR IN WHOLESALE LOTS

Study of Supreme Court Ruling Reveals Little Hope for the "Wets"

With the ebbing of the first ripple of excitement that swept over the "wet" element when the Supreme Court handed down its recent decision relative to the storing and transportation of lawfully acquired liquors for personal consumption, a closer study of the ruling seems to indicate that the decision does not provide the loophole for wholesale withdrawal that many of the "wet" clan at first seemed to think.

As a matter of fact, many of those in close touch with the liquor situation believe that in so far as withdrawals of liquor from bonded warehouses are concerned it will be just as hard to remove now as before the ruling was made. In other words, the ruling, according to these persons, really affects relatively small stocks of liquor that are privately owned and has practically no relation to the goods held under bond.

Before a person can withdraw liquor from a bonded warehouse, he must procure a permit to make such withdrawal, and before he can obtain the permit he must be a wholesale liquor dealer. Even after the liquor is withdrawn, it must be sold for medicinal purposes and to one having a permit to purchase. A wholesale liquor dealer is even prohibited from selling to another wholesale liquor dealer.

According to many who are well informed on the subject, the gist of the whole opinion relates to liquors lawfully acquired that are possessed strictly for personal use, and if such liquors have been stored in other places than the dwellings of the owners, the report that should have been made to the Government officials prior to January 27, 1920, will show the exact nature of the goods. According to the law, all persons permitted to have intoxicating liquors in their possession (other than those authorized to possess liquor for beverage consumption in their private dwellings), were required to furnish a report setting forth the amount of liquor in their possession and the places at which the same were possessed. No declaration, however, had to be made on liquors stored in the bona-fide residence of the owner and intended for personal consumption.

It is thought that under the Supreme Court's ruling privately owned stocks that were legally acquired and heretofore stored in commercial warehouses, and shewn to be intended for personal consumption, may be transported to the residence of the owners without violating the law, but the decision itself offers no opportunity for withdrawals if the circumstances show that the goods were not intended for personal consumption.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Daniel B. O'Donnell vs. Edith M. O'Donnell, No. 2311 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce, a vinculo matrimonii, in behalf of Daniel B. O'Donnell, plaintiff, from his wife, Edith M. O'Donnell, defendant.

The bill states that the plaintiff is a miner of coal and has been living in and about the town of Bloomsburg, Maryland, for some time over three years past, and that his wife moved with him from Bloomsburg, Maryland, to Bloomsburg, where they lived a few months together, and then his wife separated from him and he does not know where she is now living but believes she is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

That there were no children born of said marriage.

That ever since they were married he has been a faithful and affectionate husband towards his wife up to the time she left him. That within a few months after his marriage he discovered that she was not faithful to him and that on divers times he discovered that his wife has committed the crime of adultery, and when his suspicions were aroused about her behavior he then traveled near and far in company with another man carrying on her adulterous life with him. That before he discovered her adulteries he contracted a venereal disease from her and then he determined himself to live with her no longer.

That your orator has not lived or cohabited with his wife, the said Edith M. O'Donnell, since he has discovered her adulteries.

The bill then prays that he may be granted a divorce—vinculo matrimonii from the said Edith M. O'Donnell; that he might have such other and further relief as his case may require; and it is prayed that an order of publication should be issued against the said Edith M. O'Donnell alleging that she is not a resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 30th day of October, 1920, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in Equity, ordered, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper or published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 3rd day of December, 1920, provide a copy of this order be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county once a week for three successive weeks before the 3rd day of November, 1920.

The report states the amount of sale to be $3.12.

TO KEEP STATE ROADS OPEN

Trucks and Plows to be Operated Over Entire System.

The main arteries of the State roads system, from Oakland to Point Lookout, St. Mary's county, are to be kept free of snow this winter, as a result of the adoption Saturday by the Roads Commission of a comprehensive plan for snow removal. The plan was submitted by Chairman and Chief Engineer Mackall.

Under the plan big trucks which have traction on all four wheels will start out over the roads, pushing snow plows ahead of them as the first snow falls. Each truck will be assigned a definite section of road to keep clear, and will continue in operation as long as snow is falling.

Arrangements have been made with the United States Weather Bureau for storm warning signals, and on notice of an approaching snowstorm, the trucks will start for the section expected to be visited by the storm.

The roads selected to be kept clear at the time are the main line from Oakland, Keyser, Cumberland, Hagerstown and Frederick, to Baltimore; Belair road to the Delaware line near Elkton; Washington and Annapolis boulevards, main line Prince George's, Charles and St. Mary's counties, from Washington to Point Lookout and on the main line in Anne Arundel and Calvert counties from Annapolis to Solomon's Island.

Places in the mountains where drifts occur are to be protected by snow fences. The places requiring them aggregate about six miles, all of which cannot be constructed this year, as the cost of these fences run into something like $3,000 a mile.

Chairman Mackall said the project was thoroughly practicable and had been successful in Pennsylvania. The only equipment needed are the trucks, which the state already owns, and the snow plows, which cost $300 each. Twenty of these will be required.

"The system which we have outlined for the removal of snow," said Mr. Mackall, "contains about 475 miles. Experience and the cost of doing this work will determine whether it is advisable to extend it over all the more important highways in the State."

"The Pennsylvania Highways Department informs me that the cost of removing snow averages from $50 to $200 a mile, according to location and the amount of snow to be removed. I feel that the work can be done more cheaply in Maryland, because there is much less snow here."

"I am convinced that the prompt removal of snow will not only be a great convenience to travelers, but will keep down road maintenance cost. Roads upon which snow and sleet is allowed to lie deteriorate. It is probable that the cost of snow removal will be offset by the saving of road repairs in the spring."

Knights of Pythias Notes of Interest.

At the regular meeting of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, held on last Friday evening, the rank of Esquire was conferred, and two applications for membership were received.

On next Friday evening, November 26th, the rank of Knight will be conferred on a class of seven to ten Esquires in the amplified form, and immediately thereafter a smoker will be held.

All members are urged to have applications for new members in not later than Friday night a week, so that the applicants may become members before the end of the year. Our chances for the awards look very promising, but we still have room for more members and need them so that we can go over the top with a good margin in increase in membership.

The Pythian Sisters and Garrett lodge will hold a fair beginning on Monday, December 27th, and continuing throughout the week. Brother Charles E. Gray is chairman of the committee on arrangements, who has as his co-workers Brothers D. W. Walter and Gay Hayden. You will probably be called on by this committee to assist in some way, and your officers urge that you give them your most hearty support so that we may have a splendid fair.

Come to lodge Friday evening of this week. There are a great many new members the old ones should meet. Therefore, come and get together.

INSANE VICTIM OF WAR'S HORROR

John Dorr, Former Russian Soldier, A Mental Wreck

Suffering from mental derangement thought to have resulted from hardship and privation as a Russian prisoner of war captured by the Germans in 1915, John Dorr, 27 years old, a Russian mine laborer, was taken to Cumberland Monday evening from Vindeux, this county, and committed to Sylvan Retreat.

The man was examined yesterday by physicians of Cumberland and a commitment was issued pending the decision of the Garrett county authorities.

Dorr, who was recently brought to Garrett county from New York state to work at the mines, suffers from a religious mania, and was found living like a wild man in the woods near the mining town of Vindeux. He was found kneeling in the snow praying incessantly.

Garrett county has no institution for the care of the insane and patients from this county are generally taken to the Cumberland institution.

From what can be obtained from questioning, Dorr was a Russian soldier and was a prisoner of war in Germany. He escaped after considerable difficulty and made his way to the United States.

ZIHLMAN ON WORK OF CONGRESS

Representative Would Limit Immigration and Favor Abolition of Excess Profit Tax.

Representative F. N. Zihlman, of the Sixth Maryland district, has returned to the capital and intends to devote much of the time from now until Congress convenes, December 6, to the study of many important problems to be considered by that body. He has abandoned the trip planned for Panama on an army transport.

In the judgment of Mr. Zihlman four vital questions loom up before the incoming Congress. They are finances, taxation, immigration and foreign relations. As to the first problem Mr. Zihlman says:

"It will be necessary for the government to take such steps as will restore and maintain the national credit. This cannot be done until world securities are put on a sounder basis and foreign exchange raised to a high level."

"The question will undoubtedly receive the serious attention of the experts in Congress as the prosperity of the nation and the rest of the world depends to a great extent upon its sane resolution."

Mr. Zihlman pointed out that "for several years this country has been enjoying a false prosperity due to the fact that in financing the war we were obliged to mortgage the future. Now there must be a readjustment and it will require much sane reasoning and straight thinking to avoid a crash."

Referring to the subject of taxation

Mr. Zihlman declares:

"If during the present short session we are unable to make the necessary reduction in governmental expenditures then this problem will go over until the new Congress meets."

The excess profits tax must be abolished and a substitute found, if proper economy will not enable the income tax and other forms of excise to meet expenditures. The country demands the removal of the obnoxious and petty taxes such as are now imposed on luxuries, railroad, theatre tickets, soda water checks, etc."

Mr. Zihlman feels that Congress should pass a more stringent immigration law. He says that the commissioner of immigration estimates 10,000,000 immigrants awaiting passage to this country, many of them of the most undesirable type, among their number being those who desire to escape the taxation burden of their own country, revolutionists, anarchists, maimed and diseased survivors of the world war, etc.

Speaking on foreign relations, Mr. Zihlman said:

"If the president will not allow some sort of treaty to be made with the Allies and the Central Powers which is in accord with the views of the American people, this matter will have to go over until the incoming administration takes hold." He says that no one at this time can predict with any assurance the kind of treaty or association of nations the new Congress might favor and adopt.

Mr. Zihlman declares that the question of a new tariff bill will have to go over until a Republican Congress is convened. He does not deem essential that there be a general revision of existing tariff rates, although he feels that it is imperative that a protective tariff be imposed on some articles which are being imported in quantities, especially from Japan.

BITTINGER

We enjoyed the first installment of winter last week. Snow fell to a depth of six inches, and the usual wind followed the snow piling it into drifts sufficiently deep to impede travel over many roads.

The Leeger School opened this Monday morning with B. Harrison Wiley in charge as instructor.

A party of four gentlemen from Allegany county motored to this village last Sunday evening, despite snow drifts, and were entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Buckle and on Monday enjoyed a day in the woods under the guidance of their host.

Messrs. Gilbert Green and Chauncy Broadwater are having Caloric furnaces installed in their residences this week by service men from the A. D. Naylor Co., of Oakland.

Mrs. Clyde Broadwater is visiting in Meyersdale, Pa., with relatives this week.

Frank Green, of Dry Run, was building flues for some folks living on this side of the mountain last week.

A number of our young folks walked to Jennings last Saturday evening to attend an Oyster supper, which was reported to take place in that town, but, as the oysters did not materialize, the boys returned hungry and disappointed.

Ernest Rush and family have moved into the property recently vacated by Henry B. Wiley.

Peter Opel was obliged to suspend operations on his saw mill last week on account of illness.

How Jesus Was Received. Matt. 11: 12.

Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Matt. 11: 28.

THE TEST OF LIFE.

Matthew is more concerned with logic than with time and the events of our study are widely separated. Running through them is the underlying basis for all greatness of life for they are concerned with the reception given to Jesus by various persons and groups. Bishop Bashford's baccalaureate sermon to the class of 1897 in Ohio Wesleyan placed the first step toward the fullest life in receptivity. In the admirable of the talents each received according to his ability not to use but to take and for that very reason the one-talent-man received something he did not use while the ten-talent-man had it handed over to him because he was the only one of the group that was able to add this to his stock. In their fields the same truth holds. Shakespeare gathered from every source and simply absorbed the old historic tales that he afterward wrought over in the plays that still thrill the mind of the world. Goethe is reputed the greatest borrower of his time. Every other man who has made his mark kept his windows open to all the breezes that might sweep through them. He has welcomed the comradeship of ideas from many quarters and because he made them at home with himself they have given him of their wealth and made him rich with all the power that was theirs. This is the quality that in every realm of life characterizes the leader in it. It made Isaiah and John supreme in religion for they received spiritual ideas as others did not. And he who is most receptive is Christ and His truth today is the person whose growth is most pronounced. That was precisely where the leaders of the Jews failed in the days of His flesh. They closed their minds to His appeal and turned their backs upon His word. "They love darkness rather than light." And the final determination of any life lies in this same attitude toward truth; whether it runs with the current of one's desire or across it, it is accepted and made part of the person who keeps the open door.

THE INSTRUCTED.

John the discerning who had been the first to see the sacrificial nature of the new Messiah he was herelating had been for long months in the ward of Herod's prison east of the Dead Sea. Immediacy had been the foremost note in the prophet's preaching and yet so far as he could see no change had come. For himself there was nothing but the prison after the open heralding of faith in the Man he had baptized as the Christ. Herod still reigned and kept his denouced wife. Rome still stood upon their seven hills and ruled the world. The temple profiteers still mulcted the crowd. No chips were being cut, no chaff was flying—what was wrong? Had he been mistaken? John's faith had been in a method instead of in a Man and when the method failed to appear John's tragedy followed. The wilderness lion no longer roared but whined dispiritedly. His old comrades that had carried him before Herod's face with his denunciation served him well in this crisis for he sent as directly to Jesus with his query. Yet Christ offered no word of certainty as men do saying "Tell him I am." We would have made the "I" tremendously emphatic. Jesus was more concerned with remaking John than He was with Himself. John's failure was in the realm of method and recovery must be upon that side of him. So the waiting men who wanted a word saw instead works of mercy. What they carried back was the story of other methods than the one used by the Baptist so that his eyes were lifted to the living Lord behind all methods as the real road to the entrance of the Kingdom and it was with that vision in his eyes that the stern denouncer of the palace potentate received the executioner. Jesus had restored the man and broadened him in the process. For the perplexed there was abundant instruction that cleared away all doubt from the inquiring minds.

THE CONDEMNED.

Never were sterner words uttered than those that fell from the lips that could be so tender in their smiles and wistful in their wooing. That is the terrible thing in connection with them. Had it been John there would be no surprise for that was his stock in trade. Had there been the current speech of Jesus it would have been expected. It is when love grows stern that it is terrible. America, long patient, disbelieving the intent to injure, presently stood like a flaming angel in the consuming wrath that sent its fierce heat into the heart of Europe's and the world's struggle. The most appalling phrase in all John's writings "The wrath of the Lamb." These cities had seen His tender ministry to their sick, His gentle sympathy with their sorrows, His patient meeting of their questioning, His quiet mastery over every power for good or ill and they had closed their eyes and ears in refusal to admit Him to their heart. It was the inescapable verdict from which there could be no appeal. It is as true today as then. Youth spends its treasure with utter ignorance of tomorrow's actions. He who had wandered with the wanton determines to build a clean home to find that he has damned his wife and cursed

FORDSON

TRADE MARK

Farm Tractor

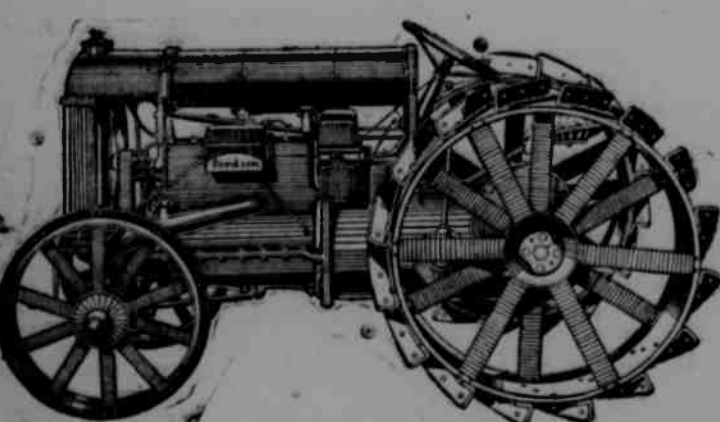

More than 100,000 Fordson tractors have been sold to farmers in the United States. They are helping those farmers do more and better work in less time and at less cost. North, East, South, West—everywhere the Fordson has proven itself a money-maker and a real necessity to the farmer. Besides it is helping mightily to solve the labor problem.

These one hundred thousand and more practical farmers have affirmed the economy—the exceptionally low fuel and operating cost—of the Fordson; its time and labor-saving qualities and its ability to increase production. The Fordson was built to be the most economical tractor; it is compact and devoid of excessive weight. And it is built of the same strong iron and steel as is the Ford car.

Winter or bad weather does not hinder the Fordson's usefulness. Day or night—twenty-four hours a day if you choose—you can utilize the Fordson.

Only so many Fordsons are allotted this territory. Orders are being filled in sequence—first come first served. Let us have yours now.

Some printshop arithmetic: The milkman used to give us 30 tickets for the Tribune. When he paid us this week he gave us only a dozen. Measured in milk tickets the Tribune should be $3.75 a year. Two bushels of wheat used to buy it. Measured in wheat this fall the subscription should be $4.25. Not long ago a subscription would buy 20 pounds of sugar. It now buys seven. Seven subscriptions would buy the editor a new suit of clothes. now it takes 37. The white paper in one year's subscription used to cost 9 cents. This year it will cost 45 cents. That's how the country editors are showing the world they know how to run everybody else's business except their own.—Marquette Tribune.

HUTTON

Thanksgiving Reminiscence. With gladness reigning in our hearts, we commemorate today the joyous occasion of Thanksgiving. With what fleetness of time have the intervening twelve months elapsed. It seems but scarcely yesterday since we gathered 'round the festive board to partake of the viands which nature had so amply provided for our refreshment as well as sustenance. Let us also recall to mind how in those days our sympathy went out in gentle commiseration across the worried waters where dwell the poor unfortunate people of Poland, as well as the poverty stricken children of the Jews. Many there were indeed who availed themselves of the opportunity thus afforded in rendering material aid to their relief, and in return have experienced innumerable benefits derived from a Christian act that never goes unrewarded. Through the noble generosity of America the European situation is greatly relieved at the present time. An article in one of the leading periodicals implore us to continue our work of mercy as there are yet thousands of poor people whose very life depends upon the charity which they receive from this country. In conclusion, my wishes are that the readers of The Republican may enjoy to the fullest extent the happiness of this day of days.

Dr. John D. Darby, of Oakland, was a professional visitor to Hutton on Saturday last.

Mrs. Martin Hughes was an Oakland visitor recently.

Mr. William R. Pendergast is a patient in the Allegheny Hospital in Cumberland, where he will undergo a second surgical operation some time this week. He was accompanied to that city on Saturday by his mother, Mrs. Martin Pendergast, who will remain with her son until after the operation.

Mrs. Andrew Salzman was shopping and visiting friends in the County seat on Monday.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

During all the years the Ford Model T One Ton Truck has been on the market, we have never had one complaint of rear axle trouble. We have had no complaints of motor trouble. As the motor and the rear axle are the vital fundamentals in a motor truck, we have the right to conclude that the Ford One Ton Truck has not only met the demands of business, but has done so in a satisfactory and economic way. There is no other evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Ford One Ton Trucks are serving along all industrial and commercial lines. You will find them everywhere. If these statements were not facts, the demand for the Ford One Ton Truck would not be as large as it is, because people are not buying trucks which do not give service. Coupled with the dependability of the Ford One Ton Truck in all classes of usage, comes the economy in operation and maintenance. On the farm, in factory delivery, for the merchant, manufacturer, and contractor, in these days of modern business methods, this worm-drive One Ton Ford Truck has become an actual necessity. "Our Budget Plan will bring the New Edison this Xmas!"

THIS is the time of the year when our Budget Plan is most helpful. You ought to come in right away and find out what it can do for you.

In the first place, it will put a New Edison beside your Christmas tree, (how the family will rejoice!)

In the second place, it will stretch your Christmas dollar so that you'll hardly feel the purchase.

The Budget Plan treats the New Edison as an essential of life, such as a home, and arranges payments on the sound "time" principle. It combines modern business practice with thrift.

This way of treating a dollar actually makes it go farther. Let us explain how the Budget Plan brings the longed-for New Edison for what an extremely ordinary gift would cost—and makes 1921 thrift pay for the balance.

Oakland Hardware & Furniture Company

OADED with all the goods the living cost allows, the home boards of the day of thanks will give full witness to the fact that the passing years do not permit to grow flaccid the long-established custom of the land. Thanksgiving Day has yet full flavor of the day when first observed upon the bleak coast where the Pilgrim fathers closed their voyage of discovery. The simple fare of bread and pumpkin pie, cranberries and accessories will all feature as in the days gone by. And the old times so redolent of sober peace and the sweet content of home, will not in fashion forth the features of the times of the one who at that board in other years were grouped. Memory that never lays aside attachments of the past will vivify the recollections of the ones whose passing meant contraction of the group, but there will be no less richness because the past had not struck its note of mortality that time passes. From coast to coast, amid the mountains of the heavy range, and the Rocky Mountains, the great plains, the wide river valleys, the people will be gathered to the feast. And the Pacific will be found the unity of the nation's strength and grace, the circles of the home with sweet content as savor for the simple heartfelt feast. In many places strange and mid the scenes of desolation and of solitude the day of dinner will be given thought.

4TH RED CROSS ROLL CALL FOR MEMBERS BEGINS ARMISTICE DAY

National Headquarters Reports Work Done
In Past Year and It's Aims For the Future

ENTIRE PEACE TIME PROGRAM OUTLINED

In making an appeal to the people of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, comprising the Potomac Division, to renew their memberships or to become new members of the American Red Cross, David H. Brown, Division Director of the Fourth Roll Call, which begins November 11 and ends November 26, has issued the following statement, in which is shown the work that has been carried on during the past year, the existing activities, and the entire peace-time program of the great relief organization:

The Fourth Roll Call is not a campaign.

It is merely the yearly opportunity for American men and women to pay their annual dues and renew their membership in their Red Cross.

This Roll Call finds the Red Cross, as much as at any time since it entered the great war, in the midst of tremendous concerns.

The world is so full of uncertainty—that which is called modern civilization is so utterly upset—that no sooner is one duty ended than another looms as large.

The present program of the American Red Cross is vastly important and fundamentally essential.

Its primary obligation was to the service men of the Army and Navy. Of that obligation these things still remain:

First, To stay with the Army of Occupation, comprising about 17,000 officers and men, and serve as their Red Cross.

Second, To continue in the hospitals of the Army, the Navy and the Public Health Service where there are more than 25,000 men, many of whom will be retained there for months and some of them for years, and carry on their recreational and social work.

Third, To keep in touch as an advisory organization with the discharged men of the Army and Navy, and be ready—not in the way of financial aid, but what is worth far more—to contribute kind advice and friendly assistance.

Fourth, To continue the work that has been going on in connection with the families of soldiers and sailors, and as growing out of this a similar work for the community at large.

The fact that the men have returned does not by any means eliminate domestic problems. In many cases it only intensifies them. This is particularly true in the case of more than 125,000 families whose men are in the number of the dead, where there is a wealth of service that the Red Cross can still render.

Fifth, While the Government itself is carrying on vocational training for maimed and crippled men, it has turned over to the Red Cross the care of those who have been blinded in the crash of war. No more sacred service can be imagined than this.

Work in Europe:

So far as the world at large is concerned the American Red Cross must still stand by to the limit of its possibility and the measure of its ability. On the Western Front its work is now over. Belgium, France and Italy are slowly but surely making progress, with their feet firmly set upon paths of reconstruction.

The Eastern Belt of Horror still remains—not only a menace to civilization, but a challenge to the Red Cross. The enormity of its want is staggering.

The entire fabric of civilization is tottering into ruin.

Pestilence and famine are stalking in the midst of calamity.

The Red Cross cannot carry the burden that only Western Civilization united can bear. It cannot feed Poland, the Baltic States, Czechoslovakia and the Balkans. It cannot clothe and shelter hundreds of millions of people, were it so inclined.

No voluntary organization can any longer face a task of such dimensions.

But to the best of its ability the American Red Cross can do what it did during the months before America's armies came to take their part in the great conflict.

It can, by its very presence, give promise of assistance.

It can carry on at least a hopeful fight against pestilence and epidemic.

It can minister to the extreme of emergency.

It can try to protect and care for the children who are the one hope for the future.

More than this, in the present condition of its funds and its personnel, it dare not undertake.

Far more than this it is willing to undertake, if the American people choose again to make it the repository of their confidence and to contribute for the relief of suffering millions of fellow men.

What the American Red Cross does for Europe depends upon what the American people ask it to do.

It knows how. The experience of the past is invaluable. The American Red Cross is ready. It is up to the American people to decide.

Red Cross Work At Home:

America calls to the Red Cross for service.

It spent thirty billion dollars in the world fight for Democracy.

That was an average of $300.00 per capita from our entire population.

The United States owes twenty-eight billion dollars as a war debt.

That is an average of $280.00 per capita for our entire population.

The average American community spent last year about $9.00 per capita for education and about $3.50 per capita for fire and police protection.

As a nation we spent last year $10.00 per capita for candy, 50 cents per capita for chewing gum, $215.00 per capita for tobacco, 75 cents per capita for perfume.

Last year the American nation spent less than 29 cents per capita protecting and developing the health of the country.

And yet—

Last year 1,250,000 American people died of sickness.

Seven hundred and fifty thousand of them died of preventable disease.

Two hundred thousand adults died last year from tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis is neither hereditary nor necessary, but is a disease of defective civilization.

Last year 300,000 American babies died before they were one year old.

One hundred and fifty thousand of them did not live a month.

This slaughter of the innocents was largely the result of ignorance, indifference and economic inhumanity.

The records of the war show that our civilian population is blighted with Venereal Disease.

The Public Health Service indicates that one-tenth of our American life is thus contaminated.

The American Red Cross does not claim responsibility to analyze and solve these great questions of Public Health.

It only recognizes that under its Charter it is compelled to "devise and carry on measures for mitigating the suffering, incident to pestilence and disaster."

It seeks, therefore, merely to aid existing agencies, to co-operate with organized effort, and to place its organization and its workers alike at the disposal and the service of the community.

In furtherance of such a program the Community Public Health Nurse is destined to play an important part.

One thousand of these—most of them returned army nurses—have prepared themselves for this new crusade for higher standards of physical life and the expansion of our national strength and vigor.

The Roll Call contemplates practical demonstration and instruction in Domestic Sanitation, Community Hygiene, Dietetics and Child Welfare.

The establishment of Public Health Centers is as most important feature of this work for a better America.

This will be exactly what its name signifies—bringing to a definite place in each community a combination of all the agencies that may promote health, in order to maintain a high standard of physical manhood and womanhood in our country.

A distinct line of usefulness will be the formation of classes in First Aid, teaching people how to meet the emergency of accidents and to make possible the saving of life.

The continuation, enlargement and coordination of the Junior Red Cross as related to our American public schools is an item so vast as to be incalculable.

The whole fabric, not only of our American democracy but of the future civilization of the world, rests upon the child and the school.

The ideal out of which the Junior Red Cross springs is that of Service—self-sacrificing service for others.

Fifteen million American children, trained in the philosophy of unselfishness, schooled to a life of service, vowed to the furtherance of international understanding and good will, can save the world.

Finally, the American Red Cross must broaden and make more prominent its preparedness for the Disaster Relief that has been so great a part of its history.

Tempest and flood; earthquakes and fire; accident and calamity—whatever of these fall into the machinery of life throughout the world, the American Red Cross holds itself ready to go and minister in the name of humanity and mercy.

There is still room for the Red Cross.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Daniel R. O'Donnell vs. Edith M. O'Donnell, No. 234 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce, a vinculo matrimonii, in behalf of Daniel R. O'Donnell, plaintiff, from his wife, Edith M. O'Donnell, defendant.

The bill states that the plaintiff is a minor of coal and has been living in and about the town of Bloomington, Maryland, for something over three years past, and that his wife moved with him from Roswell, Pennsylvania, to Bloomington, where they lived a few months together, and then his wife separated from him and he does not know where she is now living but believes she is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

That there were no children born of said marriage.

That ever since they were married he has been a faithful and affectionate husband towards his wife up to the time she left him.

That within a few months after his marriage he discovered that she was not faithful to him and that on diverse times he discovered that his wife has committed the crime of adultery, and when his suspicions were aroused about her behavior he then trailed her and found her in company with another man carrying on her adulterous relations with him.

That before he discovered her adulteries he contracted a venereal disease from her and then he determined himself to live with her no longer.

That your orator has not lived or cohabited with his wife, the said Edith M. O'Donnell, since he has discovered her adulteries.

The bill then prays that he may be granted a divorce a vinculo matrimonii from the said Edith M. O'Donnell; that he might have such other and further relief as his case may require, and then prays that an order of publication should be issued against the said Edith M. O'Donnell alleging that she is not a resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 30th day of October, 1920, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in Equity, ordered, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 31st day of December, 1920, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 28th day of December next to show cause if any she has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Have Your Car Overhauled

"A Stitch In Time Saves Nine," is an old but ever new saying.

Your car has been put to hard service during the past summer; but now comes the acid test, with snow and mud to push your car must do extra work. Any piece of machinery will eventually wear out just as dropping of water will wear away iron. Have your car overhauled so that it will stand up under the extra work that it will have to do. Treat your car as you should treat other machinery.

On account of the unusually heavy demand for our repair service our shop has been constantly filled, during the summer, with cars waiting for repairs. We are now slowly catching up and if you want your car repaired it will be next.

"SALVE" IN STUDY OF VOTE

Had Iverson and Hawkins Retired It Would Not Have Saved John Walter

The Board of State Canvassers having duly met and organized last Wednesday, the official returns emanating from the cosmic upheaval of November 2 have been certified in the prescribed manner and have become a matter of record. Present at the meeting of the Board were: John M. Dennis, State Treasurer; E. Brooks Lee, State Comptroller; Philip B. Perlman, Secretary of State; Alexander Armstrong, Attorney General, and Caleb C. Magruder, Clerk of the Court of Appeals. The Board organized with Mr. Dennis as president and with Mr. Perlman as secretary.

(It will be noted that in the above list of notables the habitual prefix "Honorable", universally employed wherever statesmen are mentioned, is omitted. This is done merely to save wearisome repetition and without intention to slight either the conventions or the eminent gentlemen in question, who are in no more need of such a prefix than Newcastle is of coals, than the lily is of painting, or than refined gold is of gilding.)

The Presidential elector on the Democratic ticket who received the greatest number of votes was William Ingle. The vote for Mr. Ingle was 180,625. On the Republican side Mr. Carey received the greatest number of votes, his total being 296,117. The difference between Mr. Ingle's vote and Mr. Carey's vote is thus 55,491, which represents the plurality in Maryland of Harding and Coolidge over Cox and Roosevelt. Stonebraker, the eighth elector on the Republican side, received 229,111 votes, so that between the votes cast for the "highest" Republican elector and those cast for the "lowest" there was a difference of 7006—enough to have caused once more a division of Maryland's eight votes in the Electoral College had the Presidential election been anything like so close as the gubernatorial election last year.

Of the remaining three parties with Presidential tickets in the field the Socialists polled the biggest vote. The Socialist elector who received the greatest number of votes was Kyles, with 8476; for the Labor party Long was the high elector with 1178 votes, and McNamara, with 1645 votes, held the initial position among the Presidential electors of the Third Party.

In the Senatorial race, in which it will be recalled there were six entries, the official results are as follows:

Weller (Democratic)	169,200
Weller (Republican)	184,993
Lang (Labor)	2,560
Toole (Socialist)	6,559
Iverson (Independent)	21,243
Hawkins (Independent)	6,538

Mr. Weller's plurality over Senator Smith is consequently 15,799. Had Mr. Iverson not entered the race and had all Mr. Iverson's votes been cast for Senator Smith—a most unlikely supposition—the senior Senator from Maryland would still have been beaten by a margin of nearly 1000 votes. Thus even hypothetical history does not give much comfort to the friends of Senator Smith, whose real consolation must come from the remarkable showing he made in the face of a landslide and of hostility and lukewarmness on the part of organization workers in the city.

In the Sixth District the Congressional result was as follows:

Mish (Democratic)	25,992
Zihlman (Republican)	35,864
Twigg (Socialist)	1,819

That the electorate is not much in the mood for increasing the salaries of public servants may be gathered by the decisiveness of the vote by which the two amendments to the State Constitution were defeated. One amendment was to increase the pay of members of the General Assembly. The vote was: For, 76,363; against, 116,762.

The other amendment was to increase the pay of clerks of the courts in Baltimore city. The result: For, 58,081; against, 127,638. Evidently the populace is even less sympathetic with the plea of the clerks than it is with the indigence of the Legislators.

Mr. Weller is again in our midst, having returned from his sojourn in Florida. Mr. Weller entered Baltimore as quietly as he departed thence, and the whole interview apropos of his return seems to have come from Mrs. Weller and was non-political. It is safe to say, however, that Mr. Weller is not idle since his return. He has one problem which in itself calls for some reflection and finesse. It is the problem of patronage, that paradox which is at once one of the penalties and one of the fruits of victory. Baltimore Evening News.

FIRE FRIDAY MORNING

Portions of the Residence of Mr. Frederick Peddicord Ruined.

Last Friday morning about three o'clock the residence of Mr. Frederick Peddicord, located at the corner of Alder and Seventh streets, was discovered to be on fire by Mrs. Peddicord, who was awakened by a crackling noise which she at first attributed to burglars, but later smelling burning wood, aroused her husband who upon investigation found that the living and dining rooms of their home were a mass of flames.

Calling to his help Messrs. Ed. and Francis Shaffer, who live diagonally across the street, the three men battled the fire and had it practically out upon the arrival of other firemen. Sections of the town who brought with them the chemical engine and one reel of hose from the fire department.

After the fire had been put out it was determined by those who made an examination of the premises that the fire had its origin in a partition wall between the living and dining rooms, caused by a coal stove which was located in the living room and in close proximity to the wall. The partition was practically burned away as well as the ceiling of both rooms, the fire also eating its way through the upper floor, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Leonard, both of whom were absent, having gone to Kingwood a day or two prior to the fire to spend Thanksgiving with relatives.

The loss sustained by both Messrs. Peddicord and Leonard to their furnishings amount to a considerable sum but fortunately their losses are covered by insurance. The dwelling is owned by Mr. Peddicord and this also is insured.

Until repairs can be made to the building Mr. Peddicord and his family will occupy rooms in the First National Bank Building, while Mr. and Mrs. Leonard will remain with relatives and friends at Kingwood and Grafton.

HOLDINGS SOLD FOR $168,000

Includes Acreage in Garrett and Allegany Counties With Plant at Reynolds

In a deed filed for record last Friday at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court for this county, one of the largest coal deals of recent years was consummated when the Phoenix and Georges Creek Mining Company disposed of its holdings to the Georges Creek and Phoenix Mining Corporation, through Wilson D. Althouse, president of the former company, to Andrew C. Hau, of Keweenaw, Pa., representing the purchasing company, for the sum of $168,000.

The land is situated both in Garrett and Allegany counties, with an operation at Reynolds, Allegany county. It includes the following mining tracts: "Neff," "Flowery Meadows," "Mineral Hill," in the old Phoenix workings; "Sigler Farm," "The Gleamings," the J. O. J. Greene tracts in Allegany county, and mineral rights under certain acreage in the Bloomington district of Garrett county, which are underlaid with Freeport and Bakers-town coal seams.

The sale includes all mineral rights, equipment and mining machinery, tram and roadways. Approximately 350 acres of coal land is included in the transaction.

AUTO CRUSHED IN GOING OVER HIGH EMBANKMENT

Harry Willhide, of Keyser, Crawls To Aid With Fractured Skull and Ribs

Harry Willhide, of Keyser, an employee of Hampshire Mine, near Bloomington, this county, was probably fatally injured when an automobile he was driving went down an embankment near Bloomington early on Saturday morning while Mr. Willhide was on his way home. It is known that his skull is fractured and that every rib in his body is broken.

In great pain and with a supreme effort Mr. Willhide crawled up the bank from his wrecked car to the roadway and to the home of his foreman, near the scene of the mishap, where he was given attention. He was later removed to the home of his brother, W. A. Willhide, at Keyser, where it is said his life is despaired of. On reaching the mine foreman's home Willhide fainted and lay there for some time before assistance arrived.

Warrants Out For Arrest

On Tuesday warrants were sworn out before Justice E. I. West for the arrest of Albert Pogenbarger, of Kitzmiller, who is alleged to have received $50 under false pretenses by presenting to William E. Wallace, a mine superintendent at Kitzmiller, a check for the above amount who cashed it when the check was the property of A. V. Grover, a fellow-miner.

Warrants were also issued by the Justice on Monday for the arrest of Ira Paugh, Carl Paugh, George Stewart and Homer Fikes, who are alleged to have acted in a riotous and unseemly manner in the town of Kitzmiller. Matters of a more serious nature may be developed at the hearing before the Justice when the arrests are made.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

Sunday, December 5.
THE GROWTH OF THE KINGDOM
Matt. 13:1-43.
Fret not thyself because of evildoers—
Psalms 37:1.

THE NEW LESSON.

What a stimulating teacher Jesus was! He had been proclaiming the Kingdom ever since the beginning of His ministry, but now there was the changed form that immediately roused the Twelve to questioning. Every sense stood at attention, compelled by the skill in teaching quite apart from any other factor involved. This rousing of His class was in entirely sufficient reason for the use of the method, but there were other causes leading to the choice. One that He gives is the test of receptivity to the truth which it offered the hearers. Those who took it into the mind would find its fruit-bearing qualities; those who refused it would receive no further instruction. Pressed by the increasing weight of His work this would lighten it by reducing the numbers to whom He gave closest attention. Another reason was the growing hostility which sought evidence to convict Him before the Jewish tribunal. The story of the sower would have no weight in court, however much the truth underlying it might if badly stated. Primarily His class and its needs were the impelling thing. Those men were going out to carry the Kingdom message and would need material for their speaking—what better than these stories? They were easily remembered and as easily told. But they needed a corrective for the belief so persistently held from the preaching of Him that the Kingdom was just over the hill and immediately there would be the new, clean world in all its completeness. All the corruptions would crash down under the blows of the axe and the job would be done. I wonder if we are much farther on than the Disciples? Jesus never taught such swift transformation. He knew that a fool brought into a palace and robed in princely garments would still act the fool, and He had no false notions about conditions such as disciples have held. "You must wait the slow processes of growth and change," was what he drilled into their ears. And He would give them from their daily disillusion so that their faith would not waver as many others' have after fixing the date of His coming and finding all things apparently unchanged. But their encouragement was in the certainty of harvest and one that should be far more than the seed sown though some fall of fruitage.

THE SOWING

The pictured farm had nothing to do with virgin soil. There fields are all old and the parable itself concerns adults only. Children know no well-trampled path across the heart nor masses of thornbushes choking the life of those "to whom belongeth the Kingdom." But for the worker with the grown-ups the picture needs no altered line. Every bit of soil has possibilities of fruitfulness, only it needed different treatment to bring it to the harvest and he is a skilled sower indeed who understands that a new plowing as well as the trespass notice of a prohibition law is needed for one, while another is to be treated with dynamite or with a grunting hoe. Our methods must be as easy as our men. One had been despised and trampled over until he had hardened against the church as does the stranger who derides "the tool of capitalism." The other had been untought so that a bit of emotionalism was allowed to pass for experience. Buckleholders are logical products of the revivalistic instead of the teaching church. The third lacked training in activities that would develop the will for thorns bring berries or roses, but either is poor food. That field had chosen the lesser good, scattered its energies and so failed in abundance of harvest. The wheat it held was perfectly good wheat, but there was not enough of it. It was the untrained field in contrast to the untought field. It was the last that under proper treatment—was it by chance rather than by skill? Thank God that the earnest tho unskilled farmer of soul may reap also—brought forth enough to multiply all the sowing seven times.

THE LIFE

The next picture is that of another farm. There is no question here of unskilled treatment for he seems to be a model in that regard. John the Baptist would never have managed in that fashion. Should he have watched instead of sleeping? It does not seem so, but that the employee sleep, or he knew both the cause and had a plan for treating it. It was the men who were amazed for they were perfectly sure that they had sowed "the good seed" in the world—what possible explanation of mixed stalks could there be? But goodness is faced by evil, love by hate, and enemies would poison the entire crop—the devil's own deed. The Master claims the world as His. This is no white man's God—He belongs to the race. It is not the church farm, but the world farm that is involved. The lack of alertness of good men to permit evil to be sown. This is a day when evil appears good. Slavery was once so regarded. War is still defended by some; the saloon by others; bawdy houses by still others; secret diplomacy by a few; business chicane by many; witchcraft was once in good standing. But as the world goes on evil is recognized as such and the question comes: "How deal with it?" Always Jesus cries, "Take care of the wheat first." It may be smothered out by the growing crop, or if not it will be separated by the end of the season. "Give your first care to the crop," is the advice still as valuable as when it was spoken.

THE DOUBLE GROWTH.

Two other parables are given of those told the crowd. One pictures the Kingdom under the guise of the mustard tree from the tiny seed. It is to be out of all proportion to the initial sowing which is as true of our experience as of the Disciples. They lived to see it in every part of the far-flung Roman Empire with its tree-like expansion. And from that tiny group among whom fell the early seed has been developed all the vast throng of today that own Him Lord—nearly a third of the human race. The heaven indicates the inner movement of the same life seen in the tree. Pervasively and silently Christianity has changed the moral climate of the world. Despotism government has given way before the democratic until autocratic forms have almost vanished from all lands. The Red Cross mothers the hurts of the world. Health crusades are challenging every disease to which humanity is heir. Ministrant play is lightening life in all continents. Working hours and conditions are immeasurably more human than ever before. Childhood is held in a new regard; womanhood in new honor, and the home of both has caught new ideals. So on all sides are the pervasive influence that have gone out into society from the life of Jesus that makes heaven its only fitting figure. And in these days when yeast is being heralded as a food it merely adds force to the claim of life by Jesus whose splendid optimism caused Him to utter the pregnant words of these parables.

HUTTON

Mr. J. Homer Nordeck, who for a number of years past has been employed in the capacity of bookkeeper and stenographer at the tanning company's plant at this place, has been absent from his duties for a period of three or more weeks due to the development of coal on his farm located a mile west of Corinth. Mr. Nordeck, while here for a few hours on Saturday last, stated that he had great expectations of a large output of coal in the very near future.

Manager Horton of the Tioga Tanning Company, spent Thanksgiving Day with his family in Cumberland.

A wreck on the Preston railroad on Saturday evening at a late hour tied up that road pretty completely. Two cars of Freight coal were involved in the mix-up. The car at the tannery switch was only slightly damaged, while the second one, at a distance of some three hundred feet, was derailed and was capsized into the fields beyond.

Miss Mamie Helen Pendergast, a nurse at St. Agnes' Hospital, Baltimore, where she has charge of the operating room, arrived in Cumberland on Thursday last where at the present time she is attending her brother, who is slowly convalescing in one of the Queen City's hospitals.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Hughes, who recently sold their farm near this place, contemplate making their home in Oakland during the winter.

Children these days, acting like "grown-ups," could in all probability devote their time far more profitably in the kindergarten than in the present disgusting demeanor which seems to be somewhat in vogue. ST. ELMO.

RACHMANINOFF has not only made RE-CREATIONS for the New Edison. He has also made recordings for one of the standard talking-machines.

We are glad to announce that these talking-machine recordings may now be heard. We want you to hear them—and compare! Determine for yourself which gives you the real Rachmaninoff.

Let us play Rachmaninoff's Edison RE-CREATIONS for you. Mark how clear, how true the piano tone. See how every note in his runs, every accent in his interpretation, every shade in his pedalling is perfectly RE-CREATED.

This was proved by a test made at Mr. Rachmaninoff's home in New York City. He played the Second Hungarian Rhapsodie (Liszt) in direct comparison with the RE-CREATION of his performance by the New Edison. The absolute fidelity of the RE-CREATION to the artist's original performance astounded the listeners.

Make the Rachmaninoff comparison. It will guide you right in selecting your Christmas phonograph.

OATS BEST CROP

Statistics Show Advantages Over Corn Growing.

On Comparatively Cheap Land, in Western Canada Farmers Get Record Yields—Cost Per Acre Much Less Than Corn.

How much more does it cost to grow an acre of corn than to grow an acre of oats? To get a proper comparison it is necessary to take an illustration from a farm on which both crops are grown successfully. An example has just been brought to the writer's attention of the comparative cost of growing corn and oats on a Minnesota farm. It is furnished by Albert Inner, a well-known farmer in Cottonwood county, Minn., in an article which appeared in the Cottonwood Citizen.

Mr. Inner says: "I had a curiosity to know how much it would cost to raise an acre of oats and corn. To find out I kept account, during the year, of the time required and the cash expended to grow the above mentioned crops." His figures show that it cost him $31.49 to grow an acre of corn and $18.13 to grow an acre of oats, or a difference of $13.00 an acre in favor of oats.

Provided the respective crop yields are not altogether out of proportion to the cost of growing the crop, this seems to be a good argument in favor of growing oats. But to grow oats successfully it is not necessary to use $150 or $200 land. In western Canada some of the best oat-growing land in the world can be bought for about $25 an acre. On this land good yields and a high quality of grain is obtainable.

Fifty to sixty bushels to the acre in properly prepared land is a fair average yield for oats in western Canada in a normal season but yields of up to 100 bushels, and even more, to the acre have been frequent in good years. The quality of oats grown in western Canada is attested by the fact that at all the international exhibitions for many years past oats grown in western Canada have been awarded the leading prizes. There is on record oats grown in western Canada that have weighed as much as 48 pounds to the measured bushel, and the downtown grain inspector is authority for the statement that 30 per cent of the oats examined by him in western Canada weigh more than 42 pounds to the measured bushel. The standard weight for a bushel of oats is 34 pounds.

Samples of these oats weighing upward of 45 pounds to the bushel are on exhibition at the Canadian government information bureau, located in various cities in the United States.—Advertisement.

VEGETABLES ARE BEST FOR DUCKS

Most Profitable Returns Obtained Where Green Feeds Predominate in Rations.

HATCHING EGGS FROM PEKIN

Young Fowls to Be Marketed Should Be Fattened for Two Weeks Before Killing—Fish Aid in Reducing Feed Bills.

Ducks may be fed on the rations recommended for fowls and chickens, but better results are usually secured by feeding more green and vegetable seeds and a larger proportion of mash. Eggs from Pekin ducks are used largely for hatching, and the profit is secured in producing green ducklings; therefore these ducks are fed a maintenance ration after they stop laying in the summer until about December 1, when a laying ration is given and the amount of mash increased.

Runners for Eggs.
Indian Runner ducks have been introduced as producers of commercial eggs, so they should be fed laying rations throughout the year if kept for egg production.

The ducklings to be marketed should be fattened for two weeks before killing on a ration made of three parts, by weight, of corn meal, two parts of low-grade flour or middlings.

Large Duck Farm on Long Island.

one part of bran, one-half part of beef scrap, with 3 per cent grit and 10 per cent green feed. Feed this mash three times daily, or use a mash of three parts corn meal, one part low-grade wheat flour, one part bran, 5 per cent beef scrap, and 3 per cent oyster shell, with the green feed and grit added.

Influence of Feeds.
The green feed is sometimes left out of the ration during the last seven days of fattening, as it tends to color the meat and may produce a slightly flabby rather than a firm flesh; however, it is easier to keep the ducklings in good feeding condition on a mash containing green feed. Billed fish may replace the beef scrap, but should only be fed up to within two weeks before they are killed, as it may give a fishy taste to their flesh. Feeding States department of agriculture specialists suggest. A considerable quantity of boiled fish is also fed in the mash to laying ducks in sections where the duck farms border on the water and where fish is available at a very small cost. This fish aids materially in reducing the cost of feeding.

NEVER KICK HORSE ON FOOT
Lateral Cartilage is Liable to Be Bruised, Causing Inflammation and Lameness.

When examining the foot of a horse or mule never kick the foot to make the animal lift it off the ground. In kicking the foot you are liable to bruise the lateral cartilage causing inflammation and deposit of bone cells. This deposit of bone cells is the starting of a side bone, which will cause lameness. This lameness once started is extremely hard to stop. So never kick the horse on the foot.

SUPERIOR FALL VEGETABLES
Radishes and Lettuce Are Appreciated and Easily Grown in Autumn as in Spring.

Radishes and lettuce are appreciated again, as the hot weather has made their growth difficult and their quality poor. In the fall they are as easily grown as in the spring and as good. A little frost does not hurt them, and they last over a long season. The large varieties of radishes planted late in the summer will make immense roots that can be stored and kept over winter.

FEEDING OATS TO CHICKENS
Fowls Will Take to Them Readily if Sweet, Clean and Heavy—Dislike Long Points.

Oats make good summer feed if you can get the fowls to eat them freely. Most fowls will take readily to clean, sweet, heavy clipped oats weighing 40 pounds per bushel, while they would refuse that which has long points or is light in weight or musty. A bushel of oats contains only half as much nutrients as a bushel of corn or wheat.

FISH MEAL GOOD AS SUPPLEMENTAL FEED

Excellent in Hog, Poultry or Dairy Rations.

Bureau of Chemistry Knowing High Protein Content of Scrap Has Been Active in Converting Material into Food.

The common domestic pig will never be able to write a book on table manners but he knows how to order a meal as well as anyone. He is in a fair way to demand a fish course to supplement his salad and vegetable diet. He will take his fish in the form of fish meal, the refined by-product made from sound, wholesome raw material at the sardine, tuna, and salmon canneries, or from the menhaden.

The fish meal is not to be confused with "fish scrap," a coarser by-product much used for fertilizer; the meal is made from clean, sound material and is intended to be used as food for cattle and hogs. Formerly, the canneries waste was all made into "scrap" for fertilizer purposes, but the bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture, knowing the extremely high protein content of the scrap, has been active in converting this material into a high-grade protein feed. The cleaned, selected portion is ground to a fine, palatable meal which may be used to replace tankage in hog, poultry, or dairy rations.

Fish meal has been recommended as a supplementary ration before now, but popular prejudice against a badly prepared product has discouraged its use. The department of agriculture has proved by feeding experiments that fish meal equals the high-priced tankage as a ration ingredient, and better methods of selecting and milling have removed the causes of prejudice. The oil content of the meal adds materially to its feeding value. So far the experiments have shown that the meal does not taint the animal product, whether it be pork, butter, eggs, or milk. Moreover, by diverting the fish meals to its animal instead of its fertilizer use, the fish meal supply is directly to his hand as fertilizer, the farmer loses but a trifle of its fertilizing value and gains its entire feeding value—thus making the material yield two profits in the place of one.

KILL OUT PERENNIAL WEEDS

Quick Grass and Canada Thistle Are Most Troublesome and Offer Greatest Resistance.

Perennial weeds offer the greatest resistance and require more thorough and persistent effort to destroy them. Two of the most troublesome of our common weeds are quick grass and Canada thistle. The former may be distinguished from other grasses if its characteristic features are known. Whatever method will destroy quick grass will also kill Canada thistle or any other perennial weed.

Following or cultivation without a crop is the most certain method of eradication on large areas and may be used to good advantage except on sandy soils and those continuously wet or very porous. Success depends upon the depth of plowing and frequent cultivation. The prevention of all leaf-growth in weeds means their certain death. Certain cropping systems will usually be successful with quick grass.

SUCCULENT FEED INSURANCE

Mighty Good Plan to Fill Silo During Favorable Seasons for Feed in Dry Seasons.

The silo is the best feed insurance that can be provided. When seasons are favorable and there is plenty of rain it is a mighty good plan to fill the silo with green succulent feed and carry it over to the next year, when a dry season may come and cause a shortage of both feeds and pasture.

LESS HOGS AND CATTLE

Hogs have been reduced relatively about 5 per cent during the first four months of this year on the farms of the United States as compared with the trend during the first four months of 1919, reports the bureau of crop estimates, and there has been a relative reduction of 6 per cent in cattle during these four months of this year in comparison with the same time last year.

Puts I Will In You Easy to Get Strong

Everyone wants more pep and surety needs it this hot weather. Hot weather takes away the appetite and makes one feel listless, lifeless, miserable, even when you have a strong stomach, but for those who have weak stomachs, it is really a dangerous, trying time.

Be on the safe side this kind of weather and help nature all you can, by taking an eatonic tablet about half an hour before you eat and one or two an hour after you eat; it will be of wonderful benefit. Eatonic simply takes up the excess acids, poisons and gases, and carries them right out of the body. With the cause of the trouble removed, of course you will feel fit and fine—full of pep all the time. Eatonic will cool feverish mouth and stomach and give you a good appetite, even in hot weather.

Get a big box at your druggist's for a trifling cost and let eatonic help you for a few days; then you will never be without it. Adv.

Yankee Understatement.
A paragraph in the Companion about the mild retort of the man who was kicked by his horse reminded a subscriber of her grandfather's story of John Teale. John was a Yankee teamster who was trying one day to get a log down from the top of the pile. He tied a rope to the log; then, that he might stop the log before it rolled too far, he tied the other end of the rope round his waist. John pulled; the log came down and snatched the teamster halfway down the mountain. Some weeks later John was able to sit up and discuss the accident with a sympathetic neighbor.

"Yes, sir," said John, "I hadn't gone more'n ten rods before I see where I missed it!"—Youth's Companion.

Her First Venture.
Mrs. Lane had just taken a chance on an automobile and failed to get it. Mr. Lane, in his most sarcastic way, was ridiculing her for her venture. "You're always taking foolish ventures," he sneered. "Well, I remember when you were silly enough to buy a quarter box of soap because you expected to win a set of Hawaiian china through that investment." "Yes," she agreed sadly, "but that wasn't my first venture. John. Before that I expected to win a comfortable living by donning a wedding ring. But even that failure didn't cure me."

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA
Special Care of Baby.
That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.
Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.
A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for infants and children? Don't be deceived.
Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

WHAT THE ELECTION DECIDED.

Governor Coolidge's remarks in Boston on the significance of the national election presents his own views, of course, rather than those of the administration of which he will soon be a member, or of the majority in the Congress in which he is to preside.

His interpretation of the outcome deserves sufficiently on the merits of the man, a careful consideration.

The Governor doubts "whether any particular mandate was given" on the question of the League of Nations. He knows, of course, that the League plan brought back by President Wilson is dead, an ad hoc states.

What he denies is that the voters issued any positive mandate as to what should take this plan's place.

The situation seen in this way resembles that which arose in the railroad disposal matter after Congress had refused to follow out wild administration suggestions of enlarged Government control and the administration had washed its hands of the whole matter of the roads' salvation. It remained definitely settled that the promptness of the executive branch would not do; but for many months other ideas sought for mastery.

In the end the idea of return to private operation, suitably modified to guard against disorder in revenues and in rates won out.

So now the one most insistent and least acceptable plan of international relations having passed out of the reckoning, advocates of all other shades and sorts of arrangements will have their say. It will result in the nation's making an analogous choice; we shall return to American operation of American affairs and disassociation from the affairs or control of others, with such suitable modification, probably very slight, as will insure against temporary disorder incident to American withdrawal from fields that only extreme emergency had brought into range of this country's concern.

THE DEATH RECORD.

ELIZABETH LANSDALE MILLER

Following a long and hopeless illness, Mrs. Elizabeth Lansdale Miller, wife of Mr. Charles M. Miller, died at an early hour Saturday morning, November 27, 1920, in the South County Hospital, Wakefield, Rhode Island.

Accompanied by two of her daughters with relatives and friends from near by points, the remains arrived in Oakland on train No. 11 Monday afternoon, the 29th, and after a very beautiful service in St. Matthew's church, conducted by the rector, the Rev. W. E. Bayle, the interment was made in the family lot of the churchyard where are interred Mrs. Miller's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Lansdale.

Mrs. Miller is survived by her husband, Mr. Charles M. Miller, and five daughters: Miss Jennie L. of Keyser; Bessie M., wife of Dr. Henry B. Potter, of Wakefield, Rhode Island; Nannie L., wife of Mr. William J. Kendrick, of Reese Mills, W. Va.; Carolyn M., wife of Dr. J. Paul Jones, of Wakefield, Rhode Island, and Elizabeth M., wife of Mr. Myron G. Tucker, of Providence, Rhode Island. It will be a consolation to many residents of Garrett county that, through the protracted illness in the Wakefield hospital, Mrs. Miller received from the ladies and gentlemen of that hospitable town, a refinement of warm and constant attention and solicitous care, exceptional even among the best of our humanity, and, whatever medical and surgical practice can contribute, was hers to stay the hand of death.

This passing away has tenderly touched and deeply stirred a fountain of sympathy but in so afflictive a dispensation few indeed can ever know what sunshine has been taken from the family door.

The School Bulletin

VOL. I. GARRETT COUNTY, MD., DEC. 2, 1920. NOS. 1-2.

MORE OR LESS INTRODUCTORY.

The public schools of Garrett county have been passing through a period of radical changes since June 1, 1916. These changes have been due to three causes:—

1. The passage of the new State-wide public school law as recommended by the General Education Board of New York City to the General Assembly of Maryland in 1916.

2. The changed industrial and economic conditions which were present during the World War in Europe.

3. The effects of the World War that still prevail to which the school system of the county has not yet fully adjusted itself.

The friends of public education have recognized the presence of these three unusual conditions set forth above and have been both patient and sympathetic because of them. However, it is now time to enter upon a study of the present condition of the public school system so that the friends of public education may assist in having the school system of the county adjust itself to the requirements of the State-wide school law of 1916 as well as to the now active effects of the World War. We need not tarry long on the changing industrial and economic conditions which dominated during the World War that have now passed away—that water has gone over the wheel—but during the War they had a great effect upon the school system of the whole country. It is now only necessary for us to devote our attention to the school law of 1916 as well as to the present effects of the World War that have created such active forces that are so powerful as to demand careful thought and consideration.

Accordingly, it is planned this department develop from time to time more in detail: (1) the three agencies set forth briefly above; (2) the facts as brought out by the publication in The Republican last week of the annual report of the County Board of Education, and (3) the discussion of any phase of school administration that may appear to be of particular interest to those who are greatly interested in the successful advancement of the local school system. Furthermore, this seems more necessary since the ballot has been given to women, and those who advocated votes for women used as one of their arguments that the women would take great interest in having good schools.

Finally, the true situation and condition should be thoroughly and correctly understood. No intelligent decisions can be arrived at upon any other basis. As set forth by the Committee of the National Education Association in Uniform Records and Reports, in its report to the Department of Superintendence in 1911:

"The necessity of systematic effort toward acquainting the public with the problems and needs of the school is now felt on every hand. Mere assertion, personal opinion and personal bias have little weight. The public takes seriously only those presentations of school needs and conditions which are based upon fully collected and well-interpreted facts. Only by the use of such data, set forth by means of tables, colored circles, curves, black line graphs or other graphic representations, can the people be made acquainted with the whole work of the school, be made to realize where the school breaks down, be brought to understand the necessity of certain adjustments within the school, be brought to appreciate the propriety of expending such large sums of public money upon education. Only by these means can the public be convinced that the modern school, despite its wide range of instruction and activities, is more effective than the school of the past, and is seeking as never before to serve all the children and all the people of the community."

HOW GARRETT COUNTY SPENT ITS SCHOOL DOLLARS, 1919-1920.

The little boy has a strong desire to get the axe and break open the watch and see what makes the wheels go round. This desire of the coming man is encouraged by his fond parents and is called by them "a desire to investigate." This same disposition is still active in the normal man and is then called "curiosity." Then, later, when the man comes to his second childhood, this "curious" instinct still sticks with him and he is then described as being "meddlesome."

In obedience to this same instinct, we plan in this issue of The School Bulletin to "go into" one phase of the annual report of school receipts and expenditures for the school year 1919-1920 as published in The Republican.

The reader who desires more information upon that report than is given in this article, is referred to it in its published form.

On page 210 of "School Statistics and Publicity," by Alexander, we read: "Once in a while a long table of receipts and expenditures is justified on the ground that citizens demand it. They may demand it even though they will never read it, because they think it will secure greater honesty and efficiency in handling school moneys. But such a table may be more tolerable by using double entry," like the following, at this time for Garrett county:

Receipts:

State School Tax $ 39,444.81
State Free School Tax 11,237.11
Federal Vocational Fund 325.00
County Property Tax 49,583.02
Licenses and Tuition Fees 313.00
Bank Interest 194.60
Sales of Text Books 81.52
Loans made on deferred payments on 1919 county property tax or levy 11,000.00
Other sources 286.71
Balance at beginning of year33

Total received $ 101,391.59

Expenditures:

1. General Control $ 5,338.74
2. Instructional Service—
126 Elementary Teachers @ $374 each 59,466.79
12 High School Teachers @ $936.42 each 11,237.11
Other Instructional Service 6,239.74
3. Operation of School Plants 6,420.58
4. Maintenance of School Plants 5,647.56
5. Auxiliary Agencies 343.23
6. Fixed Charges 747.20
7. Debt Service 767.42
8. Capital Outlay 5,181.52

Total expended $ 101,390.59
Balance at end of year 1.00

GRAND TOTALS $ 101,391.59 $ 101,391.59

In setting forth graphically or in picture form the comparisons of these expenditures given above, we find they are as follows:

1. General Control $ 5,338.74
2. Instructional Service 76,943.64
3. Operation of School Plants 6,420.58
4. Maintenance of Plants 5,647.56
5. Auxiliary Agencies 343.23
6. Fixed Charges 747.20
7. Debt Service 767.42
8. Capital Outlay 5,181.52

(a) Elementary Teachers 59,466.79
(b) High School Teachers 11,237.11
(c) Other Costs 6,239.74

It is rather interesting to learn from the above summarized statement of receipts and disbursements that the school funds were just seven cents MORE at the close of the year, on July 31, 1920, than they were at the close of the preceding school year—$1.00 as opposed to .93 cents. That's a gain, however, of seven cents.

It will be rather interesting to work out and set forth next week just how much of each dollar was spent last year went into each of the eight items of expense listed above under expenditures. How was the spent dollar divided?

To schools which had enrolled prior to November 20th were the Garrett County High school, the Grantsville schools, Hutson Mountain, Lone Park, Combination, Prettyman, Silver Knob, Bear Creek, New Germany and two teachers at Shellmar. This year the Junior Red Cross is working on an entirely different basis, the idea being "training for citizenship." The motto is, "I Serve." The membership fee is so small that there should be one hundred per cent. enrollment in the schools. Aren't you going to add the name of your school to the list?

Letters have been sent out to all the schools, but additional information may be obtained from Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, secretary and treasurer of Garrett County School Chapter.

Melvin A. Gawthrop, a miner residing at Kitzmiller, this county, was held by United States Commissioner Thomas J. Anderson at Cumberland Saturday night last for the action of the Federal grand jury at Cumberland in May on a charge of making a barrel of "old hen."

A. Towler and the members of the Boys' Agricultural Club, several of whom, however, could not be present. The dinner, which consisted of turkey and all the delicious "trimmings" and accompaniments, and a desert of pie a la mode, was prepared entirely by the girls and Miss Henshaw and was a most successful affair. The girls included, besides Miss Henshaw, Alverta and Mary Miller, Esther Zehner, Elizabeth Engle, Ethel Miller, Clara Hanft, Helen Loeche, Jane Bowen and Gertrude Beachy. HOLIDAY APPEAL FOR CHILDREN WHO ARE SUFFERING IN THE EAST

Committee For Armenian and Syrian Relief Asks That America Give of It's Abundance To The Little Ones Over Seas.

At this season of prosperity and plenty throughout this broad Christian land it is meet and proper that we should give a thought to others not so fortunate as ourselves. While we give thanks around our bounteous laden boards at Christmas, let us pause and think of the starving, homeless, freezing little waifs beyond seas, and of our abundance spare them at least a tithe.

The approaching holiday season is the time when our own little ones will be happiest, well fed, warmly clad and full of the Christ like joy which the advent of His birth always brings. So for their sake let us all endeavor to bring some measure of comfort to the little brothers and sisters of our children, whose hardships are robbing them of the happiness that should be every child's birthright.

The Committee for Near East Relief is issuing the following open letter to the American public, which should be proud of the privilege of assisting so worthy a cause:

Dear Friend: The children of Sorrow stand before you! Won't you set a place for them at your table on Christmas Day?

They are ragged, homeless and hungry, but they are not hopeless. In their simple faith, they turn trustfully to you.

The children of Sorrow! There are unknown thousands of them: 110,639 of whom are under American care. It is an appalling number of pitiful, orphaned wards the Near East Relief must shelter under its merciful wings. There is little after mile of human misery to be relieved.

Fatherless and motherless these are the children of Armenians, Greeks, Syrians and Jews made homeless and dependent by the atrocities of the Turks. They will have no place this year at a family table of their own on the Great Day we celebrate.

As you eagerly plan this festival for the children dear to your own heart, think for a moment what it would mean if some terrible fate deprived them of your love and care, left desolate.

C. E. meeting was led most ably Sunday evening by the junior superintendent, Allen J. Bender, the topic being "A Great Thanksgiving." M. E. services were held immediately following with a good sermon by Rev. Johnson.

Dalton Warnick, a student at Frostburg Beall High School, spent the week-end with his parents here. Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Beall, of Wellersburg, Pa., were Grantsville visitors Friday.

Miss Ethel Broadwater spent several days in Cumberland last week. Miss Lulu Warnick spent Wednesday night with Miss Marie Connor.

Master Sammy Beachy from Salisbury, Pa., spent the past week with his father, Ward Beachy. Mrs. Robert Boxer, who has been a patient at Western Maryland Hospital in Cumberland for several weeks, and undergoing an operation while in that institution, is now convalescing at her home near Grantsville. Mrs. J. J. Benier and little son Clyde have returned from a visit to Pittsburgh, where they were guests of late, suffering with disease and bitter cold. Yet those children across the sea were once the adored and beloved babies of other fathers and mothers whose protecting love they never will know again.

A diet of bread for breakfast, bread and soup for dinner and bread for supper! And yet this slender ration means life to them.

Five dollars a month will feed one child. Ten dollars a month will feed and clothe one. Fifteen dollars a month will feed, clothe, shelter and educate one of these Children of Sorrow. Maryland has 2,084 of these orphans in the city of Alexandria, for which she is responsible.

At this season of giving won't you let the claim of one of these Children of Sorrow find a place in your heart?

His hungry eyes look at your woolfed children, and his longing hand reaches out to your Christmas tree.

Will you bring a smile to this Child of Sorrow by sharing with him your Christmas?

That your county may receive due credit, make your check payable to your local Treasurer, whose name appears below:

Another Paper Has To Quit.

After a career of usefulness of almost three-quarters of a century, the Fulton (Pa.) Republican quit with last week's issue for reasons, as the publisher, F. McNaughton Johnson, stated, "the increased cost of everything entering into the cost of publishing a newspaper, including material and labor, which has advanced from 100 to 300 per cent. since the plant was taken over three years ago." That's explanation enough. That explains why the Democratic News in Chambersburg no longer exists; why the Mercersburg Journal closed; why the Hancock Star, the Hyndman Bulletin and hundreds of other newspapers had to suspend or double up. Very few of the branches of business have been hit as hard as that of printing and publishing, and there it sits—its own life to be any relief in sight.—Herald.

IOWA IS MADE A TARGET

Famous Battleship To Be Objective of Big Naval Guns.

Will Go to Sea Unmanned, Under Own Steam and Controlled by Wireless for Control Experiment.

Washington.—The once famous battleship Iowa, which played no small part in the destruction of Corcoran's fleet at Santiago, is being prepared at the Philadelphia navy yard for what naval officers say will be one of the most unique target experiments ever attempted.

Proceeding unmanned, but under her own steam and controlled by radio, probably from seaplanes, the old sea fighter will become the objective of the big guns of the Atlantic fleet super-dreadnaughts in Chesapeake bay late this summer. This will be the first time that American warships have sar college and a member of the Wesleyan unit of the American committee for relief in the near East, will be his assistant. Mrs. Anna E. Rothrock of Glenside, Pa., will be superintendent of nurses and her assistants will be Miss A. Estelle Sutton of Detroit, Miss Roberta K. Sharpe of New York and Miss Mary E. Coughlin of Acton Center, Mass.

Constantinople College for Women will open a school for nurses in connection with the hospital, and within a year will open a woman's medical college to afford medical training for women of all nationalities and religions.

The Rockefeller foundation has promised to send a board of inspection to Constantinople and the hospital board hopes to get the assistance of that organization in a general improvement of health and medical conditions in the near East.

The need for a hospital for English-speaking patients is very urgent.

British Scientist Makes Daring Experiment in Interest of Aviation.

WAS HERMETICALLY SEALED

Question Involved Was Would It Be Possible to Calculate Quantity of Oxygen Necessary to Airman at High Altitudes.

London.—Six days sealed up in a glass case is a daring experiment bearing on aviation which has just been carried out by a middle-aged British university professor, Joseph Barcroft, F. R. S., reader in physiology at Cambridge university. The question involved was whether it would be possible to calculate the quantity of oxygen necessary to an airman at high altitudes.

The case in which Mr. Barcroft was shut up for six days in a specially erected in a quiet room in the physiological laboratory. It was about seven feet high and about ten feet broad. The floor, walls and roof were made of glass, hermetically sealed and divided into two compartments—one fitted with a lounge chair and table and the other with a simple bed.

Took Regular Exercise.
At the foot of the bed was a pedaling apparatus consisting of a frame of a bicycle, from which the front wheel had been removed, and a small back wheel with a frame attached, to enable Mr. Barcroft to get some exercise and cause a certain amount of work to be done.

During his six days in this case Mr. Barcroft spent his time in work

American firms are opening branches in Constantinople every week. This has become a great rendezvous for the American navy. The Young Men's Christian association and Young Women's Christian association have large organizations. In addition to many relief and missionary bodies, which are constantly in need of hospital space for their personnel.

Under the direction of the Constantinople unit of the American committee for relief in the near East, an open-air hospital for tuberculous children has also been established on the shore of the Bosphorus a few miles north of Constantinople. This hospital is under the direction of Dr. Elie Richards, F. R. S., and is designed as a model institution which the Americans hope to get the Turkish, Greek, Armenian and Jewish communities to duplicate.

The American hospital has leased a large private residence in Stamboul, the Turkish section of Constantinople.

relating to the experiments, in taking exercise on the bicycle and in sleeping. He was kept under observation day and night to insure his personal safety, college students and others taking their turn to keep watch.

Nitrogen was continually introduced into the chamber and the air became gradually rarer in oxygen until it approximated that at an altitude of 16,000 feet, when Mr. Barcroft, who has had experience in mountaineering, experienced considerable inconvenience from sickness and sleeplessness, and also an indisposition to take any food.

Felt Rather Shaken.
At the close of the experiment some blood was taken from Mr. Barcroft's arm. The oxygen the blood contained was separated and it was found to agree with the expectations of the experiment.

Mr. Barcroft confesses to having felt rather shaken up after his escape from the glass case but did not look much the worse for the experience.

The experiment is regarded here as thoroughly successful and a scientific report of it will be laid before the next meeting of the British association, where Mr. Barcroft will be president of the physiological section.

MOLLY

By NELLIE A. FAIRBANKS.

1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Molly's grandmother pictured a dark, uncertain future for Molly, for the old lady shaking her head, exclaimed, "No good ever comes of girls who continually whistle and chew gum." But worse than that the horrified old lady threw up her hands a few days later when she heard Molly confide to a little neighbor that "I like lick any kid in this town," and by way of emphasis started to climb to the roof of the shaky old barn.

The grandmother closed the window with a shudder, then sat down to wonder for the hundredth time where Molly got her peculiar characteristics. Her son, Molly's father, died when Molly was one year old, and as the daughter-in-law had always been cold and distant to her mother-in-law they soon drifted apart. For years the old lady heard nothing from the daughter-in-law or baby. Then when Molly was thirteen her mother died, and for some time she was speechless and could not admit it. Then she closed her eyes to the frightful girl and pictured in her place the son she had worshiped and who was the father of this child.

Yes, she was Grandma Curtis, but for some time she was speechless and could not admit it. Then she closed her eyes to the frightful girl and pictured in her place the son she had worshiped and who was the father of this child.

Then came days of agony for the little old lady, for she never knew what Molly was going to do next. Perhaps the most unparaphrased act the child committed was to snuck the minister's handkerchief out of his pocket and carefully wrap up a snail, then slyly slip the handkerchief back. The minister disappeared soon after, and so did a great part of the old lady's peace of mind.

Everything in the Curtis household seemed to be going the wrong way since Molly came.

A feeling of despair was fast stealing over Grandma Curtis, and she tried hard to make herself believe she was not beginning to hate this strange, wild grandchild.

Molly was sent to the post office for the mail one evening, and when the clerk handed her a small blue envelope addressed to Mrs. Curtis she at once recognized the childish scrawl as that of her little playmate, Grandma. A look of fear crept into the big blue eyes, Molly's only pretty feature, and, clutching the envelope tightly, she started for home. When she was out of sight of the post office she hastily ripped open the envelope and read the following:

"Dear Grandma: I have been waiting to hear from you. Please let me come to you; I am so lonely since mamma died. Even my little playmate that mamma took to our home three years ago went away, and no one knows where she went. Let me come to you, grandma, and I will always take care of you."

"Your loving grandchild."

"MOLLY CURTIS."
A horrible feeling took possession of Molly, such as she had experienced when she was coming down with the measles, and she thought of the other letter she had opened four weeks ago, and of the wild desire that had come over her when the money tumbled out that was to bring Molly Curtis to her grandmother.

Starting to run she soon reached the Curtis home, but what a changed Molly. The white face showed up the brown freckles painfully and Grandma Curtis was really alarmed at the state of affairs. She hurried Molly and her guilty conscience into bed and giving her a hot drink she sat down by the bedside and took the cold little hands into hers. Yes, Molly was surely sick. There were tears in her eyes and those tears softened Grandma Curtis' heart. She knew now that she loved her little girl and did not want her to be sick. Drawing Molly close to her she stroked the soft red hair and called her "Dear little grand-daughter." This was too much for Molly, and burying her head in Mrs. Curtis' arm she confessed all; how the real Molly's mother had taken her to live with them three years before, and how she had secretly opened the letter Mrs. Curtis had written to Molly and lost of all how she had presented herself to Mrs. Curtis as Molly when she was really Mary Clark.

All was silent for a minute, then Mary thought she heard a sob and looking up through her tears discovered that Mrs. Curtis' eyes were wet also. "Why, grandma—" then she checked herself, she almost forgot that this really wasn't her grandmother.

"Call me grandma just the same, Mary, for I have decided that two grandchildren will be lots better than just one."

The happy look that came over Mary's face almost told Grandma Curtis that chewing gum and whistling was a thing of the past, and when the real Molly arrived she told her grandmother that she was a wonder, for no one else had ever been able to tame Mary.

G. S. Wyckoff, the Vigo county scout executive, is both very tall and very slender. The other day one of his young friends said laughingly, "Since uniforms make a person so much more popular, I believe I'll have to get me one. Oh, by the way," she continued, "do you happen to have an old suit of khaki like this one. I thought I might get it and have it cut down for myself."

RUBY IS JULY BIRTHSTONE

Gem Has Been Associated Through the Centuries With Some Remarkably Quant Superstitions.

The ruby is the birthstone of July. It was associated in ancient times with many queer superstitions. How these old fancies originated or how they could have been palmed off on the public it is difficult to imagine. The fact that the common people had implicit faith in them proves how very much more credulous the world once was than it is today.

For instance, the ancients believed that if a ruby were worn about the neck it conferred the power of seeing in the dark. One wonders what monumental faker started this absurd conceit and for what purpose. It was generally believed, however, possibly because rubies were costly and the common people could not test the matter for themselves.

The ruby also was supposed to be a talisman against evil spirits, the plague and poison. By the deepening of its color it forewarned its wearer against impending misfortune. If tied upon the forehead in a linen cloth it was believed to be a specific for disease of the eye.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Most Costly Ever Presented Even to the Long Line of His Distinguished Predecessors.

Ferdinand Foch, marshal of France, will soon be the recipient of the most expensive baton ever presented to a marshal of France. At the base of the baton, which is 20 1/4 inches long, are embossed in gold the names of Marshal Foch's capital victories—Metz, St. Gond, the second Marne, Strasbourg, etc. Above this, in gold on red copper, appears the legend: "Terror belli, deus Pacis!"—"Terrible in war, gentle in peace." Then beyond the field of blue and stars appears the inscription, "Maréchal Ferdinand Foch, 1914-19," and this is surmounted by the golden arms of France, the United States, Lorraine's dual cross and the arms of the Knights of Columbus. The alloy of the metal parts of the baton is one from Pennsylvania.

James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, will present the baton to Marshal Foch when the marshal unveils the statue of Lafayette which the Knights of Columbus will present to France.

KITZMILLER

Miss Caroline Walker spent Thanksgiving with friends at Hagerstown. Mr. Hollis Wilson, a student at the West Virginia University, Morgantown, spent Thanksgiving with his mother here. Mr. Edward Oleon has returned from Davis, West Va. Mr. Hugo DeVall and Miss Ua DeVall spent Thanksgiving day at Frostburg.

There is an old custom prevailing in this community of "pounding" the M. E. North preacher each year just before Thanksgiving, so on Tuesday night before the said day quite a number of the ladies belonging to the Ladies Aid Society and their husbands, several M. G. C. girls and a dozen or more high school girls, met at the residence of Mrs. Victoria Rafter and from there they went in a body to surprise Rev. and Mrs. Bird.

They were surprised, all right, and everyone reported a jolly time. Mr. D. W. Walker, Jr., a student at the W. Va. Prep., Keyser, spent the Thanksgiving recess here with his parents. Mr. A. L. Lee, of Gorman, spent Thanksgiving day here. Messrs. Allen Smith and Ferree Trout, students at Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, West Va., also spent Thanksgiving at their respective homes here. The first basket ball game this season the High School boys played was at Bayard, West Va., on Thanksgiving day. The Kitzmiller High boys won by a score of 22-2. The boys who made the trip were Messrs. Charles Sprague, Harry Wilson, Lyman Hoey, Cecil White, Herbert Durham, Roy McRobie and Joe Bona. Mr. Herman A. Ziel spent Thanksgiving day at Crafton, Pa., the home of his mother. Mrs. Virginia Price spent Saturday in Piedmont.

Misses Marion Trout and Dore Gough spent the week-end at Cumberland. Miss Belva Barnes has returned to Kitzmiller from a visit of a few days with her sister in Cumberland. Mr. and Mrs. William Snyder spent Sunday in Cumberland.

FAIR SWEEP

Mr. Leroy White nearly lost his senses Sunday evening when the doctor exclaimed: "They are twins." Mr. Simon Greaser and sister Miss Agnes, of Johnstown, Pa., who spent a few days at the Browning home, returned to Johnstown Friday morning, accompanied by Miss Mattie Browning, who expects to remain there a few days. Misses Nellie and Myrtle White and Masters George and Harold White spent Sunday evening with Miss Margaret Meyers. The following were callers at the home of Mr. Orval Thayer Sunday: Messrs. Elliott Dilley, Henry Meyers, Otkey Savage and Wilbert Sliger. Miss Bridget Maroney, who is the teacher of the Fair Sweep school, was a guest on Monday evening at the home of Mr. P. P. Gortner at Gortner. Miss Kathryn Kildow, who spent the past two weeks with her father, Mr. Hopwood Kildow, returned to Clarksburg on Sunday.

SWANTON

The weather last week was awful, but this week we are enjoying some lovely days. The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Sweitzer Sunday and left a bouncing baby boy. Congratulations. On Saturday the sad news was received in our little town of the death of Mrs. Charles M. Miller, formerly of Swanton, but for the past few years residing in Keyser with her family. Her death occurred on Friday in a hospital in Rhode Island, where she was undergoing treatment. Burial was made in Oakland on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Miller was greatly beloved by all of this community. The members of the bereft family have the heartfelt sympathy of the residents of Swanton. Mr. Floyd Friend and two children, of Gassaway, West Va., spent Thanksgiving Day with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Friend, of this place. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Simonds, of Cumberland, were also here on Thanksgiving Day where they were guests of Mrs. Simonds' parents. Richard Bray and Walter Kimmell, of near Kitzmiller, spent Sunday evening at the home of Mr. B. T. Bray. Mrs. Lohr was a Keyser visitor on Monday. The Sunday schools here are making preparations for their Christmas entertainments. Mrs. B. T. Bray and daughter Iva were business visitors to Kitzmiller Saturday. Harry Dewey Warnick, of Bond, spent Thanksgiving day with his mother, Mrs. Hooker, of this place. The family of Mr. Joseph Glass has moved to Flame, West Va. We will greatly miss them. Miss Flora Sweitzer, of Keyser, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Sweitzer at this place. Miss Ruth Sweitzer is attending school at Westernport. Mrs. B. T. Bray called on Mrs. Wm. Sweet and Mrs. Homer Hardesty, Sunday.

BITTINGER

Violators of the law will have a season of unmolested freedom since Constable Clark Brennan will be completely engrossed with the fatherly duty of rocking the young daughter that arrived at his home on last Saturday. Mrs. F. J. Glatfelter motored to the neighboring town of Grantsville on Sunday evening, where she will remain a few days at the bedside of her son Nimrod, who is recovering from an attack of pneumonia. Mrs. Ellen Enloe is reported among the sick this week and is being attended by Dr. Bowen, of Grantsville. Mrs. Clyde Broadwater returned to her home in this village on Saturday evening after spending a few days with her brother, Mr. J. Milton Gnagey, in Meyersdale, Pa. Mr. Gray, superintendent of the Phyllis Coal Mining Company, with his family, passed through this village last Sunday evening. Mr. B. Harrison Wiley, teacher in charge of the Legner school, is confined to his home by a severe cold and was unable to resume his duties in school this week. Messrs. Benjamin Long and Irvin Bittinger, of Oakland, were in this community early last week installing heaters in the homes of Gilbert Green and C. R. Broadwater. Austin Bittinger, of Jennings, spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. E. S. Brennan, of this village. George Reitzell reports the discovery of a three foot vein of coal on his farm near here and purposes opening the same, the product to be sold to local consumers.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford Coupe

The Ford Coupe is surely the Salesman's car. Thousands of them are bought every year by firms employing traveling salesmen. Many firms buy fifty or one hundred at a time, because they know, from experience, that the Ford Coupe increases the efficiency of the salesmen at a minimum of expense. Contractors, builders, collectors, solicitors, physicians all find the Ford Coupe the most convenient as well as the most economical among motor cars. Lowest in purchase price, lowest in operating costs, and backed by the Ford Service organization—coupled with the durability of the car itself—these furnish the reason for the Ford popularity. Let us send you a copy of "Ford—A Business Utility." It tells what other concerns have learned about the Ford in business service. But, better still, let us have your order today. The demand keeps growing. Orders are filled in the order as received—and our allotment is limited a specified number each month.

FORDSON

The Ford Motor Company have just issued a book called "The Fordson at Work." This book is given free. Call in and get one. If you cannot call, write and we will mail you one without charge. It is not what the Ford Motor Company says about the Fordson Tractor but what the army of users have to say: This book voices the hardest kind of practical experience. It shows an illustration of the Fordson Tractor at actual work along some ninety different lines of activity. It shows in these illustrations the wonderful versatility and utility of the Fordson Tractor. Shows it to be, beyond all question, the one bit of machinery that is a necessity, not only on the farm but along many lines of commercial business; especially does it show up the Fordson as a valuable servant on the farm. With it the farmer is relieved of the hard work; because he can take advantage of the weather in preparing his seed bed; he can do it at the right time; the same is true when it comes to harvesting. It solves, to a great extent, the problem of scarcity of labor.

With its wonderful, reliable power, it brings to the farm home all the conveniences, in the way of running water in the house, electric lights, operation of the washing machine, churning, separating the cream from the milk; it assumes and takes to itself, the drudgery of farm life both in the field and in the house and it is only a matter of a few years until it will be as universal in its service on the farm as is the farmer himself. It will become a part of farm life; a beneficial part; a profitable part. Get order in for there's a rush coming.

WHY WE NOW SELL The VICTROLA--Exclusively

Our convenient terms make it possible to pay for a Victrola while using it.

We never intentionally offer for sale any item of merchandise not of established merit and unquestioned reliability. Our constantly increasing volume of business we credit very largely to this policy of handling only the goods of the very highest reputation and quality.

For the past few years we have handled in addition to Victrolas, various other talking machines. The shortage of Victrolas, following the mobilization of the great Victor plant for war purposes, made this unavoidable. During this time we have investigated at first hand, the merits and the shortcomings of most talking machines. We have studied them with painstaking care, not only in customers' homes, but especially right in our own repair shops.

Our Experiences Have Convinced Us Positively That Hereafter We Can Conscientiously Recommend and Sell Only

THE VICTROLA

We are convinced that the Victrola is the World's Greatest Instrument—the peer of them all—the one chosen by the great artists and demanded by music lovers.

Its artists include all the really famous. One after another—Caruso, Farrar, Rachmaninoff, Hinfetz, Galli-Curci, McCormack, Gluck, Lauder and all the others—have chosen the Victrola as the one instrument to which they were willing to entrust their professional reputation.

It is supreme in fidelity and beauty of tone.

Its recording and reproducing methods are nearest perfect—securely protected by basic patents.

It is the least expensive—quality considered.

Its popular records are only 85 cents as compared with inferior makes at $1.00. Records by the world-famous Victor Artists are similarly less than those by the lesser artists of other records.

In beauty of design and workmanship it is absolute peer—the instrument by which all the others are judged.

It is certainly the instrument you will want for your home.

The Victrola Alone Measures Up to the Standards of our Store.

E. K. Vaningen, chief engineer of Pennsylvania State Highway work in the district immediately north of the town of Grantsville, announced that as soon as the weather opens in the coming spring, work will be started on the road through Meyersdale and south to Salisbury, ending with the connection with the National Pike in Maryland, near Grantsville. Engineers have been engaged the past few weeks making the necessary surveys to this end.

Mild Winter, According to Bats.
It's to be a mild winter, according to the bats. Thousands of bats each fall hibernate in the famous Marvel cave out in the Ozarks, near Springfield, Mo. When the winter is to be severe, they wing their way far into the winding passages, where no blizzard can send its icy breath. When it is to be mild, they hang by thousands from the walls and roof of the entrance chambers. This year the clusters of bats have formed in the entrance, and the Ozark mountaineers are making their plans accordingly.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.
Daniel B. O'Donnell vs. Edith M. O'Donnell. No. 2334 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce, a vinculo matrimonii, in behalf of Daniel B. O'Donnell, plaintiff, from his wife, Edith M. O'Donnell, defendant. The bill states that the plaintiff is a miner of coal and has been living in and about the town of Bloomington, Maryland, for something over three years past, and that his wife moved with him from Roswell, Pennsylvania, to Bloomington, where they lived a few months together, and then his wife separated from him and he does not know where she is now living but believes she is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

That there were no children born of said marriage.

That ever since they were married he has been a faithful and affectionate husband towards his wife up to the time she left him. That within a few months after his marriage he discovered that she was not faithful to him and that on diverse times he discovered adultery, and when his suspicions were aroused about her behavior he then trailed her and found her in company with another man carrying on her adulteries with him. That before he discovered her adulteries he contracted a venereal disease from her and then he determined himself to live with her no longer.

That your orator has not lived or cohabited with his wife, the said Edith M. O'Donnell, since he has discovered her adulteries.

The bill then prays that he may be granted a divorce, a vinculo matrimonii from the said Edith M. O'Donnell; that he might have such other and further relief as his case may require; and then prays that an order of publication should be issued against the said Edith M. O'Donnell alleging that she is not a resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon, this 30th day of October, 1920, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, in Equity, ordered, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 31st day of December, 1920, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 20th day of December next to show cause if any she has, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

CIRCUIT COURT IN SESSION

From Monday Until Yesterday When Recess Was Taken Until Next Week

The December term of the Circuit Court for Garrett county convened on Monday last with Associate Judge R. R. Henderson presiding, who charged the grand jurors, of which body Mr. D. M. Dixon, of Oakland, was the foreman. Judge Henderson's charge to the grand jury was delivered in the presence of the members of the bar and very few spectators, which is rather unusual, for there is generally a large crowd of people at the first morning's session of the court. Judge Henderson, in his charge to the grand jurors called their attention especially to a number of local laws applicable to this county and urged the body to be diligent in the discharge of matters that would come before them; to maintain secrecy concerning their investigations but at the same time to go thoroughly into the evidence tending to show violations of the law.

After the grand jury had retired to its room, the appeal docket was taken up and disposed of. On this docket very few cases, none of which were important, appeared.

On Tuesday morning the trial docket was called. The cases ready for trial were heard and disposed of and on Wednesday afternoon the grand jury adjourned after making its report and court recessed until Monday of next week when the criminal docket will be called, at which time the petit jurors will be called.

The grand jury report follows: To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court for Garrett county:

The Grand Jury for the December term of the Circuit Court for Garrett county now report to the Court that we have concluded our labors and have endeavored to faithfully discharge the duties devolving upon us as grand jurors.

We find the general moral condition of the county good and we believe that there is a decrease in crime in Garrett county since the abolition of intoxicants.

We have diligently and thoroughly enquired into all violations of the law which has been brought to our attention and have had before us and examined 67 witnesses and have found 23 presentments and 23 indictments. We have found presentments and indictments in all cases where the evidence warranted.

As requested by your Honors, we have examined the several county buildings and we regret to report that the exterior of these buildings have not been given the care and attention which buildings so elaborate and costly as these demand.

We appreciate the difficulty there has been for some time past in procuring competent labor and also the exceedingly high cost of materials, but we think that it will be a matter of economy and a saving to the taxpayers of Garrett county if these buildings be repaired and repainted where needed without further delay. We desire to call especial attention to some of the composition caps on the large columns of the Court House. These should be repaired or renewed; some of the woodwork should be repainted. All of the metal work on the windows of the Jail is rusting and should be painted without delay. We would suggest that the County Commissioners look over these buildings and make all needed repairs as soon as the weather conditions will permit.

In looking over the Jail we find that the bedding used in the hospital department is dirty and in bad condition, and we also find that there are insufficient mattresses and bedding to be used in the Jail. We believe the interior of the Jail should be given at least one coat of paint and that the Jail should be kept in a more sanitary condition.

We have looked over and examined the records in the various offices of the Court House and desire to commend those in charge for their neatness and system in keeping these records.

We also desire to extend our appreciation to the various officers of the Court for the courtesies extended us during our session.

We also desire to acknowledge with thanks the courtesies extended us by Honor Judge Henderson.

We extend to William R. Offutt, State's Attorney, our thanks for his efficient and able assistance and commend him for his thorough and economical manner in handling the matters of his office.

We also commend the janitor of the Court House for the neatness and sanitary condition in which the building and grounds are kept, and further commend him for the untiring interest he manifests in his work.

We now desire to be discharged. DARIUS M. DIXON, Foreman. E. W. ADAMS, G. J. POOL, Clerks.

BURGLAR ALARM SYSTEM

Installed In the First National Bank of Oakland.

Owing to the many bank burglaries which are occurring all over this and other States, the banks are beginning to use extraordinary precautions to protect themselves against the yeggmen.

The First National Bank of Oakland has installed the latest and most improved type of burglar alarm system on the market. The system is very complete in every detail. The walls, ceiling and floor of the vault are lined with copper wiring and at no point can an entrance to the vault be made without sounding the alarm, the construction being such and the installation of the system being arranged so that any attempt to enter the vault from any direction will set the gong to going, which is housed just above the front door of the banking room. The gong housing is also so constructed that any tampering with it, such as turning a bolt or attempting to cut the cable leading to it, will sound the alarm.

The vault door, in addition to the connections with the bolts through the combination of the locking device, has what is called the thermo-electric attachment which will cause the alarm to sound should the door be heated to a certain temperature. This will prevent any attempt on the part of burglars to burn through the vault door.

The entire system is controlled by an electrical timer located in the vault. This is set on definite hours for opening and closing and if the dial on the vault door is turned a fraction either way after a certain closing hour, it will also result in the sounding of the gong.

The O. B. McClintock Company of Minneapolis, Minn., manufacturers of this burglar alarm system, not only guarantees the contrivance to do its duty at all times, but also offers a standing reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of any party attempting any bank using the system.

"BOOTS" FRYE TO BE TRIED

Alleged Kitzmiller Bank Hold-Up Man Will Probably Plead Guilty

The trial of Luther (alias "Boots") Frye for participating in the hold-up at the Kitzmiller National Bank on the morning of May 4, 1917, is set for next Monday in the Circuit Court for Garrett county, which is now in session in Oakland with Associate Judge Henderson presiding.

Through a confession of "Mike" Neff, who was not implicated in the matter, Frye was apprehended in Virginia the latter part of last August and admitted his part in the robbery. In his confession, Frye involved Paul and Dave Neff, who are now serving terms in the Virginia Penitentiary for lawlessness in Shenandoah county, Va. These two will be brought to Maryland upon the expiration of their prison terms in Virginia and will be arraigned for their part in the hold-up of the bank.

Frye has been in the Garrett County Jail in Oakland since his arrest, and Sheriff Winters considers him a model prisoner. The probability is that he will enter a plea of guilty when the case is called and throw himself on the mercy of the court.

Resigns as Bank Cashier.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the First State Bank at Grantsville, Mr. J. O. Getty, cashier of the institution since its founding a number of years ago, tendered his resignation, and recommended the appointment of Mr. George W. Deffenbach as his successor. The latter has been employed in the bank for some time past in a clerical capacity, and the recommendation of Mr. Getty for his appointment met with the approbation of the other members of the board of directors and he was appointed immediately. Mr. Getty will still remain in close connection with the bank, having been elected chairman of the board of directors, a position which will require his personal supervision and constant presence in the banking room.

MY MOTTO: QUALITY FIRST

WE ALL DO FADE AS A LEAF

Many generations have passed down to return no more since the seer uttered the melancholy words: "We all do fade as a leaf."

Every day of our lives this sad lesson is impressed on our mind. Every season of the year has something that calls this to our minds, but none that so emphatically impresses us with our mortality as the Autumn. In moments of sadness we bemoan our sins and utter this truth, and this melancholy strain becomes the dirge of all nature when the summer is past and the lingering sun drags himself a little later each day above the eastern horizon and hastens earlier to his place in the west. As summer closes, we gaze on its lingering roses, reluctant to give them up for a few brief months. The brilliant hues of Autumn flame out on every hillside; the vine yields her rich clusters and casts aside its heavy green robe as if it required the sacrifice of its life to give its fruit to cheer the heart of man.

The woods are painted gorgeously, the sky is kindled and valleys are brightened with a glance of Autumn's eye. Rich fruits have been lavishly scattered; golden corn is being gathered, for he wrests the verdant robes of earth and summons the flowers away. The joyous song of the bird no longer fills the depths of the grove—it has sought another clime, for the quivering drapery of overshadowing branches are tossed in the air.

Summer days are gone, for Autumn's chill blast touches the young and tender, which withers and dies, showing us that nothing is too young or lovely to die.

The cawing of the crow is hushed, but the frisky squirrels chatter at sunrise and gnaw at the full grown nut. The ash is crimson in color; the twigs of the birches are tinged with yellow; the maple exchanges its silvery foliage for orange scarlet, and the sturdy oak, yielding to strong winds—as youth's pride comes to the duties of manhood—strews the ground with the glories of summer strength and feeds the earth with the remnant of its glory.

Every time Autumn visits us we are warned by a thousand voices to be ready for such a peaceful departure. Everything about us urges us to put on immortal beauty and to lay up our treasures in heaven. The decayed foliage about us now will be succeeded by the verdure of spring. This year's decay will nourish next year's vegetation. So if we do God's will He will take us from these transient joys and fading beauties of earth, only to give us the enduring riches and the exceeding great weight of glory.

The leaf has its mission in life. The raindrop falls on it and sunbeams shine upon it. It is kissed by the breezes of heaven and fanned by the gentle zephyrs and it daily grows with its delicate fibers and inhales warmth from the sunbeam and moisture from the dewdrop. While flowers wither and die, they leave their fruitful seed behind. Apple blossoms, though scattered to the winds, leave the tiny germ which ripens into fruit, but the leaf may be carried by the storm to a heap of withered ones at the foot of the tree and seemingly do no good. It does not refresh the drooping flowers nor bring light and warmth to the world, yet its mission is to guard the fruit from the scorching rays of the summer sun or the icy touches of the frost king, and when the ripened fruit is able to dispense with its protecting care, it puts on its holiday garb of russet and gold and crimson and is borne away to rest with its seer companions in the hollow of the grove. Each of us, like the leaf, has his mission in life.

It may not be grand and noble, as the world rates it, or sublime, yet it is a mission. We cannot do everything, but we can do something. Yes, the leaves of the forest pass away, but as they go they send a shadow over us reminding us that we, too, shall soon fade beneath the chilly blasts and withering frosts of the Autumn of life and sink into the narrow house appointed for all living.

How rapidly they are going! They, too, fulfilled their mission and passed on into the great unknown from which no traveler returns. Our beloved dead! They slipped away from us as quietly as the leaves of the trees about us.

We laid them in the grave maybe years ago, and now we are reminded of those sad scenes of the past. We see prattling childhood busy with its toys and engrossed in its pleasures. When the destroying angel has passed by, touches one, the voice is hushed, the bright eye is closed, sadness fills the house, for the blossom is faded, the light is gone out, the little bud is transplanted to blossom in the fertile soil of heaven.

Wasting fever smote its victim and quickly sapped the life-current of young and vigorous manhood that gave promise of a bright future. The hectic flush, the pale cheek, the hollow cough, tells the story too well—life's current is ebbing away, and in a little while we must lay him to rest with others in the Lord's garden. Some are already hoary with the frosts of three score and ten years and are almost ripe for the reaper's sickle. They remain like the last leaf on the tree but one of these nights there'll come a heavier frost and the morning light will find them quietly slumbering with the rest. Some in the noonday of life are sinking in the race. When their fondest expectations are about to be realized, they suddenly fall. The heart strings are severed, and like Autumn leaves they fade and fall. One of the characteristics of the present is that we seem to be departing from the old way of life and that way as described by Dryden two hundred years ago, is becoming more phenomenal.

"Of no despatch of no blast he died, But fell like Autumn fruit that mellowed long— Even wondered at because he dropped no sooner. Fate seemed to wind him for four score years, Yet fleesly ran on ten winters, Till like a clock worn out with beating time."

The wheels of weary life at last stood still."

We are pilgrims passing through the wilderness. We are nearer our home today than ever before. With each flying year we seem to be quickening our speed, for each year appears to us shorter than the previous one. With some of us day is declining. The end is almost in sight. The feelings of weariness, new pains, the silvered hair and furrowed faces all proclaim the lamentation of the inspired bard, "We all do fade as a leaf."

God would teach us in nature and His word not to set our affections too much on the things of time, but lay us up for ourselves treasures in heaven. Three things we may note concerning the decay of the leaf: (1) It is natural; it is just what is continually occurring. When the summer is past and the fruit is ripe, the leaves begin to change their color and then fall to the ground. Some trees and shrubs, it is true, retain their verdure during the year, yet on these you can find faded leaves; nay, their attire is changing. It is so with the physical existence of man. We begin to die when we begin to live. We are mortal. We spend our years as a tale that is told. The history of the ages is an unmistakable proof of this. Where are the builders of the pyramids? Where are the patriarchs and prophets? Where are the mighty armies and the great empires of the world? They were, but they are not, and they are as though they never were. As with the brave warrior, so with the most peaceful; as of enemies, so of friends. The stern visaged messenger is no respecter of persons. Tears of friends may flow and the prayers of the good may rise, but death, alike regardless of our tears and prayers, does His bidding and summons us away. (2) The decay of the leaf is gradual. It does not come to corruption in a day. Decay is going on before we detect it, and even after we discover it. It may hang for weeks before its slender hold is severed and it falls to the ground. How like man! There is a gradual corruption of his nature. When he has attained his full strength and expended his greatest vigor, the infirmities of his nature make their appearance. Youthful energy has gone and the strength of maturer years is no longer at his command. Sight begins to grow dim, the step totters, the hand grows feeble. They are not now as they were. Once they were full of leaves and fruit; now their leaves are decaying and falling, presently the spirit will soar heavenward where death nor decay cannot enter, and in you we may see the verification of the poem:

"The plants of grace shall ever live, Nature decays, but grace must thrive; Time, that doth all things else impair, Still makes them flourish fresh and fair."

Its decay may be hastened by external circumstances. The insect may sting it; the blight or excessive cold may hasten it. It would surely die because of an inherent principle of corruption, though these things may hasten it. Is it not thus with man? He must die because he is mortal, yet may he not hasten his death by his occupation, habits or pursuits? Does not the reckless debauchee shorten the life that might have been prolonged? At its longest, our life is but a span, is it not sad to think that many make it shorter than it was intended to be? "Oh, that man were wise, that they understood this, that they had considered their latter end." This being true, should it not produce humility in us? Yet we are proud. Proud of our faces; of our places and of our persons. Why all the care and labor to adorn the person, or to cover the circumstances so that you may appear to be what you in reality are not? How vain and foolish! And the fall, oh, how great it often is! "Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall." Are you tempted to be proud? Think of your mortality. What have you to be proud of? What is it upon which you bestow so much labor and pains to make it appear gay? A poor, corruptible body that has in it the seeds of its own dissolution, yes in which a process of decay is constantly going on. But dress it up as you will, and in a little while other hands will wrap a shroud around it and lay it in the grave, and the worm will be its companion while its beauty will fade into dust. Do you wish to destroy personal pride. Think of the casket that will contain of the grave that will receive and of the worm that will grow fat on your comely body, and ever bear in mind the words of the poet: "Pride, self-adoring pride, was primal cause."

Of sin past, all pain, all woe to come."

The remembrance of our decay produce sorrow in us. "The wages of sin is death." But for sin there would have been no death on earth. It would have been a paradise. No funeral knell would have sounded on our ears; no sad funeral procession would ever have been seen; nor sermons heard. No evils would have been committed and none of the evil consequences would have been felt. Oh, the ravages of sin! Our paradise is gone; our companion with our Maker is lost; the world is woefully corrupt and under the dominion of the evil one. When we remember our mortality, let us be ready for a peaceful departure. Everything about us urges us to put on immortal beauty. Autumn's foliage will be succeeded by the verdure of spring. We, like the leaves, fulfill our mission. God will take us from these transient joys and fading beauties of earth only to give us the enduring riches and exceeding great weight of glory.

How nature mellows her tone at this season. In June she laughingly made love to the flowers; now she has a sober look. Though she has entered a new period, she is not unhappy. She seems to be settling down to sleep after her exhilaration. These melancholy days are called the saddest of the year, but they should not be dreary to the Christian.

We need less excitement and more fondness, for thoughtfulness and repose. We are too much governed by our surroundings. With God in our soul we may be as happy in December as in May. Unless the heart is rooted in eternal love, we can't know this freedom of heart.

Does the fall of a leaf send regret through the mind of the invalid, seeing as they do in it a picture of their own decay? The contemplation of the richer, broader life beyond takes away all regret. As we think of our life's autumn shall we be sad? We are ripening for future use. Autumn can only be sad when it reveals fruitless trees and blasted fields.

Sunshine and toil, wind and dew have been wasted on it and the cumbrer must be cut down. We may cover barrenness of soul with the

A Word About Prices

In 1914, as you can ascertain through practically any investment banker, the Edison Laboratories were selling phonographs on a narrow margin of profit than the other manufacturers. Since 1914, the price of the New Edison has advanced less than 15%—and a portion of this is war tax. "Edison stood the gaff" to keep his favorite invention within the reach of everyone.

These rich Autumn days tell us of work done and fruit yet to be enjoyed. Has our life been well improved, then we who live in Jesus shall rise to higher, nobler, purer altitudes of being and fruitfulness beyond our present sphere—evermore in heaven.

We may not have ten talents, but we surely have one, and it is to be used for the Master, and when we have fulfilled our mission and our duty is done we shall be borne on seraph wings to the sweet rest of heaven.

We are passing now. Our places will soon be vacant. Now is work time; now is the time to shine. No matter what our attainments may be, the important thing will be, are we God's children? Have we sought to serve God and do good to our fellow men. Seek to live so that the remembrance of us by others will be fragrant and that what we do here may be for the glory of God and helpful to those who come after us. If so, though no costly monument mark our resting place here our memorial will be on high—our names will be written in the Lamb's Book of Life!

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Especially Prepared for The Republican by Dr. U. S. Wright.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 12

What the Kingdom of Heaven is like.

Matt. 13:44-58.

The Kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. Romans 14:17.

THE PASSION OF JESUS.

"Music, nature, children, honour, strife, revenge, money, pride, friendship, loyalty, duty,—to these objects and others like them the secret power of personal passion often turns, and the life unconsciously follows it, as the tides follow the moon in the sky." The driving energy of every man's life is here for the hidden desire is bound to color all his acts. It is no different with Jesus than with any other. He too felt the tug of a master passion and allowed it to shape the short years of His splendid life. "I am come to do Thy will, O God," underlay all else. But the exalting of that will in the work-a-day world is the very heart of the Kingdom dreams and because that is true Jesus had a Kingdom passion that he followed as devotedly as the Wise Men followed the star. Catching the flaming torch of a phrase from the fettered hands of John He fanned it into brighter burning by breathing upon it His own fuller knowledge and buried thru all the land trying to light the kindling spirits of men everywhere. But many refused to take fire for being a light is a costly thing. One must burn to blaze. The little group came to be the center of His hope and to them He opened the secret lying within. Speaking to the crowd on this day by the Lake it was the old story of the unfolding Kingdom that became His theme and while the twelve were always at the back of His mind beautiful stories were flung like jewels among the throng each one showing some phase of that life that was certain to become the real life of the world of men. But afterward within the little circle questions were answered and further light held before their minds that they might see things that were mysteries to those who caught only carelessly the word spoken in their ear.

THE FINDERS.

Three pictures of possession were drawn with swift strokes. The first is that of the chance discoverer of treasures that had been hidden and elated with the sudden joy he sells all his property and buys the field and holds the gold that is no longer hidden. Here is the great number of common folk who are busy at ordinary things to whom the Kingdom comes in the very midst of toil with no particular looking on their part. Recognizing its value they eagerly embrace it but the church was at their door, their heritage of home was filled with Christian ideas and some sudden event—sickness, accident, death, meeting a Billy Sunday or something else—caused their changed condition. The pearl merchant is vitally different. He has a full understanding of values and has his heart set upon finding the best that life holds. All other things are incidental to that and his eye was never upon the field at his feet but upon the far horizon of his dream. For him there is no contentment in any second rate thing. He is the idealist, the thinker who carefully weighs the jewel before investing and then out of full understanding relates his whole life to it. Such was the Governor of Tyre when he found his pearl wrapped in the letter of a Methodist preacher. The third picture included both these types each of whom has guided a home and become a keeper of treasure only to be a steward of its richness that thru their hands blessings may come to others. Among these the Disciples were first but all the long succession is under the same compulsion to use their treasure rightly as those who give account.

THE TREASURE.

The pot in the field may hold almost any conceivable thing that the owner desired to preserve. The first glance convinced the finder that it was of value to himself but there could be no time for examination lest another snatch away the opportunity. He experiences it and finds the hoard far greater than he dreamed so that there grows thru all his life the emotional joy of its possession. There is no bottom to the bag of prayer, of worship, of service and he develops the habit of obedience as he goes along. Yet always the treasurer was of human storing and he finds his emphasis being placed upon church building, upon the work of his fellowship and the activities in which it engages. Organization and architecture overshadow other things. The pearl was touched by no human finger in its making and the mystic sees all the wonders of the invisible in its sheen. It is the spirit that thrills his heart and enlists his life. And it probably is to be called out by the faith of the tinner who has finer eyes than others and is willing to pay the price of faith's venture. No who else does Christ so faithfully draw His own portrait. For the Kingdom is the merchant not the pearl and Jesus embodied in Himself all the characteristics of that Empire of the Spirit. Possessing all things that Heaven holds He saw in this world the fairest jewel yet and giving up all. He sought it in the open market, and paying the unheard of price of Calvary bought this old world for His own. God had made it and tho it was still not properly prized He knew its infinite worth and secured it for Himself. And like the householder treasure old—not breaking with the past—and now—not content that only the old has worth.

THE FISHERMEN.

The tares had pictured the world filled with the mingling of good and evil. This was spoken to those who were to be fishers of men and concerned their catch. They would spread out their net in the world's waters and would find it filled with fish but not all would be good. The fish have no choice here and those that were not brought within the meshes have no blame. But what of the fishermen? Why not a bigger net and more seaward boat? They had been told to launch out into the deep yet thru all the centuries the church has been content with a small hook-and-line job. Only in these last days has it seriously considered its world task and is seeking to spread its net in all waters and bring all the fish within its encirclement. Yet even here men are not the final judges of the good or bad within its bonds—it little becomes faulty and little fish to complain about others in the net.

THE MEN WHO FAILED.

Back to the old home went Jesus. Surely they would listen to His message now so they should have their second chance at life. But they knew too much of the plain every-dayness of this carpenter to dream of anything but His presumption at claiming to be the Messiah. It is the men familiar with the Church of Christ who often stumble thru their supposed full knowledge. How can the church possibly settle the racial frictions? How can the church do anything for the problem of poverty? How can the church change human nature? Yet we know that it is only under the touch of the scarred hand that there is hope for this old world and that all the failure in the earth has been in the following Nazareth instead of John and Peter and Paul and the rest.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford One-Ton Truck

As a matter of fact we might almost as well call it a Three-Ton Truck, for it very rarely carries a smaller sized load. The owners of the Ford truck take advantage of the high qualities of materials which are known to be put in the Ford car, take advantage of the high quality of Ford workmanship which characterizes Ford cars and they overload to the limit. Well, the Ford truck has never broken down with any of these overloads. It delivers expectations and double expectations, so far as carrying capacity is concerned, and while that is not fair to the truck, still the owners are satisfied.

But the Ford one-ton truck, with its aluminum bronze worm drive, its greater weight and strength of frame and its incomparable power plant is without a reasonable competitor in price, in service, in cost of operation. It is the lowest priced truck on the market, of equal capacity. No other truck on the market operates so economically and we believe there is no other truck that will give as satisfactory and profitable results. Our allotment is limited. Better leave your order without delay.

FORDSON

More and more every day the demand for the Fordson Tractor increases because the Fordson has demonstrated so much usefulness, so much economy, so much labor saving, so much money saving, along so many lines of activity. The farmer has discovered that not only for plowing, harrowing, discing, seeding, mowing, reaping and threshing, but a multitude of other uses; cutting wood; feed; grinding feed; churning; washing; furnishing water in the house; making electric light possible in the house and around the barns; so that, as a matter of fact, there is hardly an hour in the day when the Tractor cannot be made a profitable servant. There is ditching to do; the roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the numerous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery."

This is the Age of Machinery, the day when man plans the day's work, or the year's work, and then turns it over to the Tractor to execute. Get the book, "The Fordson at Work," because it is free. If you cannot call for it, write and we will mail it to you. The Tractor is not only a necessity to every farmer but is an established utility along a great many commercial lines. Our allotment is limited to so many each month. Let's have your order now.

THE SPENDERS' DEMANDS.
The armistice was signed about two years and a month ago, but the Government spenders of the American people's money act as if it is all news to them.

The department heads of the National Government, who are still living in the smoke and tumult of the war which is long past, and still thinking in terms of billions, ask from Congress to cover army expenditures in the new fiscal year $270,000,000 more than was appropriated for the present fiscal year. To cover navy expenditures, exclusive of the building program, they ask $175,000,000 more than was appropriated for this year. For the building program they ask $80,000,000 more than was appropriated for this year.

On July 1, 1921, when the new fiscal year begins, we shall have had peace for the better part of three years, but the department plungers, who act as if they didn't know the war was over, want for all items of military expenditures a round billion and a half of dollars. This is $822,000,000 more than the $225,000,000 appropriated for the present fiscal year. The Shipping Board wants $147,000,000 more. This, that and the other departments want more. Altogether, with what they probably will want for deficiency and other payments overdue, but not met, the Government spenders will ask about a billion dollars more than the appropriations for the present fiscal year.

What Congress needs to do with these military estimates, what Congress needs to do with other estimates by department heads of the National Government who don't yet know the war is over, is not to get into a knife or an axe, but to run them through a saw mill.

TUBERCULOSIS SEAL SALE.
It is a happy idea that adds to the sentiment of the holiday season and at the same time gives aid to a noble cause. This is the month of the Maryland Christmas Tuberculosis Seal Sale. What a fine thing it would be could their purchase and use become an established seasonal custom as is the exchange of Christmas greetings itself; could the overcoming of the dread disease be woven into and made a natural part of the holiday observance!

Maryland is doing excellent and advanced work in combating tuberculosis. Enlisted in the fight are devoted men and women who give their time and interest freely. They are conducting this Seal Sale along fine lines and with great selflessness. The money raised will be used both in prevention and in nursing, and both services fill needs that are met by no other agencies. When you buy the Seals you are not only joining in a splendid undertaking and adding to the appearance of your letters and bundles, and increasing the holiday spirit, but you are saving people from the dreaded scourge; you are sending a nurse to a forlorn bedside; you are putting sunshine into lonely places, and in helping others and making it possible for them to get well you are protecting the health of your own family.

Never was a bundle of larger possibilities wrapped in so humble a form. The Seal is small, but its value is as large as human sympathy. So buy, buy, buy—buy as many as you can, and you will find that you have bought blessings for others and a happier and brighter Christmas for yourself.

Married.

Montague—Beauchy—Miss Gailie Montague, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding Montague, of Somerset, Pa., and Mr. Walter M. Beauchy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Beauchy, of near Grantsville, were married at the parsonage of St. Paul's Lutheran church in Cumberland on Tuesday last by the Rev. Martin Luther Enders, pastor. The bride is one of the efficient teachers of the Somerset county public schools, while the groom has been engaged in agricultural pursuits. For the present they will reside in or near Grantsville, and in the spring will probably leave that section and establish a home in one of the western states.

Returned From Hospital.

Mrs. W. H. Speicher, of near Deer Park, who was taken to a Cumberland hospital about a month ago and operated upon for gall stones and complications, returned to her home on Sunday last very much improved.

WILSON ASKS CONGRESS TO SET EXAMPLE FOR PEOPLE

Wants the World to Know that Great Democracy Can Keep House in Businesslike Way.

NO MENTION OF THE TREATY.

Presents Proposals More As Confession of Faith Than as Series of Proposals.

Both houses of Congress were in brief session today to hear President Wilson's annual message. It was read by the clerk, Mr. Wilson having heeded the advice of his physician not to appear in person to present his recommendations.

Mr. Wilson confined himself almost wholly to domestic questions. Only by inference did his message refer to the nearing close of his administration and that was in the concluding paragraph. The proposals he presented, the President wrote, were not so much a series of recommendations as a "confession of the faith in which I was bred, and which it is my solemn purpose to stand by until my last fighting day."

Aside from hearing the President's message, Congress made definite progress on at least one of the problems it faces during the short session. The House received a rule under which an effort will be made today to take up the immigration bill for prompt action.

The industrial situation also found a place in the President's message. Recovery from war effects gave promise of early completion "only in our own fortunate country," Mr. Wilson said, and even here "halts and is impeded at times." A program of "immediate serviceable acts of legislation to aid that recovery and prove the indestructible recuperative force of a great government of the people should be undertaken, Mr. Wilson said, adding:

"One of these is to prove that a great democracy can keep house successfully and in as businesslike a fashion as any other government."

First among the recommended steps Mr. Wilson placed enactment of a "workable budget system." He said he had vetoed the budget bill passed at the last session "reluctantly" and because of "a constitutional objection," but as it was later revised in the House he believed it would, with other measures, furnish "recommendations for a national budget system."

Mr. Wilson cited figures as to the national debt and urged "rigid economy" in which all branches of the government should co-operate.

"I cannot overemphasize," he said, "the necessity of economy in government appropriations and expenditures and the avoidance by Congress of practices which take money from the treasury in indefinite or revolving fund appropriations."

SKYLARK.

BITTER

I had a little hammer once
With which I used to strike,
And I went knocking everywhere
At folks I didn't like.

My hammer had a doleful sound
That brought nobody cheer,
And every time I made my round
I put some people queer.

I've thrown away that hammer now
As far as I could sling,
And taken up a booter's horn
And you should hear it ring.

I'm glad I joined that booter crowd,
I like the way they do,
And if you'll lay your hammer down
They'll find a horn for you.

The School Bulletin

VOL. 1. GARRETT COUNTY, MD., DEC. 9, 1920. NO. 3.

HOW GARRETT COUNTY SPENT ITS SCHOOL DOLLAR, 1919-1920

It never makes us any more wealthy to count over the money we may have spent. However, such counting may be of value to the individual or to the public as a certain standard by which to be governed in the future. With this thought in mind, as was forecasted in The School Bulletin last week, we are giving below how Garrett county spent each of its school dollars during the school year 1919-1920. Last week it was set forth how much of the entire expenditures went into the eight different departments of school expenditures. Below, we now give just how much of each dollar that was spent went into the eight departments of school expenditures.

From this division of the dollar we see that the teachers of the county received in all 69.73 cents out of each dollar spent. The remaining 30.27 cents went into the other departments of school expenses. There would have been a greater portion of each dollar to go to the teachers had more of the schools of the county been open for longer periods than they were open during the year. Expenditures for teachers' salaries would have been increased far more in percentage than would the other items of expenditures had all the schools on the average been open more days.

We plan in the next week's issue of The School Bulletin to take up more fully the number of days all the schools of the county were open and the additional expenditure for teachers' salaries that would have been necessary had all of them been open the entire 193 days that constituted the school year.

The dollar spent as set forth in the published annual report of the school expenditures last year, referred to above, was divided as follows:

1. General Control	Cents 5.3
2. Instructional Service:	Cents
a. Elementary teachers.....	58.651
b. High school teachers.....	11.083
c. Other costs of instructional service.....	6.154
3. Operation of School Plants.....	75.9
4. Maintenance of School Plants.....	6.3
5. Auxiliary Agencies	3
6. Fixed Charges	7
7. Debt Service	8
8. Capital Outlay	5.1
Total	100.0

County Superintendent of Schools F. E. Rathun is in Baltimore this week attending a meeting of the educators of the State, called by State Superintendent Cook.

Mr. Stephen Ashby, who is engaged in lumbering near Elkins, West Va., was in Oakland Monday en route to Crellin to visit his home folks for a few days.

Mr. Ray Browning, who has been employed at Akron, Ohio, for some months past, has returned to his home near Oakland where he will probably remain until spring.

Mr. James P. Treacy, proprietor of the Treacy Garage, near The Republican building, is having a runway from the alley built up to the second floor of his building, which will add to the convenience and value of his property.

Mr. Henry Hanst accompanied his son, Mr. Kenneth Hanst, and family, to Kingwood on Tuesday morning at which place Mrs. Hanst and children will remain indefinitely. Mr. Hanst, having been commissioned First Lieutenant in the Army and will probably be stationed at Camp Dix, N. J.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Mark's Lutheran church will hold their annual Christmas sale in Shaffer & Bush's store on Second street on Saturday, December 11th, beginning at ten o'clock in the morning, at which time there will be on sale fancy articles, aprons, pies, cakes, candy, rolls, bread and many other things. Your patronage is solicited.

Mr. Charles U. Edwards, of Crellin, was in town yesterday and came in to see the operation of the machine of all machines.—The Linotype—which produces the type used in the printing of The Republican. Mr. Edwards, himself well acquainted with machinery of many kinds, expressed his surprise at the performance of the linotype.

Mrs. B. Frank Browning, of Terra Alta, spent Sunday in Oakland with her sister, Mrs. Abraham Lawton. A few minutes after her arrival in Oakland Mrs. Browning was apprized of the fact that her home at Terra Alta was on fire, the cause of the conflagration being traced to an overheated furnace pipe. The flames were extinguished after they had damaged two rooms on the first floor of the house.

Mr. C. Bowje Johnson, who has been located in Washington, D. C., for the past two years where he was employed in the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, arrived in Oakland last Saturday night and on Monday went to Crellin where he will be engaged in the future, or until his health improves to such an extent as to enable him to resume his position with the Government.

The second of a series of sales of "goody goodies" and estates will be held Saturday afternoon, December 18th, by the ladies of St. Matthew's parish at Gonder's pharmacy. The committee in charge of this sale is composed of Mrs. G. Semmes Hamill, Jr., Mrs. Charles W. Grey and Mrs. B. B. Nethkin.

Improvements to the interior of the Oakland Hardware and Furniture Co.'s store on Second street, are now about complete after several weeks' work on the part of a number of mechanics. The appearance and convenience of the store have been greatly enhanced, affording a much better opportunity of displaying and handling goods than was possible before the improvements were made.

Residents of the county will be interested to learn that Mr. George W. Woolson, of Kitzmiller, has invented a novel rat trap on which he has secured a patent. The unique feature of the trap is found in the fact that one rat, upon being caught, automatically sets the trap again and passes on into another compartment from which it cannot escape. Other rats will thus be lured to the trap by the one already imprisoned. Officials of the United States Patent Office tell Mr. Woolson that his invention is superior to any now on the market and will be cheaper to manufacture. He has already received a flattering offer for his invention from a manufacturer of traps.

LEGAL TO SHIP RABBITS

Question Was Raised and Ruling of Attorney General Sought.

There have been contentions raised in certain counties of the State relating to the sale and shipment of rabbits. To clear this matter up State's Attorney Olfitt, at the request of The Republican and others who are interested in the protection of game in Garrett county, sought the opinion of Attorney General Alexander Armstrong several weeks ago and on Monday received the opinion of that official.

The law is known as Chapter 570 of the Acts of 1920. This bill was prepared by the State Game Department, and it was not the intention of said act to prohibit the sale of any game except bob-white quail, partridge, Chinese ringnecked pheasant, native pheasant, ruffed grouse and wild turkey. The opinion rendered by the Attorney General is as follows: "After considerable reflection, I have come to the conclusion that it is proper for me to rule that Chap. 570, Acts of 1920, does not prohibit the sale or purchase of rabbits within the State of Maryland."

This would mean, of course, unless there were local laws which did prohibit the sale of rabbits.

COAL MEN NAME COMMITTEES

Second Meeting in Baltimore Adjourns Without Reaching Conclusion

Baltimore, Dec. 7.—Committees to continue negotiations for a new agreement were named this afternoon by representatives of the soft coal operators and miners of the Georges Creek and Upper Potomac regions following a further conference at the Southern Hotel. The committees will hold a meeting within the next few days in an effort to arrange a new contract between the two bodies.

The meeting was the second held within a period of two weeks without a satisfactory conclusion being reached. John P. White, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, who attended, said both sides were hopeful that the committees named would frame a satisfactory contract.

No statement as to proceedings at today's meeting, or as to what propositions have been submitted to the miners has been given out and it is asserted there will be no announcement by either side until an agreement is reached. Others attending the conference today included Joseph Loftus, national organizer; Frank J. Drum, acting president of District 16, United Mine Workers; W. J. Trickett, secretary-treasurer of the district and members of the scale committee.

Representing the operators were: G. M. Gillette, of the Consolidation Coal Co.; J. S. Brophy, of the Piedmont and Georges Creek Coal Co.; Elkins, Read, of the Maryland Coal Co.; J. R. Hamilton, of the Georges Creek Coal Co.; R. P. Maloney, of the Davis Coal and Coke Co.; S. D. and S. Brady, T. M. Dodson and Grey Emmons.

The attention of our readers is directed to the page advertisement of Mr. C. H. Browning, Deer Park merchant, who is a firm believer in the use of printer's ink as a publicity agent. Mr. Browning, sensing the trend of the times, is offering his tremendous stock of seasonable goods at sacrifice prices. His wares are of the best quality, up-to-date in material and workmanship and any who desire to purchase cannot go far wrong in patronizing the advertiser.

Advertisements appearing in this issue of The Republican give notice of the annual meeting of the stockholders of the First and Garrett National Banks of Oakland and the First National Bank of Kitzmiller and of Friendsville. The business meetings of the stockholders of the various banks are usually for the purpose of transacting routine business in addition to electing a board of directors. The meeting of the interested parties of the Garrett National Bank of Oakland will also consider the question of increasing the capital stock of the institution, which is now $50,000, to a sum largely in excess of this amount.

Mr. E. F. Lee, of near Swanton, was an Oakland visitor on Saturday last.

JOHN R. CARNEY

John R. Carney, who resided on a farm a few miles west of Oakland with his son, was found dead in his bed by the latter on last Saturday morning. Mr. Carney, before engaging in agricultural pursuits, was a civil engineer and stood high in the profession at his former home near Mountsville, West Va., to which city

An Appeal

To the Republicans of the Country and All Those Who Aided Them:

The Republican success in the 1920 election has been commensurate with the quality of our candidates and the righteousness of our cause.

This success is the partnership accomplishment of all Republicans everywhere and of hundreds of thousands of well-wishers of good government regardless of past party affiliations.

To all of these we now appeal, because it is the mutual responsibility of us all who will share alike in the consequent mutual benefit of good government.

The plan of limiting campaign contributions to $1,000, adopted by your national organization, has left your party unmortgaged.

It has been a most advanced step in placing the business of politics on the highest plane, and has brought an interest on the part of thousands who never before have been concerned with politics.

Some weeks before election it was apparent that the expenses provided for in our budget, with the strictest economy, would exceed the contributions, but we were unwilling either to leave undone any legitimate effort essential to complete success or to change the method of raising money. We were then sure and we are now sure that every Republican desires that the expenses of the campaign be distributed in this manner.

Your presidential campaign this year cost no more than that of 1916, when a dollar went nearly twice as far as it does today.

Four years ago the bulk of the campaign fund came from 750 contributors, while this year the approximately $2,000,000 contributed to date for the presidential election has come from 50,000 givers.

The victory won, the raising of the deficit would be easy, indeed, if your committee were willing to abandon the policy of keeping down the average of contribution.

This we are determined not to do. It was a fight of all the people. The result speaks for itself. It lifted a burden from the minds of millions and points the way to better and happier days. We ask now for that additional help from all which is merited both by the successful conclusion of the effort and by the consequent contribution to the welfare of all of our people and the glory of the nation.

Let us now have help from every American who is grateful for the victory and all that it means to the country. It might well be in the nature of a thanksgiving offering for the return to a certainly safe, sane, constitutional progressive government.

Let us by general and generous giving put the seal of approval upon the policy of putting a national administration in power free from any possible embarrassment of special obligation to any man, men or group of men. Let us make the contribution, whether large or small, and whether or not we have heretofore given, commensurate with our means and our appreciation, always within the maximum limit heretofore fixed.

Let us get our names on the cornerstone of a sturdier political structure, upon the roll of those who have helped make possible a campaign of which, in methods and result, we may as Republicans and patriots be justly proud. Most earnestly we urge that this aid be given quickly, that your committee may be enabled to discharge the party's obligations and turn to further constructive work in behalf of party and country.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE,
Will H. Hays, Chairman.

Checks should be made payable to Fred W. Upham, Treasurer, or James G. Blaine, Jr., Eastern Treasurer, and sent to the Committee's Office, 19 West 44th Street, New York City, N. Y.

the remains were taken on Monday for interment, being accompanied by his son.

FIFTEEN MILLION SEALS FOR STATE

EVERY COUNTY RECEIVES QUOTA OF HEALTH STAMPS.

Organization for the Sale of Christmas Seals is going on so satisfactorily in the counties that before the sixth of the month every detail will have been carefully completed and the people of the State in every city, town, village and hamlet will have an opportunity to buy seals in their own neighborhood, and so help with the fight against tuberculosis.

Among the residents of the counties who have already expressed their willingness to help in making the sale a success, are: Mrs. Michael E. Poe, of Belair, who will have charge in Harford county; Mrs. P. A. M. Brooks, of Chestertown; Mrs. E. Wilson Brooks, of Salisbury; Miss Mary Jenkins, who will have charge of the eastern district of Talbot county; Mrs. Clara Benson Boley, who will have charge of the St. Michaels District of the same county; Dr. E. A. Jones, of Dorchester county; Thomas M. Williamson, of Frederick county, and D. P. Schindel, of Hagerstown, for Washington county. In Worcester county the Woman's Club has formed a committee to assist, of which Mrs. F. J. Lloyd is chairman.

News from other counties of the State shows that the work of organizing is in progress there also, and the names of those in command will be given out shortly.

It is the expectation of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association that the funds secured by the sale of the seals will be sufficient not only to permit it to keep up all of its present activities—the tuberculosis nurses, the sanatoria for persons very ill with "consumption," the Clubhouse Preventorium for delicate children who have been exposed to this dread disease aim to enlarge their scope.

The Preventorium, for instance, could remain open for only four months last summer, because funds were insufficient to permit it to carry on its invaluable work longer, though it could be fitted to the brim, as it were, with children all the year 'round, if there were money enough; children who come to the Preventorium weak, pale and without vitality, and leave it a few months later in so rosy and plump a condition that their very parents do not recognize them when they see them.

The people of Maryland gave only four cents apiece last year for Christmas tuberculosis seals. They gave thousands of dollars for furs, jewels and automobiles.

The Maryland Tuberculosis Association wants ten pennies apiece from every man, woman and child during the sale which is now in progress.

Where other organizations demand dollars and more dollars, this needy and worthy one says, "If each one of you will as you can give I will be satisfied, for then I can go on fighting tuberculosis, can go on preventing tuberculosis for another long and profitable year."

Over 900,000,000 Tuberculosis Christmas seals will be offered for sale during December and will be sold by 100,000 workers scattered throughout the United States. Naturally, there will be intense rivalry among the various States as to which will make the highest average per capita, and Maryland will strain every nerve not only to improve her previous record, but to be among those commonwealths which stand highest in this work.

She should raise a large fund, a very enlightened physician says, particularly because she has a high percentage of tuberculosis in proportion to her population. This is in part due to the large number of negro inhabitants among whom the disease is very prevalent. At any rate, 2,761 people died from tuberculosis within her confines last year. Of these, 1,026 died in the counties. We are accustomed to think of the counties of our State as garden-spots of the world. We think of their pure, tonic air, of their oysters, crabs, and terrapins; of their delicious strawberries and peaches, of their warm springs and glorious autumns, and wonder why anyone should not be able to live in such localities, and yet in a single year 1,026 of their inhabitants died from a disease which is perfectly preventable, and the cure for which is the very air and food which the counties of Maryland boast in such abundance.

The Christmas Seal sale is one of the most important events in Maryland's calendar for he who buys seals makes a very valuable Christmas gift to his community.

These are things to remember:

That the seal sale will continue during the entire month of December; that the aim is to raise $150,000 or more; and the purpose to stamp out tuberculosis.

Stray Notice.

TWO NEW SECURITIES ISSUED NEXT YEAR BY U. S. TREASURY

Will Complete Line of Government Savings Securities and Place Savings Movement on Peace Basis.

Completing the line of government savings securities and placing the treasury savings movement on a solid peace-time basis, two new treasury savings securities will be issued during the coming year, says a recent announcement from Secretary Houston. The new issues will be a $1 Treasury Savings Stamp and a $25 Treasury Savings Certificate. The $1 stamp, which will be non-interest bearing, is to be bright red in color and to bear the portrait of Alexander Hamilton, first Secretary of the Treasury. The $25 certificate will be similar in design and terms to the $100 and $1,000 Treasury Savings Certificates which will also be offered in 1921, to mature January 1, 1928.

The new securities will supply a $1 unit for saving, and a registered government security in the $25 denomination which can be conveniently purchased through the accumulation of the $1 stamps. The small denomination wartime securities—the $5 War Savings Stamp, in a 1921 series, and the 25 cent Thrift Stamp—will also be offered during the coming year, as will the registered Treasury Savings Certificates in $100 and $1,000 denominations.

Demand Continues Strong.

Notwithstanding the reaction since the armistice from habits of saving, Secretary Houston said that the demand for savings securities has continued strong in many parts of the country, and that he believed that as the security markets become more settled treasury savings securities bearing interest at 4 per cent, compounded quarterly, exempt from state and local taxes and from the normal federal income tax, and redeemable substantially on demand, should prove increasingly attractive, particularly to the multitude of small investors.

With these considerations in mind, the Treasury is committed to the continued sale of government savings securities, and feels that as time goes on sales of savings securities over the counter, at post offices and banks throughout the country, should play an increasingly important part in the current financing of the government.

To this end, the Treasury is also committed to the continuance of the work of the Savings Division, in Washington and in the several federal reserve districts. This organization endeavors to promote the purchase of government savings securities; it develops and perfects the secondary market for Liberty Bonds and Victory Notes and other war issues of government securities. It also unites the efforts of all helpful agencies and movements, financial, industrial, educational, commercial and social, in a broad savings campaign to make permanent the habits of saving and inculcate in the United States Government securities. Its work along these lines will be intensified in 1921, the savings organization for this district, with headquarters in Richmond, Va., directing activities in Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina.

Organizations Co-operating.

Requests that the savings work be continued and offers of active co-operation in the movement have been received from national organizations including the American Federation of Labor, nearly every fraternal organization of prominence in the United States, and presidents of women's organizations. The work of the Savings Division has also been splendidly successful in the schools.

In response to the demand, the Savings Division will intensify during 1921 its campaign to spread broadcast the essential facts relative to wise saving and spending and investment, and the continued development of new capital. The savings securities to be offered have also been shaped to meet these needs. The $1 Treasury Savings Stamp and the $25 Treasury Savings Certificate come as a result of work carried on in the great industrial plants of the country. This campaign demonstrated that workers like a $1 unit for saving and that they are seeking an investment security of the $25 denomination. The 25 cent Thrift Stamp and the $5 War Savings Stamp, which have gained a strong foothold in the schools of the nation, will be continued during 1921 in order that every American youth may have the opportunity to become an active partner in the business of his government.

The 1921 War Savings Stamp of $5 maturity value will be larger in size than the 1920 issue, will be orange in color, and will bear the portrait of Lincoln. The 25 cent Thrift Stamp will be unchanged.

Ask your employer or banker to sell you Liberty Bonds on installments, and take advantage of the opportunity presented by present market prices. Or save up until you have enough to buy a $50 bond. War Savings Stamps will help you save.

You can't lose the handsome profits due you if you buy Liberty Bonds at present market prices and keep them until maturity. The wealth and credit of the nation are pledged to their redemption at par.

WHAT THE LITTLE CHRISTMAS TUBERCULOSIS SEAL DOES FOR HUMANITY

First and most obvious, but not most important, the Christmas Seal is a means for raising money for the campaign against tuberculosis.

Second, the Christmas Seal is a means for awakening interest so that large numbers of all kinds of people are led to read and talk about tuberculosis.

Third, the Christmas Seal provides an opportunity for anyone and everyone, almost without limitation of circumstances or condition to render some real help in the fight against tuberculosis.

Fourth, the Christmas Seal creates the possibility of spreading an enormous amount of actual information in such a form and manner as largely to increase the general knowledge about tuberculosis.

Fifth, the Christmas Seal through the annual intensive campaign of a few weeks, enlists large numbers of individuals and groups who give something of time, thought and effort for the common good in the warfare against tuberculosis.

Sixth, the Christmas Seal, therefore, gives to increasing numbers of people a sense of a great common interest, an opportunity for aiding financially, and the chance of helping actively a welfare movement which is of interest to the entire community, the whole of the State and the nation as well.

Seventh, the Christmas Seal thus becomes, under the guise of a bit of colored and gummed paper a real and active factor in helping people to make the world a better place in which to live in more ways than merely to help rid mankind of tuberculosis.

TUBERCULOSIS AMONG NEGROES THREE TIMES AS GREAT AS WHITE

Whatever the cause, it is a fact that at present the negro death rate from tuberculosis is about three times greater in proportion than that of the white race. We have too long neglected the negro tuberculosis problem.

At present there is no sanatorium where tuberculosis negro patients may be sent. An appropriation has been made, however, and progress is being made by a State committee. Even when this provision has been made a fact, the negro tuberculosis problem will not have been solved, for this will at the utmost, care for comparatively few who have the disease. The preventorium idea has been demonstrated with the white children. The same benefits should be extended to the colored children.

Much, however, can be done through organization, education and demonstration in bettering health among the colored people, and the Maryland Association is beginning such activities. The aim is not only to do things for the colored people to improve their health, but to use their potential efforts to help themselves.

In stamping out the disease among the colored people, the whites are being protected as well, for it is a fact that many of our colored population come into intimate daily contact with the white population in their homes. Many times the colored nurse girl, having active though unknown tuberculosis, cares for white children. Many times the colored cook, in like condition, is preparing the food in the same home. Is it not, therefore, a matter of self-protection as well as a great service to those who should have our sympathy, to recognize the vital necessity of meeting and dealing with the colored tuberculosis problem?

Then buy Christmas Tuberculosis Seals liberally.

TUBERCULOSIS SEALS ONLY ONES SOLD THIS CHRISTMAS

It must be remembered that the symbol of the Sale of Christmas seals is the double-barred cross, the international emblem under which the fight against tuberculosis is made.

There are some persons who refer to the seals as Red Cross stamps. This is incorrect. They are not Red Cross seals. Formerly the Red Cross acted as banker to the Christmas seals Sale, but this year this aid could be dispensed with confusion avoided and the little seal is, as it were, standing on its own feet. The Red Cross, except to give it its hearty endorsement, has nothing to do with the Christmas Tuberculosis seal. The funds collected from its sale are used as heretofore in the fight against tuberculosis in this State.

The Christmas Tuberculosis seal is the only one sold for a purpose of this sort, and it presents an opportunity even to the smallest investor to give something to a worthy cause. The pre-Christmas season, when generous giving is the order of the day, is the best time to buy.

HEALTH BONDS FOR XMAS SALE

PLAY THE GREAT GAME OF KEEP-ING WELL AND BUY MANY OF THEM.

The Maryland Tuberculosis Association has Bonds for sale. Not the usual sort of bonds which represent the money which is expected to result, but does not always do so, from an oil well or a gold mine, but Health Bonds, a much more important thing. The Health Bonds look exactly like the other sort. They are all printed in green and blue curlicues, and are decorated with lovely and impressive looking lettering. At the very top of the front fold there is a double-barred cross, and that shows at once what the bonds stand for, for the double-barred cross is the symbol under which the fight against tuberculosis is conducted all over the country.

The lettering reads as follows:
THE CRUSADE OF THE DOUBLE-BARRED CROSS, HEALTH BOND.

Interest Payable in Improved Community Health.

Within is a legal-like writing which begins quite properly, "This is to certify—" and goes on to say that the Tuberculosis Association "is responsible to the holder of this bond for the conduct of a national program for the study and prevention of tuberculosis," and that the amount invested "is payable to the holder of it in terms of improvement in individual and community health by the methods outlined in the coupons attached, and entitles the holder with all of the other citizens of his community to expect free advice and consultation in reference to matters pertaining to tuberculosis and the prevention of communicable diseases."

Further on it says that the National Tuberculosis Association, and its affiliated State and local associations "Guarantee to the holder of this bond that the money which it represents will be spent on community, State and national programs along the lines indicated in the coupons attached hereto."

It is then signed and sealed—sealed with a Christmas tuberculosis seal—and consequently has a wonderfully imposing look.

Each of the ten coupons attached bears some pledge, such as:

The campaign against tuberculosis will seek by the introduction of the modern Health Crusade to train all school children in correct habits.

The Crusade against Tuberculosis will aim to provide public health nurses with a knowledge of tuberculosis in every community, to give proper home care and instruction to all cases needing it.

The Crusade against tuberculosis will provide where possible dispensaries and consulting experts to assist physicians in the discovery of curable and suspected cases of tuberculosis.

Health Bonds are sold by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association to those persons who feel that they would like to invest five dollars or more in the fight against tuberculosis, in place of the penny seals, though they may have the seals if they wish them.

The bonds are in denominations of from $5 to $1,000, and no matter in what company of bonds its buyer places one, it will shine out in contrast as the superior of all. Even if its neighbor in the safety deposit box represents an oil well, from which hundreds of barrels of oil gush per day, the modest little Health Bond is much the more valuable. Oil is all very well, money is all very well, but neither avail much if you or your wife, or your son, or your favorite daughter are dying with tuberculosis.

The Maryland Tuberculosis Association feels that everyone who buys a Health Bond will have a brighter, merrier Christmas than ever before, for he has taken a step in safeguarding himself, his loved ones, and his community that he will never regret.

HERBERT HOOVER ENDORSES TUBERCULOSIS SEALS.

In a letter sent to Dr. Charles J. Hatfield, Managing Director of the National Tuberculosis Association, Herbert Hoover, great food expert and philanthropist says:

"I am very glad to avail myself of the opportunity you give me of expressing my opinion in regard to your coming sale of Christmas Seals for the National Tuberculosis Association. There is, perhaps, no problem of a health nature that we have to meet as a nation that is more serious than that of tuberculosis. The National Tuberculosis Association has been and is still making a superb fight against the ravages of this disease and it deserves the support of every citizen who wishes to see a real improvement in the health statistics of his community and this nation."

"I wish you every success in your sale of Christmas Seals and in the splendid effort which the sale of these seals will allow you to continue.—Herbert Hoover."

His Pleasure.

A famous king said: "It men only knew how pleasant to me it is to forgive faults, there is not one of them who would not commit crime."—From the Orient.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR HEALTH

If Your Blood Is Weak and Clogged With Poisons, Pepto-Mangan Will Strengthen and Purify It

When you get over-tired day after day, your system has to get rid of so much waste it can't create new energy fast enough. The result is that your blood is filled with waste matter. It becomes clogged. You are trying to get around with a lot of poison in your system.

You look bad, you feel poorly. You get out of patience easily. Ambition is lost. You just don't care about anything. That is no way to live. Your blood needs help for a time. It is starved. You will find help in that fine tonic, Pepto-Mangan. Pepto-Mangan purifies the blood and fills it with red corpuscles. In a little while you'll have plenty of rich, red blood and you won't know yourself. It isn't a magic medicine. It contains iron and other ingredients that feed starved blood and make it rich and red. Physicians have prescribed Pepto-Mangan for years.

Pepto-Mangan is sold in liquid and tablet form. Take either kind you prefer. One acts the same as the other. Both contain the same ingredients. But be sure to get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's." The full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," should be on the package.—Advertisement.

MY MOTTO: QUALITY FIRST

DERAILMENT ON B. & O. R. R.

Twenty-three Head of Steers Killed and Traffic Blocked Five Hours.

An engine and several cars of an east-bound freight train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad were thrown from the track at Bond Junction, 16 miles east of Oakland, last Sunday night by reason of the failure of the leverman to properly operate the levers controlling the switches at that point, with the result that twenty-three head of steers on the way to the eastern markets were killed, a number injured and other damage sustained to merchandise and products contained in the cars wrecked. None of the railway employees were hurt.

The debris was scattered over the road for considerable distance below where the derailment occurred. A wrecking crew from Keyser succeeded in clearing the tracks about midnight, the wreck having taken place shortly after eight o'clock, but it was an hour or more later before trains were moved owing to the condition of the track.

Passenger trains No. 12, east bound, was five hours late in reaching Piedmont, while train No. 1 was four hours late reaching Oakland.

MORE QUAIL COMING

10,000 Birds Shipped From Mexico for Maryland Counties.

Maryland is soon to be invaded by an army of 10,000 Mexican "prisoners" who will be turned loose in the wilds of the counties for the marksmanship of gunners of the State.

The "prisoners" are not bandits, Vil-las or comic-opera generals with fierce mustachios, and there is no reason for alarm on the part of the peaceful country folks. The "prisoners" in question are Mexican quail that are now being bought up by a broker in Mexico to be shipped to the State Game Warden for distribution to the various counties of Maryland.

The contract has been closed by the warden for the delivery of the birds beginning in February. They will be shipped to the counties direct. The birds are trapped in Mexico and are held up ten days on the border for quarantine. When it is assured there is no disease among them they go forward. The Mexican quail is a little smaller than the native bird, but they mate well, according to the State Game Warden.

Died in Jail.

William DeWitt, aged 79 years, who came to Deer Park from a point over in Pennsylvania, and secured work at C. R. Savedge's several months ago, and while working there gangrene in his feet developed, his condition becoming so bad that about six weeks ago he became a county charge and was brought to Oakland and placed in the hospital ward of the jail where he died on Friday last. The body was interred in the county plot of the cemetery here after a jury of inquest had been summoned and found that the man died of natural causes.

Sheriff Roy O. Winters stated to The Republican yesterday that the presence of DeWitt and the condition of his feet, which was such as to almost nauseate one, caused the odor in the jail and consequent seeming unsanitary condition of the institution at the time it was inspected by the grand jury last week which prompted that body to refer to the conditions existing therein.

OLDEST OF STATE MOTTOES

That of Maryland Was Adopted In the Year 1648.

The Maryland suffragists who propose altering the state's motto, "Fatti Maschy Parole Feminae" (to use the old spelling), are proposing to put rough hands to what should be sacred. The offensive translation, "Deeds are masculine, words are feminine," is not the only one possible. The secretary of state could easily be directed to give official approval to "manly deeds and womanly words," which would give women a recognition they enjoy in no other state motto.

But the best reason for jealously guarding Maryland's motto is that it is the oldest the nation can boast—the date of its adoption is placed in 1648—and is enwrapped with Maryland history to a remarkable degree. Throw away the Baltimore motto and Maryland might as well turn the portrait of George Calvert, first Lord Baltimore, to the wall.

There are other state mottoes that are open to attack. Alabama's "Here We Rest," suggests an obvious joke. So does Washington's "By and By." Virginia's motto recalls John Wilkes Booth, New York's the rather tawdry declamation by Longfellow, which it inspired and those of several other states—like Kansas' "Ad Astra Per Aspera"—the rhetoric of commencement. While these states cleave to their mottoes, Maryland may well be boastful of hers and its associations.

GARAGE ROBBED AT ACCIDENT

Tires and Tubes Valued at About $800 Carried Off.

The Accident Garage, which is owned and managed by Mr. Frank E. Spoerlein, was entered through a side window some time after midnight on Monday morning and property, consisting in great part of tires and inner tubes for automobiles, valued at $800 by Mr. Spoerlein, were carried off by the thieves.

Sometime during the past summer Mr. Spoerlein had a similar experience when his place was entered in a like manner and property of this same class worth $1200 was carried away, none of which was ever recovered nor any clue as to the identity of the robbers obtained.

As soon as the theft was discovered Monday morning Mr. Spoerlein got into communication with points along the Pike telling of the robbery and then came to Oakland where he consulted with the State officials, but up to this time nothing has been ascertained that would lead to a clue.

Persons residing in the vicinity of the garage at Accident stated to Mr. Spoerlein on Monday that during the night they had heard a noise at the garage as if some one were hammering, later the exhausts from two automobiles which moved off toward the North, which indicates that the thieves had experienced some difficulty in forcing an entrance to the building and after getting possession of the loot drove off northward toward the Pennsylvania state line.

TWO DOBBIN MEN ARRESTED

For Moonshining, One of Them Being Ira Culp, of Garrett County.

A. W. Moyer and Ira Culp, of Dobbin, the latter a resident of Garrett county, were arrested recently by A. W. Moyer, Harry Fitzgerald and Federal prohibition officers, the latter being charged with operating a moonshine still. A 50-gallon copper still, in operation, 130 gallons of mash and 15 gallons of moonshine liquor were confiscated. He was held for the Federal grand jury.

Culp is alleged to have had in his possession 200 gallons of mash. He was also held for the Federal grand jury.

Charged With Dry Law Violations.

On last Friday afternoon Federal prohibitions agents took before U. S. Commissioner F. G. Davis at Keyser, West Va., Harry Miller and Edward Menke, of Wilson, West Va., located just across the Potomac River from Garrett county, charged with unlawfully having in their possession intoxicating liquor; also Andy Halupo and Eli Bodwick, of Henry, which is also located across the river from this county, charged with unlawfully manufacturing intoxicating liquor and having in their possession preparations suitable for manufacturing intoxicating liquor. Each was held under $300 bond for the action of the Federal Grand jury when it meets at Parkersburg, West Va., on January 11th next.

GAWTHORP GIVEN SENTENCE

Will Serve Twenty Days in the Garrett County Jail.

For manufacturing and having in his possession twenty gallons of wine containing more than the lawful percentage of alcohol, Melvin E. Gawthrop was on Friday sentenced to serve twenty days in the Garrett county Jail by Judge Rose, in the United States Court at Baltimore. Gawthrop made a plea of guilty. The home-made wine was manufactured at Kitzmiller on November 27th, following which Gawthrop was arrested by prohibition agents as stated in The Republican a week or two ago.

An Expiation.

To the Editor of The Republican.

If I understand the intention of the Grand Jury in framing the clause in their report referring to conditions in the Jail, it was not intended as a reflection upon Sheriff Winters. The bedding conditions were bad; one of the inmates was dying of gangrene, which produced a very offensive odor. This could only have been prevented by providing the old man with a nurse, which was not part of the Sheriff's duty.

The School Bulletin

VOL. 1. GARRETT COUNTY, MD., DEC. 16, 1920. No. 4.

DAYS ALL SCHOOLS WERE OPEN DURING 1919-1920 AND THE ADDITIONAL COST NECESSARY FOR TEACHERS' SALARIES HAD ALL THE SCHOOLS BEEN OPEN THE WHOLE OF THE YEAR

Everyone in Garrett county knows that all the schools of the county were not open during 1919-1920 the whole of the school year of 193 days. This fact is generally recognized in a vague sort of way. In this article of The School Bulletin it is intended to give the facts upon that phase of our school activities in such a way that the information bearing upon that point will be set forth in an orderly and systematic fashion. With that information before us, presented in that style, we can reason more intelligently upon how long the schools throughout Garrett county were open during the last school year.

All of this information has a direct bearing upon questions of this type: What becomes of the money that is levied for a school and the school isn't open at all during the year? What becomes of the money that is levied for schools that open late and close early? These questions arise from assuming a certain form for the levying of money, it being assumed that money is levied for a particular school. This is not correct. Money is not levied for particular schools, but is levied for particular items of expense in connection with the administration of all schools in the county insofar as any phase of their cost is concerned. The answers to the questions given above are found in the annual report published by the Board of Education, for in it will be found what became of all the money that was provided for the schools of the county. Public officials, like individuals, should cut their garment according to their cloth insofar as this is possible.

In the summary given in the first part of the published annual report of school expenditures during 1919-1920, we find the following paragraph: "The schools of the county were open 17,223.5 days; whereas the schools would have been open 33,003 days had all the 171 teachers kept their schools open the whole of the school year of 193 days." This information is correct when we consider each teacher as a school. This same phase should be set forth in another way which we propose doing in this article, as was forecasted in the article published in The School Bulletin last week. We plan to consider here each school by itself, no difference how many teachers may have been in that school, counting the school as one instead of the number of teachers it may have had in it. In this way we secure 129 principals of all the schools.

If all the schools of the county had been open the whole of the 193 school days that constituted the school year, we secure the product of 24,897. The facts are that the schools of the county were open 17,223.5 days. The schools, therefore, as a whole throughout the county, were open approximately 69 per cent. of 193 possible days. In other words, all the schools of the county were open approximately 133 days out of a possible 193 days. That is, if the entire school system of the county had been leveled up so far as equalization of the length of the year is concerned, they would all have been open 133 days, no school less than 133 days and no school more than 133 days. This number of 133, therefore, represents the average number of days that all the schools of the county were open out of a possible 193 days.

The average of 133 days is very close to the median, the median being 137 days; in other words, there were as many schools that were open with the number of days less than 137 days as there were schools open more than 137 days. The median school is the sixty-fifth school; or, counting from the first in the summary or graph given below, the school represented by the sixth dot in the period designated as from 130 days to 139 days, is the median school.

For the purpose of setting forth how many days all the schools of the county were open during 1919-1920, the following summary and graph are presented. In the first column is given the number of days in ten day periods that the schools were open; in the second column is given the number of schools that were open during the periods designated in the first column; and in the third column in picture form is set forth the number of instances that schools were open for the period and the number of cases as designated in the first and second columns respectively. For instance, there were only 17 schools open for periods from 130 to 139 days, both inclusive, of which number there were but eleven schools in the entire county that were open during the whole of the school year of 193 possible days.

The summary and graph referred to above are as follows:

Days schools were open	No. of such cases	Graph of days schools were open during 1919-1920 and number of such cases.

150 159	11
160 169	3
170 179	7
180 189	16
190 193	17

If all the 129 schools of the county had been open the whole of the school year of 193 days, the total amount necessary to have paid teachers would have been $87,604.00. Since $70,703.90 was paid to teachers during 1919-1920 with schools open for the periods as set forth in the summary above, it would have been necessary for the county to have provided the difference between these amounts, or $16,900.10 for teachers' salaries alone in order to have had all of the 129 schools of the county open during the entire school period of the school year of 193 possible days. To have raised by taxation in the county this additional amount of $16,900.10, an additional tax rate of about 12½ cents would have been necessary in April, 1919, for school purposes. This would have made a total tax rate in the county for public schools of 60 11-18 cents during 1919, instead of 48 1-9 cents, which did prevail.

Farmers of Garrett County.

The Congress is in session. Do you want the Capper Volsted Bill granting farmers the right to buy and sell co-operatively passed? If so write and tell your Congressman and Senators. Do you want the Truth in Fabrics Bill enacted into law, which aims to put shoddy on its merits so that you may obtain a just price for your wool?

Do you want the $72,000,000 Nitrate Plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala., put to work? If so write and tell your representative in Congress.

The makers of Oleo will try at this session to have the law changed so they may color their product. Are you in favor of such change? Seven years ago the duty on butter was 6 cents, today it is 2½ cents and European countries are sending butter here by the ship load. Australia and New Zealand are shipping wool and frozen mutton and Argentina corn and frozen beef. While your beef sells below cost of production.

Business men ask for a tariff to protect them. Don't you need it? Write your representatives in Congress and tell them. Your voice and vote were never as loud and weighty as to-day. Do it now! Do it now. When agriculture prospers so does trade and commerce.

Victim of Accident in No Hurry to Be Carried to the Undertaker's Establishment.

In a collision between an auto and a load of hay, the driver of the latter was projected into the village road on his head and lay there semi-conscious until two occupants of the more speedy vehicle lifted him out of the dust and started to carry him toward the sidewalk.

"Shall we take him into that undertaker's shop there, or to the drugstore farther down the street?" asked one of the burden bearers.
The victim raised his head with alacrity and vociferated:
"Take me to the drug store first, you dake fool!"

Grow Rubber in United States.
Heretofore it was supposed that Mexico, with its Guayule rubber-bearing shrub, had a monopoly on this continent of the production of rubber. The survey now being made by the University of California, however, has located more than twenty varieties of bushes, five of them far surpassing in quality. If not quantified, the Guayule, wholly within the United States proper. Already shrubs estimated to contain more than 300,000,000 pounds of best quality rubber have been largely mapped, says Motor.

"There's a Reason"

INCREASE SHOWN IN FIBER CROPS

Due Largely to Cutting Off of Supply From Russia and Other Foreign Countries.

HEMP AND FLAX PREDOMINATE

Considerable Impetus Given to Hemp Growing by Introduction of Machine Methods—Wisconsin Leads All Other States.

Fiber crops in the United States show an increase this year, due largely to the growing realization of the American manufacturers of the cutting off of supply from Russia and other foreign countries, and the development of fiber-growing methods in this country.

Hemp and flax are the principal fiber crops in the United States. Of the former, 14,000 acres were grown this year, with an average yield of 700 pounds of fiber to the acre, divided about evenly between long fiber worth on an average of 25 cents a pound, and tow, which now averages 10 cents a pound. This would bring an average value of the crop to $105 per acre, or $1,470,000.

Flax acreage has increased from 7,000 acres in 1919 to 8,000 acres in 1920. The yield is estimated at from 350 to 400 pounds of fiber per acre, worth 75 cents a pound. The flax crop is thus worth about $1,600,000.

Impetus to Hemp.
Hemp growing has received considerable impetus since the United States Department of Agriculture undertook the work of breeding new strains and encouraging modern machine methods of handling, about ten years ago. This shows an interesting geographical shift in hemp-growing territory. Kentucky, which formerly led, now stands lowest among the recognized hemp-producing states, while the lead has come to northern states, Wisconsin supplying about half the total acreage. Next come Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and California.

Kentucky's decline in relative position is due largely to the predominance of tobacco as a commercial crop, and partly to the fact that states coming newly into the hemp-raising industry have immediately adopted modern methods for large-scale production, while growers in a locality that has always produced one crop naturally cling to some extent to the old hand methods of their forefathers.

Breaking Hemp in Wisconsin—Feeding in the Tops.

Used for Tying Twine.
The output is largely used for tying twine, but a new market has been found for a considerable quantity for mixing with flax in the manufacture of shoe thread. Formerly it was not thought that any material except flax could be used in shoe thread, but since the Russian supply was almost entirely cut off, manufacturers have found that they can combine the two fibers without material deterioration. Much experimenting has been done with a view to utilizing the hurds, or woody center, which make up more than half of the hemp stalk. One Ohio factory used several thousand tons for paper manufacturing, but this use will need development in the way of shipping facilities and definite market. At present the hurds are mostly burned for fuel to operate the driers and furnish power for the breaking and scutching machinery.

Flax growing appears to be on the increase, due to the cutting off of the European product. The principal flax regions are Wisconsin, eastern Michigan, the Willamette valley of Oregon, and northern Minnesota.

DISEASE-FREE SEED CORN YIELDS BETTER

Series of Tests Carried Out by Plant Specialists.

Increase of 10 to 30 Per Cent Obtained Over Kernels Infected by Harmful Organisms—How Infection Is Indicated.

Seed corn that gave 100 per cent germination but showed infection by harmful organisms was matched against corn that showed no infection in a series of tests carried out by plant specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Indiana experiment station. The disease-free seed gave an increased yield of ten to thirty per cent above its competitor.

Further results of the test seemed to prove that when corn was planted too thickly in hill or drill row it was more susceptible to disease than when better space was given it. In a similar test at Bloomington, Ill., the disease-free seed gave an increase of 23 per cent over the other corn, which was selected for high germination.

Drying Seed Corn for Next Year's Crop.
Only. At Hoopston, Ill., the difference, measured in tons, ranged from 0.01 to 1.5 tons in favor of the seed selected both for high germination and freedom from disease.

The selection was based on the absence of discoloration in the kernels and cobs as indicating soundness. Disease is indicated by brown discoloration at the butts of the ears and at the kernel tips and by decay in the cobs.

SHEEP DESTROY MANY WEEDS

Animals Convert Noxious Plants Into Wool and Mutton and Add Fertility to Soil.

"Did you ever stop to consider what a band of sheep is worth as a weed exterminator?" asks a California department of agriculture expert. "In the first place, the band is worth as much in the destruction of weeds as a man with a team and cultivator or weeder through the season."

"Secondly, there is a big difference in cultivating weeds out or mowing them and sheeping them off. Cultivating or mowing is an expensive method for which you get nothing but a little added humus to the soil, whereas sheep turn your weeds into marketable products at good prices, to say nothing of added fertilizer in the form of sheep manure deposited on the fields."

"It has been remarked that a small band of sheep adds $1,000 to the average appearance of the ranch in five years' time, from the standpoint of weedless fields. However, in the long run it is more than that. It is an actual source of steady income."

LOSS BY PLANT DISEASES

Here are some of the losses to American farmers in the United States in one year by plant diseases which might have been prevented if known control measures had been immediately applied: Wheat, 122,000,000 bushels; oats, 50,000,000 bushels; corn, 80,000,000 bushels; potatoes, 50,000,000 bushels; sweet potatoes, 40,000,000 bushels (two-fifths of the total crop); tomatoes, 185,000 tons; cotton, 850,000 bales; peaches, 3,000,000 bushels; apples, 10,000,000 bushels. The figures were compiled for the year 1919 by the plant disease survey of the bureau of plant industry, United States Department of Agriculture.

ALFALFA TAKEN FOR CLOVER

Seeds of Two Plants Are So Similar That Experts of Long Training Are Often Wrong.

Stock Raising in Western Canada
Is as profitable as grain growing. Successes as wonderful as those from growing wheat, oats, barley, and flax have been made in raising horses, cattle, sheep and pigs. Bright, sunny climate, nutritious grasses, good water, enormous fodder crops—these spell success to the farmer and stock raiser. And remember, you can buy an easy farm.

If you want to get back to the farm, or to farm on a larger scale than is possible under your present conditions, investigate what Western Canada has to offer you.

NOT OLD BOY'S LUCKY DAY

At That, It Must Be Admitted He Got Out of Tight Situation Rather Neatly.

He was the picture of sedate middle age, from the broad-toed shoes to the pince-nez suspended by a broad black ribbon.

He gazed long and longingly at the portrait of a maiden in rather skimpy attire which adorned the lobby of a theater.

He entered the lobby. He came out again. He was met by an equally sedate middle-aged woman.

"What are you doing in there?" she demanded.

"Why, my dear, I thought it was the entrance to the bird store, but hurried out as soon as I discovered my mistake" was his rather halting reply.

As they started away, the man drew something from his pocket and dropped it surreptitiously to the sidewalk.

A newsboy quickly picked it up. "Gee," he muttered, "an orchestra seat to the burles!"

HARDING SOUNDS NOTE OF REAL GOVERNMENT

We are facing no easy task. We have our full part in the readjustment of human affairs, after the world tumult. We have our tasks at home. We have our part in the inevitable work of the civilized world. I am sure that the necessity of wise solution will inspire us to work together, to take common counsel, to be tolerant of one another and give the best which is in all of us to attain the ends which become our republic at home and will maintain its high place among the nations of the earth.—President-elect Harding's address to the United States Senate.

With such a prospect, why doubt what is ahead of us? We have our tasks, it is true; but we have also our mighty resources, our will to do, and now comes at Washington our era of common counsel, our era of government functioning along stable lines in channels cleared for business, not choked by the debris of antagonisms and individualism.

As a nation, we are in for a period of government by understanding—understanding one another, counseling with one another, shaping things with a purpose fixed by more than one mind. Read the extract printed above from President-elect Warren Harding's speech, and you will look upon a picture of the next four years at Washington as definite in outline as though it were a photograph of what has been instead of what is to be.

Words could not more frankly and fully reveal the mind of man. Mr. Harding is to be President; he appreciates the responsibilities and dignities of that high office; he also knows the responsibilities of the legislative branch of our government. Without sacrifice of that appreciation by either branch, he wants both to counsel and work together. That desire has not been expressed in real words from the White House since President McKinley began his first message to Congress (December 6, 1897) with these cordial words: "It gives me pleasure to extend greeting to the Fifty-fifth Congress, with many of whose senators and representatives I have been associated in legislative service."

As in those McKinley days, the country had the benefit, the bountiful benefit, of a period of understanding and unity at Washington, so in the four years of Senator Harding the country is to have the same measure of benefit; for both men follow a period of chaos and confusion in government.

Electing a McKinley or a Harding to the presidency is like promoting a man who has risen step by step from the ranks, through one department after another, until, equipped by experience in every branch, he knows and accords to each its respective duties, and seeks not to take them to himself, but to organize and unify them by conference in a policy for which each will work as earnestly and aggressively as though it were wholly his own.

Such is the Harding purpose; such is the promise for the next four years.

Why doubt what it means to business, to progress, to prosperity?

PAY SCALE PRESENTED FOR COUNTY SCHOOL TEACHERS

Tentative Schedule of Minimum Salaries Given to Superintendents.

At the close of the conference of State educators held in Baltimore last week, a new tentative scale for minimum salaries of Maryland school teachers, from $100 to $200 a year higher than the present schedule, was presented to the county superintendents of the state by Dr. Albert S. Cook, State Superintendent of Education, and Assistant Superintendent George H. Reavis.

The schedule is wholly tentative, according to the emphatic statement of Dr. Cook. It will be acted upon by the county superintendents at their conference to be held next month. The teachers' associations of the counties—or the teachers, where there are no associations—will also act upon it. Then, when the teaching profession of the state is agreed upon the final schedule, it will be presented to the Board of Education for approval before it reaches Governor Ritchie for legislative action.

The present minimum salaries and the proposed minimums are as follows:

First grade teachers, from $700 to $1,000, increased to $1,200 after seven years of satisfactory service.

Second grade teachers, from $700 to $800, increased to $900 after five years of satisfactory service.

Third grade teachers, from $600 to $700, increased to $750 after three years of satisfactory service.

High school teachers, from $1,000 to $1,200, increased to $1,400 after eight years of satisfactory service, with similar increases for elementary and high school principals.

It was agreed by the superintendents that the state must do more to help the poorer counties finance their schools and make possible a more uniform standard of efficiency. They agreed that the best practicable plan for giving this help was for the state to provide an equalization fund for the poor counties. Mr. Reavis presented this plan after an investigation of the financial status of the counties in regard to their schools. This equalization fund, according to Mr. Reavis' proposal, should be $250,000 in addition to a reasonable increase in the present state appropriation for schools.

Dr. Cook said that although an effort would be made to improve all the schools, it was especially necessary to bring the poorer counties up to a higher level, if the rank of the whole state is to be raised.

It was agreed by the superintendents that an adequate number of properly trained teachers cannot be secured in the counties until amounts paid the teachers in the counties is increased. While the situation in Baltimore City and in Baltimore and Allegany counties has been improved greatly, it was said that most of the other counties are in urgent need of funds.

TOWNER SEES PASSAGE OF EDUCATIONAL MEASURE

Congressman Predicts Department of Education Will Be Created.

Representative Horace Mann Towner, of Iowa, joint author with Senator Smith, of Georgia, of the Smith-Towner bill for the creation of a Department of Education, with the new member of the President's cabinet, stated on his return to Washington a few days ago he felt encouraged more than ever over the prospects for favorable action on this measure. Judge Towner, asked whether he hoped for favorable action at the short session of Congress, said he would hardly go so far as to predict this, although hearings would be held in both the House and Senate Committees in charge of educational matters, and consideration pushed vigorously.

Judge Towner, continuing, said the sentiment back of the Department of Education bill had taken on such formidable proportions as to justify hope of favorable action on it during the short session, but that, due to appropriation measures, particularly, which must be given first attention, passage of the bill might not come until after March 4. As to ultimate favorable action, however, Judge Towner said he was not in doubt.

In discussing the influence back of the measure, he pointed to the great interest being shown by women, individually, as well as in organizations or large membership and wide influence. He was much interested in suggestions being made in the press that in the event of the passage of the measure a woman would be named by President Harding as its head. In any event, plans are in the making for consideration of the measure on the floor of Congress at the earliest possible moment, said Judge Towner.

Comment by newspaper correspondents recently has been in effect that President-elect Harding has definitely made up his mind in the event of the creation of the Department of Education to name a woman at its head, and that close friends of his say he is in favor of the measure. This information is said to have come from Point Isabel, Texas, and from friends of Senator Harding who discussed the measure with him.

CRIMINAL COURT IN SESSION

Judge Frank G. Wagaman Is Conducting This Week's Session.

Associate Judge Frank G. Wagaman, of Hagerstown, came to Oakland Sunday and on Monday presided in the Circuit Court for this county, upon which day the criminal docket was taken up and the following cases disposed of up to the hour this paper goes to press:

The appeal case of Earl Gank, who was charged with carrying concealed weapons, was the first case called, it being an appeal from Justice West's court. Gank was tried before the Court and a verdict of guilty was rendered. Sentence has not been pronounced.

Another criminal appeal case was that of Myrtle Strawser and Nelson Custer vs. the State. The parties stood charged with separating a child under six months of age from its mother and placing it in a foster home. This matter was heard by the Court and a verdict of not guilty rendered.

The State vs. Emory Devers, who was charged with the larceny of a lot of ginseng root from Messrs. Shaffer & Ridder, producers of the root, who reside in District No. 8, was tried before a jury and a verdict of guilty was rendered. The Court paroled the prisoner upon payment of the costs of prosecution and reimbursement of the owners of the stolen goods.

Criminal Trials.

State vs. Earl Gank; larceny; stet.

The case of Philip Noe, of Kitzmiller, who was indicted for having committed a rape upon an Italian girl of that town, occupied the attention of the Court all day on Tuesday and well up to the hour of adjournment yesterday afternoon. There were 17 witnesses examined for the prosecution and defense combined. The trial was conducted before the Court as a jury who rendered a verdict of not guilty. Noe was ably defended by Messrs. Thayer, Renninger and Pearre while the prosecution was conducted by State's Attorney Offutt.

The only convicted criminal thus far during the present term of court to draw a penitentiary sentence, was J. S. Thirsting, who saw and coveted a horse belonging to Donald Simpson in the latter's stable at Loch Lynn Heights one moonlight night last summer. Not having the necessary wherewithal to purchase the animal and fearing that the rightful owner would not part with it, Thirsting went into the barn, saddled the animal and rode it off. Mr. Simpson was not long in discovering his loss and gave chase, overtaking his property when not a great ways off and with the assistance of a deputy sheriff brought Thirsting to town where he has been in jail since the commission of the crime. His case was called on Tuesday and tried before a jury; verdict guilty. The Court sentenced him to serve four years in the Maryland Penitentiary.

Dewey Harvey entered a plea of guilty when he was arraigned upon an indictment charging him with the sale of liquor and was sentenced by the Court to pay a fine of $100 and costs of prosecution.

Harry Hauser also pled guilty to an indictment charging him with having entered and robbed a dwelling of jewelry, the property of a Miss Shaffer. The Court suspended sentence and paroled the prisoner for the term of three years.

Henry H. Bolden, Carlton Lipscomb and George Jones, three colored men who were employed in construction work on the road leading from Oakland to Crellin, charged with having broken into and stolen from a shack occupied by other workmen on the road, entered a plea of guilty and were sent back to jail.

Tony Friend, charged with larceny, entered a plea of guilty and was also paroled for a term of three years.

William Recknor, indicted for assault with intent to murder Ray Johnson, was tried before the Court and a verdict of guilty rendered. His sentence was likewise suspended for a term of 3 years.

Yesterday afternoon the case of the State vs. Fazenbaker, indicted for having sold a nostrum at his place of business at Kitzmiller containing from 18 to 20 per cent alcohol and which, it was alleged, produced drunkenness, was tried before the Court and found guilty. He was sentenced this morning to pay a fine of $100 and costs of prosecution, being warned by the Court to conduct himself properly in the future.

Luther Fry, who participated in the hold-up of the First National Bank at Kitzmiller a few years ago and who was arrested at his home near Winchester, Va., some months ago, as detailed in The Republican last week, entered a plea of guilty when he was arraigned this morning and was sentenced by the Court to serve four years in the Maryland Penitentiary.

At ten o'clock this morning Judge Wagaman discharged the petit jury all cases remaining to be tried at this term will be heard and determined by the Court sitting as a jury.

HARDING TO MAKE CHANGE IN NAMING OF POSTMASTERS

"Ambitious Democrats" Will Be Prevented From Holding Down Jobs

A staff correspondent of the Pittsburgh Press, in writing from Washington on the question of the appointment of postmasters when Senator Harding becomes President, says that "ambitious Democrats" will be prevented from serving as the president will suspend the civil service order and the Senate will not confirm the many appointments just sent to the Senate. This will prove of interest to Hagerstown as the acting postmaster's name is among the list of "ambitious Democrats" sent to the Senate. The Press's article follows:

"One of the first official acts of Senator Harding after he takes the oath of office as President, March 4, is expected to be an order suspending the executive order now in force which places all postmasterships under the civil service. Republican leaders in the Senate will press for this action it is understood, and it is believed that the new President will readily listen to the suggestion.

"President Wilson, it will be remembered, extended the civil service as it applied to postmasterships so that even the first class was included and if this order were allowed to stand it would result in the postoffices of the country being named by Democrats for years to come. That the whole affair has been a joke is recognized here for under the executive order which exists the present postmasters would continue in office until they were removed for cause or by death. Instances where vacancies have occurred since the order went into effect the present administration has made new appointments without much respect to the civil service rules, it is pointed out, although some sort of hokus pokus was generally gone through with which to create such an impression.

"Furthermore, the whole business of appointing postmasters would become a sort of farce, if the order were allowed to stand, it is said, because the Republican Senate would refuse to confirm Democratic postmasters certified to succeed themselves by the civil service. The new President will be urged to suspend the order as it affects the first, second and third class postmasterships, leaving the fourth class jobs still under the civil service where leaders believe they rightly belong, because they are of minor importance and not considered as worth much in the way of political importance."

The refusal of the Senate to confirm the appointment and the suspension of the civil service order will prevent Palmer Tennent from being postmaster at Hagerstown after next March. Several thousand other ambitious Democrats whose names have been sent to the Senate within the past week will likewise be prevented from holding Federal positions.

The Republicans claim they have not forgotten the action of the Democrats when they came into power following the Taft administration. All Republican nominations sent in by President Taft were buried away, they aver, until after the inauguration of Mr. Wilson, and they now propose to give the present administration a dose of its own medicine.

Zihlman To Have Unique Paperweight
Pieces of a fruit cake belonging to a Frederick man have been sent to more prominent men of the United States than probably any other cake of its kind ever made. Another interesting feature is that the cake is perhaps the oldest of its kind in this country. The cake belongs to S. T. Stull and was baked in 1872 by the late Mrs. Stull.

A piece of the cake was sent to President Wilson when he was married the second time. Another piece was also sent to Billy Sunday, the evangelist. Both President Wilson and Mr. Sunday acknowledged receipt of the unique gift in letters to Mr. Stull. Stull said that Congressman Zihlman, of Cumberland, was also to be sent a piece of this cake. The piece is enclosed in a case which can be used as a paperweight. On one side is a glass crystal showing the cake and on the other side are facts written about it. The piece for Mr. Zihlman also went through the World War. Mr. Stull's son, Russell, was a bugler in Co. A, 115th Infantry, and carried a part of the cake through France and Italy. The original cake was a large home-made one, but now only a few small pieces of it remain.

CHRISTMAS GREEN HUNTERS

State Law Protects Land Owners from Trespassers for This Purpose.

At this season of the year there is more or less damage to private property by Christmas green hunters, particularly in the vicinity of cities and towns.

To protect owners from such trespassers a law was enacted by the Legislature of 1918 (Chapter 179) which makes it a misdemeanor for anyone, without the written consent or personal direction of the owner to cut or injure any trees or shrubbery on the lands or premises of another, subject to a fine of from $5 to $25, or imprisonment from thirty to ninety days, or both, upon conviction before a Justice of the Peace or other court of proper jurisdiction.

Rigid enforcement of this law is needed for the protection of trees and shrubbery, not only along the roadsides, but the protection of grounds and woodlands of private owners.

Knights of Pythias Notes of Interest.

The rank of Esquire was conferred on a class of eight pages at the meeting of Garrett Lodge last Friday evening and on next Friday evening the rank of Page will be conferred on a class of candidates.

There will be no meetings of the lodge on the evenings of December 24th and 31st on account of Christmas and the Knights of Pythias fair.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the fair to be held during the holidays, advises us that everything is set for a good time during the occasion, which will be December 28th, 29th, 30th and 31st. Much work is necessary to line up things for this affair but the committee is going at it and feel much encouraged.

The annual election was held on last Friday evening at which time the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: C. C., W. S. Martin; V. C., Dr. Ravenscroft; Prelate, H. L. Stemple; M. of W., H. L. White; M. at A., D. W. Walter; K. of R. & S., Ernest Townsend; I. G., Albert Kahl; O. G., Wade H. Mason; M. of F., W. O. Davis; M. of E., A. T. Matthews; representatives to Grand Lodge, Wade H. Hinebaugh and H. P. Stuck.

It is important that we have a good representation of the membership out on Friday evening, December 17th, as this will be the last meeting to be held this year and much business of importance to the lodge will be transacted.

He is starting his course with a high scholastic standing and has won the friendship of many members of the faculty and of the student body.

Recently there was organized in connection with St. Paul's M. E. Sunday school a men's bible class, which is officered by members of the class who are doing a good work along the line of such organizations. The class has as its teacher the Rev. Bernard Gibbs, pastor of the church. On last Sunday afternoon there were present to hear the lesson discussed twenty-six; highly interested men in bible study. Each succeeding Sunday sees one or more new members added. In addition to the Sunday work of the organization there is a committee on social work. This committee has in charge the social meeting which will likely be held once a week at the homes of the members. Tonight the class will be entertained by Mr. J. M. Jarboe at his residence on Alder street for which occasion a musical and literary program has been arranged.

Is this a joke, or just funny stuff? The Cumberland Evening Times of Tuesday contained the following: "An engineer of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, this city, tells a good story of the unprecedented weather conditions prevailing now up on the mountains, at Oakland, Deer Park and Mt. Lake Park. He states that cattle are grazing upon green grass there and that even dandelions are again blooming, and katydids and tree frogs are sounding off their calls. Never before in the entire history of his 20 years railroading, the engineer declares, has winter been so much like summer there, as just now. He detailed that only in remote shaded corners of the mountains are icicles hanging and that sprouts are appearing Meteorite Is To Be Kept at Howesville The citizens of the hamlet of Howesville, not far from Kingwood, W. Va., and about 20 miles directly west of Oakland, do not propose to give up the meteor which aroused that vicinity last week, if it is unearthed. An effort will be made to locate it. The noise from the explosion of the aerial visitor was heard for miles around. A considerable amount of damage was done in the way of broken and shattered windows in business houses and homes. A car that was passing near where the meteor struck had the windshield broken and the top more or less damaged from the concussion, it is believed. The meteor struck the earth within ten feet of the track of the W. Va. Northern Railroad, which connects with the Baltimore and Ohio at Tunnelton. It fell dangerously near a grocery store. The taxicab from Albright had just passed the scene of the disturbance and the occupants were all more or less stunned. The flash of the meteor was observed at Grafton. The people of Kingwood, the county seat, located five miles from Howesville, declare the meteor will be set up in the court house square there in the event it is located and found to be of any size.

HE SUFFERED GREATLY WITH TERRIBLE COLD

Couldn't Get Any Sleep, Became Weak and Worn Out. Appetite Gone.

HYPO-COD RELIEVED HIM VERY QUICKLY

"My son who is 43 years old suffered from a terrible bad cold. He would cough a great deal during the day, but was much worse at night when lying down. He couldn't get any sleep, and was weak, tired and worn out all the time. He had sharp pains through the lungs and across the chest. His appetite had failed him, and he couldn't eat anything," declared Mrs. Williamson, whose address is given below.

"He bought Earle's Hypo-Cod because he saw it advertised and recommended highly for coughs and colds, and through the use of this tonic he has been greatly benefited. It stopped his cough after he had tried doctor's medicines to no avail. In fact he went to two doctors. Hypo-Cod gave him his first relief. He has taken three bottles, and all coughing has stopped. He looks better and feels better, and he says Hypo-Cod is one of the grandest medicines he has yet run across. I now recommend this tonic because it has benefited my son so much. I cheerfully allow my name to be published in the hope that others will be benefited also," continued Mrs. M. Williamson, 405 N. 50th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Thousands of users have found this tonic drives away coughs and colds, and builds them up quickly, according to their statements. Druggists, chemists and experts assure it is a most powerful reconstructive tonic. Read the formula on a bottle tonight at your druggist's. Take home a bottle, and see how quickly it does the work. Earle's Hypo-Cod is sold here by all druggists, and the leading druggists in all nearby towns.—Adv.

A WOMAN'S WORRIES

The lives of most women are full of worry. Men's troubles are bad enough, but women's are worse. Worry makes women sick. It pulls them down, and in their weakened condition they are subject to pains, aches, weaknesses.

ROANOKE, VA.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an excellent medicine to give young girls who suffer with irregularities. One of my daughters has been very delicate for some time, suffered with functional disturbances, and every winter would become weak and I would have to have the doctor for her. She would be weak and nervous. I worried about her condition a great deal. At the beginning of last winter a friend advised her taking 'Favorite Prescription' and it has done her a world of good. She has become regular and is in better health than ever before. I would advise mothers not to let their girls suffer, but to give them Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription."—Mrs. SARAH E. HAYNES, 1614 Third Avenue, N. W.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best woman's medicine there is. It is the safest, because it is made entirely of roots, herbs, barks and leaves. It is 50 years old, and its age testifies to its goodness. A medicine that has made sick women well for half a century is surely good to take. Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. TO SANTA CLAUS

By James Whitcomb Riley

Most tangible of all the gods that be,
O Santa Claus — our own since infancy! —
As first we scampered to thee — now, as then,
Take us as children to thy heart again.

Be wholly good to us, just as of old;
As a pleased father, let thine arms enfold
Us, homed within the haven of thy love,
And all the cheer and wholesomeness thereof.

Thou lone reality, when O, so long Life's unrealities have wrought as wrong;
Ambition hath allured us, fame likewise,
And all that promised honor in men's eyes.

Throughout the world's evasions, wiles and shifts,
Thou only biddest stable as thy gifts: —
A grateful king re-valet from thy lap,
Crowned with a little soldier-sap:

A mighty general — a nation's pride —
Thou givest again a rocking-horse to ride,
And wildly glad he gloweth as the grim
Old jurist with the drum thou givest him:

The sculptor's chisel, at thy mirth's command,
Is as a whistle in his boyish hand;
The painter's model fadeth utterly,
And there thou standest, and he painteth thee: —

Most like a winter pippin, sound and fine
And tingling-red that ripe old face of thine,
Set in thy frosty beard of cheek and chin
As midst the snows the thaws of spring eat in.

Hol Santa Claus — our own since infancy —
Most tangible of all the gods that be! —
As first we scampered to thee — now, as then,
Take us as children to thy heart again.

ON TIME

By CORONA REMINGTON.

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Gee! I'm insane!" he ejaculated as he let the paper fall from his hand and plunged toward the door.

"What's the matter, Langdon?" asked an astonished fellow club member.

"Just noticed the date on that paper — It's the twenty-eighth and tomorrow —"

His friend did not hear the rest as the door slammed behind him.

"Most absent-minded fellow I ever knew," always forgetting some dinner engagement or something," volunteered another member who was sitting nearby.

John Langdon dashed up to his room, glanced at the clock, threw a few things into a suitcase, laid a brand-new suit carefully on top, picked up his hat, overcoat and valise and rushed down to the street. As he opened the front door a gust of snow-laden wind nearly knocked him over. He blinked as the sharp particles hit his face, but hurried to the corner, where a taxi picked him up.

"Grand Central," he ordered, "in a hurry." And a few minutes later he was scrambling up the steps of Number Thirty-eight.

"Golly! That was a close squeak," he ejaculated as he dropped limply into a nearby seat and in another second the train began slowly moving out of the station.

It was a typical February night, and Langdon's young, clear-cut features took on an expression of anxiety as he reviewed the possibilities of becoming snowbound.

"And the farther west we go the worse it's apt to get," he groaned under his breath.

Thoroughly exhausted he retired early. When he awoke the next morning he rang for the porter.

"How long before we get to Huntington?" he asked.

"Due at five-twenty, but we're three hours late already, sah," and the black head withdrew.

"Good Lord! And we were to be married at eight," moaned Langdon. "I shall never forgive me."

His face turned a ghastly white as the situation impressed itself upon him. Before he could even hope to reach Huntington the guests would have begun to assemble, the minister would be there to perform the ceremony, and he, the bridegroom would be—where? Adele would never forgive him.

"Have to let it go at that," he said at last, as he reread his latest efforts: "I know you can never forgive me, but shall not reach Huntington before 8:15 or 8:30 at least. Whatever you do about it I shall love you always. Will explain when I arrive."

When the wire reached Huntington Adele read it in bewilderment.

"What can it mean?" she asked as she handed it to her mother.

"I can't understand it at all," she answered.

Langdon will never forget that day. The world cannot abuse one for ever. At last 3:38 crawled into Huntington and Langdon leaped from the car before it came to a standstill. As he rushed through the station he glanced at the clock. Eight thirty-five. It placidly announced. He jumped into the first taxi and soon found himself standing at the Hamiltons' front door, with his heart missing every other beat.

He was dumbfounded to find that no guests were assembled, no carriages stood without. Had she decided not to marry him and sent them all away? He reeled as the thought flashed into his mind, and for a second, contemplated flight. An instant later she was beside him. He never remembered having entered the house.

"Dear Jack, do tell me what's the matter. Everything's so strange and incomprehensible. I've been nearly distracted since your telegram came this morning."

"Darling, can you ever forgive me?" he pleaded.

"Forgive you for what?" she demanded, growing pale with anticipation.

"For what?" he shrieked. "Why, for being late. You know we were to be married at 8 o'clock and it's nearly 9 now."

"But we decided that the wedding was to be tomorrow, the first of March and my birthday."

"But today is the first of March. Yesterday was the last day of February."

"No, it wasn't, Jack. Yesterday was the 28th. This is leap-year, you know."

It was Langdon's turn to be surprised now. An expression of intense relief and happiness overspread his face as he sprang off the couch in a bound and caught the little girl in his arms.

"Tomorrow we will drink a toast to the leap-year and all the leap-years to come," he laughingly said.

And they did.

Various Races.

The Anglo-Saxon race is usually considered to include the people descended from the tribes that invaded Britain and settled there 1,500 years ago. The English people and the lowland Scotch, with their descendants in various parts of the world, are Anglo-Saxons, while the Welsh and Scotch highlanders are of Celtic origin, like the Irish. The French are a Latin race, the Scandinavians Teutonic.

CANADA BIG WINNER

Captures Many Prizes at Leading American Fairs.

Remarkable Showing Made at International Live Stock Show at Chicago—Carried Off Sweepstakes For All Wheat.

Something that lends emphasis to, and affords definite proof of, the generosity of the soil and climate of western Canada, is shown by the numerous exhibits made by both the government and individual farmers and stock raisers of that country, at many of the leading state and county fairs in the United States this season. Particularly is this the case with regard to exhibits made at the International Live Stock Show recently held at Chicago.

First and foremost to the average farmer will appeal the fact that Canada carried off the sweepstakes for all wheat, and that out of a total of twenty-five prizes, Canada took twenty. In oats the Grand Championship was won by a farmer living in the Province of Alberta. Canada also was awarded the championship for Durum wheat, while for Flint Corn out of a total of ten prizes, Canada took first, second, third, sixth and seventh.

Not only in grains did Canada prove her right to rank as a first class agricultural country, but she carried off many prizes for cattle, horses, sheep and hogs, a partial list of which follows:

Cattle, Canada was awarded the championship for Grade Short horns, also in the College Special class, Canada gained first, fourth and sixth prizes.

Horses, Grand Championship for Clydesdale stallion, also Grand Championship for American bred mare, as well as first for three-year-old Clydesdale stallion, first for one-year-old Clydesdale stallion, and second for the aged class.

In the Belgian class, Canada obtained first and reserve for Champion ship Belgians, as well as second for Aged stallion.

Sheep, Canada obtained Championship for block, male and female, addition to first prize in all group prizes.

Hogs, in the Yorkshire class Canada was very prominent, taking the Championship for ten of Yorkshires, and Championship for best single barrow, as well as over twenty first, second and third prizes in other classes of Yorkshires.

With regard to the live stock shown it must be borne in mind that these have not been fed on corn, on which the average western farmer places his reliance, but on the wonderful oats and barley grown in western Canada, supplemented by the native grasses, of which a most artistic display was made by our neighbors to the north.

Canada has conclusively proved that not only can she take prizes for the grain she raises, but can also take prizes with the animals to which these grains have been fed, and this in open competition with the world.—Advertisement.

KITZMILLER

Mr. Walter Fortney, of Morgantown, spent a few days here recently with relatives.

Miss Verba Walker has returned to her home here after a week's visit with her sisters in Philadelphia.

Mr. Dan Walker, a Prep student at Keyser, West Va., spent Saturday and Sunday here with his parents.

Early on Friday morning a freight wreck occurred on the Western Maryland Railroad just a short distance below the station at this place. As a result of the wreck the engine turned on its side just after the engineer and fireman had jumped to safety, so neither of the men were seriously injured. In addition to the wrecking of the locomotive, five cars of coal were also wrecked. Traffic on the road was blocked until the work train crew had cleared the track, which was not effected until Saturday.

Miss Merle Decker, of Keyser, W. Va., spent Sunday here with Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Spiker. Mrs. Spiker, before her marriage several months ago, was Miss Margaret Decker, of Keyser.

Miss Evelyn Smith and Mr. A. Kalbaugh visited friends here last Sunday.

Mr. Leonard Vashon spent the weekend with his home folks at Hambleton, West Va.

A large number of the foreign-born residents of Kitzmiller and vicinity are attending court in Oakland this week as principals and witnesses in the Noe criminal proceeding now on trial in the Criminal Court.

MASON

Our school is again in progress after being closed for a few weeks on account of the former teacher, Miss Helen Meese having to close the school on account of her health. We regret that Miss Meese had to relinquish her position as she was giving entire satisfaction. The school is now being taught by Mr. Thomas Bernard.

While returning from a business trip to Henry, West Va., Mr. Hurley Miller had the misfortune of losing a very valuable horse, the animal dying on the roadway.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ridder has been made bright and happy by the arrival of a brand new girl. Mr. William Kelley is on the sick list at this writing.

Messrs. David Mosser, Hervey Wolf and Lester Moon were visitors at the home of L. H. Fike on Sunday.

Elders B. W. Smith, of Burlington, West Va.; S. F. Ross, of Grafton, and D. W. Kirk, of Fairmont, came to Oakland on the morning of the 11th inst. where they were met by L. H. Fike and conveyed to the Maple Spring church near Eglon, where they met others of the committee on Child Rescue work. The committee decided to secure a home at once to carry out their plans, the home being for the first and second districts of West Virginia and the Western District of Maryland and will be administered by the committee representing the Church of the Brethren of these districts.

Mr. Groves, of Deer Park, is again preparing to begin sawing for L. H. Fike. The mill had shut down on account of Mr. Groves using the engine for threshing purposes.

BITTINGER

(The Bard of Bittering has written several little snatches of verse for The Republican in recent years, but the following is considered worthy of attention by critics.—Editor The Republican.)

One ship goes east and one goes west
With the self same wind that blows;
'Tis the set of the sail, and not the gale,
That settles which way she goes.

So with each life, in this world of strife,
Though the tides run high or low;
'Tis the style of your pluck and not your luck,
That brings you weal or woe.

A wreck on Jennings Brothers' railroad early last week stopped transportation entirely for several days, and as a consequence the employees of the Phillis Coal Mining Company were without employment most of the week.

Mr. James Stark spent last Saturday in Oakland on business.

Mrs. Christian Beitzell was taken to the Western Maryland Hospital in Cumberland one day last week where she underwent a surgical operation from which she is reported to be recovering rapidly, notwithstanding her advanced age.

Mrs. Patterson Engle, who has been ill for some time, is reported as recovering slowly.

Mr. Bluebaugh, of Vale Summit, Pa., spent a couple of hours in this village last Sunday.

Mr. William Brenneman, who has been employed in the Evans Garage at Terra Alta for some time past, returned to his home here a few days ago.

Mrs. Hettie Doolittle returned to her home here on Thursday evening of last week after an absence of some time which she spent in Akron, O.

Oscar C. Wiley, of Akron, O., is visiting friends and relatives here this week.

Mr. Ralph Jenkins, of New Germany, purchased a large number of Christmas trees from George Beitzell which he will deliver to his customers in Frostburg and adjoining towns.

Miss Carrie Reckner, of North Glade, is spending the winter with Mrs. Patterson Engle at the latter's home here.

CHADDERTON

Our school, with Miss Mary C. Holt-schneider as teacher, is making nice progress.

FORDSON

Hitherto the farmer has woven the power of his own muscles with those of the ox, the mule, and the horse, in the development of agriculture. Practical machinery for farming has come to him slowly. Where the value of machinery in labor saving, in profit-making, in usefulness, in comforts, in luxuries, has in the past been largely confined to the towns and the cities, it is now open to the farmer who is beyond all question the very bone and sinew of civilization. Civilization grows upon the land, therefore the land is Father and Mother and Sustainer to the human race, and those who till the soil, who plow, sow and reap, are surely the essentials in human existence. Therefore Machine Power on the Farm is of the utmost importance and the Fordson Tractor comes to the farmer as the best, we believe, piece of machinery that has yet been devised for his use.

We want you to read the book "The Fordson at Work." It is free for the asking. Call in and get one. Drop us a card and we will mail you one without charge. This booklet is along the line of the usual Ford way of giving the testimony of the users, those who have tried out and who know the real value of the Fordson Tractor. This book shows the Fordson at work in some ninety different lines of activity and to the farmer it presents the most valuable evidence of an all around serviceable, economical, labor-saving, and money saving machine that has ever been placed upon the market. We can only get so many each month, so leave your order now.

JESUS FEELS THE MULTITUDE.

SAVING A MOB.

Crowds feel much but think little.

Moved by impulses that are as gusty as winter winds they may be as destructive as a tornado and as violent.

Jesus met the storm conditions on the east of the sea just after the front of the most popular leader after Himself in all Judea. John the Baptist had struck a responsive chord in his forecast of the coming deliverer and the clean-up He would inaugurate. His daring to face a tolerant but unloved

King and condemn him to his face caught the admiration then as now of the people. His imprisonment had made him revered as a persecuted saint. Prophet, patriot, hater of shams and now done to a bloody death to grace a drunken orgy, the mass of the people were ready for anything that would rid them of such conditions. Like frightened birds the Twelve rushed back to their leader, for no one knew what blow would be the next or where it would fall. Jesus took them immediately out of the territory of Herod and the mob, ready to let loose its bloodlust and spend its force in other ways than revolution?

Feeling the loss more than any other, for Jesus had loved John. He turned from his own pain that the need of others might be met. So the witchery of words was tried for He "spoke to them of the Kingdom," and those who were sick were healed that their thought might be led away from the demand it held. Presently this Master of men or masses of men sensed the growing hunger that would make still more difficult His task and while busy here and there with cheer, healing or counseling, His mind was planning to meet the emergency, for when it came "Jesus knew what He would do." It is the unfed that create peril in the nation and the world, and Christ points the way for some present day solutions, for He gave the mind truth, the heart sympathy and the body bread. And because He had done all these things, the later crisis with its proffered crown was passed and the people saved from the onset of Rome's legions.

THE MASTER STROKE.

The disciples were as eager as any that their Lord should wear a crown.

If this hour were to be safely carried into history, there must be unquestioned belief in the judgment of Jesus upon the part of all. He began to work for that with those nearest Himself. Philip was questioned about the growing need, but money and mathematics were his only resource. He could judge both the crowd and the amount of bread needed for it, and since a penny was a day's wage of an ordinary working man it would mean six or eight hundred dollars in America today. "If we only had the money" is the only solution that many can think of today, but it has never brought the required answer. Evidently the disciples had that amount in their treasury, but it was brushed aside by Christ as useless. Andrew did better. Canny, kindly, boylover that he was, he had looked in the larder instead of the purse and said,

"We've got a little." Yet he was even more hopeless than Philip. For his attitude is that of the man who realizes the value of his religion but has none for the crowd. He would "use America first." What about the boy?

If he had his chance, and it's pretty certain that he had, there was sacrifice in the giving of his poor little lunch. A boy who has run errands, picked berries and gathered pennies in various fashions, was counting over his first dollar. "How much would you give to God?" he asked his mother. Knowing that the dollar was all he had, she said: "I think a quarter would be enough from a little boy like you." "Humph!" he cried, "I will not give Him a quarter—that's too little. I believe I'll just give Him the whole dollar." And he did. Trust a boy to be generous if he has not been spoiled by the adult attitude. This one pooled his little with Christ's much and became partner with Omnipotence.

"Make the men sit down," was the command that tried out the disciples, gave them a test and tested their obedience. They did not fail, nor did the crowd though they saw no hampers. But Jesus had every man, woman and child cooperating in bringing to pass what could have been accomplished by a word, for He could have stayed their hunger as easily as He could have furnished bread.

He would drain out through action their spirit that was crying out for violence and build through their cooperation a stronger confidence in Himself that enabled Him to say, "Go home," and be obeyed in the saving.

THE TEST.

"It works," was Marconi's only comment upon acrobaticism of his wireless outfit. Jesus found the same statement possible concerning His planning. The crown was proffered but so completely had He gained the confidence and goodwill of the crowd that it delayed its action and disappeared in the darkness. Then the old temptation was met in the old fashion of prayer and content to follow the course that led to His own bloody cross but spared the crowd its bloody burden. He turned to strengthen the faith of the Twelve for the desertion certain to follow. Across the sea, straight through fume and spray toward the boat that was tossed in the storm He walked to be met by their startled cry and Peter's request that near cost him his life. Peter learned that night that power is not furnished for personal ends and his faith grew he never attempted the task again. Most of the critics of the impetuous disciple carefully stay either in a good boat or on shore. Peter dared greatly that night. And it was Peter who led the Twelve in the refusal to desert in the trying reaction following these events. If one could only follow the boy there would be a great story for all the fire, the devotion, the sacrificial spirit that appeared later in Stephen could easily have belonged to this lad who flung his all into the hands of Jesus that day by the lakeside.

HOW ARE YOU?"

If Your Blood Is Rich and Red, You Say, "Fine."

ENTHUSIASM IS RED-BLOODED

Try Pepto-Mangan If You Feel Weak and Look Pale.

Sometimes you are almost down and out. You know you are not really sick, but you have a pestered-out feeling. You eat little. You drag along.

In the morning you look at your face in the mirror. You feel years older when you see how pale and haggard you are.

It is your blood. You need red corpuscles. Instead of poking along half sick, why don't you try taking Pepto-Mangan, the blood tonic? It has just the ingredients weak blood needs.

With red blood your energy and enthusiasm return. You eat better. You tackle work and achieve.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. It is effective and easy to take. It is sold in both liquid and tablet form. The medical properties are identical.

Sold at any drug store. But be sure to get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—" and be sure the full name, "Gude's

WILL AGAIN TRY TO DISPOSE OF STATE ROAD BONDS

Will Also Offer $500,000 of Securities
For War Memorial and Buildings

Attorney General Armstrong has been asked by the Board of Public Works to prepare a resolution to be acted upon by the Board for the advertisement in the near future of the sale of $2,500,000 of State bonds. This will be in accordance with acts of the General Assembly of 1920 authorizing the issue of $3,000,000 of bonds for State road work, and the creation of a debt of $1,500,000 for construction work and improvements to state buildings and for the State's appropriation for the war memorial to soldiers, sailors and marines.

Last August, when the State advertised for bids for $1,500,000 of road bonds the estimates received were so low that it was decided to reject all bids. The Board of Public Works decided to have the State purchase $1,- 000,000 of these bonds at par with money in the sinking fund. The balance, $500,000, is part of the bonds to be sold at this time, and to this will be added the rest of the road fund bonds authorized by the Legislature to the amount of $1,500,000, making in all for road work $2,000,000.

The balance of this total to be offered for sale, $500,000, will be for the memorial and for such repairs and improvements as are now needed to State property. This will leave a residue of bonds to the value of $1,000,- 000 for such purposes, which will be offered in two installments to the public, as required by the act, at stated intervals, later on.

SENTENCES PRONOUNCED

Upon Several Who Were Convicted of Crime at Recent Term of Court.

The December Term of the Circuit Court for Garrett county, adjourned on Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock after a session lasting upwards of two weeks, during the trial of the criminal Associate Judge Henderson, of Cumberland, presided, while the last week, during the trial of the criminal docket, Associate Judge Frank G. Wagoner, of Hagerstown, presided.

It was Judge Wagoner who on Friday just before the close of the session pronounced sentence upon several who had been adjudged guilty of having committed crimes, as follows:

Earl Gank, convicted of having carried concealed weapons, was given 3 months in the Maryland House of Correction.

Lloyd Wright, of near Altamont, convicted upon the charge of having broken into and stolen certain pieces of furniture from a Baltimore and Ohio freight car on a siding at Altamont, was paroled for the term of 3 years conditioned upon paying to the railroad company or the owner of the property stolen, the value of the property and the costs of prosecution, amounting to $154.

The sentences of Luther Fry, who upon being arraigned before the Court upon an indictment for having participated in the robbery of the First National bank of Kitzmiller about three years ago, and that of J. S. Thirstine, convicted of horse stealing, were reduced from four to three years each in the Penitentiary.

The three colored men, Bolden, Lipscomb and Jones, who entered a plea of guilty in connection with the robbery of the shacks of laborers employed on the state road west of town, were each paroled for the term of three years conditioned upon their good behavior and payment of the costs of prosecution.

SAYS HE WAS NOT ARRESTED

Ira Culp, of District No. 8, Denies That He Is Implicated in Bootlegging. Mr. Ira Culp, of District No. 8, was in Oakland yesterday and in an interview denied that he had been arrested last week in connection with an alleged violation of the prohibition laws of the land.

In justice to Mr. Culp The Republican gives Mr. Culp's denial the same publicity it did the news item concerning his alleged arrest.

WINTER BEGUN MONDAY

Thermometer Welcomed Reign of Ice and Snow With Reading of 5 Below.

The Winter Solstice or Winter Season officially entered upon its reign Monday evening at 10:17 o'clock. The approach of the season has been felt for the past several weeks and on Monday morning early risers in Oakland and other sections of Garrett county upon reading their thermometers were not at all surprised to learn that the mercury had dropped to five degrees below zero, for on Sunday night this condition was forecasted by a sudden drop which started with the setting of the sun that night.

Monday was the shortest day but by a few seconds only of the present year, and there is about a minute's difference in the length of daylight between December 20 and 21. When figured out in minutes, December 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25 have exactly the same amount of daylight—9 hours and 20 minutes—but when figured down to seconds, December 21 was the shortest for it is on that day that the sun reaches the farthest point south and begins its trip back northward.

On Monday the sun rose at 7:18 o'clock and set at 4:38 o'clock. The length of the day was approximately 9 hours and 20 minutes.

The Pythian Fair next week promises to be the liveliest affair that Garrett Lodge has had for many years past. The fair will open with a street parade on Tuesday night of next week providing the weather is such as to permit same. Immediately following the parade there will be a band concert in the K. of P. Hall and from that time on the fair will be in full swing. There will be dancing every evening. The hall will be open at 6:30 p. m. each evening and lunches will be served from that time on. At 9:30 o'clock each evening there will be a brief, free entertainment, consisting of vocal and instrumental music and recitations. A special feature will be staged on Tuesday and Friday night when the "Two J's" will perform. The Pythian Quartette is billed for one night. The Knights are making a great effort to wind up the fair on Saturday night with a burst of hilarious carnival spirit, giving young nineteen hundred twenty-one a rousing welcome.

CULPRESENTS AGENTS' RAID

Says He Always Supported Prohibition But Objects to Present Law.

Severely criticizing the conduct of Volstead Act enforcement officers who visited his home located in this county recently, and later placing him under arrest alleging that he had in his possession certain concoctions that would produce intoxication, Ira Culp, of District No. 8, wrote the following letter to the Baltimore Sun which appeared Monday in the "Letters to the Editor" column. He said:

To the Editor of The Sun:—Sir:—Is the Volstead Act to make every farmer and every other careful householder a criminal? And shall they be subjected to insult, outrage and loss by ignorant and irresponsible enforcement officers? Or is it just as safe and more profitable to be a moonshiner as it is to be and other class of citizen? Are the latter more liable to outrage and insult that the former is in danger of arrest?

On the 7th of December I left home with some legal papers to be served on parties in the course of a trip of several hundred miles. On the 8th a body of eight enforcement officers, under authority of a search warrant, and acting upon the alleged information of one who expected to win a case in court if he could get me to prison before trial, raided my premises, hunting through everything high and low for a still or something containing more than one-half of one per cent. of alcohol. After the most outrageous and insulting conduct toward my wife and daughters, hunting high and low, inside and out, underneath and on top, smelling jugs and stoppers, punching where they couldn't see or each, not a sight or smell could be found.

It had been generally known that each year I had made some excellent wine, and it was supposed that certainly some would be found that would win me a term in prison. Fortunately, this year I made no wine, and accidentally lost by the breaking of the jug what little I had started for minee nix. This saved me. But they took revenge for their failure by destroying several barrels and their contents of vinegar more or less advanced in formation, and only desisted from pouring out a barrel of vinegar that was already in table use upon the insistent protest of my wife.

What is this but sabotage of the I. W. W.? Is it any more inspiring? Are they applying Prussian principles of government? Have we come to government by terrorism? For that is what this is aiming at.

All my life I have been a prohibitionist, though accidentally I was never in a position to vote for it when it was submitted at an election, but I have thought that the Volstead law was too drastic ever since its enactment. I could not distinguish the difference between good and bad liquor, as differentiated by experts in drink. I never saw a drop of liquor distilled. I never was in a distillery and never saw a still. And yet under this infamous law I was thus subjected to outrage and loss at the instance of spite, hate and greed.

If my experience is the measure of what the citizenship generally shall experience, the Volstead law and even the Eighteenth Amendment will not last long. It almost made me feel like setting up a moonshine still, planting machine guns and explosives and buying all my children high-power rifles and resisting prohibition enforcement to the last life. IRA CULP. Henry, West Va., Dec. 15.

HUNTER DIED OF WOUNDS

Melvin Fazenbaker, Aged 19 Years, Victim of Gunning Accident.

Melvin Fazenbaker, aged 19 years, who was accidentally shot by a companion while hunting on last Saturday at a point in Garrett county a few miles west of Frostburg, died on Monday at the Miners' Hospital, Frostburg, to which institution he was taken immediately following the shooting. His companion, a young man named Warnick, who fired the fatal shot, says they had flushed a pheasant and Fazenbaker told him to shoot. He raised his gun and Fazenbaker got in range. He received the charge back of his right ear and a portion of his skull was torn away by the shot. Fazenbaker is survived by a younger brother. His parents died several years ago.

The funeral of the dead man was held on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Fazenbaker, Lonaconing, Rev. Dr. U. S. Wright, of the M. E. church, officiating.

POLAND NOW RIVALS PLIGHT OF BELGIUM

Children Chief Sufferers in Land Stripped of Necessities, Says Relief Worker.

Poland is in the destitute state for want of food and clothing among the poor that Belgium would have been during the war, had there been no commission for relief in that country, according to Dr. Vernon Kellogg, American Relief Administration official, who recently returned from Warsaw.

Dr. Kellogg was a member of Mr. Hoover's staff in Belgium, and at the conclusion of hostilities, entered Poland as the Hoover emissary in charge of food relief. He first entered Poland in 1915, a few months after the German occupation. His report of starvation, disease and suffering that existed at that time is one of the most harrowing documents in the records of American relief work overseas.

Dr. Kellogg made the following statement regarding the work after the armistice:

"With Warsaw as our headquarters, we began operations in Poland in January, 1919, and within a few weeks there was established a steady importation of food into that country. Tons and tons of it came from overseas through the Port of Danzig.

"It was impossible to do all that the administration wanted to do, because the need of Poland was too great, but it was agreed that enough food should be sent to Poland to care for the four million people until the great agricultural districts could again provide for them.

"But in addition to these four million people who so pressingly needed relief, there was another call for relief from a source that could not be resisted: the children of the land. Many of these were orphans, hungry, emaciated, destitute and diseased. So the American Relief Administration added to its work by instituting a system of feeding these children. In a few months a million and a quarter Polish children were getting a free meal every day of special food prepared to counteract the effects of their previous undernourishment."

To finish the job eight great organizations have united under the name of the European Relief Council to raise the funds necessary to care for the food needs and the medical needs of the 8,500,000 children of Eastern and Central Europe. These organizations are the American Relief Administration, the American Red Cross, the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers), the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Knights of Columbus, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.

GRAY SAMARITANS RESCUING CHILDREN

The Young Women's Christian Associations of the United States are keenly interested in the movement for the relief of the 3,500,000 starving children of Europe because a group of their members, the Polish Gray Samaritans, have been in charge of distributing food to children in Poland. They have been serving under the American Relief Administration and have conducted food kitchens and distributing stations in all parts of Poland outside Warsaw.

In all the relief work being done in Europe, that of the Polish Grays has been unique because all the girls, though sent from America, were either born in Poland or are of Polish parents. When the need for social service in their country became acute many girls of Polish descent answered the call of the Young Women's Christian Association for overseas service and enlisted in the preliminary training course that was given in several cities of the United States. From this group thirty girls were chosen and sent to Poland where, since 1918, they have been caring for the children of the country. The distribution of clothing has taken them into all parts of Poland.

They are now spending their entire time in arranging for the feeding of children this winter. Groups of them travel to strategic centers in outlying districts where they set up distributing stations, receive supplies, prepare meals, arrange for impartial distribution and train helpers to continue the work when they are sent on to the next town.

COLUMBUS KNIGHTS AID CHILD APPEAL

James A. Flaherty, of Philadelphia, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, declared that the K. of C., in response to an appeal from Herbert Hoover, chairman of the European Relief Council, had decided to take an exception in their policy of refraining from any national campaign for funds for relief or charitable work.

"The need of the starving and sick children of Europe is so urgent," Mr. Flaherty said, "that the Knights of Columbus feel it duty bound to devote themselves to the common task of raising funds for the relief of these children. An organization it is our intention to conduct no distinct K. of C. drive for funds, although members of the organization are frequent contributors to all charitable drives. But in this case we feel that the emergency calls for the united efforts of all Americans and we consider it a privilege to have partnership in this great work of mercy."

CHRISTMAS!

We have come once more to the Christmas season with its joyous spirit. It is a season of joy, but it should be the joy of the Lord. No joy has so good and firm a foundation as that which is found in the Lord who has bought us and with whom we may be blessed with all spiritual blessings. If we wish to rejoice in the blessings purchased by Jesus, we must be in Him, united to Him by faith. This union will be a source of continual joy. It will be accompanied by a willingness to obey, love and glorify Him.

This season of the year impresses us with the duty of cheerfulness and joy. There is no place for gloom here. Joy may be cultivated—it is contagious. The joyful person is always a welcome guest. Nature smiles in the face of storms. She covers her wounds and effaces all traces of scars.

The commander of the Boy Scouts said to them: "Smile all the time, in pain, in anger, in anxiety. But it is hard to smile in the face of disappointments, though it is not impossible. It is hard to be joyful when things go wrong, but 'God's in the heavens and all's right with the world.'"

Troubles will end. Why grieve while they are passing? Too many are like Giant Despair: so soon as they see sunshine they fall in a fit. Joy brings peace of mind, rest of soul, love to others, self-denial, resistance to the calls of pleasure and the world and active benevolence.

Why rejoice? It is the spring of energy. "A cheerful Christian is an active one." It increases the influence of your life.

We should rejoice in what the day stands for. It means to us salvation and all its blessed fruits. It means ultimate victory, even our glorification with Christ.

Rejoice for your own sake. There is no virtue in melancholy; for the sake of your work—it is invigorating for the sake of others. Our gloom saddens others. Gloom makes cowards of us and one coward can demoralize a company. Better than all, it is pleasing to the Lord. It is our duty to rejoice. Is it possible? Certainly it is. "Let your forbearance be known; sorrowful yet always rejoicing." It produces good results. It destroys selfishness and leads to gentleness to and forbearance of others.

It dispels anxious care. We are not distracted by anxiety for worldly things; it leads to prayer; it makes us thankful for the blessings of life, especially of salvation. We naturally think of the children and want to make them happy. We think of the Christ child whose coming has exalted childhood, for the day of His coming was a glorious day for childhood. With what joyous longings do they look forward to the day that brings them gifts. Even older ones love to be remembered and we cherish the gift and delight in giving because of the thought that prompted it. Though the gift that is prompted by love is small, it is far more than the one prompted by a sense of duty or obligation. There is no place here to give for the return you may get. That takes away the very object of Christmas.

It is a time for showing sympathy as well as for coming into closer touch with friends.

We may extend our gifts very properly to all objects of need who are waiting to have Christmas joys showered on them. In myriads of homes there will be no Christmas joy this year, for the little ones will not hang the stockings by the fireplace and sad hearts will not look for Santa Claus, for the pall of an awful sorrow hangs over them. The rider of the "Black Horse" is galloping through their home lands and poverty, sickness and famine are following in his wake. Thousands of children sit by the desolate fireside weeping for loved ones who will never return, shivering for lack of warmth and gnawed by hunger. Starving millions of children! Pity and help them. If all in our good land would share a bit with these needy ones, it would make many a poor child happy!

The spirit of Christ, whose coming into the world we celebrate now, still illumines the minds and hearts of His followers and energizes them with power to know and do His will in the world. It adapts itself to the varied conditions of life. Its humanizing and purifying influence enters into our commercial, political and social life.

It enters the peasant's home and the employer's residence; the toiler's cottage and the palace of the great; the mind of the illiterate and the domicile of the philosopher, and sheds the same light of truth and grace upon all.

It affects the economic and social problems in their selfishness and avarice; strifes and class interests, and instills a purer and sweeter life. It penetrates the darkness of sin and throws light on the future. It will diffuse its light into our sin-cursed world until its Author returns to establish His Kingdom, and His light will fill the earth.

Someone has said that "each of us as we travel the way of life has the choice according to our way of working, of turning all the voice of nature into one song of rejoicing."

As we tune these voices we bring happiness and joy to others. Be joyful, then, in spite of your troubles; rise above them and find in them some cause for cheerfulness.

Wishing you all a joyful and happy Christmas, I am, Yours ever,
JOANNES.

REVIEW: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM. Mat. 1:14.

And He that sitteth upon the throne said, Behold, I will make all things new.—Rev. 21:5.

THE MAN AND HIS MESSAGE.

Matthew, like Peter, earned a new name which has so fully taken the place of Levi that we scarce recognize the old. Levi was the son of Alphaeus (Mark 2:14). James was also the son of Alphaeus (Mark 3:18), and it may be that these Disciples were brothers. Thomas was called Didymus, the twin, and his name is always coupled with Matthew, so that since the three are together in each list of Apostles, it may be that all were from the same house. Matthew was the man of rekindled fire. Deserter of his people, he cast aside his wealth, his possibility of preferment in the service that had already placed him in one of the prominent offices and all his old grudges that he might follow Jesus. Familiar with the Hebrew Scriptures and longing for their fulfillment, he has written the most Jewish of the Gospels out of a heart flaming with renewed love for the age long dream of a King for the world.

Modest, business-like, careful in detail, he has left us what Heman calls, "The most important book ever written." It is a charge against the Jewish leaders for the rejection of their promised King and an appeal for His acceptance. It is the gospel of dreams, of great discourses, of systematic grouping of material, of the Kingdom and Jesus the King. We have covered just half of it and more than two-thirds of the ministrant life of our Lord for the close of the period of popularity has been reached. The birth of the King (1, 2); the preparation of the King (3, 4); the character of the Kingdom (5-7); the power of the King (8, 9); the couriers of the King (10); the reception of the King (11, 12); the stories of the King (13); and the bounty of the King (14), make up the portion of our study. From January 27, when John baptized Jesus, until April 29, when He rejected the proffered crown, there has been the growing influence seen in the Judean ministry told only by John, in the choice of the Twelve out of a great throng of followers, in the words and works that showed the mastership over disease, demons, danger and even death, and in the growing hostility of the rulers who were beginning to plot the death of this Man charged by them with being in partnership with the Prince of Devils. The next quarter continues the book to its completion and should give a new appreciation of its worth, a fuller comprehension of its contents and something of Matthew's passion for his King.

Primary: Stories About Jesus, Memory Verse, Acts 10:38.

Pictures have been used during the quarter and this gives an opportunity to recall them and their story. Or Wildes' or Perry's pictures may be secured at very small cost and used to attract attention. Perhaps the Christmas story will be the one that is desired and more time may be given to the Wise Men than to any other topic. Always the attitude of the Father and His love should be emphasized. Supply some expressive work like the collection of used material (Dr. S. D. Price, 216 Metropolitan Tower, New York), toys, clothing, etc., for relief work, local or European, or money for some of the many needs of today.

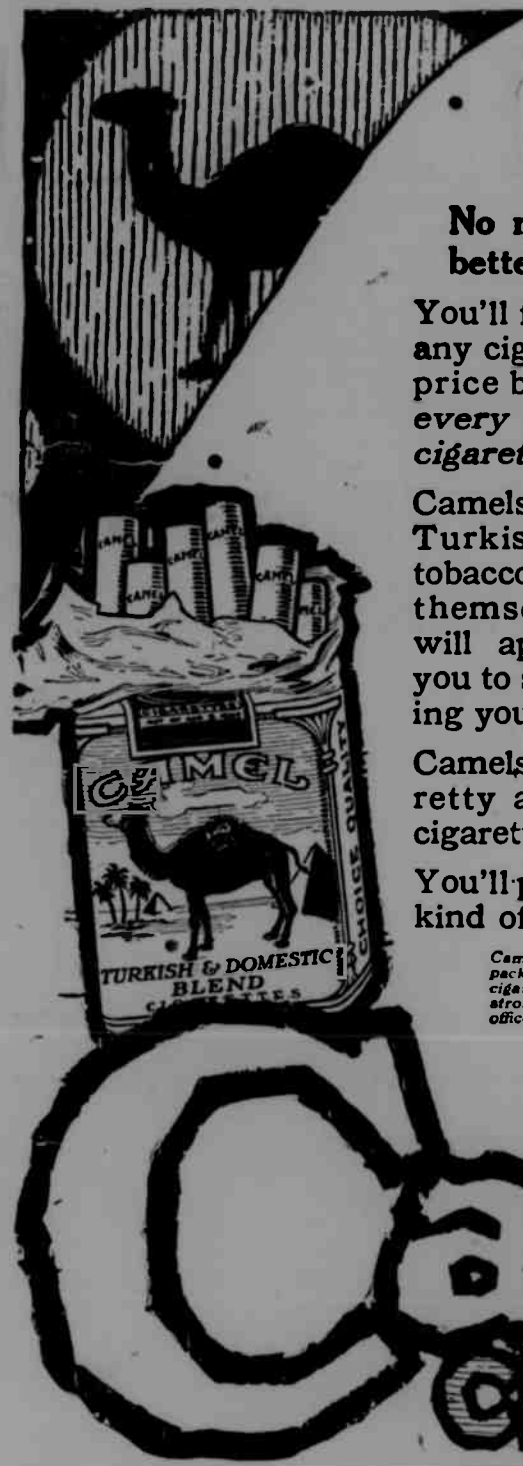

Junior: Jesus's Words and Deeds.

Memory Verse, John 3:16.

Pictures may be used here also by placing them in an envelope after attaching a cord or ribbon in some fashion to each so that it may be withdrawn readily. Have a scholar pull one out and tell its story, receiving the picture as a reminder of the quarter's work. A chapter drill may be used by cards with the chapter number on one side and the chief event on the other. With numbers up call for the events and then reverse until the material is mastered. Missing names may be inserted from the story of the events so that as the story is told the person will be named by the listening pupils. A map drill may be used to secure both names and events. Do not fail to leave with the class a vivid picture of Jesus with the right to command allegiance, for He is the King. As a leader He has been forming a group of followers, loyal and true, and that is still His way and work. Enlist the children under His leadership for the coming year and urge their uniting with the church on the very first Sunday.

Interim-date: The Life and Teaching of Jesus.

If the class is part of the Boy Scout movement and familiar with the Scout laws, a study of Jesus as Scout Master

A helpful summing up of the work. A camp fire may be staged, around which are gathered various persons, with the laws that He kept will make like the stable boy of Bethlehem, a boy who saw the Baptist, a little listener to a big sermon, etc., each one of whom tells the story as though he had been present at the event assigned him. A map may be used tracing upon it the journeys of Jesus, with the happenings as progress is made. Drill upon the chapter or division contents of the book may be what is needed in your class. In every case use the material to reveal the understanding Christ ruling over lives, because of such understanding of what is in them, ruling because believing in them and trusting them to do His will, and still ruling over lives for the same reason. Urge His acceptance over the life.

Adult: The Beginnings of the Kingdom.

Complete the mastery of the first half of the book of Matthew and suggest something of the feast to follow during the next quarter. Divisional treatment appears best for reaching such a goal. Blackboard, map or paper may be used to present the outlines desired to the eye. An acquaintance with Matthew may have grown out of the studies and he may become the point about which the facts center. What do we know about him? What sort of man is revealed by the things he tells? Better is it to know the King Matthew loved. If the lesson by lesson method is used plan about the thought of the King—the birth of the King, the preparation of the King, the message of the King, etc., so that something of the wonder that the Publican felt may creep into the hearts of each. When the King's authority is accepted the Kingdom is a fact—urge such upon the class.

Mr. Paul Winchester, Newspaper Man of Baltimore, thinks the People of Maryland Are Going Daft on Experts, and He May Be Correct In His Assertion.

Mr. Paul Winchester, a newspaper man of Baltimore, sent out the following letter on last Friday:

"The State and city authorities seem to be going daft on the subject of experts. No matter what may be done, or what may be under consideration, expert examination must be imported to go through things, and schemes desired by experts, who may know very little of the subject, and who may know less of the local conditions. At the present time the schools are to be taken up and experts from that centre of experts, Columbia University, are here, and more to be here, to examine and report. We know nothing in Maryland, we do not know what we want, but these scientific, or alleged scientific experts, are ready for large fees to give us information and tell us what we ought to have—for a large consideration. Some of these alleged experts have gone to New York from some place in New England or the far west, have spent a few weeks, or perhaps months, if they could afford it, and then have gone forth with the cer-

JUNIOR JUDGING CONTEST HONORS

Missouri Team of Three Boys Captured First in Passing on Dairy Cattle.

ILLINOIS IN SECOND PLACE

Spectators Were Impressed With Businesslike Procedure of Youthful Judges—Two Girls Fortunate in Winning Prizes.

In the second national boys' and girls' dairy-cattle judging contest, in which 15 teams from as many states competed for the Junior Judging honors, the Missouri team of three boys won first place in judging all breeds of dairy cattle, second place going to Illinois, and third to Texas. A Missouri boy, Arthur Gwinn, made the highest individual score for judging all breeds. Another Missouri boy, Arthur Bennett, was second, and Clarence Doran of Illinois was third.

The awards for the best teamwork in judging different breeds were as follows: Ayrshires, Missouri; Guernseys, Maryland; Holsteins, Illinois; Jerseys, Ohio. The contest was conducted at the National Dairy show by the Boys' and Girls' club section, office of extension work North and West, states' relations service, and the dairy division, bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture.

Spectators Much Impressed. During the contest spectators were much impressed with the businesslike way in which these youthful stock judges went about their work of judging the eight rings of animals, consisting of a ring of cows and a ring of bulls of each of the following breeds: Ayrshire, Guernsey, Holstein and Jersey. It was a big day's work, but well worth the effort, as all the contestants undoubtedly gained a broader knowledge of judging dairy cows through contact with excellent types of cattle, experienced judges, and through other educational features.

Among the 45 contestants were two girls. One of the girls, Helen Greenlee of Ohio, furnished a surprise by taking first place in the judging of Jersey cattle, while Pearl Baker of Michigan won the bronze medal for judging Guernseys.

Contest Far-Reaching in Effect. The judging work at the dairy show, while a great benefit to these boys and girls who took part in it, was only a small part of the far-reaching contest which, beginning in the local boys' and girls' clubs in many hundreds of communities, progressed to the contests for county supremacy, and then to the state championships, many of which were finally settled at the various state fairs. These state championship teams were the ones sent to compete for national honors at the dairy show.

In the contest last year only six individuals were entered, from as many states, while this year 15 states were represented with teams of three each. These 45 contestants were the guests of the National Dairy association for five days, and were taken by the association on a tour of the packing and machinery plants, and on automobile tours of the city. On the day following the contest they participated in a banquet, where the awards were presented by representatives of the various donors.

CARELESS HANDLING CAUSE OF BIG LOSS

Easy for Potatoes to Develop Serious Diseases.

Important That Utmost Care Be Given Tubers While in Storage to Prevent Rot—Good Ventilation Will Assist.

Careless handling of potatoes during and after digging, says A. G. Tolans, chief inspector for the Minnesota state seed potato certification board, is often responsible for serious loss from rots. Every bruise or infection on a potato makes it easy for various storage rots to develop. These dis-cases have their origin in the soil or in unclean bins. It is important, therefore, that great care be taken while digging and also while handling the potatoes after placing them in storage.

Potatoes badly bruised when dug should not be placed in storage with sound potatoes, since they are certain to rot and spread infection throughout the bins. A field that has contained blackleg, and which has not been rogued, is very likely to yield a considerable number of potatoes slightly infected, at least, with blackleg rot. If these are placed in storage with sound tubers they may be responsible for large amounts of storage rot, especially if the potatoes are damaged when being dug or after being placed in storage.

Mr. Tolans finds that a large amount of storage rot can be prevented by placing the potatoes as soon as dug in crates, which, when filled, can be hauled to the storage cellar and carefully dumped wherever wanted. If it is necessary to drop the potatoes several feet much damage can be avoided by providing a chute for lowering them into the cellar.

Storage cellars, especially those which contained a lot of rotted potatoes the previous year, should be thoroughly disinfected with a strong solution of bluestone—one pound being dissolved in ten gallons of water; or formaldehyde, one pint in ten gallons of water, before the potatoes are put away. Good ventilation with temperature of from 55 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit will aid materially in keeping down the loss from storage rots.

COMMON SALT IS DANGEROUS

Hogs and Chickens Are Very Susceptible to Poisoning by Mineral—Instances Cited.

It should be borne in mind that hogs and chickens are very susceptible to poisoning by common salt.

A lady emptied her containing salt from the ice cream refrigerator in the backyard. The chickens picked up salt enough to kill them.

A newly-wed couple a cake of salt, presuming it to be sugar. It was thrown to the chickens and killed all of them.

Pigs were allowed to graze in a pasture with cattle where they had access to a salt lick; they licked the salt ravenously and all but three of the herd died.

Another case is reported where salt brine was mistaken for sawwater and fed to hogs with Ergebnis; the pigs were poisoned and died the following day.

Salt poisoned hogs show no symptoms for several hours, when they are taken with dizziness, increased thirst, frothing at the mouth, diarrhea, and vomiting. Keep salt away from hogs and chickens—Geo. H. Glover, Colorado Agricultural College.

PROPER TIME TO CUT WHEAT

It May Be Done With Safety When Straw Has Lost Nearly All of Its Green Color.

Wheat may be cut with safety when the straw has lost nearly all its green color and the grain is not entirely hardened. If cut sooner than this shriveled kernels will result. If left standing until fully ripe, a bleached appearance, due to the action of the elements, often results and loss from shattering may ensue.

SUCCESS IN MARKETING

Success in co-operative marketing depends upon obtaining a sufficient volume of business, observing co-operative principles, employing capable management, following up-to-date business methods, and having loyal members.

POULTRY

PLAN TO INCREASE POULTRY

Department of Agriculture Recommends Careful Selection of Breeding Stock.

The campaign that has been inaugurated by the United States Department of Agriculture to stimulate and increase poultry production along more efficient lines is divided into the following phases:

Careful selection of breeding stock to reproduce a larger percentage of good types of profitable producers.

Early hatching, so as to produce fall and winter layers.

To provide free range for both growing stock and layers in so far as possible to stimulate growth and production and conserve food consumption.

To preserve eggs for winter use.

The production of infertile eggs as soon as the breeding season is over.

Disposing of surplus cockerels as broilers to conserve grain.

To discourage the marketing of all profitable hens of the general purpose class until the end of their second year, and of the Mediterranean or egg class until the end of their third laying year.

To encourage the careful selection of all hens in order to eliminate the unprofitable producers.

To discourage the marketing of all profitable pullets as broilers and of all well-matured pullets for meat.

To encourage the capitalizing of cockerels only when free range can be provided and a special nearby market afforded.

To encourage backyard poultry keeping, especially among city and suburban dwellers, thereby utilizing table scraps for the production of fowls and eggs for home consumption.

To encourage turkey, duck and geese raising when circumstances are favorable.

TO KEEP HENS COMFORTABLE

House Must Be Kept Dry, Well Ventilated and Sufficient Space for Scratching.

The poultry house is both the home of the hen and the factory where winter eggs are produced, and unless it provides suitable living and working conditions the hen cannot be expected to lay well. The chief requirement is that the house must keep the birds comfortable. To be comfortable the house must be dry, well ventilated, well lighted and have sufficient floor space to provide exercise by scratching. Dryness is insured by having a good roof, keeping the floor of the house higher than the surrounding ground, and by providing good ventilation. Ventilation must supply plenty of fresh air without drafts. This is secured in the poultry house by having the south side relatively open and the other three sides absolutely tight. The importance of light in the poultry house has not been properly emphasized in the past.

FERTILE EGGS FOR HATCHING

Maximum Fertility Not Likely to Be Obtained Before Two Weeks After Mating Fowls.

Matings should be made at least two weeks before beginning to save the eggs for hatching. If less time is allowed, the maximum fertility is not likely to be obtained. It is often desirable to mate even further ahead than two weeks so that a few eggs can be incubated for five or six days to see whether they are fertile. If these eggs are not fertile, there is still time to change the male bird and thus be sure of fertile eggs for the earlier hatch.

FRESH AIR VERY IMPORTANT

Not Advisable to Close All Windows at First Approach of Cold Weather in Fall.

Don't close all the windows in the henhouse at the first approach of cold weather, but leave some of them open. If the wind blows in, put a levee of barbed wire or other space to keep out the wind, but let in air.

IT'S FINE TONIC FOR WOMEN FOLKS

Dizzy, Headachy Spells, Thin Blood and Weak Spells Relieved.

BROUGHT BACK OLD STRENGTH, VIGOR

"I was in such a rundown, thin and anemic condition I couldn't sleep good nights and had got so weak and nervous I couldn't keep a sewing machine going. My blood was thin and dizzy spells were bothering me lots when a friend luckily told me about Earle's Hypo-Od. I bought, in all, about four bottles, and it is wonderful medicine. Since getting back to health myself I have recommended this tonic to dozens of friends, who likewise praise Hypo-Od to the skies," declared Ida Barnes, 217 N. St., S. W., Washington, D. C.

Frail, thin-blooded, nervous women should not permit their system to become so weak. They need a tonic to enrich their blood, give them added weight, strength and vigor, red, rosy cheeks and vitality. Perhaps recent sickness has caused the breakdown. If so, they should give Earle's Hypo-Od, that thousands of users say is so good, a thorough trial. Druggists, chemists and experts assert it is the most powerful tonic of its kind made, yet you will be surprised how pleasant it tastes. Take home a bottle with you tonight!

Earle's Hypo-Od is sold by all good druggists—Adv.

"S-s-s, Lawrence," she admonished, "we have to have something different for company. —Publishers' Auxiliary.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—cure Catarrh or deafness caused by Catarrh. We do not claim to cure any other disease. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a liquid, taken internally, and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions. Billy and Mary stopped in the house next door to see the new talking machine. After they heard a piece or two, Mary started to look it over, and said: "It's not like ours."

Mrs. Case asked: "What kind of machine have you?"

Mary engaged in deep thought. At last she exclaimed: "It's a Scotch collier."

Mrs. Case said: "Why, I never heard tell of that kind of a talking machine."

Billy spoke up, saying: "Mary is always getting things wrong; it's a fox terrier. If you don't think I'm right, Mrs. Case, you go over and look at the picture on it."

Important to all Women
Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

The highlander blushed, smiled, and replied, in kindly tones: "Thank you, me lad, but I'm no' a girl cubbie yet."

PUZZLE: FIND THE COVENANT

Discuss as one will the niceties of the balance of power between the Council and Assembly of the League of Nations, with all the great implications the question contains concerning the relative status of small and large nations, there yet remains one matter of which neither head nor tail can be made.

The controversy has waged chiefly over the Council's determined course in keeping the conditions of mandates from the Assembly knowledge. The situation is tersely summarized in the bitter final adoption by the Assembly of its committee's report, which declared, as paraphrased by the Associated Press dispatch, that "the Council had adopted such a policy regarding mandates that there was no opportunity to discuss them publicly before they went into force."

Now, what is the statutory, diplomatic or moral difference between the agreement by which a mandatory is bound to administer so and so the territories mandated to it, as trustee for the League of Nations, and those more familiar international agreements called treaties? Article XVIII. of the covenant reads thus:

"Every treaty or international engagement entered into hereafter by any member of the League shall be forthwith registered with the Secretariat, and shall, as soon as possible, be published by it. No such treaty or international engagement shall be binding until so registered."

We know the Monroe Doctrine is "a regional understanding," because Mr. Wilson said so. If it is, then haven't the covenants in these mandate matters at least the standing of "international engagements?" And if so, have they been duly registered? And if registered, aren't they open to inspection even to the League's Assembly itself? What is the purpose of registration, anyway?

It is all so mysterious and mystifying; explainable only by the assumption that when the nations gathered at Geneva nobody remembered to register the Covenant itself.—Baltimore Evening News

An Indignant Woman Declares There Is No Excuse.

To the Editor of The Republican.
In last week's Republican there appeared an article concerning the death from the effects of gangrene, of a man confined in the Jail and that the odor arising as a result of the condition of this unfortunate man caused the Jail to be unsanitary.

Shame on Garrett county to allow anyone to die under such conditions. If the jailer's duty is to report a case of this kind was it reported?

When the grand jury or its committee or members who examined the Jail and found such conditions existing it seems to me that they should have taken action at once to see that the dying man had the proper attention. No matter if he was the victim of his own lust, he was human.

In Oakland there is a considerable sum of Red Cross funds reposing in one of the banks and then to allow things like the above to exist makes one almost believe that human sympathy is indeed at a low ebb.

It is unfair to the dead man to try to excuse anyone. God knows where the blame lies. We must not forget that "we are our brother's keeper."

The sin of the neglect of this man's case cannot go unpunished.

PREDICTIONS FOR 1921

Phoeph Says the Planet Mercury Will Rule in Many Ways During New Year
Reben H. MacDonald, of Binghamton, New York, writing a syndicated article for the press of the nation a few days ago, predicted the following: "The entire country, after enjoying unprecedented prosperity in fertility of the land, unlimited demands for building material, machinery, automobiles, clothing, shoes and luxuries, due to only one thing, which is that Venus reigns supreme in 1920, but must now undergo a three-year adjustment to bring business to a satisfactory basis."

"During the year 1921 Mercury, a doubtful planet in many ways, like the thermometer, will regulate business and prices in all parts of the country. Since storehouses are filled with manufactured articles that must be sold, it stands to reason prices will gradually decline. Capital and labor will have many disputes; some are never satisfied. A person should not try to overdo. Live and let live."

"High prices are for good times—low prices are for hard times. A majority of the people are earning and spending more than ever before."

"Prices are regulated according to the price of iron and pork. When iron and pork are high, wages and commodities will be high and vice versa."

"It will require two or three years for those who have left the farms to plunge into town and city life to realize there is more real living and more money in raising crops than in manufacturing luxuries for foreign countries."

In 1921 government officials will investigate many concerns and as a result fraud orders will be issued in general to protect the public.

"The weather for 1921 will, in general, be somewhat disagreeable. January and February will be changeable. The spring will be inclined to be dry, cold and unseasonable. Plant accordingly."

The summer will be wet, which will benefit those living in locations with very little rainfall. In some localities hay and grain will rot, unless given proper attention. The fall will be wet with early frosts. Be prepared for such weather and gather crops carefully."

"The winter will be one with plenty of snow and ice, which is good for the soil."

"Fruit will vary—in certain localities some kinds will be abundant, in others somewhat of a failure unless given special attention. Grapes will be doubtful. It will be an off-year, which will give the vines a rest. Nature knows best. Mice will be very numerous. Better feed a cat than the mice. Worms scarce, consequently fish will be scarce and of poor quality. Big fish stories will be out of fashion. Disease of all kinds will cure but slowly. Contagious diseases will occur, but not alarmingly. An epidemic will prevail in cattle, sheep and hogs, but will be soon overcome by government restrictions and service."

The agricultural departments will be of great help to the people in many ways—the information sent out is reliable and should be appreciated by more persons."

HUTTON

CHRISTMAS.

A few days hence all Christendom will vibrate with a joyousness that knows no bounds for verily Christmas is one of the greatest and most sublime feasts occurring in the church calendar. This day is made sacred through the noble generosity of Heaven's most munificent gift presented to sinful man and his lineage over nineteen hundred years ago, and today with universal prominence the church and state gives proper recognition of the blessed advent of the Messiah's advent by proclaiming it to be a day of prayer and rest. Let our hearts ever rejoice in the gladness that is ours, for the participation is indeed great—far beyond the feeble comprehension of the average intellect. While the sun is sinking into the billowy clouds of the western horizon and the evening shadows are veiling the earth in gloom, I trust, dear reader, that this has been a "perfect day" and one that will long be remembered in the years to come. May your Christmas be merry and the New Year prosperous.

FATE'S DECREE.

Perhaps you may be in error
Or probably just misadvised
As to the sweet and smiling visage
Of Fate, so oft disguised.

No matter how much you struggle
To free yourself from Fate,
You'll find that the hard taskmaster
For you does ever wait.

You may travel south or northward
But there, you will find ahead,
Is the grinning, vicious monster
From whom you thought you'd fled.

On these words, kind friends, don't ponder,
Nor do not hesitate—
For it is not luck and it is not fate,
But that cruel little word called Fate.

The Old Year and the New

A Sermon for New Year's Eve by
REV. STEPHEN PAULSON

My Times are in Thy hand.—Psalm 31:5.
SAD and solemn are the last hours of the dying year. Only a few months ago a New Year was given unto us, fresh and pure from God's great storehouse of time. It has spent its life upon the earth, and its footprints will never be effaced. The departing year has brought to us God's numberless blessings; it has seen many noble deeds done, and it has seen progress in many departments of life.

The passing of another year must emphasize to every thoughtful person the swift flight of time. Looking backward over the past years of our life they seem to shrink to the size of heads strung around a child's neck. Seeking an image of man's career, the prophet sees his days swifter than a weaver's shuttle; his years swifter than an arrow, curving as it rises to its fall. What man's life? he asks. It is a cloud dissolving in the sunshine. It is a summer brook swollen by sudden rains, but soon running out and leaving the stones bare again. It is a tale that is soon told.

These last days of the old year urge us to husband well the time that is still given us. To a shrub a year means only a leaf; to the vine, a cluster; to the tree, a new ring of wood. But to a man a year means a large portion of his life which has been used or wasted. Youth often unthinkingly throws all responsibility on the years to come. To him everything seems possible in the future. Then he thinks to have time for education. Then he will practice economy and thrift, let the present be prodigal as it may. The morrow will suffice for the forming of habits and the building of character. So dazzled by the future the youth allows the years to slip through his hands, and the result is a man who is an intellectual infant and a moral feebleling. As you pause now and think over the past, you must realize that the morrow holds no harvests which the labors of yesterday did not sow and cultivate. There was an ancient custom of putting an hourglass into the coffin of the dead to signify that their time had run out—a useless notation to them. Better put the hourglass into the hand of every living man to show him how swiftly the sands of life do flow. But, after all, time is of value only as we make the best use of it.

We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths; in feelings, not in figures on a dial. We should count time by heart-throbs. He most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.

The old year may hold our many failures, many disappointments, many bitter regrets. The New Year holds out to us hope and promise, for my times are in Thy hand, O Lord. It should comfort us when we think of the brevity of our years, to realize we have but a short time to work, and it is well to remember that in order that we may be diligent. But God has a whole eternity in which to work, and it is well to remember that also, so that we may cease from fretfulness and impatience at the slow progress of His kingdom among us. Jesus Christ has not ceased from His redemption of the world, nor has God been defeated in His plans for humanity, for the times of men and nations are in His hand.

For most of us the memory of the past is a chamber of discontent. Let therefore the old year bury from sight its story of sin and sorrow and failure. Let there be sincere repentance for the follies of the past, and then let a new map step forth to meet with hope and determination the glad New Year which God desires shall be a blessed year for every child of earth. When God forgives, He forgives utterly. He casts man's sins "into the depths of the sea." Why then should memory thrust its hooked pole into the sea to dredge the bottom and bring up by the locks some pale memory which God has plunged into the ocean of forgetfulness? Man's life is not in the past, but in the days to come, for our times are in His hand.

And how many of us are waiting for the opportunities of the coming year? With how many of us is it the unuttered hope that tomorrow may be free from the sins and the mistakes of yesterday? I pray God that for you it may be so. Your times are in His hand, and your Father shape the new year for you; let Him rule it, and strive with the help of the Spirit to walk the way of His commandments. "Forgetting the things that are behind, let us press on for the prize of the high calling in Christ Jesus."

The passing year also must remind us that there will come a last year for each one of us. Perhaps this coming year is your last. Are you therefore ready to see the curtain rise upon eternity? Are you now ready to hear the midlife cry, and to enter into the marriage supper of the King's Son? Our times are in God's hand, and no man knoweth what day or hour he may be called from his labor. Though we live to be counted among the oldest inhabitants we must depart at last. Others have gone before us and are going every day, and yet we seem so eager to forget our own mortality. Nay, let us rather look forward with anticipation, believing that God will then give us a New Year which shall be without sin and tears and sorrow and pain, where love shall rule, and where happiness shall be complete in the fullest service to our God.

The New Year bells will soon be ringing. Do not fail to make some personal preparations for its coming. Make resolutions for the future on the basis of your experience of the past. Every heart knows its own needs, and its own weaknesses. Be not discouraged by past failures, but pray to God earnestly to help to future successes. Take this New Year as a holy gift from a gracious Father and begin to live it carefully and prayerfully. Do not strive to carry the burdens of future months, but live each day as if it were the last and the best. In spite of all the ills which we see in the world today, let us believe that the New Year will be a blessed year to all mankind, and let each one of us do our utmost to make it so. May God look upon us all in mercy, and may He let this New Year.

Ring out old shapes of foul disease.
Ring out the narrowing lust of gold;
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years of peace.

The new year be a year of freedom from sin, a year of service, a year of trust in God, and it will be a happy year from first to last. It may be the hardest year we have known, but it will be the happiest.

Sixty Dollars a Month and Board

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(©, 1926, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"My sister's a crank on the subject!" declared Kenneth Horton from theavenport piled with fraternity sofa pillows. "She's terribly advanced—thinks no man worth his salt unless he earns his living by the sweat of his manly brow. Take me," he illustrated ruefully. "I want to go muscalonge fishing in the Muskoka this summer, but Ed says 'No—my place is helping father on the farm. He's short of help—so that's where you can address me, care of the R. P. D.'"

"Maybe she's right, at that," grinned Jack, his roommate, whereupon he became the target for a rain of earnest cushions. "But, looking aside, Ken, I admit I'm—well, honestly gone over her picture. I'd like to meet the original."

"You! What chance would you stand, you bloated bondholder, you fiver in the wool old miser?" Why, should give one look at your Cordovan shoes, silk shirts and exclusive neckwear—and get out her tracts on the sins of the wealthy. I was home all last summer, and I know!"

"But you don't know my scheme, old thing," retorted Jack earnestly. "I don't intend to let her see me in this offensive outfit. You say your father is short of help. Let me go down and apply for work. You tip him off to hire me, but keep mum as to my real status. Miss Katherine will see in me a 'man who toils' and— who knows?"

A week or so later, Kenneth presented his father with a new "hand," whom he vaguely explained as "picked up on the way," and Kenneth's father after one glance at the powerful frame, the strength of which was not concealed by extremely ill-fitting clothes, hired him on the spot for $20 a month and board.

As the days went by, Jack alternately cursed and blessed his job. Viewed as a "stunt," it was proving rather a costly one in time and energy, but considered in the light of an opportunity to be near the most beautiful girl he had ever seen and to show her the stuff that was in him, it wasn't so bad. Mr. Horton did not hesitate to commend his reliability, willingness and efficiency, and Jack secretly cherished the hope that some report of it all reached Katherine through her brother.

Just one worry had Jack. He wished Katherine would not ride Sultan. The horse was a real devil, and Jack had heard Kenneth warn Katherine that he should be up and out of the saddle before Sultan's brother, the Shah, was broken in by Mr. Horton, and Jack, watching the spirited creature rear and buck beneath his rider, shuddered at the power possessed and, luckily, so seldom appreciated, by that animal, the horse. But Jack was surely in a position to do his part, for he was one of those of the girl's father and brother.

His meetings with Katherine had been most casual and quite impersonal. Nor had he observed on her part any interest whatever in a man who talked. Then one day she came down to the meadow where Kenneth and his father and Jack were piling the hayrack with sweet, sun-saturated hay. With her was a gay bevy of college girls, who clustered to help and then ride home on the load. Jack had the pleasure of giving Katherine a helping hand as she alighted to the hay. Then he settled down close by the two men in front to make room for the girls.

He was meditating on the disadvantage of the position he was occupying for the sake of a mad whim when his thoughts were interrupted by a series of conversation behind him.

"Well, your views have changed, Kit."

"To be sure," came the voice of the girl he loved. "That was just a passing phase of my education. Of course, I still think honest work counts no less, but I can see how wealth and the leisure it brings, has its place in the world, too."

"Remember how you said you'd never marry a rich man?" teased somebody.

"Oh, forget the idiocies of my sophomore days," pleaded Katherine good-naturedly. "Just let him show himself now and you'll appreciate my change of heart."

The inconsequential chatter continued along other channels, but behind Mr. Horton's unsuspecting back Jack glared at Kenneth. Katherine was no longer looking for a "toler," and if he chuckled the bluff and fessed up, as Kenneth repeatedly urged him to do, he feared she would think him nothing less than an idiot.

The following day Jack, bridle on arm, his course of action still undecided, followed Mr. Horton as the latter went down to the south pasture to have another tussle with the Shah. Lifting down the bars, the two men entered the lot, replaced them carefully, and walked slowly over to where the Shah, sleek and magnificent, was feeding. Jack, bridle behind him, waited as Mr. Horton made his approach.

Suddenly, around the bend of the wood road that skirted the pasture, a horse's staccato hoof beats broke the clamorous silence of the midsummer morning. And to the startled eyes of the men appeared the Sultan, a rus-away at last. Clinging to his back was Katherine.

Both men, inspired by the same thought, started for the Shah, who was standing, nose raised, sensitively aware of the excitement. But Jack, being the younger man, was the quicker. Managing to slip the bridle on, he swung astride and, somehow asserting his control, drove the animal straight to the bars—and over.

The Sultan, suddenly confronted in a lane so narrow that the tree branches met overhead, by a plunging animal determined to throw his rider, slowed down, stopped, and stood still. At the same moment that Katherine, weak and shaken, slipped down from the saddle, Jack was hurled over the head of the Shah.

When Mr. Horton reached the scene, the Shah was down the lane, the Sultan standing quietly, and Katherine, leaning over her rescuer, who was lying with his eyes closed.

"Where the devil did you learn to ride like that, man?" murmured the farmer even as he stooped to feel Jack's heart.

"Playing polo," answered Jack absently, and lost consciousness.

Mr. Horton, to whom polo-playing furnished a new experience, sent Katherine to the house to get the doctor for Jack and to get Kenneth to come after the horses.

Late that afternoon, Jack, propped up on the chaise longue in the cool quiet chamber of the farmhouse, was berating himself with choice laces.

The door opened softly and in stepped Katherine, bearing a tray. "Mother sent up your supper," she explained.

There was one thing Jack wanted more than his supper—he wanted to know if Katherine knew. Perhaps she read his wish in his face. At any rate she smiled a little and sat down by the window.

"Kenneth has told me the whole story," she said, "and while it was kind of crazy, I can't help feeling flattered that any man would be willing to work hard for sixty dollars a month and board, just to—to—"

"To try and make good in the eyes of the woman with whose picture he fell in love," said Jack quietly.

Katherine flushed. Then: "Please, oh, please wait," she said hastily, "until—until you're well again."

And Jack, knowing the doctor had predicted a speedy recovery, was content.

FEAR OF BREAKING MIRROR

Accident That is Associated With One of the Oldest Superstitions of the World.

When a lady, however cultured and intelligent, accidentally shatters her mirror, she is apt to turn pale. She may even faint, though she may not actually believe in the subsequent "seven years of bad luck" or the loss of the one she holds most dear.

Is this perhaps because all peoples have regarded mirrors as symbolical? That from the earliest time, it has been the instrument with which the seer communicated with fate? (Who has not gone secretly to consult the crystal gazer who in her back hall bedroom used a wet mirror instead of a crystal ball?) There are Christian families today who will carefully drape the mirrors in a sick room with white, and anxiously believe the spirit of death gained entrance through them.

It is rather natural, then, that breaking the means of communication with the Beyond should be regarded as a calamity. Hence the "seven years of bad luck." Naïveté was so intensely superstitious on this point that once he happened to break the glass that covered the picture of Josephine, Fearful that this might spell the same calamity as breaking a mirror he sent a courier to make sure that she was dead before the next day or night till the courier's return. A famous English writer died just one month after he openly boasted that he would defy this mirror superstition.

Pleasures of Solitude.

Give me the flowing river that runs between the pine clad shores! Give me the babbling brook with its rippling music! And you may have the crowded streams of commerce that rush and toss between the high piles of granite, writes L. J. Muir in the Utah Chronicle.

Give me the twinkling stars—the glow of the silver moon! And a million electric torches that illuminate the great cities are yours.

Give me the music of the wind swept trees! And keep your symphonies. Give me the howling herd, the crowing cock, the chirp of the new hatched brood! And your Carousos and McCormacks will not be missed.

Give me the joyous vision of the budding rose that fills the untilled fields, the bluebells by the brook, the cowslips in the lurky bed! And you may have all the forced blooms, the result of man's effort to improve on the works of God.

Drink Water With Meals.

Contrary to a long standing theory, when taken with meals is now recommended. For years it has been taught such a procedure weakens the secretions of gastric juice, also that digestion would be delayed or inhibited. But now it has been proved that drinking water with meals stimulates the secretion of gastric juice, that it promotes an improved liver function and that it enables the food to be utilized more economically; further, the saliva acts more efficiently when diluted with water. Thus we are encouraged to drink plenty of pure water while eating.—Thrill Magazine.

LAUNCH VAST EFFORT FOR EUROPE'S YOUNG

Eight American Relief Agencies Combine to Save 3,500,000 Children Death Menaces.

Eight great relief organizations, working among and for every race and creed, have united under the name of the European Relief Council to coordinate child relief in Europe this winter. The Council will seek to provide funds for 3,500,000 starving and diseased children in Eastern and Central Europe and to administer this relief economically.

It consists of Herbert Hoover, chairman, and Franklin K. Lane, treasurer; Edgar Rickard, representing the American Relief Administration; Dr. Livingston Farrand, representing the American Red Cross; Felix Warburg, representing the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee; Wilbur K. Thomas, representing the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers); James A. Flaherty, representing the Knights of Columbus; Dr. C. V. Hildard, representing the Young Men's Christian Association; Miss Sarah S. Lyon, representing the Young Women's Christian Association; Dr. Arthur Brown, representing the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

It is the purpose of the Council to raise $33,000,000, in an appeal centering at the Christmas holidays, to the end that the desperate situation regarding child life may be met. In every town and community of the nation, it is planned, local committees, representing all the co-operating agencies will be formed to secure the vitally necessary funds. Of the amount sought, $23,000,000 will be used for basic food and $10,000,000 for medical service.

For every one of these American dollars the local governments and communities aided will furnish two dollars, in the form of transportation, labor, guards, clerical help, cash contributions and such food supplies as are locally obtainable. No children receive the free food except after medical tests showing them to be seriously undernourished. The remaining $10,000,000 of the fund is just as urgently needed for medical service to the children.

The European Relief Council will do much more than effect economies in the raising of the child saving fund. It will, with the inspecting forces of eight great agencies, keep a constant eye on the administration of America's merciful gift, in order that there shall be no wastage and no tendency toward pauperization.

"This is the largest co-operative benevolent organization ever attempted in the United States," Mr. Hoover says. "The organizations represented have come to the unanimous, though independently formed conclusion, that nothing but prompt and united action by the whole American people can avert incredible tragedy for the helpless children involved. The organizations forming the Council will organize their representatives in every town and community of the nation for the raising of the necessary funds."

Pleads for Europe's Helpless Children

"They are no more my children than yours," is Herbert Hoover's homely yet eloquent plea for 3,500,000 European children who face incredible tragedy this winter unless America comes to their rescue. The funds by which American aid has been feeding millions have run out, and that the work may not stop and thus precipitate what would amount to "a massacre of the innocents" seven other great American relief organizations have united with Mr. Hoover's organization under the name of the European Relief Council in a joint appeal for funds. The collaborating agencies are the American Red Cross, the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers), the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the Federal Council of Churches in America, the Knights of Columbus, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

"The Ford Coupe."

Here is one of the most useful of all closed Cars. Specifically so when not more than two or three are to be accommodated with reliable car service. The Ford Coupe is a mighty cosy car, in that it is absolutely watertight, at the same time with its sliding plate glass windows you can have an open car, to all intents and purposes, in a couple of minutes. So it doesn't make any difference what the weather may be, rain or shine, summer or winter, in the Ford Coupe you have a closed car of comfort and service. What more do you want?

It has proven particularly a valuable car for traveling salesmen, physicians, engineers, architects and others who have much out-of-door work all the year around. We have never been able to meet all demands for the Ford Coupe, but with the increased producing capacities of the factory we are now able to make reasonably prompt deliveries. Yet we urge you to leave your order with as little delay as possible—our allotment is limited.

WAVERLY

FORDSON

For thirty-five years Henry Ford, a farmer's boy, has been working on the problem of a successful tractor for the farm, and for the past fourteen years has devoted much time and a vast amount of money to the development of the present Fordson Tractor. Today that Tractor is in use on nearly 200,000 farms and if you have any doubt as to the satisfaction it gives to those who are using it, call in and get the booklet, just issued by the Ford Motor Company, and called "The Fordson at Work" and read the testimony which is there given by the multitude of owners of Fordson Tractors. No evidence can be more conclusive than that of the man who actually knows by personal experience and this is the line of testimony carried in this little booklet. There is no cost for this booklet. If you cannot call for it, write, drop us a postal, and we will mail it to you without charge. It is so valuable you ought to have it because it is the open door through which the farmer will pass from the hard working drudge to the comparative comfort of the manufacturer. The Fordson makes it possible for the farmer to plan and direct, while the machine will do the work. It presents the widest latitude for the farmer to exercise his brain power and plan how he can get the most from the soil, knowing that the Tractor will do the hard work, do it better, do it quicker, and therefore do it more profitably. This means not alone in the cultivation of the soil, in the harvesting of the crops, but in a hundred and one different demands that are made for labor, cutting of ensilage and the filling of the silo; cutting of wood; operation of the washing machine; in the lighting of the house with electricity; supplying the house with running water; bringing to the farmer's wife and daughters the conveniences of the city, relieving them of much of the hard, unpleasant part of housework.

HERBERT HOOVER ASKS MARYLAND TO SAVE 3,500,000 STARVING CHILDREN IN EUROPE

He Appeals for a Great "National Collection" of $33,000,000 Beginning on Sunday, December 19th, to Feed Them Until the Next Harvest Brings Relief. He knows Maryland will Respond.

Herbert Hoover asks Maryland to help save 3,500,000 starving children in Eastern and Central Europe. Unless help is given at once, he declares, they will die. In an appeal to representative men and women of the State Herbert Hoover, head of the Belgian Relief Commission, Food Commissioner during the war and head of the American Relief Administration, asks them to organize the State so that every man, woman and child in Maryland is given an opportunity to help save these children. A total of $33,000,000 will be required.

His appeal met a ready response here. The very day his telegrams, which were backed by the European Relief Council, which is composed of the eight great war relief organizations of America, were received, immediate steps were taken to start the machinery in motion to organize Baltimore and each of the counties. Great speed was possible owing to the fact that the various city and county organizations, which did such splendid work during the war, were at once recalled into service.

Though the appeal was received only three days before going to press, considerable progress has already been made. It is certain that Maryland will surpass her generous-hearted gifts of the past to suffering humanity.

Mr. Hoover's call has brought into service again men and women who bore the brunt of the home work during the war. George S. Jackson, who was associated with him in the Food Commission and who later spent a year in under him in relief work in Europe, and William H. Maltbie, Food Commissioner for Maryland, were called to the colors by the American Relief Administration, and Walter B.

Brooks, who did such great work for the Red Cross responded to its call. William H. Morris was summoned by the Y. M. C. A., Mrs. George S. Jackson by the Y. W. C. A. and William S. Aumen by the Knights of Columbus; Julius Levy and Jacob Epstein answered to the appeal of the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee. Robert Garrett and Dr. L. W. McCreary got into harness for the Federal Council of Churches and Richard L. Cary, who has but recently returned from relief work for German babies, responded as the representative of the American Friends' Service Commission. These men were appointed by the eight organizations which compose the European Relief Council to serve as the nucleus of the Maryland State Committee.

At their first meeting a call went to the leaders and workers in the eight organizations in Baltimore and each of the counties to at once mobilize for service. The response was prompt and practically unanimous.

Plans have been launched for a great "National Collection" to begin on Sunday, December 19th, and to continue throughout the holidays. The time in Maryland is short, but it is believed that the urgency of the need will speed things up enough to enable the Churches to do their part on next Sunday. It is realized that a cry to save suffering children is particularly appropriate at the Christmas season and that any delay might hurt the fund. As Mr. Hoover points out, this appeal admits no delay. The money must begin coming in at once or the children will die.

Frederick G. Boyce, Mercantile Trust and Deposit Co., has been appointed treasurer for Maryland.

A Growing Bank Is A Safe Bank

THERE are many reasons why a growing bank is a safe bank. A growing bank has the confidence and esteem of the people. Growth indicates life and health. A growing bank has financial strength and strength means safety in banking. The growing bank is in a position to adapt its business to changing conditions and so protect its resources against any possible loss. The large number of depositors that patronize a growing bank form a safeguard for the bank and assure positive safety.

TWO HELD FOR COURT

Both Youths, One Charged With Attempted Murder; other Shoplifting Claude Bittinger, aged 12 years, who has been in Jail in Oakland for the past two or three weeks, having been committed by a Justice of the Peace in the lower end of the county on the charge of shooting with intent to murder, was given a preliminary hearing before Justice E. I. West on Monday and released upon a bond of $1000 furnished by Simon Bittinger, his brother, for his appearance at the June Term of the Circuit Court.

The boy is a little chap, way under size, and is being held for having shot another boy, Howard Green, in the leg when both were in the woods. Green and the Bittinger boy had had some trouble while in the school a few days before the shooting, both being pupils in the Avilton school, and it is alleged that the Bittinger boy had threatened to shoot Green.

The Bittinger boy's father is an insane patient in the State Hospital at Sykesville.

Jacob McRobie, aged 21 years, of Vindex, was arrested by the deputy sheriff of that town on Monday, the 27th inst., charged with stealing from the Vindex Supply Company's store a pair of shoes. McRobie was brought to Oakland and given a preliminary hearing by Justice of the Peace, James D. Hamill, who placed him under $300 bond for his appearance at the June Term of the Circuit Court.

THE DEATH RECORD.

MISS EMILY DURST.

Miss Emily Durst, of New Germany, died at her home last Saturday of heart failure, death coming very suddenly while the deceased was seated in a chair. Miss Durst was 73 years old and was well known and highly esteemed by all in the community in which she lived. She is survived by the following brothers and sisters: William and Louis Durst of this county; Mrs. Isaac Enos, of Addison, Pa.; Mrs. Harriet Engle, Preston, Minn.; Mrs. Sarah Patton, Akron, O.; Mrs. Louise Jenkins and Mrs.
W. T. Stanton, of this county. Funeral service was held on Tuesday by her pastor, Rev. I. S. Monn; interment in the New Germany cemetery.

JOHN C. MAYER.

John C. Mayer, of Terra Alta, mention of whose death was made in The Republican last Thursday, was born at the Brookside stone house, a few miles south of Oakland, on November 30, 1854, being the son of Charles W. and Marie Wamuth Mayer. With his parents he moved to Terra Alta in 1870, and in the year 1874 the firm of Charles W. Mayer & Son was organized and continued in the general mercantile business until 1912. Mr.
Mayer became a member of the Presbyterian church at Terra Alta in the year 1876 and was an elder of that church for more than thirty years. He was also an active member of the Sabbath school, being the treasurer for 34 years. In 1880 he was married to Miss Ara Belle Byrner, of Philippi, West Va., who died in 1910, the following named being the children as a result of this union: Mrs. Eda Shaw and Miss Virginia Mayer, of Terra Alta; Mrs. Harland L. Jones, of Oakland; and Mr. Fred Mayer, of Terra Alta. Another son, John, is dead. Mr.
Mayer's second wife, Miss Aletta Forman, of Amboy, daughter of Allen Forman, survives him. The funeral occurred on Sunday morning from the Presbyterian church in Terra Alta, being conducted by Rev. Dr. Bishop, of Morgantown.

Kitzmiller High Jubilates.

Recently the girls of the Kitzmiller high school gave a party in honor of the boys' great victory in basketball over Bayard. A large crowd attended, including Misses Georgia Jones, Huldah Bishop, Louise Baldwin, Minnie Gough, Bonice Lyon, Eileen Baldwin, Fitzhugh Burrell, "Sailor" Shroot, Lynn Hoey, Ashley Bishop, Herbert Burrell, Frank Rafter, Leland Campbell, of Potomac Manor, and Thomas Jones, of Shellmar. Refreshments were served at 11:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Patton Taken To Hospital.

On Monday last Mrs. Norman Patton, of near Grantsville, was taken to the Western Maryland Hospital at Cumberland by her husband and attending physicians for an operation for the removal of gall stones which was performed on Tuesday. Mrs. Patton's condition is very favorable.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shartzler, of Morgantown, returned to their home Sunday afternoon after a visit of a few days to Oakland friends and relatives.

MISS BROWNING SERIOUSLY HURT IN FALL ON ICY WALK

Extent Of Her Injury Not Yet Determined by Physicians.

Miss Zaidie Browning, one of the grade teachers in the Oakland Grammar School, slipped and fell on the ice pavement on Second street Sunday evening about seven o'clock and sustained such serious injuries that may incapacitate her for some time to come.

Miss Browning was on her way to attend services at her church when she fell and was picked up by two men and carried into Henry Lauer's bakery and a physician hastily summoned. Later Miss Browning was taken to her home and an examination was made to determine the extent of her injuries, the physicians attending her, on account of the intense sufferings she has endured since being hurt, are unable to definitely determine whether or not the injury to her hip is a fracture of the socket or an injury of a more serious nature.

This morning Miss Browning was taken to one of the Cumberland hospitals for treatment.

TAKEN TO STATE HOSPITAL

Ernest Gnegy, of Near Red House, Became Violently Insane

Ernest Gnegy, aged about twenty years, who has suffered several attacks of mental aberration in recent years, became so violently insane on last Thursday that his family had to restrain him from doing himself bodily harm, bringing him to Oakland on Thursday evening where he was placed in the hospital ward of the Jail and later sent to the State Hospital for the Insane at Sykesville.

The young man was extremely intelligent and had thought of entering upon a ministerial career. He was a great student of the bible and was looked upon in his community as a leader among the younger class in church work.

A few weeks ago Mr. Gnegy was at Westernport where he attended services on Thanksgiving morning in the Lutheran church at that place. Later in the day the minister, Rev. Mr.
Bink, received a note written by Mr.
Gnegy stating that he was going up in the mountains to pray. After a day or two interested parties set on foot a search for him and he was located at a farm house near Grants-ville and in a distressing condition.
He was brought to Oakland from that place a few days later by his brother and Sheriff Winters. His condition improved to such an extent that he was taken back to his home and it was thought that he would recover his usual health.

B. & O. HAS PLAN TO ELECTRIFY

Reports Drawn Up On Improvements
For Cumberland Division.

While the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has in hand plans for electrifying the west end of the Cumberland division official of the company have reached no decision with respect to the improvement. Those in a position to know declare that it is an undertaking which may be gotten under way some time in the distant future.

Some months ago electrical engineers of the Baltimore and Ohio spent some time in the west looking over railroads which have for years been making an extensive use of electric motive power. Upon their return to the city these engineers made a complete report to President Willard.

The Baltimore and Ohio also has a report on the electrification of the west end of the Cumberland division from the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. Representatives of this company made an exhaustive study of the subject.

It was explained today that the use of electric motive power had been under consideration for several years, and was a project which the management expects to see materialize some day. In this connection, though, officials in a position to speak with authority declared that it was hardly a matter to be seriously considered now, as the time was not opportune to launch such extensive improvement.

It has been figured out by engineers that operating expenses could be considerably reduced by the use of electrically propelled engines on the heavy West Virginia mountain grade. The density of traffic too, is gradually increasing, and while the Baltimore and Ohio has no immediate plans to this end it is asserted that a situation might develop which would warrant electrification at a much earlier date than any Baltimore and Ohio official has in mind.

PRESIDENT GETS LETTER FROM HEAD OF ARMENIAN CHURCH

Washington.—Archbishop Khoren, whose archiepiscopal see is Erivan, capital of the Armenian Republic, journeyed seven thousand miles to present President Wilson one of the quaintest and most touching documents in the archives of the State Department. It is illuminated by the monks of Etchmiadzin, the seat of the Armenian church since its separation from the Greek church, after the Council of Chalcedon in the year 451.

The Encyclical Letter, which the Archbishop presented to the President, reads:

"GEORGE, Servant of Jesus Christ and by the Omnipotent Will of God, Arch-Priest and CATHOLICOS OF ALL THE ARMENIANS, Supreme Patriarch of the highest Armenian See of Ararat and of the Apostolic Mother Church at Etchmiadzin the Holy.

"To the NOBLE CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

"AFFECTIONATE GREETINGS AND BLESSINGS FROM THE CATHOLICOS OF ALL ARMENIANS and Apostolic Chief of the Holy Church of Armenia.

"With placid, profound feelings of devotion, we desire, through this En-

ARCHBISHOP KHOREN.

cytical Letter of Ours, to place before you and to make known to you the expression of Our deep gratitude for the liberal help which, inspired by a spirit of philanthropy, you have extended to Us both by individual personal donations and through the sustaining assistance and alleviating instrumentality of the Near East Relief Organization. Individually and Collectively, combined in one body as it were, you gave and you brought to Us the fruits of your offerings, to the alleviation and protection of Our Flock during the most bitter days of their suffering—sufferings which We attribute to the rigors of the War of Liberation, and to the cruelty of Our implacable Oppressors.

"In expressing Our thanks for your generosity and for your evangelical commission, We, as the recognized Head of Our Spiritual Children, comprising the entire Armenian Nation, would be glad to view your acts of mercy as tokens of your continued assistance in the future, and that it is your purpose to continue to assist Us in Our regeneration and complete liberation, in the habilitation of a self-governing Nation. With these things in mind, We appeal to you all; to the Prelates of your Churches; to your devout Bishops, Our Brethren and loved in Our Lord Jesus Christ; to men endowed with political and civil acumen; to those who have been called upon by the Lord in the Conduct of Public thought; and to every soul in which the spirit of Christian philanthropy glows. Come to our defense and to the cause of the Freedom of Our Flock. Come from the pulpits of your Churches; from the seats of your Council Chambers; from the platforms of Public Associations; from the sacrum of your Journals. Raise the mighty voices of your Nation and of your sympathetic people, as those of unfailing and unfaltering friends. We need them for the salvation of Our Flock, tortured in body and soul through centuries of suffering. And Our people will forever stand a history as witness that a Great Nation, prolific of welfare, stretched its helping hand and mighty arm to raise them up.

"The Grace of Our Lord Jesus Christ, and Our thankful Blessings be with you all, evermore, Amen.

"GEORGE V.

"Catholicos and Supreme Patriarch of All Armenians."

During the VIII. year of Our Patriarchate at the Mother See of Ararat, Etchmiadzin the Holy.

MAJOR GENERAL HARBORD

SUPPORTS ARMENIA

New York.—At a mass meeting recently held here to consider the need of Armenia in the appalling disaster that has overtaken that unhappy land the following telegram was received from the commander of the Second Division:

"True to their religion, language and race through a thousand years of persecution, the Armenians must not be permitted to perish. Americans should aid them with moral, financial and political support.

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

Matt. 18:1-14.

Whoever shall humble himself therefore as a little child, the same is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven. Matt. 18:4.

THE MEASURE OF GREATNESS

Having rejected the popular demand that He accept the crown there came a revulsion of feeling among the populace and an accession of hostility in the leaders who were aware of both the occasion and the offered kingship. Under this double pressure and the increasing need of intensive training of the Twelve, Jesus took the disciples away from the harassing distractions of politics and religion to the far quarters of Tyre and Sidon and the upper hills. All this last summer they wandered in intimate conversation that found its crown in Peter's confession of steady faith in Jesus as the Messiah, the adoption of a conception differing radically from that of the ordinary Jew. Having so changed their ideas He turned to the planting of the thought that such a Messiah must get the crown through suffering and the cross, a truth vehemently rejected by them all with Peter again as spokesman. The transfiguration followed confirming their impression of His transcendent character and His right to take the throne of Israel. Moving toward Jerusalem, they came to Capernaum where they stopped in Peter's home and the conversation recorded in the lesson occurred. Why were they going to the Capital? To them there could be but one reason and that was the claim to the throne and the assumption of royal authority. And if this was to happen shortly then would come their own exaltation and it was necessary to balance claims to position.

Which one would be the greatest in the new establishment? So their tongues wagged in the way and the Greatest of Great Teachers listened that He might learn just the lesson to set for their need. And it was in the home that the question was raised again, but now the Master took part in the conversation. "You have been measuring greatness in terms of place," may perhaps express what Jesus was saying, "while the real measure is in terms of life." President-elect Harding would like to agree, but

Washington will have its clamorous throng of office seekers careless of fitness if they can land the job by any political method known. Already the papers list the great and near-great who may hold cabinet portfolios. The Capernaum scene is being staged nearer home. "The Kingdom of Heaven is the kingdom of character and only childlike shall enter therein."

That sense of wonder at the unexpected glories of the world of life so newly entered, that confident faith in the goodness of this world, that generous sharing of all the energies and the desire to help are the things that characterize the spirit of the child and unless these are present in the life it certainly does not conform to the demands of Jesus. Greatness is to be measured in terms of development in the direction of such a spirit.

THE TEST OF GREATNESS.

The Disciples still live. We still test greatness by its ability to secure place. "My place in the sun" was the will-o-the-wisp that drew Germany into the fatal plunge into war. Money is another witness and Americans seek it, not for itself but as a concrete representation of the individual's power. Office is taken in the same fashion and many a man is stunted forever by the rule of what Beveridge phrases "the vicious fear of losing." Jesus made the final test the protection of the child spirit. And this includes as a matter of course the protection of the body that so vitally affects the spirit and every bit of child welfare work that is being undertaken is directly in line with the plan of our Lord. To rob the child of any of its heritage is the greatest wrong against which Jesus warns in unsparring terms. But to blast that spirit is far worse than to defraud the body. Take the mother-lover into some nest spot of our social life and see the worship fade from his eyes and the glint of soul vanish until only the snare at woman's purity remains is to face a tragically demanding scorching epithets of Jesus as the only word fit to be spoken. Take his belief in honor into some sordid little patch of our political field and uncover the bottomless mud of it until the clear eyes are fouled and the level look twisted so that a price-tag is placed upon every citizen in the belief that it is all a matter of barter and sale and one comes face to face with that which Christ damns. Take his faith in the Book into some little corner of our educational world and erase the supernatural from its page and blot the eternal from the face of Christ until all moral sanctions vanish from his horizon and the only beacon left is desire knowing no law save that of its own satisfaction and no terms but those of Jesus will answer such condition. No truer test for civilization was ever given than this, that its greatness consists in preserving the life and spirit of its children.

As we look back at the debit side of the page? The credit page wipes it out.

Do not be satisfied with present attainments. Do your best each day and when you come to the end of your life

you will have the extreme satisfaction of feeling that you have done what you could.

The world has need of helpers, of pushers, of boosters, not slackers and derelicts. Say to the old year goodbye and face the new year with a lofty purpose, an heroic courage and a determination by God's help to make it the best of your life.

Yours for success and happiness,

JOANNES.

CHILD SAVING WORK IN ARMENIA TOLD BY AN AMERICAN

Charles V. Vickrey Gives Facts of Near East Relief Program for Orphans.

Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief, has returned from a trip of inspection throughout Central Europe and the Near East, and made a report to the trustees of the Near East Relief in which he covers in detail the actual work of child saving now being conducted by the great American relief organization in the Near East. Mr. Vickrey believes that "a few millions of dollars wisely expended at this time in the education of the children of the Near East, in character building and in moulding these young lives, will be worth vastly more to the world than billions of dollars spent later in suppressing international warfare and strife."

Mr. Vickrey considers the need in the Near East and especially in Armenia greater than anywhere else in the world, because, as he says, "In the countries of Central Europe there are going governments which have merely been temporarily impoverished by war. In the Near East, on the other hand, there is no such thing as a stable government. The whole fabric of the state has to be created from the beginning, and the innocent and helpless children have to be trained to the responsibilities of future citizenship."

Peace in the Near East, and in great measure, throughout the world, will depend very largely on the character of the citizenship of the peoples of the Near East."

Irresistible Appeal of Orphans.

Describing the orphanage work of the Near East Relief in the Armenian Republic, Mr. Vickrey said:

"We have at Alexandropol in the Caucasus, one orphanage where there are approximately 10,000 homeless children, fatherless or motherless, many of them having no known living relative. Some of them do not even know their own names, or the place of their birth. They have shown wonderful recuperative powers, and to see them play their kindergarten or other games under the direction of our American relief workers, one could never believe that they had passed through the horrors of suffering that most of them have experienced since they, or their parents, were driven from their homes in Central Turkey five years ago.

"For the accommodation of these orphans there are sixty splendid stone buildings, erected as barracks for the Russian army. These buildings are now given to us by the Armenian government for a period of ten years and lend themselves admirably to relief purposes.

"This orphanage at Alexandropol is but one of the 222 orphanages that the Near East Relief is now operating in various parts of the Caucasus, Anatolia, Cilicia, Syria and the Constantinople-Straits area.

"Thirty miles from Alexandropol, at Kars, there is another group of Russian army barracks, which were given us by the Armenian government for relief purposes. I was going through the dormitories of this orphanage at Kars when the young American college girl in charge turned to me and said: 'Mr. Vickrey, it sometimes makes me feel just a little older than Mother'—she was called 'Mother' by 6,000 of those Armenian children."

And that is exactly what she was—the only mother that these 6,000 Armenian children have, except as she avails herself of the organized assistance of native Armenian women, in caring for this large family.

"In the hospital at Kars I found 1,150 beds, which, the day I was there, were occupied by 1,258 patients. It frequently being necessary to put two or more children in a single bed. At Alexandropol we have in one hospital, or group of hospital buildings, 1,500 tracheoma patients. At Karakilis, forty miles east of Alexandropol we have an orphanage devoted exclusively to the care and training of the blind children. At Isfahan we have another orphanage, located on a mountain side, for the care of tubercular children, this segregation being as much for the welfare of the healthy children in the orphanages as for the care of the unfortunate consumptives. At Erivan we formerly had twenty-six distinct orphanages, though they have now been reduced and consolidated to seven in number. There are something more than 4,000 orphans in the region of Harput."

BITTINGER

The old year now is passing
And the new one draweth near;
May it bring you sweet contentment
And a world of lasting cheer.

If you're down in gloomy shadows—
If you're all but out of heart,
Waken up; exert your manhood!
Make another honest start.

You and all men, in God's wisdom,
Armed to conquer, all were made;
May this year fulfill your mission—
Faith is strong, be not afraid.

Christmas Day was quietly observed in this community closing with an appropriate service in the Lutheran church in the evening, which was largely attended and enjoyed.

The Republican extends a New Year greeting to all its readers and friends.

BEING PRESIDENT.
Something over eight years ago Woodrow Wilson was a comparatively young man, governor of New Jersey and, except for a Presidential nomination, due soon for retirement into private life to be spent in the pursuits of happiness. But he got the presidential nomination.

Today Woodrow Wilson is an old man who ought to be still young; broken in health, a bitterly disillusioned and disappointed political leader.

Six months ago Warren G. Harding was a care-free senator not overburdened, as burdens go, with either work or care. His friends were all who knew him.

Today, observers note, Mr. Harding is "growing taciturn" under the pressures put upon him; and men who used to slap him on the back and call him Warren now stand off and salute him with much restraint.

Mr. Harding will have his troubles in the next four years. We hope he will pull out of them in good shape, but regardless of the success with which he pulls out of them he will be much more than a four-years-old man in 1924. And his friends, or rather his intimates, will be far fewer. No man can take the presidency without giving away a big part of his life in exchange.

Young father or mother who may read this—if deep in your heart you really don't think your son has a chance ever to be President, it would be just as well not to worry overmuch.

OFFICE SEEKERS AFTER TAIT
Leaders Nearly Driven Frantic By the Horde of Persistent Place Hunters
Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Maryland, who went South for a long rest following the Republican victory in November, has returned to the national capital, where he has his law offices, and he is now busy dodging office-seekers.

Because of the prominent position which he holds in the party councils, Mr. Tait's support is sought by scores of applicants for federal positions under the next administration. Some of them are satisfied with the promise of proper consideration "when the time comes," but others are not so easily disposed of, and they not only call frequently upon Mr. Tait, but they have their friends back up their application by telling of the great service they rendered the party in the recent campaign.

So persistent are some of the office-seekers and so rapidly is their number increasing that the Republican leaders are almost driven frantic in trying to placate them and devise ways and means to prevent a split in the party.

Because of the situation it is believed that the leaders will hold a council before the date mentioned by Senator France—after the inauguration of President Harding—at which a slate will be agreed upon. It would not be surprising if a public announcement of the choices were made and the reasons for the selection as the only means to quiet the horde of office-seekers.

Regardless of the personnel of the selections, the leaders feel that some dissatisfaction may ensue because there are not jobs enough to go around. The opinion, however, prevails that once a slate is agreed upon leaders will stand together and no pressure will break it.

Like the other leaders, Mr. Tait is not making any promises, but it is known that he has some preferences for some of the places to be filled, and when the time comes he will have his say.

He refuses to disclose his own ambitions, but it is generally known in Republican circles that he prefers the collectorship of internal revenue to any other berth open in Maryland. Other Republican leaders in the state are disposed to give Mr. Tait much credit for the victory in November, and they are willing for him to select his own post.

MR. ZIHLMAN FOR CABINET

Claimed That He Has Inside Track for Secretary of Labor Portfolio.
(Special to The Republican)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—Senator Harding is now making up his Cabinet slate. From all that can be learned here, at this time, in addition to the selection of Harry Dougherty, Will Hays, and in all probability former Senator Weeks, of Massachusetts, for Cabinet posts, Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, of Maryland, is said to have the inside track for appointment as secretary of Labor.

At first it was reported that Representative John I. Nolan, of California, had a good chance to become head of the labor department. It has developed, however, that there is considerable opposition to Nolan's appointment. These objections are based on the report that the Californian, while a labor man, is a radical closely associated with Senator Hiram Johnson, who is understood to be backing the Nolan candidacy. Johnson is a radical of radicals, and was a formidable foe to Harding's nomination at Chicago. This in itself, according to many Washington observers, will prevent Mr. Harding accepting any Cabinet recommendations that Johnson may make. Then, too, it is said Nolan had very little to do with California going Republican in the last election. Nolan has the backing of President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, but in view of the violent attacks made by Mr. Gompers on Senator Harding during the last campaign the otherwise powerful influence of the American Federation of Labor will not amount to very much if anything with Mr. Harding. Gompers' and Johnson's advocacy of Nolan's appointment are said here to be very detrimental to the Californian's Cabinet chances it is said the endorsement of these two men practically put Nolan out of the Cabinet race.

On the other hand Representative Zihlman, a union labor man in his whole career, who carries a union card, has many factors in his favor for appointment to the Cabinet as secretary of labor. To begin with, Mr. Zihlman is not a radical. While he is a laboring man, having been a glass blower by trade for many years and is a former president of the Maryland State Federation of Labor, he has always been a "safe and sane" member of union labor organizations and has never been found on the side of wild-eyed radical labor agitators and leaders. The American Federation of Labor would be obliged to endorse Zihlman for the Cabinet, as he is a real laboring man, and a union man to the core, but an endorsement of the Federation under present circumstances could not add one whit to Zihlman's Cabinet chances, in fact, would be a drawback rather than an advantage. The Federation has officially approved Zihlman's career in the House, and he has always been right on all labor legislation. The Marylander is recognized in the House as a true friend of labor. That Zihlman has always been favorable to labor is shown by the fact that the Congressional records prove him to have voted for eighteen measures favorable to labor since he has been a member of the House during the past four years. One of the big things for labor Zihlman accomplished in the House was remedial legislation for the postal clerks. The National Federation of Postal Clerks has endorsed the efforts of the Maryland representative for that legislation.

Zihlman is well qualified to serve as secretary of labor. In addition to his long and creditable labor record he served in the Maryland State Senate for four sessions and for two sessions was unanimously chosen republican floor leader. He was elected to the Sixty-fifth and Sixty-sixth Congress and was reelected last November to the Sixty-seventh and next Congress. While in Congress he has been closely identified with the labor group but he is not and never has been one of those rabid labor leaders who put labor even above the interests of the Republic and the whole people. In other words he is an experienced, well balanced, able legislator and laboring man, who would make the best secretary of labor that Mr. Harding could select. Mr. Zihlman, while no demagogue has always stood for the rights of the people, rather than for the advantages of a favored few. This is shown by the endorsement of him by the National Federation of Federal Employes.

As a member of the War Congress he labored night and day for the victory of the United States, and before and during the war and since the Armistice has always stood for beneficial legislation for the veterans, not only of the world war but the Civil and Spanish Wars. The railroad brotherhoods, too, consider him their friend. He has never favored government ownership of railroads.

In short Zihlman is as well qualified in every way to serve as secretary of labor as any member of either House or Senate, or any civilian for that matter. If Zihlman is appointed labor will be satisfied. Mr. Harding cannot afford to ignore labor in the new cabinet.

There is another thing that is in Zihlman's favor for a Cabinet post. That is Maryland, one of the normally democratic Southern States, went heavily republican in the last November elections. The South, say many congressmen and political leaders, should, in view of the fact, be recognized by at least one Cabinet post in the Harding Administration. If such recognition is given it is probable that the republicans will be able to make further inroads in the Democratic South four years hence.

MARRIED.

Hogue—Rathbun—In Loch Lynn on Christmas Day a very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Rathbun when their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth, was given in marriage to Mr. Charles Kelly Hogue, of Akron, Ohio. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E. Johnson, pastor of the U. B. church, at three o'clock, after which a wedding dinner was served. The bride was gown in dark blue satin with beaded trimming. The couple will leave in a few days for Pittsburgh, Pa., where they will make their future home.

Winder—Burk—On Sunday, December 26th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Burk, of Swanton, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when their youngest daughter, Mary Ursula, was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph Winder, of Hagerstown, Md. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frank McAnnis, former pastor of the Deer Park circuit, at the present time filling some of the appointments of the circuit. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was served to all present. The young people are well known and are exceedingly popular and their many friends wish them much success. Those present besides the family were: Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Switzer, Mrs. Joseph Friend, Mrs. Mary Burke and sister, Miss Bessie Switzer.

Yutzy—Riehl—At the parsonage of St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland on last Sunday evening, by the pastor, Rev. Bernard Gibbs, Miss Amelia Catherine Riehl, of Landsdowne, Baltimore county, and Mr. Thomas Gilbert Yutzy, son of County Commissioner Jonas Yutzy, were married in the presence of a few friends.

Hoffman—Thrasher—In Washington, D. C., on December 22, Miss Sadie Thrasher, of Deer Park, and Mr. Howard S. Hoffman, of Oakland, were married, the ceremony being performed by a minister of that city. The couple will reside in Oakland.

Teets—Welling—At the parsonage of St. Paul's M. E. church, on last Friday evening, Miss Ruth Welling, of Oakland, and Mr. Russell Teets, formerly of near Cranesville but now residing in Pittsburgh, were joined in the bonds of matrimony. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Welling and for several years past an employee in the office of the Mountain Democrat.

Schoch—Glotfely—St. Mark's Lutheran church in Oakland, was well filled last night with friends of the wedding party when Miss Margaret Josephine Glotfely, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Glotfely, of near Oakland, became the bride of Mr. Roland G. Schoch, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Schoch, of Crellin. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edmund Manes, of York, Pa., former pastor of the local church. Miss Lorena Falkenstein played Lohengrin's Wedding March as the processional and Mendelssohn's as the recessional. The couple met at the altar, the bride accompanied by her father, who gave her away, and her attendants, Misses Martha Glotfely and Bertie Sniker, as bridesmaids and Miss Eleanor Glotfely, a sister of the bride, maid of honor. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Fred G. Schoch, and the ring ceremony was used. The ushers were Messrs. Edward Kahl, Carl Kahl, Carleton Hinebaugh and Julius Littman. The bride was gown in white satin with veil of white net and carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor wore white organdie with hat to match and carried a bouquet of white carnations, while the bridesmaids wore gowns of pale blue and green organdie with hats to match and carried bouquets of carnations. The church was beautifully decorated in pine boughs, laurel and poinsettias. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents south of Oakland, the couple leaving here on train No. 4 for points in Ohio. Mrs. Schoch is one of Garrett county's most popular young school teachers, having been principal of the Crellin school, while the groom is a veteran of the late World War and is one of Crellin's most popular young men.

IN THE TRACKS OF AN INTERNATIONAL CRISIS

Chaplain Breuninger, of the Army of Occupation, Writes The Republican Dated at Coblenz, Germany, December 6, Chaplain Joshua C. Breuninger, of this county, now with the American Army of Occupation in Germany, writes The Republican as follows:
To the Editor of The Republican.

In those hours which followed in the wake of the great world conflict many were persuaded that a quick restoration would follow. Turning from the activities of the struggle, one would naturally desire to ascertain the true conditions of the continental countries involved.

Bleeding and torn by war and devastation, France, the Queen of Europe, shook herself, and made the fields that were red with human blood in October, "green with the harvest" in May. The poult laid aside his sky-blue uniform and returned to peasant life and to reconstruction.

I followed in the tracks of this crisis from Ostend, Belgium, to Naples, Italy. Along the route through Belgium and France, I noticed the rapid and tireless reconstruction of those devastated countries on every hand. Fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers, whole families without discrimination, rolling barbed wire, eliminating debris, filling trenches, shell-holes, machine gun pits and building new homes. Around these dwellings came up flowers of the season as a token of God's peace and love.

Along the Rhine from Cologne to Coblenz, the path over which the Imperial German Army incessantly trod during the late war, is today sunken in financial poverty and everywhere are undernourished conditions. As I write these lines the American soldiers of the A. F. I. G., in the Coblenz Bridgehead are giving thousands upon thousands of Marks to feed these poor undernourished children and thereby make Christmas a little brighter for them. Up on the Rhine, even to Strassburg are evident the subsidiary conditions of the post-war period. Journeying on from Strassburg through Alsace-Lorraine, were viewed barbed wire entanglements and remains of aviation fields on every hand in great numbers.

Basel, Switzerland, in all her beauty standing as "the gateway to the Alps," has also suffered. The economic conditions in the pocket handkerchief country are acute, as a result of her isolation during the struggle. Switzerland, without doubt, was the pivot of the great international crisis. Sunny Italy, with her musical language, blue skies, dreamy bays and lagoons, her palaces and cathedrals, and those wonderful monuments of the days of the Caesars, has not revived from the off-set of the past emergency. The Italian kingdom, with the Alps as her northern barrier, has not escaped the effects of this mammoth warfare. Her currency has depreciated in value, labor problems have multiplied, transportation was molested and her people are restless.

But activity is everywhere, as a testimony from the people to overcome the embarrassment of depleted conditions. The Allies in their wise and discreet occupation of the Rhineland, have done much in promoting international reconstruction.

HUTTON

A PLEA FOR THE NEW YEAR.
Thou Ruler of our destiny,
This New Year's Day we pray
That angry winds and earthly storms
Be banished far away;
Calm the tempest rough and wild
Ere it engulfs Thy own dear child—
Thy peace impart this day.

"Good tidings of great joy" I bring;
A message old but new,
Down through the centuries it comes
With a special significance for you.

For the Day Star is risen in heaven above,
And the commandments of God are true.

This new year, I pray, may be the most blessed and happiest of your life.

DODSON

Christmas has passed with Old Santa visiting every home with many useful presents and good things to eat. The children were delighted to see Santa. The most attractive of his wearing apparel seems to be his long beard, which he has worn for many generations. We might say that this has been an interesting characteristic of man since Adam. With many races of man this has been distinguished as a high honor and sacred. Among the Greek philosophers it was trimmed in a particular style as a mark of profession. Among the Romans it was considered a disgrace not to wear a beard. The English wore theirs very long so as to distinguish their society. Later the cutting of beards came in fashion. Then about the fourteenth century people got to shaving, not only their faces but their heads. Gradually one extreme followed another until a moustache came in fashion which today is carried out especially by the Italian race. This is very seldom seen among the Americans. Probably the agriculturists find that America does not have a good soil for this production.

Dr. and Mrs. Crittenden spent Christmas with friends in Davis, W. Va.

Mr. Walter Kinkead spent Sunday and Monday with friends at Morgantown, W. Va.

Harry Adams and family are on an extended visit with relatives in Cumberland.

Mr. John Fitzwater was a guest of friends in Deer Park Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. John Leinbach, who for some time was a patient in the Western Maryland Hospital at Cumberland with a badly bruised foot, is now home and able to be on the job.

The M. E. Sunday school held its Christmas services last Thursday evening which was appreciated by the large attendance.

Last Saturday evening the M. M. P. A. S. held their annual meeting and elected and installed officers for the ensuing year: H. E. Nine, of Morgantown, W. Va., past grand national president, installed the following: High Chief, H. M. Adams; Assistant Chief, W. I. Kinkead; Recording secy., H. W. Thomas; Financial secy., H. W. Nine; Treasurer, J. L. Fitzwater; Central post, Leinbach; guard, W. I. Adams; Trustees, A. J. Garrett, L. K. Dellinger and H. V. Sager. After the meeting a banquet was served by the ladies of the M. W. P. A. A. Music was rendered by Mrs. Harry Adams and others.

Lad Shot Himself in Leg.

George Ferguson, aged about eighteen years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ferguson, of near Hoyer, slipped and fell on last Thursday while out hunting and his gun sliding down a slight incline struck against an obstruction, discharging it and the load of shot penetrated the young man's leg at a point midway between his ankle and knee. Dr. Ravenscroft, of Accident, was called and gave first aid later sending the patient to a hospital in Cumberland where he is resting comfortably.

The School Bulletin

VOL. 1. GARRETT COUNTY, MD., DEC. 30, 1920. No. 5.

A NEW STATE-WIDE EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM.

Below will be found a copy of a letter written by Mr. Albert S. Cook, State Superintendent of Schools, which has been mailed to every public school teacher in Maryland. It begins the erection of a platform for the betterment of our public schools. It calls for a program of school improvement that is so broad, conservative and considerate in its achievements that every citizen in the State can get behind it with enthusiasm. Boiled down, the program calls for:

1. Trained teachers.
2. Trained leaders.
3. Compensation adequate to secure them.

In the letter, the State Superintendent suggests a few necessary improvements that will enter into the new State-wide educational program. They will be widely advocated and strongly emphasized are carefully worked out in detail during the coming year of 1921, before the Legislature of 1922 is in session. The details of these improvements as related to the new State-wide educational program will be set forth in detail in these columns of The School Bulletin from time to time as they are announced.

The letter of the State Superintendent to the teachers themselves is interesting from an entirely different viewpoint. As one teacher of this county said on the streets of Oakland last Tuesday: "I have been a teacher in the public schools for twenty years and this is the first letter I ever received from a State Superintendent without first having written him upon some definite subject."

The following five principles of public school administration are emphasized in the letter:

1. Progress in education in Maryland can come only through advancing the professional and personal welfare of the teaching force.
2. The greatest need in the State is more teacher-training, both before and after the teacher enters the service.
3. Salaries considerably above "mere subsistence" must be paid teachers.
4. The announcement of a new State educational program to be presented to the Legislature of 1922.
5. Each county should proceed to form a county-wide teachers' organization.

The letter of the State Superintendent, above referred to, reads in full as follows:

STATE OF MARYLAND.
Department of Education
Lexington Building, Baltimore.

To the Teachers of Maryland:—
I trust it will not surprise you that my first communication to you should concern your professional and personal welfare, for, after all, since the teacher is the school, progress in education in Maryland can come only through advancing the professional and personal welfare of the teaching force.

The greatest need of the State is more teacher training, both before and after the teacher enters the service; and a corollary to this proposition is that to get trained teachers, salaries considerably above "mere subsistence" must be paid.

Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Ely left Oakland Tuesday morning for Glasgow, Ky., in which city they will remain for an indefinite period as guests of their son, Mr. Albert Ely, later going on to point in Florida where they expect to spend about a month before returning to Oakland.

Appreciating the need of a first-class paint shop where automobile owners may have their cars repainted and put into good condition, Mr. A. R. Martin, proprietor of the Martin Garage in Oakland, has added such a department to his already completely equipped establishment. He has also added space to his parts department which enables him to carry a much larger supply of automobile accessories and repair parts for standard makes of cars. These additions to the facilities of the garage fill a want that has been felt ever since automobiles have been in such universal use in the county, as heretofore when one wanted his car repainted the machine had to be driven to some other point.

TO MY FRIENDS AND PATRONS.

As I close up my business for the year 1920, which has been a very prosperous one, I feel I would be derelict in my duty if I failed to express my appreciation of the patronage of my friends and the public in general.

At the time I began business, it was my highest aim to gain the confidence of the general public and to serve them to the best of my ability. This I feel I have done, owing to the large increase of business I have had. During the past year I have sold 88 new Overland Cars and a number of new Ford cars and have bought, traded in and sold quite a number of second-hand cars of all makes.

tence" must be paid—a condition which, unfortunately, does not exist at present outside of a few favored localities. Therefore, in my judgment, proper compensation for the entire professional group engaged in public school work is as strictly a professional problem as is teaching primary reading, the making of a course of study, or competent administrative and supervisory leadership. Consequently, the first place in our new State educational program to be presented to the Legislature, along with our next budget, will be given to the foregoing proposition and its corollary, namely: trained teachers, trained leaders and compensation adequate to secure them in every county in the State.

If you are interested in this problem, how are you to help? Unquestionably no comprehensive State program for educational progress can be put over without the united support of the profession itself. How is this support to register so that the State Board of Education and the State Department may know that any proposed program has this support? To my mind there is only one effective way, and that is to lay a tentative but definite program before the entire teaching corps of each county for discussion; then out of that discussion should grow a body of constructive criticism that should lead to modifications of the program for submission again to the teachers or to their accredited representatives. To do this work well it seems to me that each county should proceed to form a county-wide teachers' organization under able professional leadership, if such an organization does not actively exist, and this organization should have an executive committee sufficiently large to represent the various types of teaching positions in the county; to this committee could be left certain details after general instructions have been given by the entire group. The chairman of this committee, and at least the president and secretary of the association, should be empowered to confer with like representatives from the other counties, with a like committee from the County Superintendents' Association, and with the State Superintendent of Schools. In this way our Department could, if necessary, call together on short notice a representative group of the entire profession for intimate interchange of ideas on proposed educational programs and policies.

If this plan in outline appeals to you, will you not talk it over with your co-workers at once and prepare for action? I submitted this letter to the County Superintendents at our recent conference, and the general plan met with their unanimous approval. I have also secured the unanimous approval of the Committee on Reorganization of the Maryland State Teachers' Association.

I wish you all a pleasant and profitable holiday season.

Sincerely yours,
ALBERT S. COOK,
State Superintendent.

The Overland Automobile Company offered a premium of $1000 to the agent who would sell the most cars in a given time, which offer was duplicated by the Overland distributors of Baltimore City. It gives me much pleasure to announce to my friends that I was placed in Class A and was awarded the $2000 premium. My success, whatever it has been, has been due to the support of my friends and the patronage of the public in general, for which I heartily express my appreciation and hope that I may have your continued support and patronage.

I will be better equipped to furnish your needs during the coming year than I have been in the past, as I have enlarged the floor space of my "Parts Department" and also put in a paint shop where I will have a first-class painter in charge and where you may have your old car to be made to look like a new one.

I have recently taken the agency for the General Motor Company's line of machinery and am in a position now to furnish you with a Sampson Truck, which I consider is one of the best on the market today for the money, and likewise the Sampson Tractor. I now have one on hand and invite you to call and inspect same when you are in town. I will still continue to handle the Overland Car and will be in a position to furnish you with a new Ford of any kind on very short notice.

I have now and expect to have at all times a line of horses, which will be for sale or exchange. So when you are in need of a good team don't forget to call at Martin's Garage. Wishing you all a prosperous New Year and again thanking you for your support and patronage, I am at your service.
A. R. MARTIN.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS FAIR

Event Opened on Tuesday Night With Large Crowd in Attendance.

The big Pythian fair opened Tuesday evening in the Knights of Pythias Hall on Third street with a bang and a whizz that amazed even the hardened Knights themselves.

Tuesday night the hall was packed and last night a duplication of the congested condition of the building was even more apparent. The opportunities for enjoyment seem to be unlimited. The side splitting comedy given on Tuesday night by the "Two J's" will be repeated on Friday evening with some variations as will also the band concert. Great preparations are under way to make Friday night a whirlwind of gaiety, a cataclysm of enjoyment and a perfect climax of frolic. You cannot afford to miss this last of the four nights of unmitigated and joyous mirth.

Last night a regular supper was served by the Pythian Sisters to a large patronage. The supper was a great treat.

FRANCE FREE OF BOLSHEVIK TAIN

American Relief Steadies People in Devastated Areas, Says Noted Writer.

BANGS MAKES OBSERVATIONS

Declares Aid Must Be Continued to Restore Sufferers to Full Vigor—Hope, Not Despair, in Their Hearts.

New York.—Bolshevism will never take root in the miles of ruins along the Aisne as long as the morale of the French is kept high while the people are rebuilding and replanting, asserts John Kendrick Bangs. It is better to build up a human soul than to restore a ruined chateau, the well-known writer and lecturer epitomizes.

Speaking from observations made in two trips of inspection through the regions which remain almost as wrecked and desolated as the Germans left them, he declares the work done by the American Committee for Devastated France to be most important in steadying the population during the reconstruction period.

Fears Would Be Allayed.

"In restless times like these," said Mr. Bangs, "when the great bogey of Bolshevism is being reared everywhere to frighten the timid into all sorts of compromises with conscience, I sometimes wish that every influential factor in America could be transported to Europe to see for themselves exactly how matters stand over there. I think a great many of their fears would be allayed, and that they would find that Bolshevism is to be apprehended only where there exist no standards of any sort by which the poor and ignorant can measure its shortcomings."

"That it should succeed in Russia is easily accounted for by the utter filletery of over 90 per cent of the population."

From old systems, and trying anything new that came along, no matter how illogical or insane it might be, so long as it promised something different from that which was.

No Such Weakness There.

"Had I been one of those returning refugees into any one of the hundred and more villages cared for by the American Committee for Devastated France, for instance, I am not sure that I should not have hoisted the red flag, not that I believed in any of the social absurdities for which it stands, but that it had the virtue of at least being different from the one I had used to reverence. But to my amazement I found no trace of any such weakness in the hearts of those good people in the department of the Aisne."

"They looked with cold, dumb grief upon the wreckage that had once been home, but the flag they raised above them was not the red flag of despair, but the triangle of hope, and I am proud to say that in one corner of it was a blue field holding 48 stars. They knew that that flag had waved gallantly at Canigou, at Chateau Thierry, at St. Mihiel, and in the Argonne and that there had been meat and horses, and here it stood for spiritual and moral support, and it held them proof against any despairing urge of resentment against a civilization that had superficially seemed to fall them. Indeed it was proof that that civilization was going to see them safely through the cleared aftermath of war."

cost of the navy ration, which rose to an average of 700 cents, as compared with 65.7 cents in 1919 and a prewar average of around 37 cents.

Admiral McTiernan asserted that final figures showed that the navy subsisted 100,000 troops en route to France and 120,000 returning troops. In connection with the wartime work of the subsistence branch, he said:

"Despite the scarcity of certain articles of food and the constant and persistent pressure from outside, amounting in effect to actual propaganda, for relaxation of the rigidity of the navy's specifications, especially on meats, no such thing was done, and the standard of subsistence was never lowered."

Ships Not So Good.

The mechanical condition of America's fleet has undergone little improvement since the termination of the war, and the engineer performance of the individual ships "has not been satisfactory," Rear Admiral Griffin, chief of the bureau of engineering, says in his annual report.

In Marriage They Are Not Divided. Cincinnati, O.—When Oscar Heinichen, Jr., and his sister, Miss Helen Heinichen, participate in a double wedding, they will remain together, as both plan to live in the same house. WARSHIPS ARE NOT SO GOOD Mechanical Condition of the Fleet Has Undergone Little Improvement Since the War, Says Bureau Chief.

Washington.—Chalm still may be made the best fed body of men in the world, Samuel McTiernan, paymaster general of the navy, declared in his annual report. In support of his statement, Rear Admiral McTiernan cites the following order issued by Admiral Wilson, commander of the Atlantic fleet.

"Due to general excellence of present navy rations and living conditions on board ships of the fleet, training tables for athletic events are considered unnecessary and are therefore forbidden."

Surplus provisions left over after filling the wartime need, Admiral McTiernan said, have been disposed of at reasonable prices. He added that new stocks of the current season's pack were being obtained in sufficient quantities to meet the estimated requirements of the coming year.

Increases in the prices of foodstuffs during the year were reflected in the

Stout Monoplane Seems a Success

The Stout monoplane, widely known as the "mystery ship" of the war period just before the armistice, has been redesigned for commercial flying, and has just gone through a remarkable series of preliminary flights. Although a new type of aircraft and built entirely from calculations, the ship, on its first trial and with but a preliminary 30-foot run across the ground, took off at once for a 20-minute flight under perfect control at an altitude of 1500 feet. The ship is the design of William B. Stout, and has many novel features. It is a real commercial three-passenger limousine, built entirely of veneer, including wings which are internally trussed and completely covered with veneer. The plane is twice as strong as former types of airplane, and yet weighs but 1,820 pounds. Its maximum speed is in excess of 125 miles per hour, while the landing speed is less than 45 miles per hour.

SAYS BREED SKUNKS FOR FUR

United States Department of Agriculture Calls Beast Friend of Farmer.

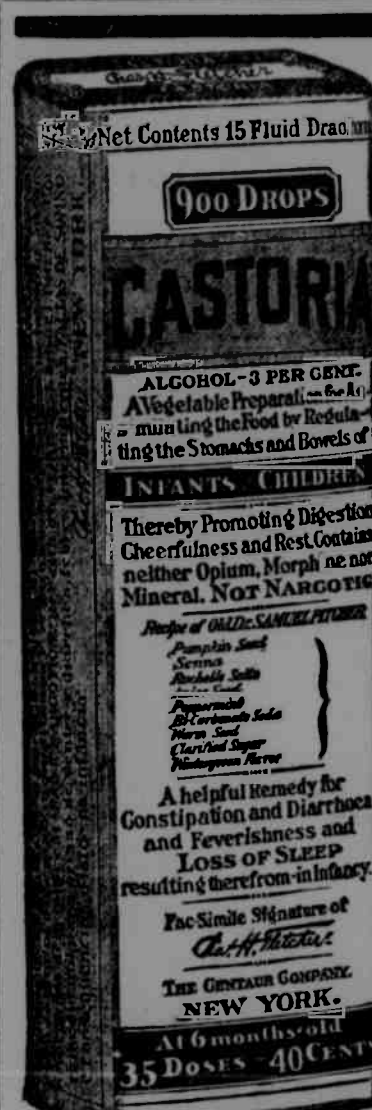

Washington.—Breeding of skunks as a means of stabilizing the "depressed fur market" is the latest suggestion of the Department of Agriculture.

Despite all the harsh things that have been said about this lowly animal the department describes him as "the best wild animal friend the farmer has." The skunk, the announcement says, can be used for destroying mice, grasshoppers, crickets and white grubs, at the same time furnishing the farmer from $50 to $100 worth of fur a year.

All that is required of the farmer, the circular says, is that he "respect the animal's den, keep his poultry in skunk-proof yards, kill an old horse for them every fall and be tactful when he meets them in the evening."

Think Monkey Stole Diamond.

St. Louis, Mo.—Huffed by a wave of robberies and pocket pickings, the police have turned their attention to the Forest Park zoo in the hope of solving at least one light-fingered misapprehension. The quest began with a search of the monkey cages on the theory that an $800 diamond pin was taken from Mrs. Clifford C. Fox as she strolled through the zoo on a Sunday afternoon. Park police believe one of the monkeys, attracted by the sparkle, reached through the bars of his cage and "lifted" the pin as Mrs. Fox strolled past.

WE BUILT UP OUR CHILDREN WONDERFULLY WITH HYPO-COD

It Stopped Their Cough, Built Them Up and They Look Fine.

A BLESSING TO LITTLE FOLKS

"My three children, aged 5, 6 and 8 years were down with the whooping cough and they coughed for months. I felt awfully worried, for all the old-time remedies failed to stop the cough, and they grew weaker and worse-looking every day. We even made a tea out of bark and leaves, but still they coughed. We at first thought the cough would wear away, but as weeks and weeks went by we became alarmed. Every fresh cold aggravated it. We finally heard about Earle's Hypo-Cod and got it at the drug store. Results were wonderful. It stopped the cough in no time, and you could see it building them up day by day. Their appetites came back and then they began sleeping well. Then they wanted to play and romp and now you can see yourself what happy, healthy children they are. They look so much better. If we had only known about Earle's Hypo-Cod before we did we could have saved the children a lot of suffering. So I praise this tonic to other mothers all the time. It proved a blessing in our home."

Note—These same children were given Hypo-Cod as a full tonic early last winter. They went through the whole winter long without a cold or a cough. Thousands of mothers, once they learn about Hypo-Cod, built up their family just as regular as the seasons roll around and ward off all kinds of sickness with it. Children love to take this splendid tonic, and by reading the formula on a bottle you will see that it contains an excellent combination of medicinal elements.

The lady that gave the above statement is Mrs. H. F. Rabbitt, 422 Maryland Ave., S. W., Washington, D. C. Thousands of mothers swear by this tonic just like Mrs. Rabbitt.
